U. S. Will Use Para. Case as An 'Example'

To Cite Settlement in Move Against Other 3

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Paramount consent decree will probably be used by the Government as a weapon against the remaining three distributor-circuit Paramount case defendants—20th-Fox, Warner and Loew-M-G-M—when the government files its final brief in the case at the end of this month.

"The Paramount decree indicates that the largest firm in the business believes divorcement can work," one top Justice Department official said. "We will probably call that to the Federal Court's attention as an argument against the arguments of the remaining defendants."

This official said that he believes both the RKO and Paramount decrees strengthen the government's hand against the remaining defendants, "as showing that a solution could be worked out of court if the defendants are willing to give up some of their 'ill-gotten gains'."

Minneapolis Fight On Clearance Looms

MINNEAPOLIS, March 14.—A bitter fight over clearance in Minneapolis threatened this week as the independent suburban Edina, and the neighborhood Avalon demanded earlier runs from all film companies.

The Edina, operated by Friedman Brothers, in a veiled threat to exchanges, demanded pictures on the 28-day break along with Minnesota Amusement, ace neighborhood stand, the Uptown, and the independent suburban Richfield and neighborhood Boulevard, Riverview, Varsity and

Operators In Two Cities Get 5% Raise

Projectionists of Minneapolis and Memphis have received five per cent wage increases.

In Memphis, the operators union has completed negotiations with both suburban and downtown theatres, E. O. Cullen, business agent, said, with a five per cent increase retroactive to

New Shows Boost NY 1st-Run Business; State Hits $57,000

Several new shows at New York first-runs this week resulted in substantially improved business over last week's. Thursday generally was dull, but the overall weekend revenue was at a healthy level. There are about the usual number of weaker box-office performers.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" is a standout attraction at the State, where the first week's take of $57,000 is very big. "Little Women," with a stage presentation, at the Music Hall, is doing well, with $128,000 anticipated for the initial week. "Mother Was a Freshman," with Cab Calloway's orchestra and Phil Baker and others on stage, probably will give the Roxy a good first week's gross of $80,000.

"Alias Nick Beal," with the King Cole Trio and Elliot Lawrence's orchestra on stage, at the Paramount, probably will wind up a first week with $70,000, which is healthy business. "Criss Cross" is fairly strong with $25,000 apparent for a first week at the Criterion. "Red Pony" completed a first week at the Mayfair with a below par gross of $15,500.

"Three Godfathers," with Sammy Kaye's orchestra and Harvey Stone in person, is headed for an adequate

Mo. Owners To Fight "Informer" Clause

ST. LOUIS, March 14.—Missouri theatre owners will assemble in Jefferson City on March 21 for public hearings on the proposed state legislation to modernize the theatre safety code. The exhibitors are also seeking repeal of an old "public informer" clause which is appended to state safety statute. Lawyer "informers" recently sued seven theatres for millions of dollars under this clause for alleged aisle violations.

U. A. Sale May Be Called Off

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.—Probability that there will be no sale of the Mary Pickford-Charles Chaplin ownership of United Artists during the next 30 to 40 days while Chaplin holds an option on Miss Pickford's half interest was expressed here today by company officials, who point to improvements in U.A. prospects since the two owners agreed in January to exchange options.

Miss Pickford was unable to conclude a deal for the sale of Chaplin's half interest in the 40-day period which ended last Saturday, during which she held the option. It had been expected that a sale might be consummated with the transfer of the option to Chaplin, starting today, as it was understood that Chaplin was prepared to sell his own as well as Miss Pickford's interest, whereas the latter reportedly wished to retain a partnership in United Artists in the event she succeeded in finding a buyer for Chaplin's shares.

Company officials point ou that U.A.'s prospects are brighter now with new product lined up and more in view, and with healthy grosses continuing for "Red River" and comparable business expected for "Champion," with a consequent lessening of

A. J. Richard Heads Reels' Bond Drive

A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount Newsreel, has accepted the chairmanship of the newsreel committee for the industry's participation in the Treasury Department's savings bond drive, it was announced here yesterday by Maurice A. Bergman, chairman of the industry's drive.

Richard will coordinate savings bond activities of all newsreel bond-selling into the industry's promotion.

D. of J. Expects 'Flurry' Of Schine Decree Talks

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Justice Department officials here expect a flurry of consent decree talks with Schine attorneys this week, in an attempt to reach an "agreement in principle" before the next round of proceedings in the case in Buffalo District Court on Friday.

On that day, both sides are slated to argue before Judge Knight in Buffalo whether Schine should be allowed to introduce further evidence in the case. One top Justice Department official said he did not think the government would agree to postpone this unless "we have at least come to terms on the broad outline of a decree."

This official said that "this week may tell." Schine attorneys met with Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson today for more than an hour, their fourth meeting in recent weeks. They also conferred with him Friday for some time.

5th-Walnut Suit Appeal Brings Issue to Fore

Though distributor defendants in the Paramount case were found to have violated the anti-trust laws it does not follow that they violated the law in "every town and city," it was contended yesterday by 20th Century-Fox attorney John Caskey as he moved before the three-judge U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here that Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell's dismissal of the Fifth & Walnut Amusement Co. anti-trust action be sustained.

Monroe E. Stein of New York, attorney for the Louisville plaintiff, argued in his appeal of Judge Leibell's decision in favor of the distributor-defendants that the jurist should have told the jury during his charge that the film companies in the Formation of an independent unit for the production and distribution of films for television was announced here today by Steve Broidy, Monogram and Allied Artists president.

Walter Mirisch Heads Mono-AA TV Unit

Walter Mirisch, Mono-AA producer, has been named general manager of the new firm, to be known as the Interstate Television Corporation, and production will get underway at Monogram studios in Hollywood.

The decision to enter the television field was reached at the board of directors' annual meeting held Saturday at Chicago in the Hotel Drake, but public announcement of the plan was withheld until Broidy reached New York. The new corporation will be wholly independent of Monogram and Allied Artists, Broidy said.

Tolans Are Killed

SALT LAKE CITY, March 14.—A. C. Toland and his son, Dorian, operators of the Tremonton, Utah, theatre, were killed in a crash of their private plane yesterday near Lewiston, Idaho. The couple were the only occupants of the plane, which was lost in a storm en route to Montana.

Carver Medal Goes To Darryl Zanuck

Hollywood, March 14.—Darryl F. Zanuck, production head of 20th Century-Fox, has been named the recipient of the 1948 Gold Medal of the George Washington Carver Memorial Institute and will be honored by the awards committee of the organization today. Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, provost of the University of Southern California, will make the presentation.

Darryl F. Zanuck

The award, which honors the memory of the scientist, is based on outstanding contributions to the betterment of racial relations and human understanding. Zanuck is the first Hollywood producer to receive the honor.

The institute was founded for the furtherance of tolerance and humanitarianism among all races and for the educational advancement regardless of race to which Dr. Carver devoted his life and scientific endeavors.

AFL Film Council Returns to MPIC

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.—The Hollywood AFL Film Council, comprising unions and guilds with 20,000 members, today rescinded its recent withdrawal from the Motion Picture Industry Council, but issued at the same time, a forthright denunciation of the latter's present chairman, C. B. DeMille, whose selection as chairman caused the original withdrawal. Today's action by the AFL Council follows the selection of Ronald Reagan, Screen Actors Guild president, as co-chairman at an intervening meeting which also set up a secret ballot process for electing officers.

The AFL Film Council's statement said that today's action "should not be construed as voicing confidence in the present chairman," but that it "hopes the MPIC will be able to carry out a constructive public relations program for the entire industry."

CLEVELAND, March 14.—Architectural plans for a new 1,600-seat theatre to be built at Cuyahoga Falls have been completed, M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, announces.

I. W. Schlesinger Of S. Africa Dies

Isadore William Schlesinger, 78, a leader in film, radio and other industries in South Africa, died on Friday at his home at Johannesburg, according to press dispatches received here from Capetown over the weekend. He was the brother of M. A. Schlesinger, also a leader in the South African motion picture industry, who makes his headquarters in New York.

An American citizen, I. W. Schlesinger emigrated to South Africa in 1894 and within 10 years rose from penury to the presidency of his own insurance company in Johannesburg. He launched many enterprises, becoming a director of 70 corporations, but was best known as the founder of African Consolidated Theatres, Ltd., and as a pioneer of radio broadcasting in South Africa. He branched out successively into chain stores, hotels, banking and citrus growing.

In recent years his son, John, a Harvard graduate, represented Schlesinger on all public occasions in South Africa.

"Curley" Reaches Top Court in Tennessee

MEMPHIS, March 14.—"Curley" is headed for the Supreme Court of Tennessee. "Curley," a comedy, was banned from Memphis screens by the Board of censors, headed by Chairman Lloyd T. Binford, and United Artists and Hal Roach Productions filed suit asking for an injunction. They also asked damages, charging violation of constitutional rights.

In Memphis Circuit Court the case was not heard on its merits and a motion made by the censors to throw the case out of court was upheld. Since the case was decided on a motion, an appeal has been taken direct to Supreme Court.

Equity Calls Republic Ad 'Misleading'

HOLLYWOOD, March 14.—Equity Pictures, through its counsel, released to the press copies of a letter sent to Republic protesting an advertisement for 'Red Ryder" re-releases published in the March 9th edition of MOTION PICTURE DAILY as "misleading advertising which is frowned upon by fair trade practices" and stating that Equity will hold Republic "strictly accountable for all damages resulting therefrom" unless rectification is made in future advertisements. The letter asserts that the word "re-releases" in the Republic advertisement was "in such small type as to be unnoticeable to the average reader" and declares "your ad is of such nature as to indicate that these are color pictures similar to those being produced by our client."

WLWC Opens March 27

COLUMBUS, O., March 14.—Operation of WLWC, television station under construction here by the Crosley Broadcasting Co., begins Mar. 27.

Cleveland Cheers Sears, ATOI Sneers

Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, congratulated Gradwell Sears, United Artists president, for prohibiting the double featuring of "Red River" with "The Paleface" by Fox Wisconsin theatres in Milwaukee last week, but Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana takes a dim view of it, saying "No cheers for Sears."

Asserting that "Red River" was sold flat to the Milwaukee theatres, ATOI remarks: "And what kind of a flat deal it must be that would permit it to be so double-billed."

Tennessee Owners Face Tax Increase

MEMPHIS, March 14.—Theatre owners all over Tennessee are being aroused to join the fight against a proposal to the legislature that state admission taxes be hiked from three and four per cent to five and six.

The proposal, expected to reach the legislative hopper on March 21, was made by the organization of municipal authorities.

At present the state admission tax is three per cent on theatres without bank nights and four per cent on theatres with them. Cities get none of this tax, all of it going to the state. The city proposal is to raise the tax to five for theatres without bank nights and to six for those that have them. Also, the proposal is to divide the revenue between the state and cities.

Fight on Clearance

Homewood. The Avalon, operated by Frank and Woempner, has asked the exchanges for a 42-day run, on the same run as now booked by Maco's deluxe Rialto, a half mile distant. Latter two houses seat around 900. The Edina is now in the 43-day classification, and the Avalon in the 49-day.

Several of the smaller majors are agreeable to the demands of both the Edina and Avalon, but the larger ones reportedly are backing away from them in the belief that granting either run will split clearance wide open in Minneapolis. It is pointed out that the suburban Hopkins was prevailed upon last fall to stall breaking into the 28-day runs because it might start a "run war" with the competitive Edina and St. Louis Park stands, a move which was claimed at the time would only result in "a ruinous bidding fight."

Oklahoma Unit Seeks To Kill State Tax

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 14.—Oklahoma exhibitors rallied today to a call for emergency action against a bill in the State Legislature which would levy a state tax on theatre admissions.

Some 200 members of Theatre Owners of Oklahoma met in a special meeting here, mapped plans for a fight against the bill and then went to the capital to talk to legislators.

Tomorrow a group will appear before the House Revenue and Taxation committee to protest against the measure, which calls for a graduated tax from one cent on 10-cent tickets up to five cents on those over 40 cents.

TOO president Morris Lowenstein said that today's activities brought promises from "several legislators that they will oppose the bill."

last July 25 for suburban operators and to last September 1 for downtown operators. First operators in suburban jobs will now get about $94 on a 40-hour week, he said, and assistant operators will get $32. Downtown, where four chief operators are assigned to each projector booth, the scale is $89.25 for 40 hours.

In Minneapolis, after three months of negotiations, city and suburban independents have reached an agreement on a new wage contract with projectionists, it was announced by Stan Kane, executive counsel for North Central Allied.

The new contract, retroactive to last Nov. 30, is for a three-year term and calls for a wage increase of five per cent in the first year, and two and one-half per cent in each of the succeeding two years. Kane also disclosed that his committee has started negotiations with St. Paul projectionists.

the need for bringing new money into the company through a change in ownership.

Ted R. Gamble, circuit operator, who reportedly was invited to bid for control of United Artists in conjunction with Si Fabian, arrived in New York from his Portland, Ore., home yesterday.

Questioned concerning the reports, Gamble said that no offer has been made and he knows of no negotiations in progress now. He said he would confer with Fabian during his visit in New York at which time he expects to be brought up to date on whether or not there is sufficient interest to lead to formal negotiations by the two for U.A. control later. Gamble had only recently returned to Portland from a Palm Springs vacation.

NY 1st-Run Grosses

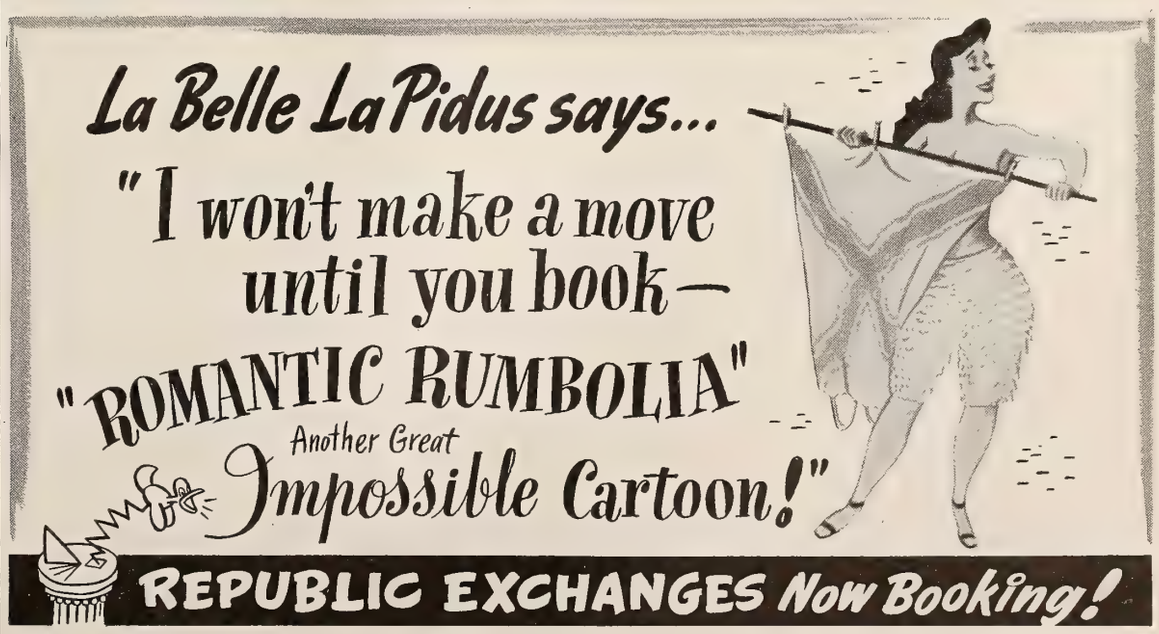
week's gross of $48,000 at the Capitol. "Joan of Arc" is still doing well at the Victoria, where $15,000 is looked for in an 18th week. "Knock on Any Door" should bring the Astor about $21,000, mild business, in a third week. "Hamlet will give the Park an estimated $14,000, which is close to capacity, in its 24th week.

"South of St. Louis," with Desi Arnaz and a revue on stage, at the Strand, is likely to do about $35,000 in a second week, which is fair enough; the show brought $45,000 in its initial week, which is good, but considerably under early estimates. "Moonrise" probably will get a meager $10,500 at the Globe in a second week; it will be replaced on Saturday by "Impact." "Champion" is due in at the Globe on April 9.

"Red Shoes," in a 21st week at the Bijou, is headed for another $14,000 gross, meaning consistently strong business. "Snake Pit" is nearing the end of an exceptionally successful run at the Rivoli, where $13,000 is in view for the 19th week; "Portrait of Jennie" will succeed it on March 30. "Pygmalion" is performing splendidly at the Sutton, with $9,000 indicated for the third week of that reissue. Film did $11,000 in the first week and $10,000 in the second.

Para. Has Closed Circuit Video Films



Film recordings of television shows proved to be the television industry's major advance for 1948, and a phase of this development—"closed circuit pre-filming" of television shows—"now becomes a leading candidate for the industry's major contribution to television progress in 1949," according to Paramount Pictures here, which says it is the first firm—and the first major producer—to offer a "closed circuit pre-filming" service.

Paramount is making this new service available to advertisers, advertising agencies and package show producers in both New York and at Paramount's station KTLA in Los Angeles. The Paramount video transcription system is being installed at station WBKB, Chicago, and closed circuit films will be available shortly in that city.

The potential for "closed circuit pre-filmed television shows and commercials was disclosed yesterday by George T. Shupert, director of commercial television operations for Paramount. "A number of 'closed circuit pre-filmed' television commercials," he reports, "were produced for a large national advertiser last week in a new and specially-constructed television studio in the Paramount Building, New York. "The sponsor's representatives were present throughout the camera rehearsals and shooting," said Shupert. "Sitting in the control room, they were able at all times to view the picture exactly as it would appear on home television screens and to hear their accompanying sales message as well. This allowed them to make numerous changes before the final recording."

Johnston To Entertain

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Motion Picture Association of America president Eric Johnston will give a reception Friday afternoon for the entertainers who will appear at the dinner Saturday night of the White House News Photographers Association. They include Jack Carson, Billy DeWolfe, Dick Haymes, Betty Hutton, Margaret Ettinger and Stanley Richardson, Chairman of the Hollywood Coordinating Committee.

5th-Walnut Appeal

Paramount case "were found guilty of setting up systems of runs, uniformity and availability." That, Stein contended, was the crux of Fifth & Walnut's case.

Presiding U. S. Circuit Court Judge Augustus N. Hand and his associates on the bench, Judges Harrie B. Chase and Charles E. Clark, reserved decision following yesterday's three-hour hearing of the $2,100,000 triple-damage action. The court's ruling is expected to influence the future conduct of private anti-trust actions within the industry, as it may determine whether a final decree in the industry anti-trust suit can be used in private actions.

Debate Judge's 'Charge'

Caskey argued yesterday that Judge Leibell did not "ignore" the Paramount case in his jury charge, but rather made "many specific charges in the words of the Paramount opinion." Edward Raftery, United Artists' attorney, contended as did other defense attorneys, that the charge to the jury was "more favorable" to the plaintiff than to the defendants. The defense held that Stein wanted U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' opinion in the Paramount case "read" to the jury. Stein answered defense assertions that he "was not willing to face the case on its merits" with the contention that the defense was not willing to face the case on "legal issues."

Fifth and Walnut brought its action in July, 1946, charging that the distributors had "conspired" to deprive the National Theatre, Louisville, of first-run product. Represented in court yesterday as defendants were the "Big Five" distributors and United Artists, Columbia and certain subsidiary companies. Republic and Universal were dismissed as defendants during the U. S. District Court trial here.

Says Move-Over Deal Ignored

Stein also contended that Judge Leibell erred in not having charged the jury in connection with a first-run move-over deal referred to in the plaintiff's allegations.

Attorney Louis D. Frohlich of Schwartz & Frohlich, representing Columbia, termed "high-handed impudence" plaintiff's alleged demand that the National be supplied with the "cream" of first-run product. Stein countered that the National did not want all "the best," but "some."

Sol Edwards To Join SRO Here on April 1

Boston, March 14.—Sol Edwards, operator of the Park Theatre, Nashua, N. H., and former sales executive for 20th Century-Fox, will join Selznick Releasing Organization in an executive sales capacity on April 1. He will maintain headquarters at the home office in New York.

Sues Grinieff on Deal

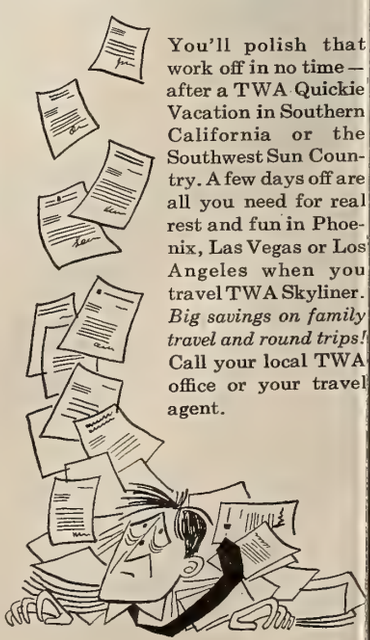
Raphael Van Der Vort and his Almo Films have filed suit in New York Supreme Court against United States Film Export Corp., and its president, Jack Grinieff, seeking the return of $40,000 allegedly advanced in connection with a 1947 four-picture distribution deal for Belgium. Plaintiffs rejected the films after their arrival in Brussels and claim return of the advance.

Seek End of Tulsa Talbot Injunction

Tulsa, Okla., March 14.—The Hotel Last Frontier of Las Vegas, Nev., has asked dismissal of injunction suits brought against it in Federal Court by minority stockholders in the Talbot Theatre here on the grounds that the hotel is a Nevada corporation and cannot be sued here.

H. J. Griffith, president of Last Frontier and principal stockholder in the Griffith circuit, said that he owns only 500 of the 6,000 outstanding shares in Last Frontier. The injunction suits were brought by Mrs. Mary Castle Steinway, New York City, minority stockholder in Majestic Amusement Co. here, claiming the Griffith chain gained control of theatres here formerly controlled by Talbot and later transferred its interest to the hotel corporation. Mrs. Steinway, with two other minority stockholders in Majestic and a second local theatre corporation, last week filed another suit against the Talbot and Griffith interests, seeking $5,000,000 damages.

MGM Wins Dismissal In Meiselman Suit



Charlotte, March 14.—Competitive bidding practices won dismissal of trust charges for M-G-M's distribution branch here after five days of hearings in a suit brought by H. B. Meiselman, operator of the Center Theatre.

Federal Judge Wilson Warlick upheld the defense contention that competitive bidding enables Meiselman to get his share of first-run films distributed by M-G-M. Other defendants, with hearings continuing this week, are 20th Century-Fox, Warner, Paramount, RKO, Columbia, United Artists and Universal-International.

Calls Off Injunction Plea

Chicago, March 14.—A plea for a temporary injunction to bar Paramount from booking product into the Balaban and Katz Marbro has been withdrawn by the Harlem and North Avenue drive-ins, with a hearing on the equity suit scheduled for March 21 in U. S. District Court here.

Para. Adheres To 'Flexible' Sales Policy

Provides for Bids in 'Problem' Situations

Paramount is continuing a flexible selling policy under which product is licensed in a variety of methods as dictated by the circumstances involved in each situation, including competitive bidding, "experimental" bidding and product splits.

Phraseology of the provision on selling in the company's consent judgment in the industry anti-trust action —licensing picture-by-picture, theatre by theatre and in non-discriminatory fashion—left the "Little Three," the Theatre Owners of America, and others, wondering how Paramount could comply other than by competitive bidding in competitive areas. Only the assurance that Paramount would not be bound to sell by bids was given by its attorney, A. C. Bickford. No clarification on how pictures would be sold was made.

Company is now selling by bids in 200 to 250 situations, usually with two

Say Latest Schine Offer Turned Down

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Justice Department has rejected another consent decree offer by the Schine circuit, it was understood today.

Schine attorneys met very late yesterday with Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, and according to a reliable source, made very little progress.

There still is no decision reached on whether there will be a postponement of the proceedings scheduled for

12 in Mono-Allied Backlog: Broidy

Monogram-Allied Artists has a backlog of 12 features, with an additional four now in production, Steve Broidy, president, disclosed here yesterday. One of the four, "Red Light," will be released through United Artists, the unusual arrangement having been necessitated by contractual obligations of the film's star, George Raft, he said.

Company plans between 54 to 58

33⅓% U. K. QUOTA IS RECOMMENDED

TOA Executive Meet Set for March 24-25

A meeting of the executive board of the Theatre Owners of America on March 24 and 25 in New York was set yesterday by Arthur Lockwood, TOA president.

The meeting is expected to consider industry arbitration proposals, television developments, TOA's expansion plans in new territories, a proposal for the exchange of information on box office performance of films among TOA members and other subjects.

Films Council Vote Is 10 to 9; Board of Trade Must Act by March 31

LONDON, March 15.—The British Films Council after bitter debate has recommended that the Board of Trade fix a new film quota at 33⅓ per cent, beginning next October.

The present quota is 45 per cent. Producers and studio unions had sought an increase to 60 per cent or, at least, retention of the present quota. British exhibitors had asked that the quota be reduced to 25 per cent for the next quota year, pointing out that producers have been unable to fulfill the present quota, even by the expedient of sacrificing quality to quantity.

The Council's vote was 10 to nine for the 33⅓ per cent quota. Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, is considering the Council's recommendation now. He is required to enter an order before the end of this month.

The compromise percentage, even

Austrian Urges a Code For Video Like PCA's

Meiselman Decision Seen Spurring Bids

Distribution attorneys have taken a keen interest in the Charlotte trust action from which M-G-M recently won a dismissal, disclosing here that they regard the decision as encouraging more extended use of competitive bidding. Federal Judge Wilson Warlick in Charlotte dismissed M-G-M from a trust suit because that company made bidding available to H. B. Meiselman, Charlotte theatre operator, who is the plaintiff in the suit.

Ralph B. Austrian, television consultant, has urged the Television Broadcasting Association to redouble its efforts to formulate a code of "good taste" for video broadcasting before one is forced upon it by a governmental or other agency. He proposes self-regulation like the Production Code operation in the film industry.

In an open letter to J. R. Poppele, president of the TBA, Austrian, former president of RKO Television Corp., warns that "some bad slips" in television programming recently had resulted in discussions of censorship for video by several groups outside the industry.

Calling for a "workable, sensible" code, Austrian declared that if self-regulation is not immediately forth-

Cites High Values Of Films and Radio

ALBANY, N. Y., March 15.—"We seldom stop to consider how much motion pictures and radio have done for mankind in this and every country of the world; they have achieved a tremendous amount of moral, social and mental good." This statement highlighted a talk given here last night before the Variety Club in the Ten Eyck Hotel and broadcast over WROW, by Father Benjamin Kuhn of Siena College.

Chief barker Sol J. Ullman called Father Kuhn's remarks "The most generous praise which films have received here in some time."

Father Kuhn continued, "A great deal of juvenile delinquency is prevented by going to the movies, although you may hear the opposite said. Most objectionable pictures are being eliminated today.

"With the high class pictures offered, boys and girls are better off in the movies in the afternoon and evening than they would be on the street," Father Kuhn added.

Production Index Increases on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—The production index has again increased, to 28. Nine new pictures were started, and seven were finished.

Starting were "Miss Grant Takes Richmond," "Horsemen of the Sierra," Columbia; "Intruder in the Dust," M-G-M; "Fathoms Deep," "A Strange Caravan," Republic; "Arson, Inc.," Screen Guild; "Pinky," 20th-Fox; "Home of the Brave," UA; "The Octopus and Miss Smith," Warner. Finished were "Madame Bovary," "Any Number Can Play," "That Midnight Kiss" and "Border Incident," all M-G-M; "Red, Hot and Blue," Para.; "Outcasts of the Trail," Republic; "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," 20th-Fox.

Rush 'Set Up' Release In RKO-UA Race

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—In a race to get its production, "The Set Up," on the nation's screens before release of United Artists' "Champion," RKO Radio has booked its boxing film into the Pantages in Los Angeles and has announced immediate release.

The action is said to have followed denial of a request, made by RKO officials to Stanley Kramer, "Champion" producer, to remake a sequence which RKO claims follows closely a similar scene in "Set Up." Though both films deal with the same theme, the seamy side of boxing, Kramer reputedly said he could see no significant similarities in the pictures.

Set 3 Para. Meetings

George A. Smith, Paramount's Western division manager, will conduct three local sales meetings as follows: Seattle, March 17-19; Portland, March 21-22; San Francisco, March 23-25.

Film Council to Meet

The New York Film Council will hold a luncheon meeting tomorrow at Rosoff's restaurant, with Irving Jacboy, newly elected chairman, in charge of the proceedings.

Reviews

"Impact"

(Popkin—United Artists)

THE familiar story of a devoted husband's betrayal by a worthless wife has been given a forthright treatment in "Impact," with several novel developments along the way. Arthur Lubin's direction, marked by clever touches, carefully and adroitly builds up an atmosphere of tense expectancy which enhances the effectiveness of the melodrama. The screenplay, by Dorothy Reid and Jay Dratler, is curiously uneven, however. Its early portions leave nothing to be desired in the way of fresh and excitingly-rendered melodrama. But in its final stretches, it loses luster and winds up in a somewhat standard finale. Harry M. Popkin assembled a neat cast for his production, headed by Brian Donlevy, Ella Raines, Charles Coburn, Helen Walker and Anna May Wong. All factors considered, it shapes up as an attractive box-office picture for those situations which react favorably to outspoken melodramas.

Donlevy is an old hand at this type of role and he handles it well as the millionaire industrialist who becomes the marked man in a murder plot concocted by his wife, Miss Walker, and her lover. A curious turn of events, however, results in the would-be murderer getting killed and his body being mistaken for Donlevy. Plot developments have Miss Walker held for complicity in murder, with Donlevy meanwhile disappearing so that she may be convicted. A change of mind is brought about for Donlevy when in his wanderings he meets Miss Raines, a country gas station owner, and finally takes her advice and goes back to straighten matters out.

Miss Raines, whether in working trousers and smudged face or in gracious attire, is appealing. It is her sleuthing efforts along with those of detective Coburn, that finally saves Donlevy from his faithless wife's further treachery. Coburn gives a workmanlike performance that warrants special mention.

Running time, 111 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"My Dream Is Yours"

(Warner Brothers) Hollywood, March 15

DORIS DAY and Jack Carson, who hit it off so successfully in "Romance on the High Seas," Miss Day's first picture, are even more advantageously paired in this even more shipshape Michael Curtiz Production. Their settings this time are New York and Hollywood, principally the latter, and they are cast as showfolks, radio promoter and thrush, respectively, with Lee Bowman, Adolphe Menjou, Eve Arden, S. Z. Sakall, Selena Royle, Edgar Kennedy, Sheldon Leonard and Franklin Pangborn all giving bang-up performances alongside. It is rich in musical content, richer than common in story, and it is in Technicolor, altogether a lush attraction for that preponderant proportion of the population which goes to the motion picture theatre to have a good time. It can't miss making money.

The picture, directed with easy grace by Harry Kurnitz, from a screenplay by himself and Dane Lussier, based on an adaptation by Allen Rivkin and Laura Kerr, opens in a Hollywood broadcasting studio where Bowman, a conceited crooner, winds up a season by dumping his sponsor and breaking with Carson, the agent who built him up from nothing. Carson flies to New York, seeking a replacement for Bowman, and is led by design into contact with Miss Day, who is employed in one of those slot-machine music dispensaries and sings her wares over the wire. He brings her to Hollywood, and together, with all of those others mentioned above figuring in the procession of complications, work their way up to network stardom for Miss Day and to a happy ending for their romance. It is played out principally for laughs, but packs much more weight and sense than is par for musicals. Music by Harry Warren and lyrics by Ralph Blane assay high as to quality and memorability, and there is a wealth of it.

Running time, 104 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

17th Bill Filed to Cut Federal Tax

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Representative Hand, New Jersey Republican, today introduced a bill to cut the U. S. admission tax back to the pre-war 10 per cent. His is the 17th bill to propose repeal or reduction of the 20 per cent cent tax.

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., tonight continued his fight to reduce the admission tax and other war excise levies.

In an address over the Mutual network, Martin said these high war excise rates "are a gross discrimination against a few selected industries and their thousands of employes." Martin has a bill pending to cut the excises back to pre-war levels, which has been indorsed by the House Republican Policy Committee.

Exhibitors Protest Delivery Charges

ST. LOUIS, March 15.—Complaints against local exchange and delivery services have been raised by two exhibitor organizations here, the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois; and Mid-Central Allied Independent Theatre owners.

Slack inspection of films is charged by MPTO, while Mid-Central Allied has objected to alleged "extras" in delivery charges.

Safety Meet April 1

The roles of motion pictures, radio and the press in traffic accident reduction will be discussed at a conference of public officials and safety experts from New York, Washington, Chicago and New Jersey to be held at the Hotel Statler here on April 1, with Thomas W. Ryan, New York state director of safety, presiding.

Allied Eastern Will Meet Here Today

Allied leaders from Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and New Jersey will meet in New York today to discuss taxation, legislative and other matters including distribution sales policies.

The Allied Eastern regional will be conducted by Jersey Allied president Edward Lachman, who will be host to the visitors.

Chances of Jersey Censorship Lessen

Previous strong possibility of statewide censorship in New Jersey lessened sharply yesterday when Allied of New Jersey reported the measure, Assembly Bill No. 206, was referred by the committee on municipalities to the miscellaneous business committee. This is regarded as signifying the death of the proposal through inaction.

The bill was introduced at the behest of Newark Public Safety Commissioner Keenan and was supported widely by women's clubs. New Jersey Allied's legislative committee, headed by George Gold, spearheaded that organization's opposition.

Protesting Owners Kill Oklahoma Bill

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 15.—Oklahoma exhibitors were successful today in their campaign to kill a bill which threatened new taxes on their business. The House of Representatives Revenue and Taxation committee voted without dissent to kill the bill, which would have put a tax ranging from one to five cents on theatre admissions.

A delegation from Theatre Owners of Oklahoma appeared before the committee, and John Griffin, mayor and exhibitor of Miami, Okla., told the group that theatre taxes have reached their limit. The industry, he said, believes its business should be considered "a necessity, not a luxury."

Berlo Vending Gets New York Contracts

ALBANY, N. Y., March 15.—Berlo Vending Co., Philadelphia, has contracted to handle concessions in three Hellman closed theatres in Albany and Troy, two Fabian-Hellman drive-ins in Albany and Binghamton, and Hellman drive-in at Saratoga Road. Berlo will open an office here with Victor Cohen as manager.

With Hellman's contract with Tristate Automatic Candy Corp. expiring, the new contract will become effective in the drive-ins at the end of this month and, in the closed houses May 1.

NYC Tax Levy Up Again

ALBANY, N. Y., March 15.—Senator Fred Morritt, Brooklyn, is again sponsoring a bill to permit New York City to levy a series of special taxes, including 10 per cent admission tax to amusements where the minimum charge is $1.00.

theatres involved in each. There have been indications that these figures will increase in "problem" areas, Paramount's feeling being that bidding is the most equitable means of settling disputes with exhibitors in competition with each other. This feeling was further strengthened recently when Federal Judge Wilson Warlick in Charlotte dismissed Loew's from a trust action because that company made bidding available to a complainant theatreman.

Uses Product Splits

Paramount also is resolving licensing issues with product splits, that is, allowing theatre competitors to share the company's product on a numerical basis rather than have them engage in bidding.

Company in some instances is conducting "test" bidding by which theatremen seeking a run are invited to bid for product. Results of the experiment determine whether bidding is to be adopted permanently.

According to some sources Paramount has rejected some bids on the grounds that they were excessive and made primarily by the bidder for the purpose of denying his competitor of the opportunity to obtain certain films.

The general expectation at Paramount is that bidding will never be extended to the point where it, rather than standard licensing practices, would be the national, all-embracing policy. Paramount has plans to license by bids only in trouble spots and substantially as a means of defending itself against possible legal actions by theatremen.

Sees Bidding Limited

Bidding never will sweep the country for the obvious reason that "thou-hands of exhibitors" are averse to it, according to one spokesman. Vigorous objections to that type of licensing have been made by Theatre Owners of America and others.

There also has been some question on whether the theatre-by-theatre selling directive would mean that Paramount would be enjoined from doing business with buying and booking combinations. Company's position is that it is free to sell to combines and will continue to do so with, of course, each run licensed on a completely individual basis.

was made here yesterday by company president Neil Agnew and executive vice-president Charles L. Casanave at a trade press interview in which MPS publicity director Joseph L. Roberts also participated. The executives revealed additionally that MPS will set up Latin American headquarters in Mexico City by early summer, has laid the groundwork for a European distribution arrangement, and probably will soon have a distribution deal for Canada. Agnew said the company will sell the Orient, Philippines and South Africa out of New York.

MPS, Agnew announced, also has acquired seven new features, plus seven Harold Lloyd reissues, all of which the company will release directly, with James Clark's National Film Service handling physical distribution. Additionally, he said, the company has established itself as producer publicity representative for Nassour Studios, the Harry and Edward Danziger production "Jigsaw," and Franchot Tone's "The Man on the Eiffel Tower."

Pictures which will be distributed under the MPS banner include, in addition to "Movie Crazy," "The Freshman" and five other Lloyd films, the following: Roberto Rosselini's "The Beggar of Rome," Nat Wachsberger's "Cairo," the Maria Montez French production, "Last Port," "Thief of Venice" to be made in Italy, "What Happened to Hitler?," "Prejudice," and the Brazilian-made "Matta Grosso Jungle."

Looks to National Distributor

Agnew, who said the MPS is at present geared to a releasing capacity of one-a-month, indicated that the company may "find a home with a national distributor" for "Cairo," which stars George Raft, and "Last Port," which stars Miss Montez, Jean Pierre Aumont and Lili Palmer.

The MPS plan, Agnew said, is to "farm out" MPS releases to other national distributors when all but the final 15 per cent of the domestic market has been played. He explained that MPS is not in a position to "invade" that final 15 per cent because distribution costs reach such a high point at that stage of marketing.

Television interests, Agnew disclosed, have attempted to buy telecast rights to the Lloyd pictures, but, the MPS head added, the films will be withheld from video until they have completed circulation in theatres. He reported that Lloyd will produce another picture if the reissues "go over."

coming, telecasters face the possibility of an imposed censorship.

"The motion picture industry realized that self-regulation, onerous as it seemed, was better than governmental or any other type of regulation," Austrian observed, adding: "For years it has been operating within the framework of the (PCA) code and has been eminently successful in keeping its skirts clean."

Ascap, Telecasters

There had been delays at the start of the talks but these were caused by the specific nature of Ascap's licensing authority, and not terms.

In reporting on the meetings so far, a video spokesman said yesterday that they bear absolutely no semblance with the heated sessions with the broadcasters late in 1939. As a result of the differences at that time, Ascap music was not used on radio for about nine months.

Ascap's present gratis pact with the telecasters will expire on April 1.

Propose Ascap Fee On Per-piece Basis

BOSTON, March 15.—Hearings have started here before a state legislative committee on a proposal to require Ascap to sell the public performance rights to the music of its members on a fixed-rate per-piece basis under supervision of a state board. The proposal was made originally by Charles McGlue, in behalf of ballroom operators.

Testifying before the committee, Oscar Hammerstein II, appearing as an Ascap vice-president, declared that the proposal has proved impractical from the viewpoint of music writers, music users and the public.

Under the proposal, music copyright owners would be required to file a list of their works with the state and fix a rate for each piece.

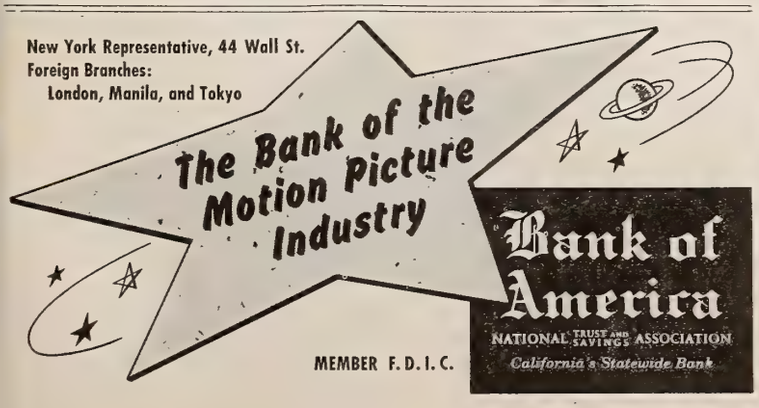
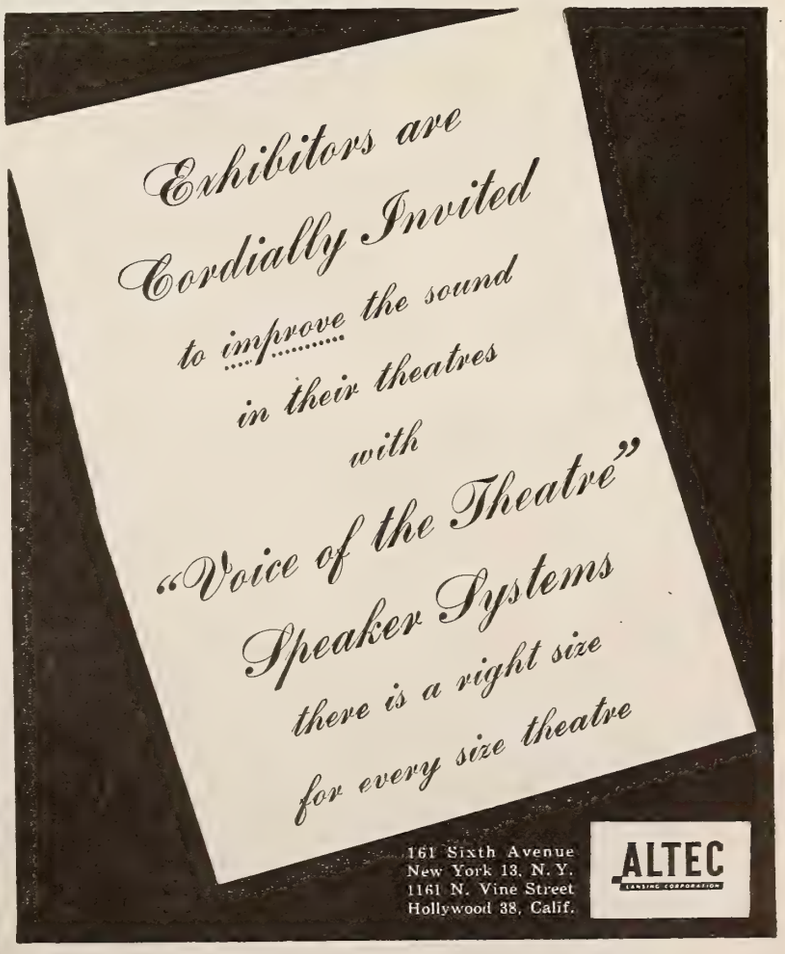
have been urged by United Artists principals to re-enter negotiations now that Chaplin holds a 30 to 40-day option on Miss Pickford's U. A. shares and is assumed to be willing to dispose of his own holdings also, Fabian and Gamble want to be sure beforehand that their 1947 experience will not be repeated.



In response to invitations from United Artists sources to bid for the company ownership, Fabian and Gamble have asked for some firm proposal from Chaplin which they can accept or reject and, if accepted, will be the basis for an irrevocable closing. A firm sales proposal could take the form of an option to them for 45 or 60 days but, since Chaplin's own option on Miss Pickford's half interest in U. A. extends for less than that time, it is assumed that her approval of such an option, as well as Chaplin's, would be required.



Pending a reply from Chaplin on the firm sales offer requisite, there have been no negotiations by Fabian and Gamble who, at the moment, appear to be the only prospects in the field.

Asking price for the Chaplin-Pickford U. A. shares is $5,400,000. Reportedly, if a deal could be made, Fabian and Gamble would bring in other theatre operators with an initial objective of providing ample cash for the financing of outstanding independent producers who would release through U. A.

Dutch Indies May Permit 120 Imports

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Netherlands Indies' Department of Economic Affairs is considering allowing major U. S. film companies to send in 120 films this year, the U. S. Commerce Department reported here today.

Film chief Nathan D. Golden said that another 120 films would be allotted RFD, the Netherlands government film firm, which would be bought from U. S. independents and Continental and Asiatic producers. About 60 films would be allowed J. Arthur Rank, and perhaps 50 to 100 would come from Indian, Arabic, Egyptian and Chinese producers.

Currency exchange continues to be the major problem, Golden said, and through November, 1948, the time when the last report came in from Batavia, leading U. S. producers had been unable to remit dollars for any 1948 showings.

Golden said that a struggle is shaping up between the U. S. Motion Picture Export Association and the RFD. RFD tried to line up films from smaller U. S. independents and some European and Oriental producers, but struck a snag when the U. S. firms wanted cash payment in dollars.

A government ruling prevents distributors from contracting with theatre owners for more than eight films at a time. Distributors feel this prevents long-term planning.

on the narrow majority accorded it, is regarded as a great personal triumph for Sir Alexander King, newly-elected president of the Exhibitors Association, whose eloquence at the hearing in the face of the Producers Association's embittered opposition clearly swayed the Council's decisive section composed of those having no connection with the industry.

The 45 per cent quota appears to have been a complete failure in the first six months of its existence. Thousands of exhibitors have defaulted despite relief granted to many of them.

"Tuna Clipper"

Hollywood, March 15

TUNA fishing as it is conducted in California waters furnishes interesting and integrated background for this story of human nature's reaction to stress, a sensible and satisfying chronicle offering entertainment for the whole family. A little light on the name side for floodlight exploitation purposes, it is an attraction in the solid-entertainment category and capable of building by word-of-mouth.

Roddy McDowall, who is down with Ace Herman as associate producer to Lindsley Parsons, portrays a serious-minded youngster who sets out to protect a pal by taking the rap for a horse wager which the latter has neglected to place for an unscrupulous bettor on a nag which has romped in at 10 to 1. Undertaking to earn enough money to make good the bet, he leaves home and takes employment and residence with a family of tuna fisher-folk, where his dilemma gradually becomes known and steps are taken to do something corrective about it. When it is learned that the bettor, played by Roland Winters, has been collecting not only from Roddy but also from his pal, played by Dickie Moore, matters get straightened out in a hurry and Roddy is forgiven by his parents for leaving home. Direction by William Beaudine and screenplay by W. Scott Darling make the most of the wholly screenworthy material in hand.

Others in the cast include Elena Verdugo, Rick Vallin, Dickie Moore, Russell Simpson, Doris Kemper, Peter Mamakos, Richard Avonde, Michael Vallon.

Running time, 77 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Prejudiced Abroad Uninformed: Seaton

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—Uninformed prejudice against American pictures is blamed for foreign barriers set up by "highly placed people who have never seen a Hollywood film but who actually believe our films are socially undesirable and detrimental," Screen Writers Guild president George Seaton declared on his return here from a European tour.

Seaton said that, "What I saw abroad convinces me this prejudice has its roots in this country. Overcoming prejudice against Hollywood requires the joint action of all of us, and the SWG intends to do its share toward counter-acting false impressions and inaccurate information. There is far too little understanding and appreciation of the vast amount of honest work, artistic integrity and creative ability that goes into picture making.

"Nobody seems to bother to put across the positive side of the story. This is something writers can and should do in their outside writings.

"Taking a poke at Hollywood has become something of a racket. Disparaging Hollywood is always good for a sure-fire piece, and there is so much of it that the other side has been lost from view. We need to bring the picture back into balance."

try into Jugoslavia of the films of MPEA's 10 member companies.

Announcement that the Film Monopoly had signed was disclosed in a cable from Belgrade received here from Irving Maas, MPEA vice-president now touring Europe.

Under terms of the agreement, the Jugoslav Monopoly, in addition to a flat sum advance guarantee per picture, will remit a percentage of MPEA's share of revenue earned by each picture on a monthly dollar basis. The balance of the earnings, which will accrue in Jugoslav dinars, will be available for use by the Export Association in various deals through which it is expected substantial additional dollars will be realized. The agreement further provides that MPEA will be permitted to send a representative to Belgrade to control execution of the contract.

From a list of 100 American films submitted for its consideration, the Jugoslav Monopoly, Maas reported, has already screened and approved "Madame Curie," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves," "Gulliver's Travels," "Random Harvest," "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," "Citizen Kane" and "Watch on the Rhine."

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

IN pursuit of his objective to have American films shown wherever there are theatres, Eric Johnston last fall initiated a deal with Yugoslavia's state-operated Film Monopoly. The contracts, signed now with the Motion Picture Export Association, cover 25 features and a like number of shorts for release in this Iron Curtain country in the next 12 months. Terms include an advance flat guarantee per picture, part of the remittances in hard currency, the remainder in dinars for MPEA use in transactions out of which additional dollars eventually may become available in New York.

This conveys an impression of importance which the arrangement actually does not hold. Yugoslavia is not a prime foreign outlet for American product although, obviously, any market opened up may be said to constitute an economic gain and, therefore, is to be commended.

Certainly equally as vital, and perhaps more so, is the story of America which motion pictures hold the power to tell in such broad and striking strokes. We venture to offer on behalf of Johnston that he is constantly aware of this, and likewise do we venture it as unthinkable that he is not.

However, the Yugoslav deal creates pause. A list of 100 films was submitted for Film Monopoly selection. Already screened and approved from the offered lineup are eight attractions which include "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "Citizen Kane" and "Watch on the Rhine."

The first was a political lampoon in which the U. S. Senate generally took it on its 96-man chin. "Citizen Kane," believed to have been drawn from incidents in the life of William Randolph Hearst, was interpretable as an attack on the American press, or powerful segments of it. "Watch on the Rhine" emphasized the indifference of the entrenched class in America to the menace of Nazism.

Where this country and its form of government are understood, it well may be argued these pictures simply were a reflection of democracy at work. On the theory that democracy is not perfect, but is always strong enough to expose its weaknesses and yet arise above them, the position that these three served a purpose can be supported.

Where we are not understood because an opposing ideology distorts the facts into grist for its perpetual-motion propaganda machine, the industry does a disservice to the nation and to itself when it fails to remain abreast of its responsibilities.

Responsibility recedes into limbo when attractions such as those cited are placed on a convenient platter for any anti-democracy county to grab.

There is, of course, no information about the reactions of the Communist propaganda apparatus in Yugoslavia. But there cannot be any doubt about the avidity with which these three films must have been seized, and perhaps nothing but amazement over why they were offered.

In deliberate hands, "Mr. Smith" can be—no doubt will be—twisted neatly to prove the whole American Congress is made up of a bunch of crooks. "Citizen Kane" can become an argument demonstrating a completely corrupt and moribund press, and "Watch on the Rhine" a case history proving all Americans were too lazy and too rich to bother about Hitler.

In this period of the "cold war," it is clearly not enough to make a deal to sell numbers of motion pictures. Where those films go is an indivisible part of the bargain. What those pictures are about, and their potential for good or bad, should be the very essence of the bargain.

One of the attention-getters in the Loew brief opposing theatre divestiture has been largely overlooked. Distribution under Bill Rodgers has made 4,984 changes in prevailing, and often long-established clearance schedules from June of '46 to February of '48, in order "to further equitable licensing."

The magnitude of the job is difficult to appreciate. Each schedule finally changed had to be checked over and weighed in relation to the surrounding competition. The exhibitor who was moved up found the competition whose clearance he then shared raising hallelujah and ready to yell he had been robbed. Metro, undoubtedly, made many more friends, but it also encouraged some enmities.

Talent Is Set for Variety Benefit

A large array of talent will be at the RKO Palace next Tuesday night when the new Variety Club of New York presents Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" in a benefit premiere. Mexican Production May Hit High of 200

MEXICO CITY, March 16.—The trade sees materialization of predictions some producers made last year that 1949 will witness a new high in Mexican production with an output of some 200 pictures. That expectation is based upon the announcement by Andres Serra Rojas, president of the industry's own bank, the Banco Nacional Cinematografico, that it has cancelled the policy it recently announced to limit financing this year to 30 pictures and would hand-pick the makers from among topflight producers and operators of large theatre circuits.

"The Banco Nacional Cinematografico, S.A., has decided to change its policy of limiting picture production," Rojas explained. "Therefore it declares that it is disposed to finance as many producers as possible, without distinction or restriction of any kind."

The bank's announcement of limiting production was originally interpreted as meaning that the 1949 output would only reach 80. The trade attributes the change in policy to the demand that is said to have increased for films due to more and more theatres.

Six Are Rated 'B' by Legion of Decency

Twelve additional pictures have been rated by the Legion of Decency this week, with six, an unusually large number, receiving a "B" classification. In that classification are Rank-Eagle Lion's "Easy Money," "Quartet," "Saraband" and "Sleeping Car to Trieste"; Warner's "South of St. Louis," and Paramount's "El Paso."

In Class A-I are Monogram's "Crashing Through"; RKO Radio's "The Green Promise"; Eagle Lion's "Scott of the Antarctic," and Republic's "Sheriff of Wichita." In Class A-II are Rank-Eagle Lion's "Esther Waters" and "My Brother's Keeper." The classification of Oxford Films' "Torment" has been changed from "C" to "B."

Writers Charge Plagiary

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—Writers Howard J. Green and Raymond L. Goldman filed suit in Superior Court today charging Monogram, Mayfair Productions and four individuals with plagiarizing their produced play, "People's Choice," in "Henry the Rainmaker." They demand $100,000 real damages and $50,000 punitive damages.

Anti-Jim Crow Bill Due

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Rep. Arthur Klein, New York Democrat, is slated to introduce tomorrow a bill to deny a license to any theatre or other public place in the District of Columbia which does not admit or which segregates Negroes. The measure is given little chance of success.

"It Always Rains on Sunday"

(Rank—Eagle-Lion)

THE events in the lives of a set in London's East End on a rainy Sunday have been leisurely but dramatically recorded in this J. Arthur Rank presentation. The characterizations are realistic and ably handled by Googie Withers, as the wife; Edward Chapman, as the husband, and John McCallum as an escaped prisoner. Cockney accents make some of the dialogue difficult to understand.

The plot concerns primarily a father, his second wife and his two daughters. A former boy friend of the wife escapes from prison and goes to her for aid. Her struggle to hide him, dry his clothes and feed him so he will be able to make a getaway is presented in a suspenseful manner. Many complications arise in the course of the day. The elder daughter becomes infatuated with a married orchestra leader; the younger daughter has a quarrel with her boy friend. The police are on the trail of the escaped prisoner and also a trio of petty robbers. An exciting climax is reached when the police are tracking down the prisoner. Eventually the convict is caught; the orchestral leader returns to his wife, and the younger daughter's quarrel is amicably settled.

This is a Michael Balcon production, directed by Robert Hamer, with Henry Cornelius as associate producer. The screenplay was written by Angus Macphail, Robert Hamer and Henry Cornelius, from a novel by Arthur La Bern.

Running time, 88 minutes. Adult audience classification. For March release.

"Red Stallion in the Rockies"

(Eagle-Lion)

A WILD stallion that leads a herd of horses on destructive rampages becomes the objective of irate ranch owners in this formula-made action drama. Along with this angle runs the story of two circus performers who land interim jobs on a ranch and get involved in ensuing entanglements. The story, provided by Tom Reed, has the necessary ingredients to please the audiences which it is intended for, although it is occasionally weakened by the substitution of dialogue for action.

The circus hands, played by Arthur Franz and Wallace Ford, finally realize that the hunted red stallion is actually a circus horse which had its coat covered with phosphorescent paint. The boys have to extend themselves some to prevent the horse from being shot, and to ward off the villainy of a ranch foreman. To further complicate matters, Franz falls in love with the ranch owner's granddaughter, Jean Heather, but her grandfather dislikes circus people. There is some brisk excitement in the customary Western groove before the horse is returned to its circus, the villain gets his due, and Franz marries Miss Heather. Performances are generally adequate. An added exploitation quality is provided by Cinecolor. Aubrey Schenck produced and Ralph Murphy directed. The screenplay was suggested from a story by Francis Orsenwald.

Running time, 85 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Radio Programs Hail 'Canyon' Opening

SALT LAKE CITY, March 16.—For the past three days, the American Broadcasting Co. network program, "Breakfast in Hollywood," has originated from the stage of the Utah Theatre to help promote the premiere of Universal-International's "Red Canyon." Extensive other radio and newspaper promotion has preceded the two-theatre opening tomorrow night.

Aided by Tracy Barham, general manager of Intermountain Theatres, U-I exploitation representative Cliff Brown has been working on the campaign in the territory for several weeks. Several additional openings will follow in this territory during the coming week.

'Bad Boy' at Carthay

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—The premiere of Allied Artists' "Bad Boy," held at the Carthay Circle here last night, netted $9,850 for the local Variety Club's Boys' Club, with the regular run starting today, in addition, at the Orpheum, Vogue and Belmont.

Lippert Signs Fuller

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—Samuel Fuller, author and director of Lippert Productions' "I Shot Jesse James," has been signed by Robert L. Lippert to write and direct three pictures for Lippert Productions, to be released through Screen Guild.

'Stratton Story' Bows In Cleveland Apr. 21

M-G-M's "The Stratton Story" will have its world premiere at Loew's Stillman, Cleveland, April 21, preceded by an extensive campaign, it was announced here yesterday. It is one of several pictures announced at the recent West Coast conferences as being scheduled for special treatment and handling.

John Joseph, who recently joined M-G-M as assistant to Howard Dietz, advertising vice-president, plans to leave Monday for Cleveland to meet with Orville Crouch, Loew district manager, and J. E. Watson, M-G-M field promotion man, to discuss preliminary arrangements for the first opening campaign.

Skinner in New Post

ATLANTA, March 16.—Eugene Skinner, former manager of the Jacksonville, Fla., Drive-In, will be transferred to the home office here of Dixie Drive-In Theatres to coordinate advertising, publicity and exploitation for the circuit, Harris Robinson, president of the circuit, has announced.

Minnesota Cities Can Levy Ticket Tax

St. Paul, March 16. — The tax committee of the Minnesota House has approved a bill authorizing communities to impose amusement taxes should Congress repeal the federal levies.

The measure would permit communities to levy taxes up to the 20 per cent now collected under the Federal statute. Referenda would not be necessary for local imposition of the taxes, the bill authorizing approval simply by ordinance.

600 to Lobby for Municipal Taxes

WASHINGTON, March 16.—There will be a lot of lobbying going on here next week for repeal or reduction of the 20 per cent admissions tax, but the motion picture industry cannot take too much hope from that activity.

The lobbying will come from some 600 city officials from all sections of the U. S., who will meet here Monday through Wednesday at the annual convention of the U. S. Conference of Mayors. One of the big planks in the conference's program is repeal of the Federal admission tax so that municipalities can step in and levy local ticket taxes. The meeting next week will probably reaffirm this program, and then turn the members loose on their Congressmen in an attempt to get some action.

Two New Pictures Planned by McCarthy

Hollywood, March 16. — Glenn McCarthy Productions, whose first picture, "The Green Promise," is being given an elaborate premiere in Houston tomorrow and Friday, will start work almost immediately on a second, "My Darling Is a Kangaroo," a comedy by Monty Collins, with a Hollywood film cartoon studio background. Robert Paige and Collins will co-produce.

A third will be a large-scale drama of the oil fields, also to be written by Collins. The company plans to make at least two pictures annually.

Raibourn on Video

ing, quicker pace and action rather than characterization will be relied upon for "attention value" in video films. He contrasted these elements with "the subtle nuances of emotion and taste which Hollywood uses to tempt you in the darkened theatre... but which are lost on the average home television set."

Plans for extensive use of trailers over television to promote motion pictures in theatres were revealed by Raibourn. "We have learned that the television set in the home is going to be such a marvelous instrument for making people want to see motion pictures that one wonders sometimes if it wasn't just devised for that purpose," he said. "Through a television broadcast we will come into your home to show you just enough of a picture to make you hungry for the rest of it."

Raibourn cited as an objective the means of applying the know-how which characterizes a Hollywood "Oscar-Candidate" picture which costs $25,000 to $50,000 a minute, to films for video at a maximum cost of $500 a minute. He indicated that television could not afford films costing much more than $50 a minute at the present.

He expressed the belief that network radio, as it now exists, would probably eventually be replaced by television but that most local radio stations would survive.

Raibourn reported on Paramount's experiments with large-screen television in its Paramount Theatre, New York, disclosing that the method has been developed to the point where video pictures and sound can be recorded from a receiver, processed and projected on the large screen within eight seconds. When the process was first unveiled here the reproduction ran about 66 seconds behind the actual televised event.

Cut Rates at Coast House

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16.—The 1,400-seat Tivoli Theatre here will reopen March 23 with a policy of two features and vaudeville. The theatre was remodeled at a cost of $100,000. Ellis W. Levy, general manager of Telenews Theatres, and his New York associates will operate at prices fixed to undersell present houses. With three shows daily and a minimum of five acts, the admission range, including tax, will be 25c mornings, 50 cents in the afternoon, 65 cents evenings, and 74 cents on Saturday and Sunday evenings with a 50-cent matinee.

McCarthy Premiere

Formal opening of the hotel is set for tomorrow, St. Patrick's Day. Premiere of the picture, which will be distributed by RKO Radio, will be held on Friday at the Metropolitan and Kirby theatres. Premiere seats are priced at $4.90.

A five-mile torchlight automobile parade, featuring the Hollywood celebrities, will precede the picture's premiere, starting from The Shamrock, which is some distance from the Houston business district, traveling through main streets of the city to the theatres. Police have made plans for handling one of the largest public turnouts that the city has seen.

Hollywood Stars Attend

Among the Hollywood personalities participating are: Sonja Henie, Marguerite Chapman, Van Heflin, Kirk Douglas, Joan Caulfield, MacDonald Carey, Gale Storm, Robert Preston, Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Walter Brennan, Chester Morris, Andy Devine, Hugh Herbert, Brian Donlevy, Edgar Bergen, Katharine Grayson, Johnny Johnston, Dennis O'Keefe, Ward Bond, Ed Gardner, Leo Carillo, Robert Stack, Peggy Cummins, Wayne Morris, Alan Hale, Ruth Warrick, Bruce Cabot, Jack Paar, Joan Davis, Cathy Downs and others.

They will be joined at tonight's banquet by leading Houston civic and social personalities. Banquet entertainment will be provided by Dorothy Shay and Russ Morgan's orchestra. Dorothy Lamour's Sealtest show will be broadcast and Pat O'Brien will act as master-of-ceremonies.

Plans for the affair actually were started eight months ago, before the picture went into production. In consequence, it has amassed reams of newspaper and magazine coverage for both the hotel and picture, a reasonably budgeted production which has garnered the fanfare ordinarily given films costing five times as much.

The exploitation staff includes Blake McVeigh, publicity director for Glenn McCarthy Productions; James A. Clark, head of McCarthy's public relations staff in Houston; William Ross Howard of Ruthrauf and Ryan, advertising agency for the Shamrock hotel; Perry Lieber, RKO radio publicity director; Terry Turner, RKO exploitation director, and members of his field staff.

4-H Club Tie-in

Exploitation-wise, the picture is tied up with the 2,000,000 members of the 84,000 4-H clubs between the ages of 10 and 21, and their 10,000,000 other alumni and volunteer workers in the United States. It also has the support of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and its employes throughout the country.

A nationwide search among the 4-H clubs' membership was conducted for a young girl to act in the picture. Jeanne La Duke of Mt. Vernon, Ind., was selected at the culmination of the well-publicized search. The film was previewed for an enthusiastic audience of 2,500 at the annual 4-H Congress in Chicago last December. The picture will open immediately after its local bow in a dozen key cities of Texas and Oklahoma, in Galveston on March 19; Port Arthur, March 20; Beaumont, March 21; Austin, March 22; San Antonio, March 23; Dallas, March 24; Fort Worth, March 25; Abilene, March 26; Wichita Falls, March 27; Oklahoma City, March 28, and Tulsa, March 29.

Tour for 12 Openings

Robert Preston, Ellen Drew, Ruth Warrick and Jack Paar, accompanied by Terry Turner, will make a personal appearance tour covering the 12 Texas-Oklahoma openings. Robert Paige, co-producer of "The Green Promise" and one of its stars, will be at several of them.

The local activities will wind up here Saturday morning when the McCarthy special train will return the Coast visitors to Hollywood and chartered planes convey other guests to their home cities.

British Theatres to Boycott Video Films

LONDON, March 16.—The Exhibitors' Association's general council has adopted a resolution calling for an effective boycott of any films televised "contrary to the arrangements in the industry." That means that no films will be booked which have been shown on television before their theatre value has been exhausted.

The resolution is the aftermath of the televising recently of two Westerns, "Wrangler Roost" and "Trailing Double Trouble," simultaneously with their being offered to theatres by the distributor, New Realm. The latter said it did not control the television rights. That excuse will no longer be accepted, exhibitors say.

Copyright - Violation Prints Are Recovered

Sixteen additional lost or stolen 16mm. prints of features, shorts and newsreels, have been recovered here by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the Army-Air Force Motion Picture Service. Pictures were produced by Universal, M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, Columbia, RKO Radio and Paramount.

Berkson to Expand

United States and Canada 100 per cent, he said.

Berkson also revealed that he now is negotiating with several independent production units on the Coast for the distribution of their product. He recently signed with Kayson Productions, its first being "Riders of the Pony Express," in Trucolor, to be ready in about 60 days. Another in color, "Calamity Jane and the Texan," will follow shortly thereafter. Screencraft also is readying for release "Circus Days," a 135-minute package show consisting of a feature, a featurette, and several shorts, all pertaining to the circus.

Current plans call for the distribution of from eight to 12 features a year, mostly in color.

Berkson started in the industry in 1918 with Bernard H. Mills. Both are still working together today, Mills as vice-president of Screencraft.

Warner Signs Ginger

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—Jack L. Warner, production vice-president of Warner Brothers, has signed Ginger Rogers to star with Dennis Morgan in the company's "Perfect Strangers."

McCarthy Fortune Made in Texas Oil

HOUSTON, March 16.—Glenn McCarthy, executive producer of "The Green Promise," is a product of Texas' fabulous oil fields.

Glenn McCarthy

He began his oil operations as a wildcatter in 1933, experienced momentary successes, followed by reverses, but refused to be discouraged. In 1940 he brought in the Legion City oil field and with numerous subsequent rich discoveries his fortune has increased steadily since.

Today a Multi-millionaire

His wealth today is estimated generally at $65,000,000, but some place it as high as $200,000,000 or $300,000,000. He is 41 years old, a native of Texas, married, and the father of four girls and one boy.

In addition to his huge oil and gas interests, McCarthy owns a publishing company, a radio station, his motion picture company, a Houston skyscraper and the new $20,000,000 Shamrock hotel, which will be opened tomorrow, St. Patrick's Day. It is 18 stories high, has 1,100 luxurious, ultra-modern rooms with radio-television and individual air-conditioning in every room. It is five miles from the business center.

Wide Sports Interests

McCarthy was a good athlete in his school days, excelling in football and boxing. He still is an enthusiastic sportsman, enjoys hunting and riding, and is an aviation enthusiast. He is a director of Eastern Airlines and the National Aeronautic Association. His three planes finished first, second and fourth in the 1948 Bendix air race. He has a 15,000-acre ranch near Uvalde, Texas, where he spends most of his free weekends.

His interest in motion pictures is not a profit one, he can make more money in oil, but like all successful businessmen he wants them to pay their own way. He believes that motion pictures can do much for the home, the family and the nation. He plans to make wholesome, family entertainment. American historical films will have an important part in his production programs.

Met Paige on Tour

Several Hollywood producers tried in the past to interest him in production, stressing the profit possibilities, to no avail. It remained for Robert Paige, whom he met in Houston while the actor was on a personal appearance tour with "Red Stallion," to win McCarthy's support for production of "The Green Promise," a story of American farm life, by recognizing that the picture could be a force for good.

McCarthy not only liked the script well enough to finance the production but prevailed upon its author, Monty Collins, and Paige to produce it themselves. That started Glenn McCarthy Productions.

U. K. Film Men

tained and conferred with Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, admittedly to discuss their American mission. That gave rise to conjecture, officially discredited now, that the trio might take with them to Washington a governmental mandate fortifying their bargaining position for either increased American playing time for British pictures or other forms of American assistance for production here.

Makes Status Clear

Sir Henry, at his most recent press conference, confirmed earlier declarations at the Board of Trade, saying that he was anxious to make it completely clear that the three men will go to Washington as representatives of the Producers' Association only.

"We will not be able to speak for His Majesty's Government," said Sir Henry unequivocally. "We have no authority to say anything in the Government's behalf."

Thus, the vaguely-drafted item on the Joint Film Council's agenda, "To discuss mutual production problems," is generally felt here to be about all the Council will do.

That is feeding surmises here, too, that the Council's meeting may not occur on the scheduled date.

Rank, however, will sail from Southampton tomorrow in the Queen Elizabeth, due in New York next Wednesday. He will visit his Eagle-Lion associate, Robert Young, in Palm Beach, and his daughter, Mrs. Fred Packard, and family in Hollywood before going to Washington.

Allport to Observe

Korda and French will leave here later, as will F. W. Allport, London representative of the Motion Picture Association of America, who will sit in as an observer if and when the Council meeting takes place.

There is still active dissatisfaction on this side that others than the "big" producers will not have the opportunity of speaking in America for Britain's film industry. Independent producers make it clear that the trio have no right to speak for them and the country's 3,000 independent exhibitors, the backbone here of American trade, bitterly resent that Sir Alexander King, Exhibitors' Association president, or some other exhibitor, should be excluded from a meeting ostensibly directed at a solution of Anglo-American film problems.

British Ticket Tax

to reduce the tax or permit ticket price increases without corresponding increases in the tax.

The government, however, is opposed to price increases and, therefore, the hoped-for relief most likely would be made by tax rate reductions.

The relief which exhibitors seek would cost the Exchequer some $24,000,000 annually. They argue that is not unreasonable in view of the $152,000,000 now being collected in entertainment tax, and the increasing seriousness of the levy to theatre operation.

Distributors' association and theatre unions supported the exhibitors' arguments but the Producers' Association did not. The latter would like to see about $60,000,000 of entertainment tax collections ploughed back as an additional government subsidy for production.

Para. Holdings Are Listed by the SEC

WASHINGTON, March 16. — Paramount president Barney Balaban, at last report to the Securities and Exchange Commission, held 1,400 shares of his company's common stock, and notes for $2,000,000, convertible to common stock under certain conditions, at $12.50 a share, the SEC discloses.

Other holders of large blocks of Paramount common, according to the last reports they made to the SEC, are Stanton Griffis, with 8,700 shares in his own name and 15,800 shares in various trust accounts; Maurice Newton with 18,595 shares in his own name, 18,380 shares in a trust under a will; E. V. Richards, who controls 13,500 shares through companies in which he owns a majority of the stock; and Conger Goodyear, owning 4,900 shares in his own name and 4,200 shares in trust accounts.

Hold 10 Per Cent

SEC records show the holdings of officers, directors and anyone owning more than 10 per cent of the outstanding stock. Others listed on the SEC files, with their last reported holdings, are: Adolph Zukor, 1,000 shares; Leonard Goldenson, 1,100 shares in his own name, 700 jointly; Duncan G. Harris, 2,700 shares; John Hertz, 2,000 shares plus 100 through Lehman Bros., in which he is a partner; C. Austin Keogh, 500; Stephen Callaghan, 1,400; Y. "Definitely second features unacceptable to the U. S. market—32.

"Useful to complete a program—13."

In the first two groups are 45 films. Of these the Association says 28.9 per cent were good; 7.1 per cent were "mediocre to poor."

"With American films," the report observes, "we expect the proportion of good to mediocre to be 50 per cent, otherwise we change to another distributor."

British producers had sought retention of the present 45 per cent quota; studio unions wanted it boosted to 60 per cent.

Housewife Wins 20th' Contest for 'Chicken'

An Oregon housewife, Mrs. E. S. Snook, of Tigard, whose "most desired wish" was to further her training in physical therapy work associated with the care of cerebral palsied children, yesterday was named winner of the National Wishbone Contest in Los Angeles. The contest, which ran during February, was sponsored by the Poultry and Egg National Board in association with 20th Century-Fox, producers of "Chicken Every Sunday."

Anti-Trust Law Probe Set by House Group

Washington, March 16. — Members of the House Judiciary Committee today confirmed that their group plans a comprehensive overhauling and tightening up of the anti-trust laws.

The inquiry may be approved at a meeting tomorrow. It would be carried on with a special staff, and might last over a year. Coordination of existing laws would be the first order of business, then strengthening. The committee will meet next Wednesday with top officials of Government agencies charged with enforcing the anti-trust laws to work out the scope and methods of the investigation.

Express Tie-Up

offs spread to other sections of the country.

Employing for the past week the "special formula" which they have held in reserve for an emergency such as the REA tie-up, the distributors here are shipping prints in and out of the Metropolitan area by film carrier trucks, with Albany and Philadelphia serving as the REA sending and receiving points for product leaving and destined for New York. Except for direct Coast-to-Coast small quantity print shipping, in which case air freight is employed, the distributors usually ship product for long hauls by Railway Express.

In the event of a nationwide REA embargo, the industry will look to the network of independent film carriers which covers the country. Thus, those situations which normally are serviced by REA would receive prints under the "special formula" whereby prints can be relayed by carrier companies from territory to territory. This means of sidestepping any transportation embargo was devised by the distributors acting jointly through the Motion Picture Association of America, when a national railroad strike threatened two years ago. The railroad strike, which never did get underway, would have tied up REA, of course.

Added costs would be involved in employing the emergency carrier relay nationally, a distributor transportation executive has pointed out, but he said the difference in amount would not be too great.

public are "progressing favorably," he added.

Tomorrow, Moss said, H-63 will open contract negotiations with DeLuxe Laboratories, a shop which also was won away from SOPEG in an NLRB election. Paramount-International, the third shop to pass from SOPEG to H-63, will be approached for a contract following the election of an employes negotiating committee next week, Moss indicated.

Ottawa Theatre Robbery

OTTAWA, March 16.—Safe-crackers broke into the Nelson Theatre here and took $900 in receipts.

Schine Decree

order to complete details of the consent decree agreement.

It is generally assumed that the decree, in addition to providing specific injunctive relief, will call for the opening up of all remaining "closed" Schine situations and the probable disposition of theatres presumed to have been illegally acquired.

The government brought the anti-trust suit against Schine in Buffalo Federal court in 1938, concurrently with similar theatre divestiture suits against the Crescent Circuit at Nashville and the Griffith Theatres, Oklahoma City. The District court ordered the sale of some 70-odd Schine theatres in New York, Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland, most or all of which have already been disposed of.

The government, seeking further relief, appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court which, last May, remanded the case to the Buffalo court for a study of illegally held or acquired theatres, which it indicated should be divested. The new hearings in the Buffalo court have been postponed pending the outcome of the decree negotiations.

Irving Kaufman and Willard S. McKay, Schine counsel, represented the circuit in the negotiations with Assistant U.S. Attorney General Herbert Bergson.

It was also speculated here that the decree agreement might provide for separation of large blocks of Schine theatres into individual, independent company operations, similar to the pattern followed in the break-up of the Crescent circuit as ordered by the Federal court at Nashville, culminating the litigation there.

The Griffith suit, like the Schine case, was remanded by the U.S. Supreme Court to the District court for further study of the divestiture issue. The Griffith case is still pending in Oklahoma City.

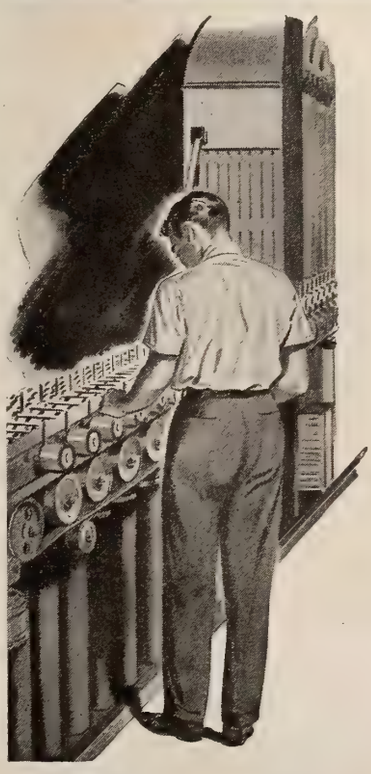
A 16mm. print of a Hollywood picture, licensed only to regular outlets for 16mm. film, is figured to bring a maximum distribution gross of about $15,000. Under the new arrangement, this probably will mean about $10,000 to the producer and the remainder to UA as the distributor.

Set Court Meet on Technicolor Suit



HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—A pre-trial conference in the government's anti-trust case against Technicolor Corp. will be held April 22 before Federal Judge William C. Mathes, according to William C. Dixon, director of the Department of Justice office here.

Counsel for both sides will make stipulations of fact with the purpose of shortening the trial by eliminating extraneous issues. Date for the trial has not yet been set.

Sue Bette Davis for Tax

HOLLYWOOD, March 16. — Bette Davis, film actress, has been sued by the U.S. Treasury Department for $80,820 in back income taxes, and interest, with Edward H. Mitchell, Assistant U.S. Attorney, claiming that the late Arthur Farnsworth, husband of Miss Davis, failed to list half of the star's earnings as community property

Guardian of her most important "bath"...

COSTLY shots like this might be so much spoiled footage... save for the vigilance and knowledge of the laboratory man.

He makes sure that the dailies take their all-important bath... inspecting, testing, keeping constant check as the exposed footage runs through the developing, fixing, and washing tanks and driers.

To his skill and watchfulness... as film representing "box-office gold" literally slips through his careful fingers... motion pictures owe much of their well-earned reputation for technical excellence.

This skill is more effective... the burden of constant vigilance lessened ... when he works with dependable film of superior quality. That's why he always welcomes the family of Eastman motion picture films.

Para. Fights For Television Station Rights

Holds FCC Cannot Bar It For Trust Violations

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Paramount Pictures told the Federal Communications Commission today that the Commission had no right to deny a qualified applicant a radio or television station because of anti-trust violations in a field outside radio communications, and that even it if had such power, Paramount's consent decree with the government gives it a clean slate for broadcasting ventures.

"The issues in U. S. vs. Paramount have been settled and disposed of to the satisfaction of the government and the courts," the company said. "In the consent decree there are no findings

Nassour Sees Filming Spurt

A great intensification of production activity will occur this fall, in the opinion of Edward Nassour, independent producer. Nassour, who operates the Nassour Studios in Hollywood, with his brother William, asserted here yesterday that the considerable backlog of product which the majors had is running low and heightened production is necessary. As for himself, he said he is going ahead with plans for expansion and increased production. Nassour cited this as his an-

Broidy Sees Rental Increase of a Million

Monogram - Allied Artists president Steve Broidy, visiting here from Hollywood, points out that while company profits have decreased because of production costs, the release of completed high-budget Allied Artists pictures, which will be effected by November, will bring an increase of at least $1,000,000 in rentals next year, compared with the present fiscal period. "The Babe Ruth Story," he noted, has already grossed nearly $2,000,000.

Exhibitor TV Bids Will Face No Bias: FCC's Coy

There is no "stigma" attached to being a motion picture exhibitor insofar as the competition for television licenses and channels is concerned, and the Federal Communications Commission will not refuse to grant a television license simply because an applicant is a motion picture exhibitor.

These "personal opinion" statements are embodied in a letter received by Theatre Owners of America executive director Gael Sullivan, from FCC chairman Wayne Coy in Washington. Sullivan had written to Coy, posing two forthright questions concerning exhibitors' prospects for competing on an equal footing with other applicants for video licenses.

"The Commission," Coy told Sullivan, "has no policy against the issuance of television permits or licenses to motion picture exhibitors, provided they are legally, financially, technically and otherwise qualified to become broadcast licensees. However, I am sure you are aware of the fact that

Rosenfield Named 20th-Fox Ad Chief

Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., has been appointed advertising manager of 20th Century-Fox, by Charles Einfeld, advertising-publicity vice-president.

Jonas Rosenfield, Jr.

Rosenfield, who has been with the organization since November, 1941, was assistant advertising manager until his elevation to the new post yesterday, a post recently vacated by Christy Wilbert who shifted to the New York Roxy Theatre as advertising-publicity manager.

Starting in the motion picture industry in 1936 with Warner Brothers, Rosenfield left in 1940 to become advertising manager for Walt Disney Productions. Before going to 20th Century-Fox as copy chief in 1941, he was a member of the advertising department of Donahue and Coe. In 1945, he was appointed assistant advertising manager for the 20th-Fox film company.

SIMPP Will Police Decree Pacts: Arnall

Threatens Court Actions If Competition Unopened

Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers will police all consent decrees in the government's anti-trust suit against the distributors to make certain that the principle of free competition, basis for the settlements, actually is applied, Ellis G. Arnall, president of the organization, disclosed here yesterday.

Speaking specifically of the Paramount consent judgment, Arnall declared that unless closed situations are opened and competition is completely established in all areas, the Society will endeavor to force further action by the Department of Justice. If unof fact and no final adjudication or admissions of anti-trust violations," Paramount said.

Paramount made its points in a 41-page brief filed with the Commission in support of a motion to renew the television licenses of Paramount subsidiaries. The FCC has been placing such licenses on a temporary renewal basis "pending a decision as to the status of anti-trust violators."

The Paramount brief came less than a week after a similar petition from 20th Century-Fox.

In another Paramount television development yesterday, counsel for Allen B. DuMont Laboratories suggested to the FCC in a private meeting that the Commission take some steps in court, either in connection with the Paramount decree or in a new case, to force the trusteeing of Paramount's DuMont stock. That way, DuMont feels, it won't be "tainted with Paramount's sins in the anti-trust field."

Paramount's brief stressed that neither the government nor the courts at any point had held that any of the five major companies was disqualified from owning and operating theatres.

It pointed out that nowhere in the Paramount case records were there any accusations of fraud or misrepresentation. This should be determining, Paramount said, in deciding whether the firm's "character" was such as to warrant license denial.

If the Commission carries out its policy, the brief said, it must take in such present licensees as RCA, Columbia Broadcasting, Westinghouse, General Tire and Rubber Co. (dominant interest in the Yankee network), many newspapers, and a long list of firms—all losers in anti-trust suits.

Momand Appeals

homa, alleging a conspiracy to restrain trade. Filed originally in June, 1937, in Boston District Court, the case had three separate trials, all of which went against Momand.

A brief filed by attorney George S. Ryan with the High Court here today declares that the Circuit Court decision, "if not reversed, will undoubtedly be used as a precedent in the very large number of civil actions under the anti-trust laws now pending against these defendants and affiliated corporations and other motion picture companies, and will in all probability be a serious obstacle, if not an absolute bar, to the proof of damages in many of these actions."

Ryan said that under the High Court's Paramount decision, "it is doubtful whether any license contract made by any of the defendants with any independent exhibitor was lawful."

The Boston jury awarded Momand damages of $287,611, plus interest at five per cent, but the verdict was set aside by the court.

Nassour, who has been reported to be interested in the purchase of the Mary Pickford-Charles Chaplin shares in United Artists, asserted that he is "interested," but added that "no negotiations are going on. It never reached the negotiating stage," he said. Nassour stressed that whether or not a deal is consummated, "we will continue to release all of our pictures through UA." He remarked that "through our pictures we will have millions invested in UA. We feel UA is very strong and is the best organization for the independent producer."

Nassour's current production plans call for approximately four a year for UA release. Already completed is "Africa Screams," and others shortly to go into production are "Daybreak," "Mrs. Mike" and a Mae West film set for the summer.

Nassour declared that his Coast studios have been in full operation since opening in 1947. He said that they are used by 15 to 20 independents a year, pointing out that they can handle three pictures at a time, and can even manage four.

Nassour sees little to fear from television and expresses the opinion that it will "mean more outlets for films as soon as a working formula is figured out." Nassour, who is here for UA conferences, and to negotiate for story material, is accompanied by his wife and Bernard Luber, his executive assistant.

Crisp Joins Nassour in In Advisory Post on Coast

Actor Donald Crisp has been made a member of the executive committee of Nassour Coast studios and will serve in an advisory capacity on the purchase of stories, along with other duties, Edward Nassour disclosed here yesterday. The veteran actor was an adviser to the Bank of America on motion picture loans for 18 years, according to Nassour.

Coy to Sullivan

the Commission is considering the questions raised by the court decisions involving violation of the anti-trust laws by certain motion picture exhibitors, major circuits and their affiliates, and my reply to your question should not be considered as an expression of opinion on that matter." Sullivan had inquired as to the status of the motion picture exhibitor applicant in a "non-competitive hearing."

In a "competitive and comparative" hearing television applications filed by exhibitors "will be judged on the basis of the particular facts shown in the record of the particular hearing," Coy replied to Sullivan's second question.

Coy pointed out, "As to the manner in which the Commission will approach the problem of weighing the relative merits of motion picture and non-motion picture applicants in comparative hearings, it may be helpful to refer to the Commission's established policy in comparative hearings involving newspaper and non-newspaper applicants. In cases of this type, the Commission has ruled that, all other factors being equal, it will favor non-newspaper applicants over those owning newspapers, with a view to promoting a greater diversity in the ownership of the media of mass communications."

SIMPP, Arnall

successful in this respect, the SIMPP will institute its own court proceedings against any element of monopoly, Arnall threatened.

The former governor of Georgia hailed the Paramount settlement as a "step ahead, a step in the right direction." But although "we are very happy with it," Arnall made it clear that the decree would have been far more preferable to the SIMPP if the Paramount circuit were "pulverized." Paramount president Barney Balaban has disclosed that the new Paramount theatre company could comprise over 600 houses.

Holds Company "Too Big"

Upon assuming the presidency of the SIMPP last December, Arnall announced as his objective the dissolution of all "monopolies" in the industry. He said yesterday that it would be difficult to determine how large a theatre circuit could be before becoming objectionable to the Society, or how limited he would have preferred the new Paramount group to be. However, he made it clear that the new United Paramount Theatres Co. is by far too great a concentration of theatres in one company.

Arnall expressed considerable interest in the forthcoming meeting of the Anglo-American Films Council and said he is giving the matter study to determine whether he would "ask to be invited." At present the Society has no representation on the Council, nor has it been approached and asked to have representation by Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, or by others in the Council group, it is understood.

Interview at New Offices

Arnall was interviewed yesterday in the new SIMPP headquarters in New York, located on the 31st floor of the International Building in Rockefeller Center. The suite consists of three offices, one each for Arnall, Robert J. Rubin, general counsel, and Marvin Faris, executive secretary, plus a reception room. Faris probably will spend most of his time on the Coast, it is understood, with Arnall alternating between here and Hollywood and occasional visits to Washington and his home in Atlanta.

Arnall reported that he has not yet decided on appointing any successor to Joseph Alvin as public relations representative for the Society and indicated that Alvin might be engaged again on some special assignments.

New UA Bid

Wiesenthal is expected to confer tomorrow with Arthur Kelly, UA executive vice-president, a representative of Charles Chaplin and attorney Charles Schwartz.

Under discussion will be a proposal to acquire the company through Chaplin's option, or as an alternative, Chaplin's share in the UA. It is believed here that the Nassers are in favor of acquiring the Chaplin interest under conditions satisfactory to Mary Pickford, but assuring them of sufficient management control to protect their investment in General Service Studios by stipulating its use by producers releasing through UA.

It is generally believed that Wiesenthal's bank conferences today cleared the decks for executing outright or partial purchase if proposals to be made are accepted.

Nassers Weigh U. A. Control Bid This Week

Wiesenthal Arrives to Study Company Position

Discussions concerning possible negotiations by Nasser Brothers for purchase of United Artists control from Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin are scheduled to be initiated here this week by Sam Wiesenthal, vice-president of General Service Studios and Nassers' financial representative.

Wiesenthal arrived in New York from the Coast on Friday with Gradwell L. Sears, U. A. president, and will spend a week or 10 days here studying U. A.'s current condition and prospects. Indications are that if the study proves satisfactory and initial negotiations are promising, the talks would be transferred to the Coast for their final stages.

Appointment of Harold L. Beecroft as Eagle-Lion district manager in charge of the Dallas, Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Omaha, Des Moines and Kansas City exchange territory, with headquarters in Dallas, is announced by William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Heineman also announced that Grover Parsons, Southern district manager, who has been in charge of the Atlanta-Charlotte-New Orleans territory, will also take over supervision of the Memphis exchange area, effective immediately.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN

OUT of the long and complicated tangle of financial and trading restrictions which have been imposed upon the British film market, there now appears the prospect of early relief.

It has become exceedingly clear that the British and the American film enterprises are linked in a very substantial partnership of interest. It has become increasingly apparent to all concerned that progress for the British film industry is not to be builded out of arbitrarily imposed handicaps upon the American film industry.

The recently tested devices, first, of taxation and, next, of a quota barrier have not proved of aid and comfort to the British industry. They have served only to impede the British industry at points where progress was being made and to blank out opportunities which were on the verge of realization.

THE time for a change in the dangerous drift of the past couple of years seems at hand. Voices of experience and authority have welled up in the British industry, making insistent demand for a new order of treatment for the American film in the British market. These voices make effective point of the fact that severe quota restriction of the American film in the British market is indeed a poor means of aiding the British film in the American market.

The suffocation of trade which is the inevitable result of high quota barriers has been making itself felt — a very different outcome than the alluring picture that had been painted by persons who, as it now turns out, had been indulging merely in economic fantasy.

And, thus, a new and hopeful trend has entered the British scene. Much ground has been lost but all of it may be regained if, with fairness and determination, all parties concerned approach the coming change in the state of affairs in a spirit of mutual aid, cooperation and reciprocity.

[Eagle-Lion] — The Story of Oil, Forcefully Told

WALTER WANGER'S Technicolor production of "Tulsa" is box-office, but definitely.

The sweep of the panorama-like presentation of the story of the first gush of oil in that rugged country in Oklahoma is tremendously exciting and mighty entertaining. Exhibitors in virtually all types of situations could hardly ask for more exploitable potentials than they will find here. The principal shortness is in story line, but that matters little, for it is sufficiently overcome by the swiftness and switches of action that run through the 8,100 feet of film so ably guided by director Stuart

Theatre Sales Formula Is Set by Para.

Ask $1,800,000 for Dominion Group in Va.

Paramount has fixed a formula which will determine the asking price for theatre properties it intends to sell, the basis for which reportedly is seven and one-half times the average annual earnings during the last five years. Thus the peak profits of 1946-'47 are included.

Among other holdings which the company is understood to be considering the sale of is its 15-theatre Dominion circuit in Virginia, with the formula price put at $1,800,000. Oddly enough, Paramount is not required to dispose of a major portion of the Virginia group under terms of its consent judgment in the New York trust suit.

N. Y. Variety Club Adopts Constitution

The constitution for the recently-formed New York Variety Tent No. 35 was officially adopted Friday at a meeting at the Astor Hotel here. The meeting, presided over by Chief Barker Max A. Cohen, also adopted by-laws.

One point which occupied considerable discussion was what benefits members of the Motion Picture Associates, which has been merged into the New York Variety tent, will derive from benefit funds in the dissolved organization. The members were assured, however, that those in good standing with the MPA would realize the benefits. After further debate the constitution was adopted.

Reporting on the premiere of "Bad Boy" tomorrow night at the Palace Theatre, in which many show business luminaries will participate, Cohen reported that tickets are practically all sold and expenses would be nil.

It was also reported that club rooms, in the Astor, would be ready in about two months and a maximum rental of $8,000 a year is expected to be paid. The question of house committee membership was deferred pending an invitation to the general membership to submit nominees. It was also announced that application for associate membership have been held up pending a more complete organization of the new organization.

Mono-AA Report Net Loss, Rising Gross

Hollywood, March 20.—With gross income at $5,647,503 for the last 25 weeks in 1948, an increase over the $4,493,218 figure reported for a similar period in 1947, Monogram and Allied Artists still showed a consolidated net loss of $264,892 for the last half of 1948, according to Steve Broidy, president of the companies.

Says 15 Millions See Average 'A' Film

If the industry could attract an additional 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 regular theatre customers its income level would rise to an unprecedented level, Paul Raibourn, Paramount vice-president, told the Association of Customers Brokers at the New York Curb Exchange on Friday. He said that the average "A" production costs approximately $25,000 a minute to make and is seen by about 15,000,000 persons. Both production and exhibition are "fixed cost enterprises," Raibourn said, thus the increases in customers would bring the new prosperity.

Pickford's half interest in U. A. which extends to April 21. During that period he could sell all or part of both Miss Pickford's and his own U. A. interests.

There was speculation here following Wiesenthal's arrival from the Coast concerning the possibility that Si Fabian and Ted R. Gamble, independent circuit operators, might ultimately figure in the Nasser Brothers' negotiations for U. A., should such negotiations make substantial progress. The speculation appeared to be based on reports that the Nassers were among a number of theatre owners whom Fabian contemplated inviting to join him in the event he opened formal negotiations for U. A. himself. Thus, it was surmised, that Fabian might join the Nassers instead.

Fabian and Gamble, invited by United Artists officials to enter into negotiations for the company with Chaplin, replied with a request for a firm sales offer which could be used as a basis for closing of a deal in the event they found it acceptable. Up to Friday, no commitment of the kind had been forthcoming from Chaplin and, in consequence, the two have not entered upon formal negotiations of any kind with U. A. representatives.

James E. and George Nasser, in addition to being producers and owners of General Service Studios, operate the Nasser Brothers circuit in California and have large interests in United California Theatres and T. and D. UK Quota Cut conferences. Wolff said his opinion is that the new quota year, beginning next October 1, will be launched at a "compromise" figure of between 33⅓ and the present 45 per cent.

RKO Radio's 1949 British "take" was less than five per cent below the company's peak year of 1946, Wolff reported. Earnings of all American companies in Britain during the first 10 weeks of this year are running behind those of the corresponding period of last year, he said, adding that he does not foresee a continuance of this falling off of business.

The American companies' "unit program" releasing in Britain has been operating successfully, Wolff said. He said the RKO Radio-Walt Disney partnership production, "Treasure Island," will go before the cameras at Denham studios in June. It will be RKO Radio's only British production venture this year, but will be followed next year by two more, Wolff indicated.

Wolff, who has been named temporary chairman of the pending London Variety Club, credited Warner British chief C. J. Latta with having developed the idea of a London Variety tent. The club, Wolff said, is awaiting a charter from Variety Clubs International here.

Heisler. Edward Lasker was associate producer. Especially commendable is the photography of Winton Hoch, which reaches a thrilling climax at the finale when a roaring, volcanic fire sweeps the oil fields and sends scores of oil-well super-structures crashing thunderously earthward, silhouetted against the flames in the sky in the deep darkness of night.

"Tulsa" is a Western, true, but as lavishly staged a Western as one could expect to find, with a large and competent cast headed by Susan Hayward, Robert Preston and Pedro Armendariz, supported by Lloyd Gough, Chill Wills, Ed Begley, Roland Jack and Harry Shannon. It runs the full gamut of emotions in a story that is not new, but is well told, about the desperate efforts of pioneering native cattlemen unsuccessfully fighting the encroachments of prospecting oilmen ruining the grazing grasslands with their overflowing rivers of black gold.

Streams polluted by refuse oil poison cattle of Susan's father and their death causes him to protest to the intruders. During his visit at the wells to protest, an unexpected explosion in a nearby well kills the father and Susan vows vengeance against Gough, owner of the wells. Susan acquires land leases and with the aid of Preston, starts drilling. After several disappointments, she strikes oil, and riches. The struggle between the oil interests of Gough and Susan occupies a large part of the story, which has threads of a romance between Preston and Miss Hayward, as the prairie cow camp on the Arkansas rises out of the plains to become the nerve center of a mighty oil industry, in the boom days of the early 20's.

An audience of New Yorkers from a truly Metropolitan neighborhood was most receptive to the production at an evening preview at Loew's 72nd Street Theatre.

Frank Nugent and Curtis Kenyon wrote the screenplay, which was based on a suggestion by Richard Wormser. Music, by Frank Skinner, is exceptionally appropriate, particularly the crescendo accompanying the roaring wildly-spreading fire on the oil fields.

Running time, 90 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 13.

department spokesmen indicated at the weekend.

The consensus was that the majority of U. Loew's is said to have made definite moves preparatory to severing its MPEA operational tie in Germany and Austria.

For economic, governmental and other reasons, it is expected that the MPEA companies will continue for another year to operate jointly in Japan, Korea and Indonesia. Only by experimenting with solo operation in Germany and Austria can it be determined whether it would be profitable to abandon the MPEA in those countries, it was said, since industry prospect reports from occupied areas have been conflicting.

Last year, exhibition in America made a profit of $400,000,000 before taxes, and $200,000,000 after taxes, 20th Century-Fox vice-president Al Lichtman stated here yesterday, as he announced he and distribution vice-president Andy W. The production-distribution companies, Lichtman said, are struggling to "break even," and "many are in the red."

Lichtman, Smith Launch Drive for a Bigger Slice for Distribution

Stepping into the vanguard of distribution's bid for a "more equitable" slice of industry profits, 20th Century-Fox announced yesterday, through a trio of key sales and advertising executives, that it will set about at once to replace customary pricing formulas with entirely new, "scientific" marketing economics.

The man who will take the helm in this endeavor is Al Lichtman, newly-elected vice-president of 20th-Fox, whom company president Spyros P. Distributors to Seek Tighter Drive-in Deals

Garman to Head Maryland MPTO

Baltimore, March 21.—Lauritz Garman has been named president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland. Others named are Louis Gaertner, vice-president; Jacob Levin, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Diering, secretary.

The directors are: Walter D. Pacy, Leon Back, Meyer Leventhal, Isador Rappaport, Harry Silver, Oscar B. Coblentz, Jr., William C. Allen, L. E. Green, H. Richard Worman and Frank A. Hornig, Jr.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 21.—Distributing companies are looking forward to bolstering sagging rental incomes from drive-in theatres, with all film companies here eyeing at least a minimum number of bookings on percentage terms. It is reported all companies, including smaller majors and independent distributors, will insist on "tigher" deals from the drive-ins for 1949 than those prevailing last year.

Meanwhile, indications of unusually heavy activity in the building of new drive-ins are included in reports from all over the Minneapolis territory.

Drive-in construction in the Minneapolis zone, which has been largely in the "loose talk" stage during the last two years, is now going forward in giant strides on a definite building program to put no less than 28 new

U.A. Sale Talks On; Kelly To See Chaplin

Possibility that control of United Artists would pass to James and George Nasser within another month was strengthened here yesterday as Sam Wiesenthal, representing the Nassers, engaged in day-long huddles with UA officials on the state of the corporation, and Arthur W. Kelly, UA executive vice-president, unexpectedly left for the Coast by plane to confer with co-owner Charles Chaplin on terms of a deal.

The Nassers are understood to already have established bank credits of $3,500,000 to finance the purchase. It is said that Chaplin and his partner, Mary Pickford, may retain a minority interest in the company.

Harrises Form New Flamingo Film Co.

Formation of Flamingo Films, Inc., to distribute foreign films to art theatres and to produce and distribute television films was announced here yesterday by Joseph Harris, chairman of the board. The company has acquired the film library of Television Highlights, Inc., and has contracted for 250 foreign-made short subjects for distribution to TV stations.

It takes its bow in the 35mm. theatrical field with "Fear No Evil," Italian-made feature dealing with the life of Saint Benedict which opens at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse on March 30. This was produced by Maleno Malenotti for Minerva Films. James B. Harris, formerly associated with Budd Rogers in Realart, will handle sales of the opening attraction and others to be acquired and will serve as president of Flamingo. Joseph Harris, his father, sails on the S.S. Queen Mary on April 2 to acquire further product. Under separate arrangements, Film Highlights, Inc., will distribute all Flamingo releases in the 16mm. field.

Sy Weintraub, former director of sales for Television Highlights, is vice-president in charge of television. David L. Wolper, president of Harris-Wolper Pictures, which will become inactive, is secretary-treasurer and director of advertising-publicity.

Aside from his activities as board chairman of Realart, the elder Harris proposes concentrating on Flamingo.

Milwaukee Variety Asks Restoration

MILWAUKEE, March 21.—R. J. O'Donnell, Chief Barker of Variety Clubs International, reports that inactive Milwaukee Tent No. 8 has been reorganized and has petitioned for restoration of its charter.

Highlights will include an address by Governor Herman Talmadge, who is expected to discuss legislation handled during the recent session of the legislature that is of special interest to the amusement business.

Short Subject

"Wish You Were Here"

(March of Time-20th-Fox)

Vacation thoughts are always pleasant ones and March of Time here devotes an entire subject to vacations. We learn from the subject that Americans are the most vacationing people in the world, spending the towering total of $11,000,000,000 a year traveling and vacationing.

In popular and pleasant ways, the subject shows how people get away from it all in cruising ships, at the seashore, hotels, camps, etc. Some of the liveliest shots come from scenes of professional entertainers doing their stuff at big-time resorts. The picture very likely will provide the puzzled, would-be vacationer with some fresh ideas. Running time, 17½ minutes.

Lippert Slates Eight Films Up to June 13

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—Following completion recently of financial backing by several San Francisco banks, Robert L. Lippert's Lippert Productions will set eight pictures before the cameras between April 4 and June 13, the producer disclosed today.

Pictures and dates when production will begin follow: "Come Out Fighting," April 4, with Ron Ormond producing; "Cross Currents," April 11, Cy Roth producing; "Grand Canyon," April 28, Carl K. Hittleman producing; "Skyliner," May 9, William Stephens producing; "Treasure of Monte Cristo," May 16, Leonard Picker producing; "The Baron of Arizona," June 1, Hittleman producing. On June 13 Ormond will start two as yet untitled outdoor features.

Governor Proclaims 'Tulsa Day' April 13

TULSA, Okla., March 21.—World premiere of "Tulsa" in this city on April 13 will be marked by the official statewide celebration of "Tulsa Day," according to an official proclamation by Gov. Roy J. Turner. The premiere at the Ritz and Orpheum theatres here will be attended by Gov. Turner, Oklahoma U. S. Senators Robert S. Kerr and Elmer Thomas, as well as governors of Southwestern states and mayors of cities in the area. The premiere will be followed by at least 400 day-and-date engagements throughout the territory, with more key city houses to be added.

Monogram Will Get Three from Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—Lindsley Parsons, who heads Parsons Productions, has concluded a deal with Monogram to make three James Oliver Curwood novels. The three are: "Tentacles of the North," to start in April, "The Wolf Hunters" and "The Captain's Courage."

Says Schools Should Teach Film Tastes

Present motion pictures reflect popular taste, and "if we think that popular taste should be improved we must get to work with the institutions that shape our taste: the home, the school and the church," declared Frances Farmer Wilder, specialist in mass communications in an address given here yesterday before the East Coast Preview Committee of 17 national organizations which view films under the auspices of the Motion Picture Association of America.

"Our schools devote much time to teaching tastes in literature, but few attempt to teach discrimination in motion picture tastes," Miss Wilder added.

Skouras Gets Award; On Air Tonight

Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, received last night in Philadelphia on behalf of the company the Philadelphia B'nai B'rith's citation for its "distinguished contribution to democracy." In his acceptance speech, Skouras said: "As long as I am directing the affairs of 20th Century-Fox, we shall never shirk our responsibility to meet every requirement of public welfare and public taste implied by this citation." This responsibility, he added, "is felt by the whole motion picture industry."

Skouras will appear tonight as a guest on "We, the People" over the CBS network to describe how the Greek people will celebrate the 127th anniversary of Greek independence.

To Explore New Sales Formulae

A. W. Smith, Jr.

Charles Einfeld

New Profit System

Loew's vice-presidency at the studio to join 20th-Fox.

Following a home office trade press interview yesterday, in which advertising-publicity vice-president Charles Einfeld participated, Lichtman and the third key figure in the campaign to "eliminate dog-eat-dog trading," distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., left New York for a two-month "grass-roots" tour to confer with exhibitors, their associations, and company exchange executives in an attempt to arrive at a new formula or new formulae for pricing product. They will be in Boston today, whence they will head for New Haven, Philadelphia, and other cities across the country.

Exhibition has a big stake in the outcome of the conference, Lichtman explained yesterday, for as the situation stands today exhibitors are threatened with finding the source of supply of good pictures "endangered." Einfeld interpolated that "somewhere along the line there is an unfair division of the public's money."

Cites Three Theories

Confident that new pricing policies can evolve from the two months of conferences, which, incidentally, are designed to be in the nature of "industry good-will" meetings, Lichtman said there are three theories of selling which will serve as springboards for the field conferences:

(2) Apportionment of production costs pro rata to each theatre, with house expense put against the costs and exhibitor and distributor to divide the profits equally.

(3) Charge the exhibitor a flat sum—15, 25 or 50 cents—for each patron who patronizes the picture, leaving the exhibitor free to charge whatever he pleases for the ticket of admission.

In the final analysis, Lichtman acknowledged the last would resemble percentage playing. But, he added, the resemblance ends with the liberty the exhibitor would have to charge any price for the ticket, just so long as the distributor gets the "guaranteed" per-ticket charge. Distributor charge per ticket would vary with the quality of pictures, and the sums cited here by Lichtman were given only as examples.

Sees No 'Magic Formula'

Smith explained that in his and Lichtman's forthcoming conferences with exhibitors there will be "no compulsion, no threats." The two executives, Smith added, will "talk the problems out with exhibitors." The problem of dwindling production-distribution profits, he said, "is the theatres' problem as well as ours." There may be no "magic formula," Smith observed, and the company is going about to search for a solution with "an open mind."

Reminding that the risks in the industry fall mainly on production's shoulders, Lichtman said that if the exhibitors produced pictures they would have to bear all costs and "gamble for profits." As it is, he added, the exhibitor hastens to protect his costs and expects the producer "to take the biggest part of the gamble."

Each of the three 20th-Fox executives had some observations and comments about motion picture advertising. Concisely, Lichtman said: "No picture carries itself." Einfeld, who indicated the company will continue strong "national" advertising activity, cited the advertising practices followed in other industries to support Smith's statement of 20th-Fox's policy against cooperative advertising. For a distributor to cooperate with a theatre in advertising, Smith contended, is to usurp the rights of the exhibitor. He believes the distributor's function is to "advise" theatre owners on advertising.

Asks Revival of Faith

The industry's public relations at present offered a target for some sharp comment from Lichtman. "Too many people" in and outside the industry, he said, are given to "panning" the motion picture business. Describing the industry as "hard-working, sincere" and dogged by economic, creative and production problems, Lichtman called for a revival of the "evangelist" spirit, especially in salesmen. "The picture business is too young to die; it needs a reaffirmation of early faith," he declared.

Is television a threat? Lichtman dismissed that one lightly by maintaining that "theatre business is better in areas where there are most television sets."

Sam Shain, 20th-Fox director of exhibitor relations, will accompany Lichtman and Smith on their tour.

NBC's Prexy Blasts CBS 'Top Spot' Claim

Battle of the networks has flared anew as Niles Trammell, president of National Broadcasting, dispatched a five-page letter to newspaper editors blasting Columbia Broadcasting's claims of radio leadership in vigorously-worded terms.

Trammell quotes from a recent CBS letter which claimed supremacy on numerous counts, and thereupon adds his own comments.

Disputes Hooper Ratings

CBS had reported that nine of the top 15 Hooper-rating programs are on that network and that the other six were divided equally between two other networks. Says Trammell: "These figures played a limited one-week engagement, Hooper's latest (March 1-7) shows NBC with five, CBS seven. Beyond his shifting top 15 shows, Hooper continues to tell the same old story—NBC delivers more ratings over 10, over 12, than any other network. Down the middle, where most advertisers operate, NBC consistently produces more than its share of the solid ratings."

Commenting on CBS's acquisitions of prominent stars from NBC, Trammell asserts that the ratings for Jack Benny and Amos 'n' Andy are "considerably below" what they were a year ago on NBC.

'Ornamental' and 'Meaningless'

"Strictly ornamental and strictly meaningless," says Trammell of the CBS claim of "highest average station power."

CBS has reported an increase of eight per cent in network billings for the first quarter of 1949 over last year. Trammell's comment: "This is more in the nature of a recovery. CBS first-quarter billings have now caught up to their level of 1945."

The CBS claim that it had the 'largest number of the most popular programs," prompted this comment by Trammell: "Dunninger is still working on this one."

Pine-Thomas Lists Four More for Para.

HOLLYWOOD, March 21. — William H. Pine and William C. Thomas have announced a production schedule under which they will film four "big-scale" pictures for Paramount release.

The first, "Captain China," starring John Payne and Gail Russell, will go before the cameras in mid-April. The second will be "Below the Border," a Western which will be filmed in Technicolor in Mexico. Next will be a newspaper melodrama, "Not for Publication," scheduled to start in late summer. "The Storm" will be fourth on the schedule.

THE NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM calls it "Adult Treat"

Movies

'Red Pony' Shows Steinbeck Artistry

The story about a boy and his pet has been worn threadbare by Hollywood but the battered old theme emerges new and rich and glossy once more in "The Red Pony." This picture is spreading a rhapsody of mellow happiness and wistful tears through the Technicolor on the Mayfair screen.

John Steinbeck was in a tender mood when he rearranged parts of the short stories that went into the original "Red Pony" collection and turned them into this scenario. He has made no important changes in his material, simply arranged his events into a sequence better suited to movie purposes. His warm, salty dialogue, the eager dreams of childhood and a boy's ecstasy in animal comradeship all have been affectionately caught in the picture.

The skeleton of the story is the same one to which Hollywood has clung since the beginning of movies. A lonely little boy is given a pony and life turns to pure ecstasy. The world crashes in ruins when the pony sickens and dies. With a fierce determination, the boy faces down his ordeal but it does not really end until another colt is born and becomes his.

The difference is in the hearty vigor of the characters Steinbeck has created. He has been given a rousing assist also by a wonderful cast under inspired direction of that old master, Lewis Milestone.

First among these players is the boy, Peter Miles, a stranger to major movie roles. In the way that gifted children have, Peter has plunged into the story and made it his own. He now seems to be the inspiration for a story that must have flowed from the Steinbeck pen before Peter was born. The charm and vividness of this boy's performance are that strong.

Choice of other members of the cast was equally inspired. Bob Mitchum is a Gibraltar of homely wisdom on whom the boy leans for counsel. The parents are Myrna Loy as deeply compassionate mother, and Shepperd Strudwick as a father longing to become part of his boy's world if he could only have understood what it was. Louis Calhern is an old plainsman, lustily roaring out his stories, until the touching moment when he realizes that he has become an ancient and colossal bore.

One word of warning if you take a child to "The Red Pony." There is a bloody scene in which the boy fights a buzzard, for which a sensitive child should be reassured in advance and perhaps again as it occurs.

But in general the Mayfair is the best theater in town to shower —happiness on a child—and to give yourself one of the adult movie treats of the season during the same errand. A. C.

outdoor theatres in operation in the area when the 1949 drive-in season gets into full swing.

Anton Schulz will have the 500-car Corral drive-in near Bismarck, N. D., ready for spring opening; and W. R. Hiller and son Jack have completed plans for a 490-car outdoors stand to be opened next summer at Marshall, bringing to 40 the total number of such 35mm operations in the Minneapolis area.

At the close of last year's outdoor activities, there were eight drive-ins in operation in the Minneapolis territory, comprising Minnesota Entertainment Enterprises' Bloomington and Rose, in suburban Minneapolis and St. Paul, respectively; Austin, Minn., drive-in, operated by Clem Jaunich, E. R. Ruben and Harold Field; Ralph Green's Rochester, Minn., drive-in; Ted Mann-Charles Rubenstein's Sky-Line, Duluth; Harold Hanson's East Park, Sioux Falls, S. D., and E. R. Ruben's Ski-Lite drive-ins at Sioux Falls and Rapid City, S. D.

New drive-ins definitely set include:

Minnesota: At Albert Lea, Friedman Brothers; at Bemidji, Ed Baehr; Brainerd, Home Theatres Co.; Duluth, Mann-Rubenstein; International Falls, Home Theatres Co.; Little Falls, Lowell Smoots; Mankato, Pete Karalis; Owatonna, Frank and Woempner; Redwood Falls, Don Buckley; Spring Valley, Joe Milnar; St. Cloud, Karalis; Willmar, Frank and Woempner; Winona, Roesner and Smith; Worthington, Gay Hower.

North Dakota: At Bismarck, Gus Wingreene; Fargo, Ruben; Grand Forks, Ruben; Jamestown, John Ludwig; Minot, Karalis.

South Dakota: At Aberdeen, Ruben; Huron, Ruben; Watertown. Harold Hanson.

Wisconsin: At Eau Claire, Ted Karatz-Sheldon Grengs; LaCrosse, Ruben-Ben Marcus; Superior, Roy McMinn and Clarence Kaake.

Minnesota Enterprises also has drive-ins under construction for Brooklyn Township in suburban Minneapolis, and at Inver Grove, south of the St. Paul city limits. Several additional drive-ins are known to be in the planning stage in the area, particularly at Ashland, Wis., and in the district between Faribault and Northfield, Minn.

Herbert Ochs Will Build Six Drive-ins in Canada

CLEVELAND, March 21. — Herbert Ochs, drive-in circuit operator, is planning to expand his group of five outdoor theatres in Canada to 11. The Ochs circuit also includes seven theatres in the U. S., in Port Huron, Fort Wayne, Grand Rapids, in Michigan, and in Dayton, Rayland, Wheelersburg and Wilmington, all in Ohio.

"Adventure in Baltimore"

(RKO Radio) Hollywood, March 21

ROBERT YOUNG, Shirley Temple, John Agar and Josephine Hutchinson supply the principal entertainment and name power on which this pleasant item of nostalgia, produced by Richard E. Berger under the imprint of Dore Schary during the latter's RKO Radio regime, depends. The film is a good-humored treatment of the thesis that forward-thinking young people in the Baltimore of 1905 gave their elders quite as much concern as the young people of today or any other day, without evil intent or outcome, and the point is gently but firmly made. The picture plays better than it bills, and figures to pick up support from the family circle as audience comment infiltrates the community.

Miss Temple portrays the artistically talented and progressively-minded daughter of a minister, excellently played by Young, who is in line for the bishopry and whose straight-laced followers consider his prospects endangered by his daughter's well-intentioned but gossip-provoking escapades. She gets expelled from school for advocating modernism, lands in jail when a street riot develops among casual admirers of her painting, and again, this time accompanied by her mother and her brothers, for intervening in behalf of votes-for-women paraders. Although counselled to send her away until gossip dies down, the minister takes his case to the congregation in a sermon which results in general clarification and his selection as bishop. Agar plays the young man who does not realize, until all of this is over, that he is in love with the girl. Full attention to details of setting and period, and expert direction by Richard Wallace, give the picture extraordinary realism. The screenplay, by Lionel Houser, is orderly and well thought out.

Running time, 90 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

"Corridor of Mirrors"

(Prestige—Universal-International)

A CURIOUS drama of love and death, permeated with mystical overtones, has been sent here from London by J. Arthur Rank in "Corridor of Mirrors." As a story of a man obsessed with the image of a girl in a 400-year-old painting, the film evolves unconventionally, and as such will have appeal for certain discriminating audiences. Measured by American film standards, however, it moves rather slowly and has frequent interludes of pompous dialogue. Eric Portman and Edana Romney head the cast of this Prestige Picture, which Universal-International is releasing.

It is an unusual role that falls to Portman as a cynically sophisticated gentleman who mentally lives in the Rennaissance period. Believing himself the reincarnation of the portrait-girl's lover, Portman one day meets Miss Romney and becomes convinced she is the reincarnation of the girl. There follows a love story which parallels the old one. As it happened, the lover of yore, thwarted, finally strangles the girl with her own hair. The contemporary parallel, however, follows another line as it is a different girl that gets strangled by a demented woman and Portman is executed for the crime. Such is the outline of the obscure tale which is related in flashback. The film's title derives from a corridor of mirrors in Portman's fabulous home.

Miss Romney, in private life the wife of John Woolf, joint managing director of Rank's General Film Distributors, Ltd., is introduced to American audiences in the film for the first time and she performs with easy competence. A Cartier-Romney production for Apollo Films, it was directed by Terence Young and produced by Rudolph Cartier. The screenplay, by Miss Romney and Cartier, was from Chris Massey's novel.

division's 13 branches, and a decision had been pending meanwhile as to whether centralization or a modification of the former setup should be adopted.

E. J. Kelly, VA chief of motion pictures, and Mrs. Adenia Stern, VA film liaison, will come to New York from Washington during the week of April 4 to confer with industry distribution executives on the product VA will show here during the next year in VA hospitals and homes.

The VA Administration's motion picture office here plans now to deal directly with film exchanges in the field and will adopt a "locked booking system," whereby the VA hospitals and homes will be supplied with product regularly and under a sequence plan already established. The VA will conduct its motion picture payment and procurement operations out of Washington.

areas and corridor conversations that they all are just waiting for a chance to levy admissions taxes and that a resolution along this line, marking the admissions tax as "peculiarly appropriate for local administration" will be adopted Wednesday.

President Truman, addressing the conference, said that one of the most important problems facing cities is to "bring some order out of the tangle among cities, states and the Federal government in the field of taxation and financial relations." The President said he had asked Secretary of Treasury Snyder to report to him on progress in unraveling the tangle, and that "in the near future, the Secretary is inviting representatives of state and local bodies to meet with him and other Federal officials in a preliminary conference to work toward a program for action in this field."

Conference president George W. Welsh, mayor of Grand Rapids, said that the Federal and state governments have pre-empted the most productive forms of taxation. He declared that the conference should press Congress for creation of a Federal-state and city tax commission to be charged with responsibility for developing a suggested division or allocation of tax revenues among the three levels of government.

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh declared that Federal and state governments should adopt a "self-denying ordinance—a clear-cut determination of policy that will leave them out of certain inappropriate taxing areas and leave such resources to the cities."

Mayor W. Cooper Green of Birmingham also called for "home rule" in matters of taxation. Mayor Joseph E. Smith of Oakland said his city had found the sales tax "the most painless and practical method of making ends meet."

Wilson Fixes New U. K. Quota at 40 Per Cent

Ignores Recommendation of His Own Films Council for Lower Quota; Exhibitors Are Dismayed; Approval by Parliament Is Certain

LONDON, March 22.—Ignoring the recommendation of his own Films Council for a 33⅓ per cent film quota, Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, today fixed the first feature quota at 40 per cent for the year beginning Oct. 1.

Wilson's order requires the approval of both Houses of Parliament, but its adoption is assured.

The present quota is 45 per cent and British producers have been unable so far to supply sufficient product to meet it, with the result that exhibitor defaults are numerous despite exemptions and partial relief granted to them.

Wilson is continuing the 25 per cent quota for supporting programs (second features).

The Exhibitors' Association was dumbfounded by Wilson's action in setting the new quota at 40 per cent. The CEA had urged the Films Coun-

U. S. Treasury Calls Meet on Local Taxes

May Have Far-Reaching Effect on Ticket Levy

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder today summoned state and local officials to meet with Treasury representatives here on April 21-22 to survey the problems and possibilities for eliminating overlapping Federal, state and local taxes and for establishing more adequate revenue sources for local governments.

Practically all of the groups invited to the conference are on record in favor of the Federal government getting out of the admission tax field, leaving the states and cities free to step in.

President Truman yesterday told the 1949 Conference of Mayors, meeting here, that he realized that many

Siegel Named Para. Studio Ad Chief

HOLLYWOOD, March 22.—Norman S. Siegel has been named advertising-publicity manager of the Paramount studio, by Henry Ginsberg, production vice-president.

Siegel joined the studio publicity staff of Paramount in June, 1945, prior to that he had been on the editorial staff of the Cleveland Press for 15 years. Last April he was appointed executive assistant to studio director of publicity and advertising George Brown, who resigned on Monday. For three successive years he has served as Hollywood coordinator for the Royal Command film premieres in London.

NY Runs Have Mild Grosses

Tickets are selling at a leisurely pace at New York first-runs this week with only a few spots ringing up substantial business. Holdovers are playing in all but two of the "showcases" and the mild weather has not especially helped. The income generally is at a modest level.

20th's 1st Rental Plan Meeting Today

BOSTON, March 22.—Twentieth Century-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman and Andy W. Smith, Jr., arrived here today from New York in company with advertising-publicity vice-president Charles Einfeld and a number of other company executives for a sales meeting with Edward Callahan, Boston branch manager.

Boston is Lichtman's and Smith's first stop on their scheduled nationwide tour in behalf of a new, prospective film rental plan which is designed to provide a bigger profit for the distributor. They will meet exhibitors here tomorrow at a luncheon at the Copley Plaza Hotel. Other 20th-Fox executives here from New York are Ray Moore, Sam Shain and Maurice Caplan.

NSS Beats Express Embargo Handicaps

Despite the express embargo which has seriously paralyzed shipping from New York for 12 days, trailers and accessories, more than 90 per cent of which are produced here, have continued their uninterrupted distribution to National Screen exchanges, and exhibitors throughout the country, NSS reported here yesterday.

Day and night crews are operating in National Screen's home office, shipping rooms, screen plant and laboratories in routing these advertising items to intermediate shipping stations outside of New York, where they have been relayed to National Screen's 31 offices.

Although NSS spokesmen were reluctant to divulge what methods were employed to overcome the embargo's threat to service, for fear of jeopardizing current advantages, they point out that one such relay point had been Philadelphia, which, now under threat of embargo itself, has given way to a new depot.

Daily tactical briefings are designed to deploy shipments to points of vantage, and to checkmate new handicaps that endanger the service schedule.

40% Quota Shocks Film Trade Here

News of the British Board of Trade's order fixing the film quota at 40 per cent for the year beginning next Oct. 1 was received with surprise and some bitterness in New York film circles yesterday.

"It certainly does nothing to improve strained relations between the American and British industries," one executive commented.

Ascap's Ahlert, 7 Others Reelected

Fred E. Ahlert and all seven other incumbents have been reelected to the board of directors of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Ahlert, who is president of the organization, is understood to have won a 10-to-one majority of the mailed ballots.

Louis Bernstein, Saul H. Bourne and Herman Starr were re-elected on the popular music publishers slate; Ahlert, Paul Cunningham and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, were reelected in the popular writers division, and A. Walter Kramer was reelected in the standard writers group.

The Ascap board numbers 24, with the terms running three years; eight memberships are voted each year.

New Music Fee for Canada Stage Shows

TORONTO, March 22.—When a Canadian film theatre is rented or is used exclusively for a stage performance, symphony concert or a recital, the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada is entitled to collect a special fee for performing rights apart from the regular annual license agreement between theatre and CAPAC.

This provision is contained in a clause in the new three-year contract of the association which has been accepted by exhibitors and approved by the Copyright Appeal Board at Ottawa, according to information which has been sent out to theatres.

It is pointed out, however, if a film is exhibited in conjunction with the stage performance or "live" talent, the theatre's customary seat fee for the year covers the program. The seat tax ranges from 10 cents to 20 cents per year.

Newmeyer In Ascap Press Relations Post

Arthur Grover Newmyer, prominent in newspaper publishing for the past 30 years, has been appointed press and public relations counsel for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Would Boost ECA Fund $5,000,000

Washington, March 22.— The House Foreign Affairs Committee, working to report out a bill extending the ECA through June 30, 1950, has tentatively voted to increase the funds for the information media guarantee program during the next year from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

General Precision '48 Net, $936,679

General Precision Equipment Corp. and subsidiary companies for the year ended Dec. 31, 1948, reports consolidated net sales of $27,008,450, compared with $27,748,137 in 1947, which were the largest in the company's history. Consolidated net profit for the year was $936,679, equal to $1.56 per share on 601,087 shares outstanding against $1,262,111 or $2.10 per share for 1947, is disclosed in the company's annual financial report to stockholders, signed jointly by board chairman Earle G. Hines and president Hermann G. Place.

Dividends from the company's investment in 20th Century-Fox, included in the 1948 net profit, amounted to $113,800, compared with $173,925 in 1947.

The GPE balance sheet showed total current assets of $19,905,213 and total current liabilities of $2,859,820, against $15,756,333 and $3,081,054, respectively, at the end of 1947.

The report said the year was marked by increasing evidences of keener competition and narrowing profit margins. Inventories rose by $1,351,557, to $9,392,125, and notes and accounts receivable increased by $1,131,827, to $6,770,698.

Resume Negotiations On Schine Decree

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Meetings between the Justice Department and Schine circuit attorneys to work out final terms of a consent decree are expected to continue on and off this week and next in an attempt to finish up the negotiations in short order.

Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, who has been doing the negotiating, and who has been out of town since Thursday, returned today. He refused to confirm reports that he had met today with Schine attorneys but there was reason to believe that such a meeting did take place and that others will follow during the next 10 days. Agreement has been reached on divestiture provisions of a decree, with the injunctive relief provisions still to be worked out.

Ask Films for Children

Producers were urged to set up script departments for children's films and exhibitors asked to label adult pictures clearly in a resolution passed by some 200 delegates to the third institute of "Children's Films for Children," sponsored by the United Parents association held here recently.

(Excerpts from Coast Report in Hollywood Reporter. Read Every Word!)

"The sales heads who attended the M-G-M meeting here three weeks ago heard Louis Mayer tell them that M-G-M now had the greatest product it had had in many, many years. Then he proceeded to show them 'Take Me Out To The Ball Game', 'The Secret Garden,' 'The Stratton Story,' 'Barkleys of Broadway,' 'Neptune's Daughter,' 'In The Good Old Summertime,' 'Edward, My Son' and 'Conspirator.' They even saw quite a bit of footage on 'The Great Sinner,' 'Madame Bovary,' 'Any Number Can Play,' 'The Forsyte Saga' and 'That Midnight Kiss;' all of which have since been finished. The salesmen were more than impressed.

"M-G-M, with good product, is a great thing for the whole industry. 'As M-G-M goes, so goes the picture business.' The whole industry will be jumping. Good M-G-M product, combined with the fine entertainment being turned out by some of the other majors is bound to return a successful boxoffice. It's great to know M-G-M is in its stride."

"The Set-Up"

(RKO-Radio)

THE seamy side of the fight game is the theme of this realistic, and often exciting melodrama centering around the decline and the wash-up of Robert Ryan, 20 years in the ring.

The parade of its chief characters is not a pretty one, nor is "The Set-Up" a pretty picture. There is Ryan, practically finished as a boxer, who never manages to make the grade and the money. There is Audrey Totter, his weary and faithful wife surfeited by the cheap hand-to-mouth existence which is her lot with Ryan who refuses to quit. Too, there are George Tobias, double-crossing manager who sells out the fighter to his opponent and the situation wherein Ryan, after a brutal mauling, wins the bout and incurs the displeasure of Alan Baxter, local gang leader who arranged the set-up and believes he has been double-crossed. Thus, Ryan becomes the innocent victim of the gangster's revenge and ends up assaulted and out of the game with a crushed hand. What this brings about, however, is a reconciliation with Miss Totter and an indicated promise of happier times for the future.

Based on a poem by Joseph Moncure March, "The Set-Up" is revealing in its character delineations—Ryan, still hopeful; David Clarke, the has-been still trying; James Edwards, the confident Negro fighter on the up-grade. The cross-section is interesting, well-done and convincing. The picture reaches its climax and its excitement in the four-round bout in which Ryan takes a terrific beating but manages, out of sheer willpower, to put across the successful knockout blow. How various ringsiders react is depicted graphically in byplays of comedy and calloused indifference.

Performances are uniformly good, reaching beyond the principals to such supporting cast members as Wallace Ford and Percy Helton. The atmosphere is authentic and perhaps there is more brutality than many can take. Robert Wise's direction is competent and firm. Richard Goldstone produced.

Running time, 72 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, April 1, 1949.

"Quartet"

(J. Arthur Rank-Gainsborough-Eagle-Lion)

AN unusually exgrossing presentation arrives from the British studios of Rank's Gainsborough Productions. It has a wide emotional range which is spread over four short stories by that entertaining author, W. Somerset Maugham. Each of the four is handled separately with different casts to draw the line between them more sharply. Both production and performances are excellent.

Maugham followers will find the film a faithful reproduction of some of the author's better known works; but even those unfamiliar with Maugham should be attracted because the film as a whole contains all of the ingredients of good film fare—adventure, pathos, humor and human interest.

Each of the four stories—"The Facts of Life," "The Alien Corn," "The Kite" and "The Colonel's Lady"—takes about 30 minutes to unreel which makes for rather lengthy running time, but there appears to be no obvious way of cutting or editing without hurting the context. This should prove no booking problem since the films are so ingeniously directed, that one gets the feeling of seeing complete feature-length films instead of half-hour versions. There are no transition sequences between the stories, the whole thing being done simply by fadeout and into the next story.

"The Facts of Life" is a comedy about a son who doesn't heed his father's advice about "not gambling, not lending money and not having anything to do with women," in a visit to Monte Carlo, ending up with more than 100,000 francs to the good. "Alien Corn" tells a touching story of a British aristocrat who commits suicide because he cannot become a concert pianist. "The Kite" is a brittle satire of the English middle class. "The Colonel's Lady" takes sly digs at a "blimpish" ex-army officer leading a double life.

"Quartet" was produced by R. C. Sherriff and directed by Ken Annakin, Arthur Crabtree, Harold French and Ralph Smart. Maugham makes a short introductory appearance at the beginning of the film. The casts follow: "The Facts of Life": Basil Radford, Naunton Wayne, Ian Fleming, Jack Raine, Angela Baddeley, Mai Zetterling; "The Alien Corn": Dirk Bogarde, Raymond Lovell, Irene Browne, Honor Blackman, George Thorpe; "The Kite": Bernard Lee, Frederick Leister, George Merritt, George Cole, David Cole, Hermione Baddeley; "The Colonel's Lady": Cecil Parker, Nora Swinburne, J. H. Roberts, Lynn Evans, Linden Travers.

Running time, 120 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The Army has given the Apex Film Corp. of Los Angeles a $245,500 contract to produce a series of short films.

Exhibitor Contact Important: Grainger

Close communication between exhibitor and producer is important and one of the surest means for the latter to keep informed on the tastes of the film-going public and be guided accordingly in his picture-making activities. This was cited here yesterday by Republic producer J. Edmund Grainger as one of his top business recipes. The producer, who began his film career in distribution, is the son of Republic distribution vice-president James R. Grainger.

Grainger, who has been here from Hollywood since last Friday, was scheduled to return to the Coast last night for conferences with Major-Gen. Selden, head of the U. S. Army's public information division, on "The Sands of Iwo Jima," the producers' next picture for Republic, which, he said, is scheduled to go before the cameras in May. Grainger's latest film is "The Wake of the Red Witch."

Grainger will submit the completed "Iwo Jima" script to Selden for Army approval, that being necessary on all war pictures that claim to present authentic accounts of military undertakings, the producer said. The film will be budgeted at over $1,000,000, he reported.

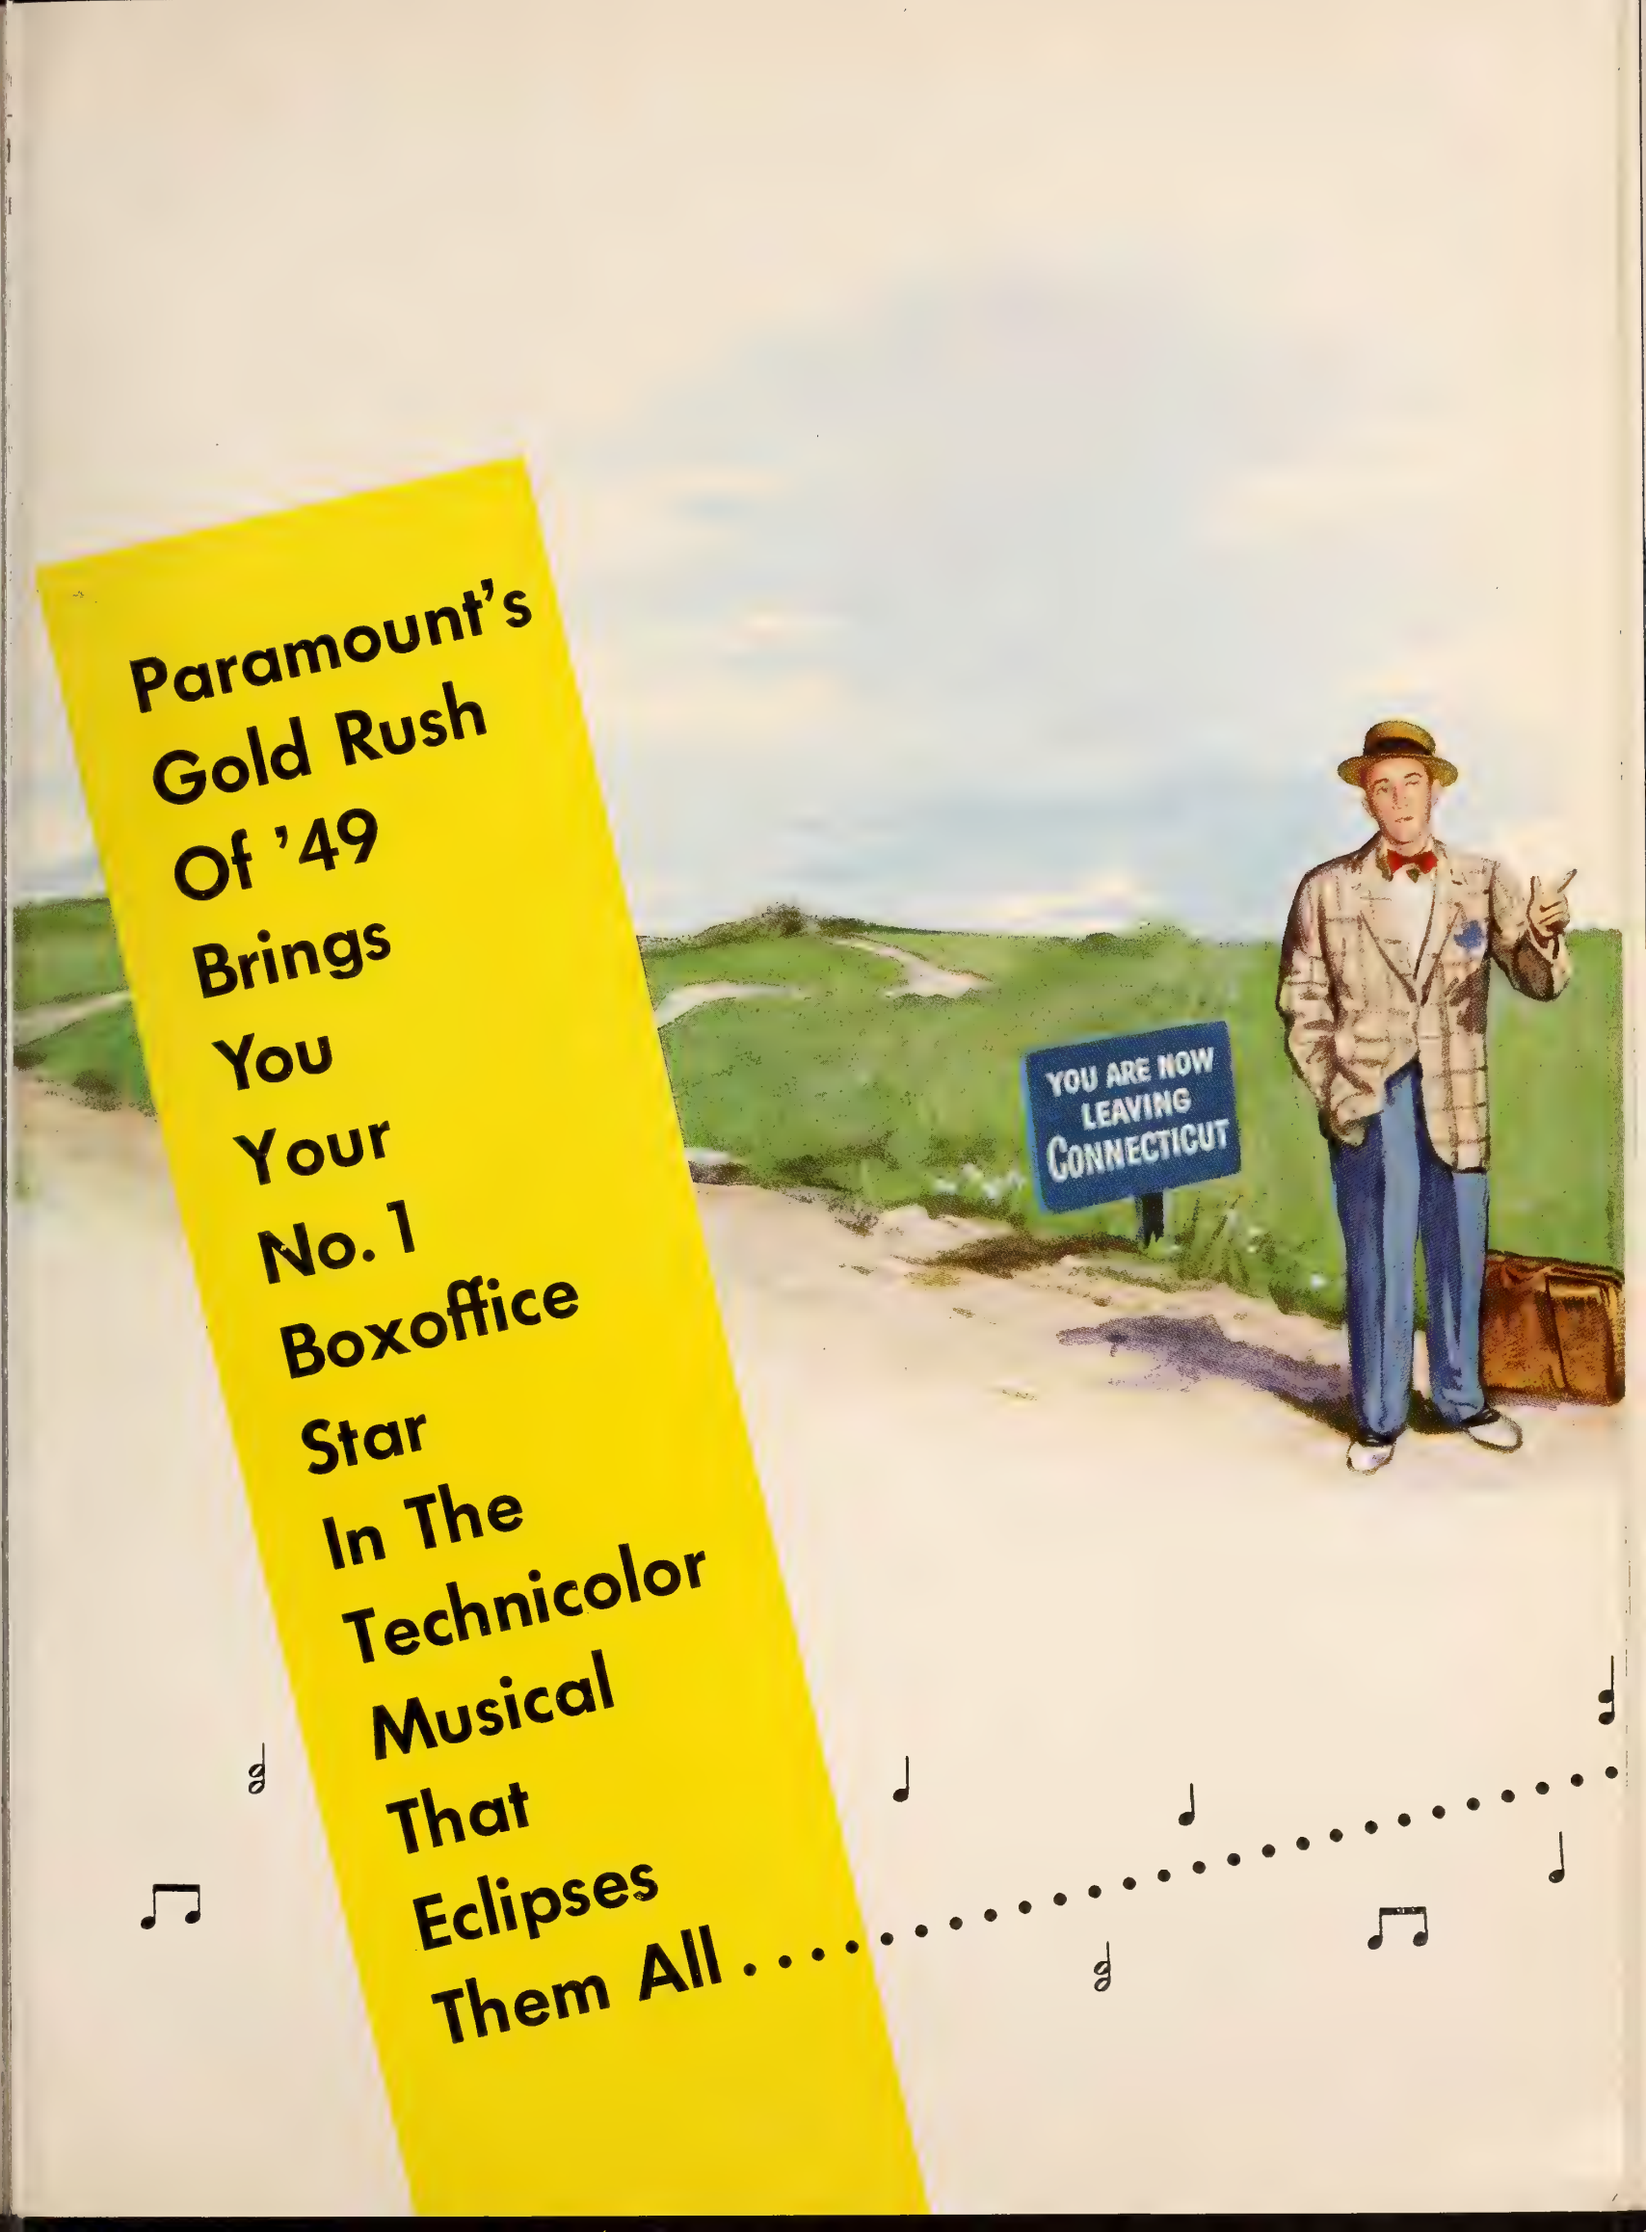
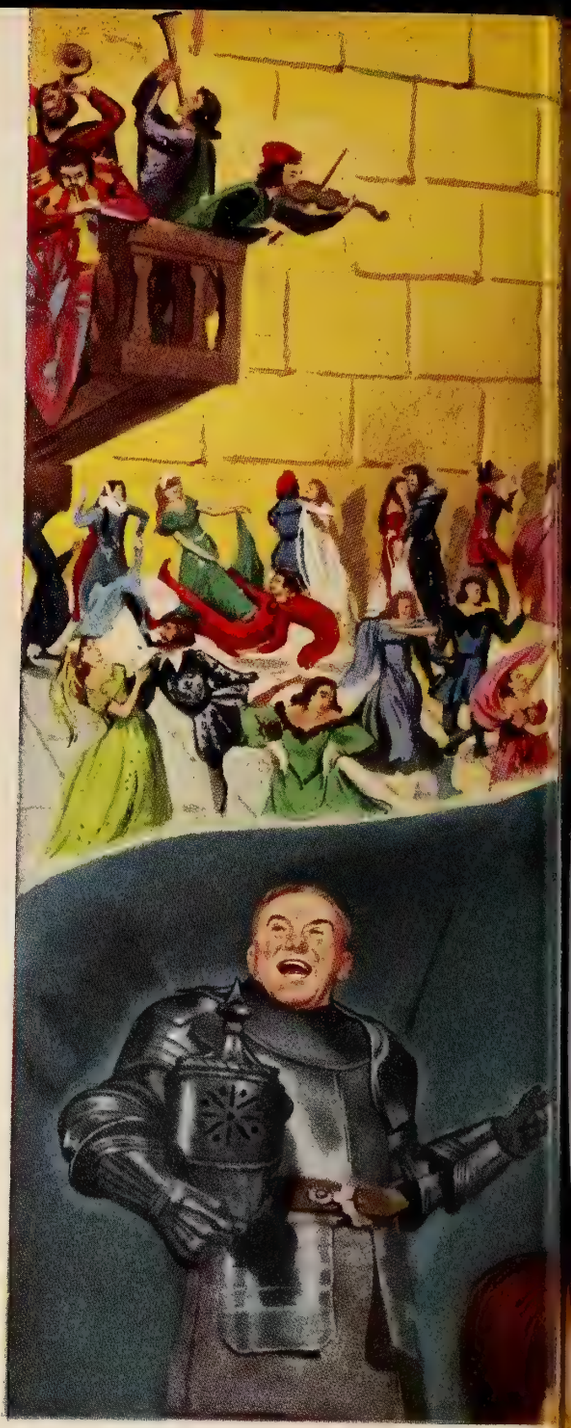
committee chairman, will preside at the meeting, which is expected to run through Friday.



The exhibitors' organization and the distributors, the latter represented by a committee headed by RKO Radio distribution vice-president Robert Mochrie, have been conferring with a view to reaching an agreement on the shorts rentals which will permit the first of the "Let's Go to the Movies" subjects to go into release. However, a deadlock persists, with TOA apparently determined to hold out for more or less nominal rentals for each of the six films in the series. Conferences between the two sides have not been held for more than a week, since TOA's spokesman, executive director Gael Sullivan, has been out of town and is not due to return to New York until today.

Tomorrow's meeting is expected to consider also industry arbitration proposals, television developments, TOA's expansion plans in new territories, a proposal for the exchange of information on box-office performances of films among TOA members, and a number of other subjects.



RKO Asks Court to Halt UA 'Champion'

HOLLYWOOD, March 22.—RKO filed an application in Federal court for a temporary order restraining United Artists from releasing the film "Champion" on the ground that certain scenes in the latter virtually duplicated scenes in "Set-Up," an RKO production, and asked $500,000 potential damages.

In a statement issued in advance of the actual filing by RKO, and following an exchange of correspondence between the companies, Screen Plays president Stanley Kramer, producer of "Champion," said, "There are absolutely no grounds for RKO's claim of damaging similarity between the two pictures."

Charlotte, N. C.

Editor, MOTION PICTURE DAILY:

A check of the records in the Federal Court, Charlotte, N. C., will show that after all testimonies and evidence had been presented by the plaintiff, H. B. Meiselman and the defendants, United Artists, M-G-M, RKO, Columbia, Warners, Fox, Paramount, H. F. Kincey, Charlotte Amusement Co. and Strand Theatres, Inc., and prior to any motion for dismissal or non-suit by said defendants, Mr. H. B. Meiselman through his attorneys, Clagett and Schilz, requested that the court non-suit the case vs. M-G-M. We wish to repeat it was upon the request of the plaintiff, H. B. Meiselman, that Federal Judge Wilson Warlick non-suited the charges vs. M-G-M.

H. B. MEISELMAN

(In reporting the dismissal of M-G-M from the Meiselman anti-trust suit MOTION PICTURE DAILY on March 15 said in a dispatch from Charlotte that the dismissal resulted from the offering of M-G-M product to Meiselman on a competitive bidding basis.—Ed. Note).

Review

"The Undercover Man"

(Columbia)

THE documentary-style detective melodrama is now relatively commonplace on the screen, but it remains a singularly effective form of entertainment, as witness "The Undercover Man." Based on an article by Frank J. Wilson, retired chief of the U. S. Secret Service, and a story outline by Jack Rubin, the screenplay of Sidney Boehm delivers itself under the direction of Joseph H. Lewis as a series of nakedly realistic episodes in a Treasury agent's desperate campaign to "nail" a big-city underworld czar on income tax evasion charges. In a broad sense, this is indeed absorbing fare, and it has its sights set squarely on the mass of paying customers who take regular refuge in the screen's vicarious thrills. Examining the picture from closer perspective, however, one finds it to be no more than another cops-and-robbers melodrama whose camouflage of documentary realism is applied, at times, a little too obviously. It is, ironically, the film's occasional bending-over-backwards to convey raw realism that is responsible for its failing to emergs as something of a model for the genre.

In the role of the Treasury sleuth, Glenn Ford is seen to far better advantage than he has been since "Gilda," and much credit for this goes to the camera work of Burnett Guffey. In general the bold photography throws into stark relief much of the fearfulness, tension and melodramatic impact which certainly would have been lost had this story been served in ordinary fictional terms. For it is a straightforward tale wherein suspicion builds into evidence which, in turn, is ignited by sharp physical action and psychological sword-play to bring about the explosive indictment of "the big fellow," the film's anonymous arch-villain. A tenuous thread of romance is woven into the proceedings, with Nina Foch functioning pleasantly as Ford's patient, loving wife. Particularly good in supporting roles in this Robert Rossen production are James Whitmore, Barry Kelley, David Wolfe, Joan Lazer, Esther Minciotti, Angela Clarke and Anthony Caruso. Additional dialogue was contributed by Malvin Wald.

Running time, a fast 85 minutes. General audience classification. For April release.

UA Bidding

also visited downtown Los Angeles banks in connection with the negotiations now in progress at New York, where Sam Weisenthal is representing James and George Nasser. The Fabian and Nasser groups are said to be the only actual bidders at the present time.

Chaplin is declining to take an active part in negotiations, but is understood to be ready to give an immediate reply to any firm proposition.

Conferences Continue Here On UA, Nasser Deal

Sam Wiesenthal and United Artists' officials continued their conferences here yesterday on the prospective purchase of control of the company by James and George Nasser, whom Wiesenthal represents. Indications are that the Nassers, who have West Coast theatre interests, operate a studio and produce independently, prefer to meet the $5,400,000 asking price for the Mary Pickford-Charles Chaplin stock, rather than to acquire less than complete ownership of the company.

Says NBC Exceeding Hollywood Output

Production of kinescope recording motion picture film at National Broadcasting has far outstripped on annual average the total production of major motion picture studios, it was claimed here last night by Carleton D. Smith, NBC director of television operations. Smith spoke at a press demonstration of NBC's new kinescope recording equipment at Radio City.

According to Smith, total output of film by major film companies in 1948 was 369 feature length films—or about 550 hours of product. NBC Television is producing an average of almost 700 hours of product per year.

Quota Shocks Trade

next month. "It is a poor introduction, if the British producers come here seeking our cooperation," he commented.

J. Arthur Rank, president of the British Film Producers Association, will arrive in New York today on the Queen Elizabeth, preliminary to the Washington meeting on April 21. He is accompanied by G. I. Woodham-Smith, his executive aide, and will be followed soon by Sir Henry French, director-general of the BFPA, and Sir Alexander Korda. The BFPA lobbied tirelessly for a high quota, urging at one time that it be raised to 60 to 75 per cent, and continued its urgings, apparently successfully, after the British Films Council on March 15 recommended a reduction of the present 45 per cent quota to 33⅓ per cent.

New York home offices were not surprised that the Board of Trade had not followed the recommendation of its Council for a 33⅓ per cent quota, since the Council's recommendation was by the close vote of 10 to nine. The surprise was occasioned more by the expectancy that a more reasonable compromise was looked for, one which would put the quota at 35 per cent or, at the highest, 37½ per cent.

With hundreds of British exhibitors in default of the 45 per cent quota and with British producers cutting down production, the five per cent quota reduction is regarded by most executives here as completely unrealistic.

Theatre Building Down

TORONTO, March 22.—Theatre construction and remodeling declined sharply in Canada during 1948, according to the results of a construction industry survey completed here. Contracts for theatre work numbered 108 for the year, with a total value of $4,814,500, while the 1947 figure was $7,823,000.

cil to recommend a 30 per cent feature quota as realistic and felt that it would be difficult to comply with the 33⅓ per cent quota which the Council recommended on March 15.

Wilson's defiance of his Films Council's recommendation clearly follows the high-pressure lobbying of Sir Henry French, director-general of the Producers' Association, and the extreme Leftist Technicians' union. Wilson apparently preferred to fly in the face of his Films Council rather than confront the Left Wing opposition in the House of Commons.

Exhibitors commented that reduction of the quota from 45 per cent to 40 per cent, although trifling, demonstrates nevertheless that Wilson's present 45 per cent quota is wholly impracticable, and so demonstrated by his new order.

With prospects for future film production here deteriorating, the new quota is regarded as more than ever unworkable.

Exhibitors are anticipating an increase in quota defaults this year and foresee defaults by the thousand next year. They also expect another outbreak of the Anglo-American film warfare in consequence of the new quota.

A typical comment was that the prosperity of the British and American industries here has been cast to the lions of Wilson's obstinacy and face-saving.

Wilson is expected to present his new quota order to Parliament next week for approval.

wind up its second week tonight with $125,000, which is good business. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" still is giving the State big business, estimated at $40,000 for the second week. "Mother Is a Freshman" with Cab Calloway and Phil Baker on stage looks good for $70,000 in its second week at the Roxy.

"Impact" bowed in at the Globe with fair results, the first week's take being estimated at $15,000. An estimated $15,000 also is indicated for the modest first week of "Last Bandit" at the Mayfair. "South of St. Louis" with Desi Arnaz and a revue on stage probably will give the Strand about $25,000 in a mild final five days of a third week and will be replaced on Friday with "Kiss in the Dark," with Guy Lombardo's orchestra.

At the Paramount, "Alias Nick Beal" with the King Cole Trio and Elliot Lawrence's orchestra on stage did an estimated $60,000, which is fairly healthy, in a second week. Second week of "Criss Cross" probably will gross about $17,000, which is only fair at the Criterion; next at the house is "The Set-Up" which will open next Tuesday.

"Outpost in Morocco" will make its debut at the Capitol tomorrow, replacing "Three Godfathers," which, with Sammy Kaye and Harvey Stone on stage, should wind up its third week with a $39,000 gross, which is modest. "Hamlet," consistent as ever, is likely to complete a 25th week at the Park with $14,000. Steady, too, is "Red Shoes" at the Bijou where the 22nd week should also bring $14,000.

"Joan of Arc" at the Victoria should gross $14,800, which is good, in a 19th week. "Knock at Any Door" will give the Astor about $15,000 in a mediocre fourth week.

CHICAGO

The Loop is active this week, with some strong films, aided by clear, mild weather, chalking up heavy grosses in some spots. The "Whispering Smith"-Tony Martin combination is huge, while "The Undercover Man" is very good. "Mother is a Freshman," plus a stage show, is fine. "Hamlet" has ended a 17-week run. Estimated receipts for the week ending March 24:

BOMBA, THE JUNGLE BOY (Mono.) and THE BIG FIGHT (Mono.) — GARRICK (1,000) (50c-65c-98c). Gross: $10,000. (Average: $10,000)

ENCHANTMENT (Goldwyn-RKO Radio)—WOODS (1,080) (98c) 4th week. Gross: $15,000. (Average: $23,000)

FAMILY HONEYMOON (U-I)—PALACE (2,500) (50c-65c-98c) 5 days, 2nd week. Gross: $14,000. (Average: $20,000)

LEATHER GLOVES (Col.)—Gross: $14,000. (Average: $20,000)

HAMLET (Rank-U-I) — APOLLO (1,200) ($1.20-$1.50-$1.80-$2.40) 17th week. Gross: $6,500. (Average: $12,000)

IT AIN'T HAY (U-I) and GHOST CATCHERS (U-I) — GRAND (1,150) (50c-65c-98c). Gross: $8,000. (Average: $13,500)

MOTHER IS A FRESHMAN (20th-Fox)—ORIENTAL (3,400) (50c-65c-98c) On stage: Nellie Lutcher and Charlie Ventura. Gross: $53,000. (Average: $43,500)

NO MINOR VICES (M-G-M) — UNITED ARTISTS (1,700) (50c-65c-98c). Gross: $15,000. (Average: $17,000)

THE RED SHOES (Rank-E-L) — SELWYN (1,000) ($1.20-$1.50-$1.80-$2.40). 13th week. Gross: $12,000.

SOUTH OF ST. LOUIS (WB)—ROOSEVELT (1,500) (50c-65c-98c) 5 days, 2nd week. Gross: $14,000. (Average: $16,000)

THE UNDERCOVER MAN (Col)—STATE LAKE (2,700) (50c-65c-98c). Gross: $30,000. (Average: $25,000.

WHISPERING SMITH (Para.)—CHICAGO (3,900) (50c-65c-98c) On stage: Tony Martin. Gross: $65,000. (Average: $50,000)

CINCINNATI

"The Clay Pigeon," plus a stage show, is giving the RKO Albee an expected $30,000, while "Whispering Smith" is headed for an estimated $16,000. Otherwise, grosses are spotty. Weakend weather was mild. Estimated receipts for the week ending March 22:

BAD MEN OF TOMBSTONE (AA-MONO)—RKO GRAND (1,500) (50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c). Gross: $9,500. (Average: $8,000)

THE CLAY PIGEON (RKO Radio)—RKO ALBEE (3,300) (60c-95c) On stage: Frankie Carle and his orchestra and the Mills Brothers. Gross: $30,000. (Average: $25,000)

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS (20th-Fox)—RKO CAPITOL (2,000) (50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c) 8 days. Gross: $7,500. (Average for 7 days: $10,000)

FAMILY HONEYMOON (U-I)—KEITH'S (1,500) (50c-55c-60c-65c-75c) 2nd week. Gross: $10,500. (Average: $7,500)

MOTHER IS A FRESHMAN (20th-Fox)—RKO SHUBERT (2,150) (50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c) 2nd week, on a moveover from the Palace. Gross: $4,500. (Average: $5,000)

WAKE OF THE RED WITCH (Rep.)—RKO LYRIC (1,400) 50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c) 4 days, 3rd week, on a moveover from the Shubert, following an opening week at the Albee. THE DARK PAST (Col.)—RKO LYRIC (1,400) (50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c) 3 days, dualed with LOADED PISTOLS (Col.). Combined gross: $4,500. (Average for 7 days: $5,000)

WHISPERING SMITH (Para.) — RKO PALACE (2,700) (50c-55c-60c-65c-70c-75c) Gross: $16,000. (Average: $13,000)

TORONTO

Only two holdovers are in evidence at Toronto's first-line theatres at a time when concert halls and night clubs are advertising "Good seats available" and the sport palaces are showing empty spots. Reissued pictures continue common on double bills. Estimated receipts for the week ending March 24:

THE CHECKERED COAT (20th-Fox) and CHINA GIRL (20th-Fox) — BILTMORE (938) (15c-30c-36c-55c) 6 days. Gross: $4,200. (Average: $4,500)

COMMAND DECISION (M-G-M) — LOEW'S (2,074) (20c-36c-50c-66c-78c) 6 days, 3rd week. Gross: $13,200. (Average: $14,200)

THE COUNTESS OF MONTE CRISTO (U-I) and THE PLUNDERERS (Rep.)—DANFORTH (1,400) (20c-36c-50c-60c) 6 days. Gross: $5,200. (Average: $5,500)

THE COUNTESS OF MONTE CRISTO (U-I) and THE PLUNDERERS (Rep.)—HUMBER (1,200) (20c-36c-50c-60c) 6 days. Gross: $4,800. (Average: $5,200)

THE CREEPER (20th-Fox) and SHOCK (20th-Fox)—VICTORIA (1,240) (20c-36c-42c-60c) 6 days. Gross: $4,800. (Average: $5,200)

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS (20th-Fox)—IMPERIAL (3,343) (20c-36c-50c-66c-90c) 6 days. Gross: $16,600. (Average: $14,600)

I WONDER WHO'S KISSING HER NOW (20th-Fox) and THE HOMESTRETCH (20th-Fox)—FAIRLAWN (1,195) (20c-36c-50c-55c) 6 days. Gross: $4,200. (Average: $4,700)

JOHN LOVES MARY (WB) — SHEA'S (2,480) (20c-36c-50c-66c-90c) 6 days. Gross: $16,200. (Average: $14,700)

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE says: "Rates praise"

'The Red Pony' Rates Praise on All Counts

By JOHN HOBART

From John Steinbeck's story of a childhood spent on a Salinas valley ranch, "The Red Pony," Republic has fashioned a beautiful and sensitive picture in Technicolor, which had its world premiere yesterday at the Fox Theater.

Perhaps the highest praise one could bestow on "The Red Pony" is to say that if you were fond of the book, which seems almost inevitable, you will encounter no disappointments in the film. Mr. Steinbeck himself has written the screenplay (blending three of his four original stories into a fluid whole); Lewis Milestone has directed it with the finesse of a master; and Aaron Copland has embellished it with a brilliant but unobtrusive musical score (which Mr. Bourjaily of the music department comments upon in an adjoining column).

A TRAGEDY

"The Red Pony" deals with the first major emotional crisis in the life of a small boy. To adults, the fact that Tom Tiflin's pony, which was the pride of his young existence, dies from exposure in a rainstorm might seem trifling, since there are always other ponies one can buy. But to Tom the pony's death is a heart-breaking tragedy, and the film takes full cognizance of that tragedy and all its implications.

For it is a tragedy that involves not only Tom but everyone about him — his father, a cold, stern man who is not adjusted to ranch life and who has not won his son's love, but who nevertheless is needed in this crisis; his mother, who understands with a mother's wisdom that the pony's death is a necessary part of Tom's growing up; his garrulous old grandfather, who puts aside his dreams of the glorious dead past to be helpful; and the ranch hand, Billy Buck, who finds that he has lost caste in Tom's eyes and who makes a sacrificial attempt to set matters aright by promising Tom the colt of his prize-winning mare.

CHARACTER STUDY

The interrelationships of these characters are conveyed in "The Red Pony" with the greatest subtlety, and also with the greatest ease. The film's outstanding quality is its naturalness; the people in it are relaxed, unlike the usual characters encountered in a movie, and you feel that they have all been living on this Salinas ranch for a considerable time.

As Tom, red-headed 9-year-old Peter Miles is about as real a youngster as you've ever seen on the screen. He is an imaginative, polite little boy who keeps his emotions to himself (as most little boys are apt to do), and when the inevitable outbursts come, such as in the scene when the father returns home, or the terrifying battle with the buzzard, they are all the more meaningful and cruel.

FINE CAST

Robert Mitchum plays Billy Buck as an easygoing, reliable man who has been around horses for years, which is exactly as he should be played. Myrna Loy emphasizes the austerity and quiet strength of Tom's mother at the expense of more familiar qualities, but that is one of the interesting points of the picture — she is seen as a 9-year-old sees his mother. Shepperd Strudwick is equally good as the father and Louis Calhern gives a magnificent performance as the tired, talkative old grandfather.

"The Red Pony" should have been a good picture; it is heartening to report that it is.

Aaron Copland's 'Red Pony' Score Most Satisfying

From a musical standpoint, "The Red Pony" is extremely satisfying. Aaron Copland has provided a brilliant score that is thoroughly characteristic of the composer without being in any way out of character with the film.

Its structure is necessarily literary rather than musical, for it must follow the story; but Copland has managed to convey a sense of form, building the folksy themes and rhythms of the daybreak, daydream and pastoral sequences into a magnificent climax in Tom's fight with the buzzard.

An orchestral suite made from "The Red Pony" music was introduced with considerable acclaim by the Houston Symphony last October. —VANCE BOURJAILY

Rank Says U.K. Can Supply Its Quota Need

Sees Anglo-U.S. Meeting Ironing Out Problems

Asserting that he was "quite happy" with the new 40 per cent quota, J. Arthur Rank, on his arrival here yesterday on the S.S. Queen Elizabeth, expressed confidence that the British industry can supply the needed product.

J. Arthur Rank

Rank declined to go into details of the agenda of the forthcoming meetings in Washington of the Anglo-American Film Advisory Council, but said that "we will sit around the table and discuss everything connected with

Video Labor War to NLRB

Direct action by the National Labor Relations Board in Washington will be required to prevent the current television jurisdictional bout between the IATSE and the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians from exploding into a strike which could interrupt or seriously interfere with National Broadcasting and telecasting after April 30, it appeared here yesterday.

600 Mayors Demand End of 20% US Tax

WASHINGTON, March 23.—As expected, the 1949 annual U. S. Conference of Mayors today unanimously adopted a resolution calling on Congress to repeal the Federal admission tax, "thus leaving this source of revenue to local governments."

The 1949 conference, which drew

Senate Action on British Film Trade Barriers Asked

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Senator William Knowland, California Republican, today called for a thorough investigation of Anglo-American film difficulties and indicated that he is considering offering amendments to the ECA and Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act to insure non-discriminatory treatment of American films by the British.

It was disclosed in London that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will be prepared to discuss Anglo-American film issues on his arrival in the United States next week. Bevin will be in Washington to sign the North Atlantic pact April 4 and will go to New York for the United Nations General Assembly meetings afterward, but will arrange meetings for dis-

Johnston's Booking Plan Hit By Wilson

LONDON, March 23.—A gratuitous but vague threat against the unit film booking plan devised by Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America president, for British theatres, was voiced by Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, at a special luncheon of the Producers' Association here today.

Wilson described the unit booking plan as "a restrictive practice," which could suitably come within the purview of Lord Portal's committee inquiring into film industry operations

Columbia's 26-Week Net Is $148,000

Columbia Pictures yesterday reported a net profit of $171,000 for the 13 weeks ended Dec. 25, 1948, against $355,000 for the corresponding period in 1947, and profit for the 26 weeks ended Dec. 25, 1948, amounted to $148,000, the loss for the 13 weeks ended Sept. 25, 1948, having amounted to $23,000. Columbia had a profit of $725,000 for the same 1947 period.

Most Sections of British Trade Stunned By Quota

60% of RKO Proxies Okay Plan to Date

Sixty per cent of RKO stockholder proxies favoring the plan for reorganizing the company have been filed with the management, it is understood. Opposition is described as being very minor. The proxies are to be voted at the special meeting of stockholders in Dover, Del., on Monday. Approval of the plan requires a two-thirds vote of shareholders, and the company has started a drive to obtain the necessary additional six and two-thirds per cent for approval.

By PETER BURNUP

LONDON, March 23.—Although greeted with relieved hosannas from producers and with smug triumph by the left-wing Technicians union, whose admitted aim is the nationalization of the whole film industry, Harold Wilson's unexpected obstinacy in clinging to a high 40 per cent quota stunned all responsible sections of the industry here.

Their chief regret is that a golden opportunity to achieve better understanding between their own and the American film industry has been frittered away.

Tom O'Brien, head of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employes, said of the new quota: "It is a third-rate palliative which

Mullin Backs 20th's Bid for Better Terms

Thinks Other Companies Should Follow Suit

BOSTON, March 23.—Twentieth Century-Fox's campaign to persuade U. S. exhibitors that a "more equitable" share of industry profits should fall to distribution was hailed here today by Martin Mullin, head of New England Theatres Co., with expressions of hope that the other distribution companies will take similar steps.

Mullin delivered his comments in his role as toastmaster of an exhibitor luncheon at the Copley Plaza Hotel,

TOA-SMPE Tieup Pends

Theatre Owners of America's determination to establish itself firmly in television activity was underscored yesterday with the disclosure by TOA executive director Gael Sullivan that the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which is in close touch with theatre video research, has invited TOA to become an SMPE sustaining member.

The invitation will be taken up at the TOA executive committee meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor here today, and acceptance is virtually certain. Only about 10 individual TOA members now have membership in SMPE.

Theatre television, Sullivan reported yesterday, will be the principal sub-

Arkansas ITO Sets Meeting May 18-19

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Theatre Owners of America, reported here yesterday that the Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas, a TOA affiliate, will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Marion, Little Rock, on May 18 and 19.

Ted R. Gamble, chairman of the TOA board; Arthur H. Lockwood, president; Herman M. Levy, general counsel, and Sullivan have been invited to attend the meeting. Top executives of distributor company will also be invited.

Colorado Convention

An exceptionally heavy agenda has been set.

Cockrill, Mayor Quigg Newton and Governor Leo Knous will welcome the delegates, to be followed by the following first-day speakers: Morris Lowenstein, Oklahoma; Bob Livingston, Nebraska; Miles Hurley, New Mexico, and Ted Gamble, board chairman of the Theatre Owners of America, and Gael Sullivan, its executive director, both from New York.

Among the first day's subjects will be taxation, legislation, arbitration, public service films, television and consent decrees. Other subjects will include: "What's Ahead for the Exhibitor," "Organize to Survive," "What Is Happening in New Mexico" and "The Need of Organization."

On the second day there will be an election of officers, resolutions outlining the intentions of the organization for the coming year, and appointment of committees to carry out those intentions.

At the banquet that evening, addresses will be given by O'Donnell and Col. Bill McCraw, both speaking as executives of International Variety.

90 More Days for Denver Dissolution

New York Federal Court yesterday granted the application of Loew's and RKO for an additional 90 days in which to dissolve their joint interests in the Orpheum Theatre, Denver. The deadline originally had been set for March 31.

Tent 19 Honors Weems

BALTIMORE, March 23.—Local Tent No. 19, Variety Club, tonight honored its ex-chief barker, Nick Weems, at a testimonial dinner-dance at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel. Chairman of the committee in charge was Morris Oletski.

New Narration Process

With a new background process substituting spoken English narration for the earlier visual titles, the French film "Jenny Lamour" will have a second Broadway premiere here tomorrow. The American sponsor is Vog Film.

DuMont Will Open SMPE Convention

Dr. Allen B. DuMont, head of the DuMont Laboratories, will be the principal speaker at a luncheon opening the 65th semi-annual convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at the Hotel Statler, New York, on April 4.

A total of 37 technical papers, in addition to two forums, lectures and social events, are scheduled for the 10 sessions, running through April 8.

Highlights of the opening day include a forum on television and motion pictures, led by authorities on different phases of the growing relationship of these arts, in the afternoon, and a demonstration of the latest equipment for direct projection of theatre-size television images, in the evening. Tuesday morning and afternoon sessions will also be devoted to television, with the evening open.

Symposia on high-speed photography, including a report on a camera employing refocused revolving beams to obtain half-a-million stationary images per second, will occupy Wednesday morning and afternoon sessions, while Wednesday evening will be given over to the social highlight of the convention—the Society's 65th semi-annual banquet.

Thursday morning will be open, the afternoon session will feature an open forum on 16mm. sound recording and reproducing characteristics.

Scheduled for the Friday morning session are papers on camera objectives and lenses and sound recording, including magnetic recording for motion pictures. The agenda for the final session on Friday afternoon includes papers on film processing, theatre sound and projection, and the selection of theatre sites.

Screen Guild Gets New Composers, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, March 23.—Screen Guild has assumed control of Composers, Inc., recently-formed by Albert and Katherine Glasser, to publish and arrange for the distribution of songs written by classical musicians and presented to the public by way of the screen.

Robert L. Lippert acted for Screen Guild, retaining the directorship of Glasser on a non-exclusive contract basis so that the latter can continue his activities as an independent composer-conductor.

Republic in Mexico Deal

MEXICO CITY, March 23.—Republic now has a place in Mexican exhibition after several years of booking only an occasional picture. The company has contracted with the Cadena de Oro (Golden Chain), one of the largest circuits here, of three first-run theatres, four second-runs and 10 subsequent runs, for the exhibition of its pictures for a solid year, starting soon with "Wake of the Red Witch," Carl Ponedel, Republic manager, announced here. The Golden Chain is owned and operated by the Emilio Azcarraga interests, top figures in Mexican exhibition.

Tonight's the Night

Hollywood, March 23.—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will announce its annual awards for film production and performance achievements tomorrow evening at the Academy's 950-seat theatre here, with Academy president Jean Hersholt presiding. The ceremonies will be broadcast.

ject of discussion today. Mitchell Wolfson, chairman of TOA's television committee, will report on theatre video prospects, and the meeting is expected to take definite action on a number of proposals contained in the report. Fifteen items, in addition to television, are on the meeting agenda, according to Sullivan who expects the session to run well into tonight.

Si H. Fabian, executive committee chairman, will preside. In addition to Sullivan and Wolfson, the following are expected to attend: Ted R. Gamble, Robert W. Coyne, A. Julian Brylawski, Leonard H. Goldenson, Lewen Pizor, Fred Wehrenberg, Arthur H. Lockwood (TOA president), Martin J. Mullin and other organization executives.

3-Theatre Premiere For 'Ma & Pa Kettle'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 23.—World premiere for Universal-International's "Ma and Pa Kettle" will be held at the Tower, Uptown and Fairway theatres here tomorrow with a Hollywood contingent, headed by producer Leonard Goldstein and including Marjorie Main, Percy Kilbride, Meg Randall and Richard Long, on hand to aid the promotion.

With 50 openings scheduled in the territory for the coming week, the group will leave here Friday for Topeka, Wichita and St. Louis, with radio broadcasts, personal appearances and visits to the governor and legislature at Topeka highlighting an intensive campaign.

Tied in with the opening is the World Championship Square Dance contest held here tonight at the Municipal Auditorium arena, with grand prizes awarded by U-I.

Director Cites 'Manon'

The French film industry is making some top productions, Eric Von Stroheim, director and actor, asserted here yesterday on his arrival on the SS Queen Elizabeth. He especially cited the new French film, "Manon," to be released in this country through Vog Films. Von Stroheim said, however, that the French industry is hit by the "lack of money and high costs."

Israel Film Premiere

American premiere of "Tomorrow's a Wonderful Day," first feature filmed in Israel, will be held on April 9 at the Stanley Theatre here, according to Jewish Film Distributors.

cussion of film problems during his American visit.

At the same time, Lord Strabolgi, Labor Party leader in the House of Lords, issued a fervent plea here for an amicable settlement of the British-American film dispute. Strabolgi, who claimed he was here on private business but said that he "would be happy to see Mr. Johnston any time," declared that he thought the British quota should be lowered still further.

Lord Strabolgi suggested that one compromise might be to allow American companies to take more money out of Britain or be allowed to invest in other British industries and take out the interest on those investments. He said he did not think that British films had been given a fair showing here, and was disappointed in the grosses of all British films here except "Red Shoes" and "Hamlet."

Protests Raising Barriers

Knowland declared that it was "utterly inconsistent at one time to talk of breaking down barriers and at the same time the British government raises them higher, as was done last year. Then, on the eve of our consideration of ECA legislation, they make this alleged concession of five per cent in a quota which they should not have at all if they are truly interested in the free, unrestricted trade set-up we are seeking."

The British government is giving only lip-service to the theory of reciprocity, Knowland told the Senate. He pointed out that the British film producers have never been able to provide films for more than 20 per cent of the screen time in Britain, and declared that the reduction of the quota from 45 per cent to 40 per cent is "no concession whatsoever."

Demands Thorough Study

"I want to serve notice on the State Department and on the Senate Foreign Relations and Finance committees that I am going to insist on a thorough study of the history of discrimination against our film companies," the California Republican said. He added that he would request the Department to make representations to the British government "to live up to the spirit and the letter of reciprocity legislation.

Lord Strabolgi, who leaves here Saturday, made his observations at a press conference at the Mayflower Hotel. He said he thought that the dispute between the British government and the British motion picture industry, and between the government and the American industry, should never have been allowed to develop. The film industries of the two countries are complementary, he declared, and "there is no reason why we should not reach a settlement."

at which 20th-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman and Andy W. Smith, Jr., who are spearheading the profit campaign, were honor guests. According to one authority, some $5,000,000 worth of exhibition business was represented at the affair.

Smith, company distribution chief, told the gathering that 20th-Fox is out to increase its profit by 25 per cent. That increase, he said, is necessary notwithstanding the fact that the company has been able to reduce distribution costs by $2,000,000 since 1947.

Asks Changed Attitude

"Exhibitors," Lichtman admonished in his address, "will have to change their mental attitude that it is their God-given right to show a profit and the devil take the distributor."

Restating before the gathering much of what he told the trade press on Monday before he and Smith set out to "sell" their ideas to the nation's exhibitors personally, Lichtman said even better product will be coming from Hollywood, but meanwhile all branches of the industry must unite against criticism of it, and "horse trading and wrangling" between exhibitor and distributor must stop.

Smith spread before the exhibitor luncheon an array of figures to support the bid for a "fairer" distribution profit. In 1947, he said, the average cost for one picture in the can was $2,330,000, but in 1949 the cost is down to $1,751,000. However, he explained, add to the current cost 70 per cent for distribution and advertising on black-and-white features, and 75 to 80 per cent on Technicolor prints, and distribution's cost burden is exactly where it was in 1947, when distribution and advertising expenses were below what they are now notwithstanding economies which have been adopted meanwhile.

Einfeld, Lockwood Speak

Other speakers at today's luncheon were 20th-Fox advertising-publicity vice-president Charles Einfeld, Theatre Owners of America president Arthur H. Lockwood, Independent Exhibitors of New England president Daniel J. Murphy, American Theatres president Sam Pinanski.

Attending from the 20th-Fox home office were executives Sam Shain, Ray Moon, Morris Caplan and Lem Jones. Representing the company's Boston exchange were Ed Callahan, Jim Connolly, John Felony and Sam Berg.

Lichtman and Smith will be in New Haven tomorrow when they are scheduled to meet local exhibition leaders at a luncheon in the Taft Hotel.

Exhibitors in Attendance

Exhibitors invited to the luncheon meeting follow:

Universal's board of directors, of which J. Arthur Rank is a member, will meet here today to elect officers and receive from Rank a first-hand account of film industry conditions in Britain. Rank arrived here yesterday aboard the S. S. Queen Elizabeth.

Officers up for re-election today are company president Nate J. Blumberg, board chairman J. Cheever Cowdin (abroad at present), vice-presidents Charles D. Prutzman, John J. O'Connor, Matthew Fox, William A. Scully, Joseph Seidelman and Edward Muhl, treasurer Samuel Machnovitch, and secretary Adolph Schimel.

British Quota

threatens to reduce British film production for all time to a mediocre, second feature industry."

Sir Alexander King, head of the Exhibitors Association, protested that British exhibitors, who had sought a lower quota, had been treated with contempt and that Board of Trade president Wilson's own Films Council, which had recommended a 33⅓ per cent quota, had been ignored by Wilson in his self-sufficiency.

The Exhibitors Association, again producing figures showing recent British film grosses to be generally less than box-office averages, forecast that the industry's present difficulties will become even more pronounced in another six months due to scarcity of production financing and the cumulative losses on films now being offered.

CEA officers roundly assert that disaster will overcome the whole industry before the year's end if present conditions persist.

They again urged large-scale American production here, terming it the only assurance which British exhibitors could have of obtaining a sufficient supply of worthwhile pictures.

"Americans appear to be the only people with experience, money and worldwide distribution facilities remaining to whom we can look for 12 to 15 first-class pictures annually," King said.

The new quota is understood to be due for discussion in the House of Commons next week, at which time Wilson's order undoubtedly will be confirmed.

Wilson is said to be convinced that the financial advances to be made by his $20,000,000 Film Finance Corp. will succeed in stimulating independent production sufficiently to meet the quota. Also, when reports are received from the Portal and Gater committees, now sitting, Wilson will be prepared to take the industry's problems to the Cabinet level, if necessary, there to seek an additional $20,000,000 to add to his Finance company's resources.

'Break-In' Site Changed

The Tower Theatre, Philadelphia, has replaced theatres in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie as a "break-in" house for Paramount stage shows.

Rank Says

the industry." "Through cooperation and good-will, I think we can iron out our problems," he commented.

Asked if he favored enlarging the Anglo-U. S. council to include in its membership exhibitor representatives, he said that very likely it would be discussed at the meetings, "and if there is any advantage, it no doubt will be arranged for labor, exhibition and everyone in the industry to attend."

Rank discounted reports of a postponement of the meetings which are slated for April 21-22. He disclosed that Sir Henry French, second British member of the council, will arrive here April 18, and Sir Alexander Korda, third member, about the same time. Eric Johnston, Nicholas Schenck and Barney Balaban are the American members of the Council.

Schedules 40 Features

Rank revealed that his production schedule calls for 40 features for this quota year ending Oct. 1, and that the number would be slightly under that for the following year.

Questioned why British producers could not meet the 45 per cent quota, Rank countered that "we have met the quota in all our 600 theatres." Pressed for further comment on exhibitor complaints about British product, he remarked that "exhibitors always like the greatest number of pictures possible." He said that in the long run the quota will prove more profitable for the British industry.

Present grosses in England are down 10 to 15 per cent from the 1946 peak year, Rank observed. Contrasting box-office returns of American and British product, Rank said that in the last six months of 1948 his 600 theatres played good, medium and poor British films and their average gross was slightly above the best American films shown.

Sees No Nationalization

Rank asserted that there was no fear of nationalization of the British film industry. He also said that divorcement of exhibition from production "was not even a question" now. Turning to television, he revealed that a government committee shortly will look into theatre television.

Rank said he was satisfied with his distribution here "which is progressing all the time." He said he couldn't establish his own distribution company here because of the "lack of dollars." Asked about the possibility of setting up a distribution organization in the future, he said "that bridge can be crossed when we come to it." Citing distribution progress, he pointed out that in 1945 only five of his films were distributed here, in 1946 it went up to 11, in 1947 it reached 20, and in 1948 it rose to 24.

Decide Video's Fate In Canada April 7

OTTAWA, March 23.—One of the first tangible moves to be taken by the Canadian government to give a green light to television in the Dominion came today when the government's Canadian Broadcasting Corp. decided to reconsider applications for telecast licenses at a meeting of its board of governors here on April 7-9. Applications were filed last November, but were not acted upon.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters has issued a five-point policy statement, calling for an end to Canadian government interference in programming as the price for the association's co-operation with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in the development of television in Canada.

The statement gave these conditions: Powers of regulation must be placed in the hands of an independent group; the term for which television licenses are granted must be sufficiently long to allow the operating company time to recoup its initial capital investment; private operators must be free from unfair or subsidized competition; no system of television can render adequate service to the Canadian public unless it is permitted free access to program material from every possible source.

Johnston's Plan

and, more importantly, could be given the attention of the government's newly appointed and widely ranging monopoly commission, which is probing all British industries.

Johnston's booking plan, which requires theatres to take a complete American program in order to prevent quality American films from being booked as supporting features for a British quota film, is generally regarded here as having proved to be a shrewd blow to the efficacy of the high quota, particularly the 25 per cent quota for a supporting program.

Video Cuts CBS '48 Net to $5-Million

Consolidated net income of Columbia Broadcasting for 1948 amounted to $5,041,682, compared with $5,920,104 in 1947. Total fixed assets, less accumulated depreciation reserves, rose from $12,174,657 on Jan. 3, 1948, to $13,490,011 on Jan. 1, 1949. Expenditures for fixed assets in 1948 totaled approximately $2,550,000, including substantial amounts for new television studio construction and associated technical equipment.

Net income from standard broadcasting operations in 1948 was greater than in 1947, but this gain was more than offset by a substantial increase in costs of expanded television activities and by reduced earnings of Columbia Records, Inc., CBS said.

Video 'Freeze' May Come Off in June

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Federal Communications Commission chairman Wayne Coy said here today that any future allocation plan adopted by the Commission would keep the present 12 television channels.

Coy said he thought the revised allocation plan would be completed in May or June, and implied that the lifting of the television "freeze" would be about the same time.

Ascap Video Pact

ized the extension at a meeting here yesterday and this was followed by another session with representatives of the television interests where negotiations on the new contract were continued.

Negotiations have been on for two months and the additional 30 days were needed because "we are dealing with a new industry," according to one of the negotiators here. He explained that there are no precedents for music license arragements in television, thus it is difficult to reach terms which would be agreeable to both sides.

Representatives of Ascap and the telecasters will resume meetings here on Monday.

between themselves, the rival unions have again laid their cases before NLRB hearing officer Chester Migden here. Migden conducted hearings on the issue almost every day last week, and will resume them this morning when Ferdinand Wankel, NBC's assistant director of television engineering, will take the stand to testify on the various phases of his company's video operations. It is expected that "IA" international president Richard F. Walsh and NABET president John R. McDonnell will be called to testify here, before Migden submits a final report to the board in Washington.

On March 3, Walsh warned that the jurisdictional fight could take a harmful turn for telecasters if it were not settled by April 30, the expiration date of NABET's contracts with the companies.

some 600 mayors and city officials from all over the U. S., ended today.

Another resolution called for the creation of a joint Congressional tax commission to study over-lapping Federal, state and local taxes and to try and allocate revenue sources for each level of government. The commission would consist of Senators, Representatives, officials of the interested Federal agencies, and representatives of state and local government organizations.

Would Replace Excise Taxes With Excess Profits Levy

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Rep. Aime J. Forand, R. I., sponsor of a bill to cut admission and other excise taxes back to pre-war levels, and a top Truman Democrat on the House Ways and Means committee, indicated in a radio address tonight that he would favor excise tax cuts if they were coupled with an excess profits tax to make up the loss in revenue.

Forand attacked the Republican excise tax policy, declaring that the G.O.P. made many promises but never carried through on cutting during its two-year control of the 80th Congress.

Canada on a Tax-cut Rampage; Some Restrictions Lifted

OTTAWA, March 23.—The Canadian Government today announced sweeping reductions in its income taxes for the lower and middle income groups, and the relaxation of import controls on scores of articles including 8 mm. and 16 mm. motion picture equipment.

SAENGER THEATER—"The Red Pony," a Republic picture, produced and directed by Lewis Milestone, featuring Louis Calhern, Shepperd Strudwick, Peter Miles, Myrna Loy and Robert Mitchum.

A little boy's devotion to his first pony and a sympathetic ranch hand's understanding form the basis for John Steinbeck's story, "The Red Pony." Technicolor filming brings out the beauty of the Western landscape.

The story is a simple portrayal of ranch life in the homesteading days. Peter Miles who plays the part of the boy is a handsome and engaging youngster. A newcomer to the movies, he plays the role in an easy, natural manner.

As the hired man Robert Mitchum turns in a convincing performance. Cast in a sympathetic part, Mitchum is much better than in the roles he usually portrays.

Myrna Loy is entirely capable as the child's mother although the vivacious actress loses some of her charm in the more serious roles.

The story is saved from becoming tedious by Louis Calhern's performance as the Indian fighting grandfather.

The film is one which may be enjoyed by children as well as grownups. —F. J.

Senator Takes Case Against UK to Acheson

Opposition Is Growing Against Film Barriers

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Sentiment is growing in the Senate to put pressure on the State Department to take steps against British restrictions on American films.

Senator William Knowland, California Republican, who yesterday attacked the British quota on the Senate floor, today wrote to Secretary of State Dean Acheson calling on him to reveal what steps, if any, the State Department has taken to break down such restrictive measures by the Brit-

TOA Urges Video Trailer Production

All distributors and National Screen will be urged by Theatre Owners of America to make trailers available for telecasting, Arthur H. Lockwood, TOA president, reported yesterday following the close of the TOA's executive committee meeting in the Hotel Astor here. Describing television trailers as "a very potent advertising device for theatres," Lockwood said the TOA executive group, acting on the

By RED KANN

IT didn't take long for things to start seething. On Monday, Al Lichtman officially got under way at 20th-Fox, held a press interview, outlined explorations looking toward a redivision of the box-office dollar weighted in his direction.

The three ideas already reported were approaches. They were ideas, at most, and not plans. The plan, or plans, will come after discussions, plus persuasions, with lots of exhibitors in lots of cities. But the ITOA of New York yesterday refused to wait. It issued a blistering attack on Fox's sales policies, threw down the gauntlet of an open forum, indicated its confidence in disproving any need for disgorging more of the coveted box-office dollar and, in general, proclaimed that already it had been "robbed."

Of course, this is no more, no less than was to be expected. Anytime price figures in, the disagreement between buyer and seller assumes its traditional armor. Fox will be wanting more for its product, and says so, and exhibitors won't be wanting to pay it, and are beginning to say so.

The position of each protagonist is woefully simple to understand. By its very nature and the history of the business, however, the situation suggests a whale of a lot of trading with, perhaps, no clear-cut victory for either side.

Teeth gnash and tempers fray in this explosive business. But there's a lot of compromise in it, too.

FISTS-UP QUOTATION: "Exhibitors," stated Lichtman in Boston, "will have to change their mental attitude that it is their God-given right to show a profit and the devil take the distributor."

The five producing-distributing-exhibiting companies have been singularly shy about divulging official information on returns from their theatre operations. It took the highly interesting Paramount proxy statement to turn up data not hitherto exposed to public view. Paramount Pictures, Inc. [which is to say the company operating before the decree was signed] and its consolidated subsidiary corporation grossed the following in theatre admissions and receipts for the fiscal years note:

December 29, 1945..$87,492,600
January 4, 1947....108,172,832
January 3, 1948....108,791,746
October 2, 1948
(9 months) 76,418,589

It takes an avalanche of two-bit and four-bit coins to stack these many millions.

Post-decree statements issued variously by Paramount executives are worth noting. Adolph Zukor, for instance: "The new [Paramount Picture] company will be in a position to book films in the theatres most suitable for the exhibition of particular pictures and at the same time sell on the best possible terms. I am sure that our pictures stand to gain by this arrangement. . . ."

Reads like a forthright argument for divorcement from the chairman of the board of a company that resisted ten hotly contested years.

QUOTATION OF THE WEEK: "The Paramount decree indicates that the largest firm in the business believes divorcement can work," one top Justice Department official said [in MOTION PICTURE DAILY]. "We will probably call that to the Federal Court's attention as an argument against the arguments of the remaining defendants."

Probably?

Joe Skeptic asks:

"If producers can't own theatres, why can exhibitors own a producing company?"

Actually, he's ahead of himself, but he's thinking early of the possibility that Si Fabian, Ted Gamble, et al, may end up owning United Artists.

Incidentally, if that deal ever comes off look for Ted to head the works.

Life Magazine, notoriously inaccurate in motion picture matters, last week reached a new high in miscues, said:

"'Duel in the Sun' has made $8.5 million."

Michigan Allied to Fight Percentages

Detroit, March 24.—Charles Snyder, executive secretary of Michigan Allied, is urging exhibitors to refuse to play percentage pictures, in support of a campaign to eliminate that practice.

"There is enough good product from those companies which agreed to go along that, when the boys who demand percentage come into your office, they should be given the greatest letting alone in history," Snyder states in a bulletin to exhibitors.

UK-US Production Urged by Bernstein

Expressing favor of Anglo-American production, Sidney Bernstein, British producer and exhibitor, asserted here yesterday that it could provide one of the solutions to the many trade problems facing the industries of both countries.

Bernstein, who is president of Transatlantic Pictures, which distributes here through Warner Brothers, and Granada Theatres, a circuit of 50 British theatres, declared that both nations are indivisible from a film point of view. He urged closer production coordination, asserting that "there is enough profit for both industries."

Without going into the new 40 per cent quota extensively, Bernstein ventured the opinion that it was "high" and expressed the hope that U.K. "producers deliver films in sufficiently good quality not to make the public stay away from British pictures."

Bernstein said that grosses in his theatres are up. He said that generally good British films gross better than good American films, observing that films in the country of their origin always earn more money than films of equal merit from a foreign country.

Bernstein has just returned here from the Coast where he and Alfred Hitchcock consulted with Jack L. Warner on final sequences of "Under Capricorn" which were completed on the W. B. Burbank lot. Bernstein shortly will leave for Quebec to film sequences of "I Confess," his next film.

ish government against the American industry."

Knowland also revealed that he had discussed the matter with several other Senators and that a follow-up letter with the signatures of these Senators might go to Acheson very soon. The California Republican also said that he is continuing to try to work out some amendment to either the pending ECA bill or the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act to prevent British discrimination against American films. He said that this is proving difficult to work out, and it might not be ready by the time these bills come up for voting. In that event, he said, he would try to put such an amendment on to a later bill carrying appropriations for the ECA.

MPAA Officials Pleased

Meanwhile, MPAA officials, openly pleased at the Senate developments, said they knew of no plans for MPAA president Eric Johnston to confer with British Foreign Secretary Bevin when the latter comes here next week, and doubt that Bevin will do much negotiating on films, despite London press dispatches that he would.

Knowland refused to say what Senators he had spoken to on the film matter, but other sources mentioned Senators Smith of New Jersey, Capehart of Indiana, and Brewster of Maine as being among those most likely to sound off on the matter.

Knowland's letter to Acheson said that "at a time when we are being called on to pass a new ECA Act and a new Reciprocal Trade Agreements Bill, both of which are presumed to contribute to the opening up of the channels of trade, it seems to be unwise and inconsistent for the British government to establish or maintain economic 'Iron Curtains' of her own."

the proposed reorganization are 304 stockholders, representing 40,249 shares, Balaban reports.

Thus, proportionately, the required two-thirds affirmative vote is substantially exceeded so far. It is understood that Paramount has a total of slightly more than 6,000,000 shares outstanding.

The proxies for the special meeting of stockholders here on April 12 to ratify the reorganization "are coming in very satisfactorily," Balaban said. He again urged holders to return proxies which are still out.

Paramount's report on 1948 operations will be mailed late next month, Balaban reported.

FC's Salesmen Vote Colosseum Affiliation

MILWAUKEE, March 24.—Film Classics has become the 12th distributing company whose salesmen will bargain collectively under the banner of the Colosseum of Motion Picture Salesmen of America, it was reported here today by David Beznor, Colosseum attorney. Salesmen of the 11 other distributors won last year through the Colosseum their first contracts with the companies, with wage increases and various benefits included.

In a National Labor Relations Board election Film Classics salesmen voted 44 to one in favor of the Colosseum, Beznor said.

SIMPP Meets Today on UK Film Problems

Eastern distribution committee of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, and Ellis G. Arnall, SIMPP president, will meet here today on all ramifications of the Anglo-American film trade relationship with formulation of a plan for new action seen as a possible result of the session.

Participants will include James A. Mulvey, Samuel Goldwyn Productions; Gradwell Sears, United Artists; William Levy, Walt Disney Prod.; Harry Kosiner, Edward Small Prod.; Charles R. Rogers, Realart, and a David O. Selznick representative.

It is understood that the group has in mind to discuss, among other subjects, J. Arthur Rank's visit here and the April 21-22 meeting of the Anglo-American Film Advisory Council; British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's plan to come here next week with some consideration of film trade on his agenda; and Sen. William Knowland's recommendation of an investigation of Britain's trade barriers.

SIMPP is said to regard as especially encouraging Sen. Knowland's remarks on Wednesday in the Senate, where he indicated that he is considering proposal of amendments to the Economic Cooperation Administration and the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which would insure non-discriminatory treatment of American films by the British.

Government support of the U. S. industry in international dealings long since has been the aim of SIMPP.

To what extent the society will concern itself with the Film Council conference in Washington probably will be determined at today's meeting.

Telephone Co. Seeks 20 Radio Relay Sites

WASHINGTON, March 24. — The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has applied for construction permits for 20 experimental microwave radio stations between Pittsburgh and Chicago, the Federal Communications Commission announced.

A. T. and T. stated that the stations would be part of its proposed $12,000,000 radio relay system which would eventually transmit television and other programs from New York to Chicago. The 20 stations applied for are in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

No Film Theatres in 10 Years: Fleischer

Detroit, March 24.—"The revolution in motion pictures is on now," says Max Fleischer of New York, pioneer cartoon producer, now visiting here.

"The future of motion pictures is in television," he said, predicting that in "10 or 15 years there will be video theatres instead of movie houses. If they don't realize this in Hollywood, it's because they would rather not."

Taxes Reflect Better Box-Office Business

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The year got off to a good start at the box-office, according to tax collection figures released here today by the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue.

General admission tax collections in February, reflecting January business, totaled $26,907,384, compared with $25,410,738 in February, 1948. Moreover, February collections this year were up over January, whereas in past years collections dropped sharply from January to February. The January, 1949, collections, reflecting December, 1948 business, amounted to $25,766,798.

Rank and Universal Must Produce Books

The American and British J. Arthur Rank organizations, Universal-International, United World Films and General Film Distributors, Ltd., all defendants in U. S. District Court here in the $1,000,000 breach-of-contract action filed by Empire-Universal Films of Canada, and United World Pictures of Canada, have been ordered by Federal Judge Edward A. The suit, instituted here, alleges that the defendants failed to fulfill a nine-year distribution contract involving the release in Canada of Rank product which is released in the U. S.

receipts to distributors by buying on flat rentals." At the roundtable conference Smith and Lichtman outlined the new 20th-Fox plan to increase the company's profit by 25 per cent, and said the home office statement exhibitors at the meeting "showed sympathetic recognition of the problem and felt all exhibitors around the country should get together on it."

Smith and Lichtman were said to have urged an industry public relations program on a local level. They explained to the New Haven exhibitors that they will continue their talks to theatre operators around the country, "and believe an understanding between 20th-Fox and exhibitors will result," the company said.

Sam Shain, Lem Jones and Ray Moon of the 20th-Fox home office accompanied Smith and Lichtman to New Haven. Similar meetings are scheduled next week in Philadelphia and Washington.

Exhibitors invited to the meeting included I. J. Hoffman, Max Hoffman, Larry Germaine, Harry F. Shaw, Dr. J. B. Fishman, Maurice J. Bailey, George Wilkinson, Jr., Albert Pickus, Samuel Weiss, Morton Katz, Ralph Pasho, Philip Sherman.

steps. The statements which Mullin denies were contained in a story transmitted to the 20th-Fox home office publicity department from Boston on Wednesday and distributed by the company in New York.

Mullin said that he had been asked to introduce 20th-Fox executives at a luncheon given by the company for Boston area exhibitors and had no previous knowledge of what they would say. He denied that he had commented in any way on the company's program other than to endorse the practice of distribution executives discussing mutual problems with exhibitors.

The ITOA meeting simultaneously adopted a resolution condemning what it described as "the unconscionable, arbitrary and unfair pricing of film" by 20th-Fox and challenged the company executives to prove at the open forum that its film pricing policy "is necessary to prevent the producing and distributing of 20th Century-Fox from taking a loss."

Commenting on the resolution and 20th-Fox's current efforts to obtain increased distribution revenue, Harry Brandt, ITOA president, said: "This is a rule or ruin policy which Lichtman is trying to enforce with brass knuckles. If we eliminate horse-trading there will be no bargaining in the motion picture industry. There will only be a dictatorship. This action will serve to destroy all the good will that Spyros Skouras has endeavored to build up. Lichtman sold Skouras a bill of goods here but he will never be able to sell it to the grass roots of exhibition."

Some Films Hit by Pope, U. S. Praised

Films which "offend modesty and violate moral law" were severely criticized by Pope Pius Wednesday, according to reports reaching here. Speaking at his annual audience with the pastors and Lenten preachers of Rome, he said that even in films considered morally without reproach, "men live and die as though there were no God, nor redemption, nor Church. When one thinks of the nauseating crudeness and immodesty shown in newspapers, in magazines, or on the screen in theatres, and the inconceivable aberration of parents who go with their children to amuse themselves with such horrors, one blushes with shame," the Pontiff said.

His Holiness indicated, however, that his censure did not apply to the film industry in the United States where "Catholics are working methodically and successfully to bring about a moral and dignified type of film."

Review

"Outpost in Morocco"

(Moroccan Pictures-U.A.)

ALL of the color, intrigue and adventure popularly associated with North Africa and the French Foreign Legion runs through this Moroccan Pictures production. An added element of authenticity is provided by the fact that much of the picture was filmed in Morocco with the aid of hundreds of Spahis, the famed native cavalry. Though it has as its basis only a routine story, there are moments of suspense and an abundance of drama and action.

George Raft heads the cast as a Legionnaire captain who is assigned to head a convoy into sinister Arab country threatened with a revolution. He falls in love with Marie Windsor, daughter of a wealthy native chief who is inciting civil war. Raft uncovers the enemy's plan but during his absence the Legion outpost is destroyed. He returns with reinforcements, holds the garrison against drought and native attack but winds up facing the future alone since Miss Windsor is killed in an attempt to stave off the attack by her tribesmen.

Under the directorial guidance of Robert Florey, "Outpost in Morocco" is well-knit. Florey has employed the native cast with vigor and imagination and has captured their wild dash across the plain with excellent treatment. Akim Tamiroff, as the second in command at the Legion outpost, heads the supporting cast and gives a performance combining humor, tragedy and simplicity. The picture's one major drawback is some dialogue which may be construed by some audiences as suggestive. Joseph H. Ermolieff produced and also wrote the original story upon which the screenplay by Charles Grayson and Paul De Sainte-Colombe was based. Samuel Bischoff was executive producer.

TOA Meeting

recommendation of the Mitchell Wolfson television committee, favors trailers whose running times are 30 seconds, a minute-and-a-half and four-and-a-half minutes.

Special trailers for television already have been made available by Paramount, 20th-Fox, United Artists, Monogram and Republic, according to Wolfson. Additionally, he said, "practically every video station already has used them."

The possibility of TOA's making a "thorough investigation of wide-screen television" with a view toward effecting installations in member theatres, also was discussed by the organization's executives yesterday. Lockwood said plans are in work for TOA to employ a video engineer to handle this task and submit a report on the cost of installations, etc. Before TOA moves to accept the invitation of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers to join the latter organization on a sustaining membership basis, the exhibitor organization will have to discuss "terms" with SMPE, Lockwood said. SMPE is in close touch with theatre video research.

Has Price Plan

TOA has formulated a plan for pricing of the industry's public relations short subject series, and that long-time subject of dispute again will be taken up with the distributors' committee, headed by RKO Radio's Robert Mochrie, probably early next week by a TOA committee consisting of Gael Sullivan, Ted R. Gamble and Robert W. Coyne, it was reported by Lockwood.

In "two or three weeks," the TOA head said, the organization will begin issuing to members a weekly bulletin which will report the box-office performance, percentage-wise, of features in current release.

The distribution committee which has had two conferences with TOA regarding the latter's complaints of "widespread" admitting of civilians to Armed Forces camp theatres, is preparing a report for TOA, Lockwood said. He stated that as a result of the "pressure which TOA brought to bear" no complaints of that nature have been received from theatres in the past month.

Executive director Sullivan and Coyne were named at the executive committee meeting to confer with telephone company officials to get their views on the phone-vision system of television.

TOA general counsel Herman Levy reported that the "idea" of an industry-wide meeting to discuss a plan of arbitration "is not dead," despite the Department of Justice's turning "thumbs down" on the recent suggestion to that effect which was offered by Levy.

Si H. Fabian, executive committee chairman, presided at yesterday's meeting. In addition to those already named, the following attended: Leonard H. Goldenson, A. Julian Brylawski, Walter Reade, Jr.

State Building Code In Effect on May 1

ALBANY, March 24.—The new 56-page state standard building code for places of public assembly, approved by the State Board of Standards and Appeals will take effect on May 1. It replaces the code in effect since 1922 and affects all theatres and places of public assembly upstate; New York City has its own code.

The code is described as modernizing the one in existence 27 years, offering greater protection to the public but without setting up requirements too onerous for owners and operators of place of public assembly. It covers every phase of theatre construction. It divides film theatres into two classes; major, having a stage and those with a capacity exceeding 600, and minor, for all others.

Special sections cover drive-ins, requirements for which were modified following protests by Fabian-Hellman and other open-air operators. Summer theatres—those not in operation more than 12 weeks are also included, as are circuses.

The code has been in preparation four years.

'Red Pony' A Family Life Study

By FRED JOHNSON

GIVEN A dog or a pony on the screen, you also espy the boy who gets same and loses ditto, or otherwise does his juvenile best to break your heart.

There's enough of that in "The Red Pony," John Steinbeck's story of ranch life in the Salinas Valley, which had its world premiere yesterday at the Fox. But there's also refreshment in its study of the domestic relations bound up with and influenced by a boy and his tiny horse.

In similar screen affairs the adults usually are bystanders whose lives move placidly on and all that matters is the adolescent's outcome after heart-trying experiences.

Mission to Fulfill

But boy and pet have much to do in reshaping a family's way of getting on in "The Red Pony." They were needed in the farm circle of the Tiflins, whose head was a former schoolteacher who remained a stranger to both family and neighbors. His son Tom had his gift of a pony, but looked to the sympathetic farm hand for companionship and guidance.

A boresome father in law, with his repetitious tales of the Old West, was resented only by the maladjusted pedagogue, whose patient wife advised a visit to his San Jose kin, without suggesting it might be a cure for his discontent. This it proved to be after he'd also felt loneliness during his visit and returned to find the cure within himself.

Child Shall Lead

It wouldn't seem a boy and his pony has much to do with all this. But loss of the animal does figure in it, with a conflict between Tom and the farmhand which also has to be resolved, along with an easier life emerging for the gabby grandfather as well.

Myrna Loy, oddly cast as the drudging wife and mother, acquits herself graciously and without benefit of smart answers and Robert Mitchum is the personification of a kindly farm worker. Shepperd Strudwick, currently the Father Matthieu in "Joan of Arc," turns in a thoughtful study of the confused father; Louis Calhern is delightful as a Buffalo type of grandfather, and 10 year old Peter Miles is lovably unaffected as the boy.

The Republic picture, in pleasing technicolor, is sensitively produced and directed by Lewis Milestone from Steinbeck's own adaptation and with splendid photography by Tony Gaudio.

With no concessions to youthful romance or other Hollywood glossing, "The Red Pony" is an exceptional and vastly entertaining film for all ages.

Ticket Prices At All-time High, Says US

Children's Prices Up After Falling Steadily

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Admission prices for both adults and children in large cities rose sharply during the last three months of 1948, and were at record highs at the year's end, according to figures released here today by the Bureau of Labor statistics.

Adult admission prices rose about 2½ per cent during the last quarter, and children's admission prices about 3½ per cent.

The bureau's figures are collected quarterly in 18 large cities and then adjusted to represent the average price trends in the 34 large cities in which the Bureau collects retail price data.

The Bureau's adult admission price index, which at the end of September was 67.1 per cent above the 1935-39

More Cities Set for 20th's Rental Drive

The 20th Century-Fox drive to increase its film rentals by 25 per cent, which last week started in Boston and New Haven, will be extended today to the Hotel Warfield, Philadelphia, where 20th-Fox vice-president Al Lichtman, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld, will explain the plan to a group of exhibitors. The fourth meeting will be held on Thursday in New York, instead of in Washington, as originally announced.

The three company executives will leave New York on Friday for the Coast, where, after an inspection of new product at the studio, they will extend the drive to Los Angeles, San Francisco and other Western cities.

N. J. Allied to Assay 20th Price Bid Today

Twentieth Century-Fox's newly-instituted campaign to persuade U. S. exhibitors that the company must have a 25 per cent increase in film rentals will be the main topic of discussion at a meeting here today of executives and directors of Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey. Organization president Edward Lachman indicated at the weekend the New Jersey Allied may issue immediately following

Nassers Setting UA Deal to Release 25 in Five Years

James and George Nasser, independent producers, are understood to have completed negotiations with United Artists for the release of 25 films during the next five years.

At present, UA is well equipped with films on hand and due from producers shortly, thus lessening chances of a sale of the company by co-owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin.

The Nassers were represented in the negotiations here by Sam Wiesenthal who has been examining UA's position also with the possibility of later negotiations for purchase of UA control by the Nassers.

RKOReorganization Plan Seen Approved

Better than the required two-thirds —70 per cent—of RKO stockholder proxy approvals of the company's proposed reorganization under its consent decree with the Department of Justice are understood to have been filed with the management by the weekend. The plan of reorganization will be voted on by stockholders today at a meeting in Dover, Del.

Under the plan, a maximum cash

Additional Support For Quota Attack

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Senator William F. Knowland, California Republican, who has been leading the Congressional attack on the British film quota, said he is lining up additional senators to support amendments which he plans to offer to several bills to hit back at "British discrimination against American films."

Knowland, who on Thursday asked the State Department for information on any steps taken so far against the British quota, again indicated another follow-up letter might come soon.

From Hollywood, a telegram from the AFL Film Council endorsed Knowland's stand and said that "this rank discrimination has thrown thousands out of work in this country." The Council will send Roy Brewer and Kenneth Thomson to Washington to represent labor's views, the telegram said.

Loew Quarter Earnings Up To $3-Million

20% Gain; All Officers And Directors Reelected

Loew's Inc., will earn about $3,084,000 after all taxes in the second quarter of the current fiscal year, as against $2,500,000 for the corresponding period of last year, Robert J. Rubin, vice-president and general counsel, estimated at the corporation's annual stockholders meeting at the home office on Friday.

Rubin spoke in terms of per-share earnings, reporting that he anticipated earnings of 60 cents per share for the second quarter of the current year versus 49 cents per share for the same period a year ago. As of Feb. 14, 1949, Loew's had 5,142,650 shares of common stock issued and outstanding.

The stockholders reelected all directors of the corporation and added an 11th member to the board, nominee F. Joseph Holleran, who is a vice-

No Video for Loew's Until Profit Is Seen

"While watching and studying developments in television," Loew's has no intention of entering the field until there is some prospect of a return on investment, J. Robert Rubin, vice-president and general counsel, told stockholders at their annual meeting here on Friday.

Upon a suggestion that the company produce subjects for video, Rubin said Loew's would do nothing to discourage theatre-going by way of "encouraging people to stay at home. At the present moment we don't want to destroy our theatres," he added.

Rubin pointed out that at present all television stations are operating at a loss.

WASHINGTON, March 27. — The Hoover Commission today added its powerful voice to the numerous demands for eliminating overlapping Federal, state and local taxes and for giving local government more adequate revenue sources.

In a report to Congress today, the Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, headed by former President Herbert Hoover, said that it recommended that "our tax systems—national, state and local—be generally revised and that, in this revision, every possible effort be made to leave to the localities and the states adequate resources from which to raise revenue to meet the duties and responsibilities of local and state governments."

SIMPP Holds Back On U.K. Opposition

A meeting of the Eastern distribution committee of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers on Friday concerned itself extensively with the various ramifications of film trade problems with England but put off consideration of action to a later date. Reportedly, the group, which met with SIMPP president Ellis G. Arnall, limited the conference to discussions of the nature of British trade barriers, rather than how they should be dealt with, and adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude concerning visits here by J. Arthur Rank, other British producers and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Wilbert Quits Post With Roxy Here

Christy Wilbert, director of advertising-publicity of the New York Roxy Theatre, announced here on Friday that he has resigned, effective April 8. Wilbert assumed the Roxy post about three weeks ago, prior to which he was 20th Century-Fox advertising manager here. Wilbert had been with 20th-Fox for 12 years. Wilbert's future plans have not been set.

The Roxy is expected to name a successor shortly.

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

J. ARTHUR RANK, appearing on these shores last Wednesday simultaneously with publication of the news of the British Board of Trade's decision to establish a 40 per cent film quota for the year beginning next October 1, observed, that, "Through cooperation and good will, I think we can iron out our problems."

Rank had reference to the first meeting of the Anglo-American Advisory Film Council, which is scheduled to be held in Washington next month. He added he was "quite happy" about the new quota.

Rank, as president of the British Film Producers Association, did as much as one man reasonably could to forestall an exercise of cooperation and demonstration of goodwill by the British Board of Trade in the setting of the new quota. The BFPA was foremost in demanding continuance of a high quota and its influence undoubtedly had much to do with the fact that a government council's recommendation of a lower quota was ignored and that a demonstrably unworkable quota was adopted instead.

Anglo-American industry relations are much in need of the "cooperation and good will" Rank speaks of but it would seem the latest affront, for the unfulfillable quota can be regarded as little else, may be accepted as another notice served upon the American industry that it need not look to London for first manifestations of cooperation and goodwill.

The troubles confronting the Anglo-American film industries have their roots in the contrasting status of the two industries. The British industry is a ward of its Socialist government. The American industry is a stalwart unit of the free enterprise system that is the essence of America.

The problems of Rank and his BFPA are simply those of a manufacturer and distributor seeking expanded markets, preferably the lucrative American market, albeit with the protection and collaboration of their government. The problems of the American industry, insofar as the British market is concerned, have nothing to do with the merits of its product or its ability to compete with British pictures at home or abroad.

The problem is that of a free enterprise endeavoring to do business within the strait-jacket of the trade barriers and restrictions imposed upon it by the British government while it doles out subsidies to the home industry.

Neither Rank nor the BFPA, even if they were so minded, could deal with those problems. Nor can the American industry deal with them directly, for they are problems on the government level and they must there be dealt with if they are solved.

The trying barriers, the severe restrictions imposed upon the American film industry by the British government arose from Britain's need to conserve dollars and its understandable desire to build up the home film industry. That was in the beginning and it was understood here.

But does a demonstrably unworkable quota conserve dollars for Britain or do anything but further vitiate a dependent British film industry?

Does subsidization of producers by the British government conserve dollars or create film production know-how where it did not exist before?

Practical people are fully aware that there is little hope that those production subsidies will return sterling, not to mention dollars. And in the face of all the economic assistance being given Britain by the United States, who can say that those subsidies, dedicated to the hope of unseating the American motion picture from its preeminent place in world markets, are not made possible by the dollars of the American taxpayer, prominently among them the companies and individuals who make up the American film industry?

Now comes Harold Wilson of the British Board of Trade to threaten Eric Johnston's unit booking plan, adopted by American distributors in Britain. Apparently there is no area of interest too minor for the attention of the British government in Anglo-American film relations if, as now appears, it is to concern itself with film booking.

Is it not time the British government was asked whether it is more concerned with conserving dollars or with crippling the Hollywood motion picture?

The question should be asked by Washington, not the industry.

Preview Groups Cite 32 'Films of Merit'

Marking the first 25 years of their existence, motion picture preview groups of 16 national organizations, representing a combined membership of over 20,000,000 women in the United States, announced at the weekend a list of 32 features which they rated as possessing "exceptional merit." These features, which were released to U. S. theatres during the past 14 months, include foreign as well as domestic product.

Of over 300 features previewed, 71 per cent were recommended for family patronage and 29 per cent exclusively for adults.

"There is today no reason for any mother in the U. S. not knowing the preview classification of the picture playing at her neighborhood theatre when she wants to take Junior to the movies," reported Arthur DeBra, director of the community relations department of the Motion Picture Association of America.

He explained that through the offices of the Motion Picture Association in Hollywood and New York motion pictures are made available for previewing by approximately 400 motion picture analysts representing each of 16 national women's organizations.

The 32 pictures selected are: "Easter Parade," "The Lost One," "Melody Time," "The Iron Curtain," "Homecoming," "The Search," "I Remember Mama," "My Wild Irish Rose," "Cass Timberlane," "Sitting Pretty," "Three Daring Daughters," "The Pearl," "The Paradine Case," "Mourning Becomes Electra," "A Double Life," "Call Northside 777," "Green Grass of Wyoming," "Johnny Belinda," "Apartment for Peggy," "The Secret Land," "Joan of Arc," "The Paleface," "The Snake Pit," "So Dear to My Heart," "Command Decision," "Portrait of Jennie," "The Sun Comes Up," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "Hamlet," "Red Shoes," "Paisan" and "Symphony Pastorale."

Radio Engineers to Meet

WASHINGTON, March 27.—New technical developments in the radio-television industry will be discussed at the annual spring meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers and the Radio Manufacturers Association's engineering department, to be held in Philadelphia at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel on April 25-27.

Broidy Drive Prizes Go to Exhibitors

Hollywood, March 27.—Exhibitors, instead of salesmen, will win the prizes to be given away during Monogram's sales drive honoring president Steve Broidy's 25th anniversary in the motion picture business.

A percentage of the billings during the drive, which begins on Thursday and ends June 30, will be donated to Jim Mote, Oklahoma exhibitor whose theatre was destroyed by fire, according to Louis Lipton, Monogram advertising-publicity director.

Industry Leaders to 'Quartet' Tonight

J. Arthur Rank, British producer-distributor; Spyros Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox; Robert R. Young, whose Pathe Industries owns Eagle-Lion; Robert S. Benjamin, president of the U. S. Rank Organization, and Arthur B. Krim, Eagle-Lion president, will head the industry's representation at the American premiere of W. Somerset Maugham's "Quartet," when the film opens tonight at the Sutton Theatre here in a special premiere sponsored by the Overseas Press Club. Following the premiere, the film, a Rank production which Eagle-Lion is releasing in this country, will begin its regular run at the theatre, beginning tomorrow.

Approve Legal Fees In the Alger Case

CHICAGO, March 27.—Master-in-Chancery Joseph W. Elward has approved attorney fees to Thomas McConnell of $4,016, and to Seymour Simon for $1,500, which were contingent upon dismissal of the Alger percentage case sought by the eight distributor plaintiffs.

The master charged fees of $1,682. A hearing was set for April 11 for plaintiffs' objections.

president of the National City Bank of New York. At a subsequent meeting on the same day the directorate reelected all officers and named one new officer, Dolph Schadler as assistant treasurer.

Others elected were: Nicholas M. Schenck, president and director; Charles C. Moskowitz, vice-president, treasurer and director; J. Robert Rubin, vice-president, general counsel and director; William F. Rodgers, vice-president, general sales manager and director; Leopold Friedman, vice-president, counsel and director; Joseph R. Vogel, vice-president in charge of theatres, and director; Eugene W. Leake, William A. Parker, David Warfield and Henry Rogers Winthrop, directors.

Non-director Officers

Non-director officers are: Howard Dietz, Dore Schary, E. J. Mannix, Benjamin Thau, Marvin H. Schenck, Louis K. Sidney and Joseph J. Cohn, vice-presidents; Jesse T. Mills, controller and assistant secretary; Nicholas Nayfack, Irving H. Greenfield and Harold J. Cleary, assistant secretaries, and Rose Lazarus, assistant treasurer.

Rubin pointed out the corporation's first quarter earnings this year amounted to 20 cents per share, or over $1,000,000. Consequently, the first-half earnings, he estimated, will amount to 80 cents per share, as compared with 75 cents per share for the first half of last year. Loew's fiscal year begins Sept. 1.

Presiding over the session, Rubin expressed confidence in future operations, holding that "with the quickened pace of production now in effect, our results will be more satisfactory."

The majority of holders passed two resolutions commending the directorate and officers of the corporation.

Taking up the industry trust suit, Rubin said he was "hopeful" that divestiture of theatres would not be ordered, making it clear that the company will continue its defense to an ultimate court decision. He also told the meeting that 20th Century-Fox and Warners will stay in court, rather than settle with the government.

10 to 35c Ticket Price Cuts for B'way Runs

Admission price cuts, ranging from 10 to 35 cents, have been adopted by several New York Broadway first-run theatres, according to weekend reports. Weekend and holiday admissions have not been changed, but reductions have been made in night, morning and matinee week-day scales.

The Mayfair, Globe and Criterion now are operating on a 55-cent scale for morning shows. The Astor reduced its morning price from 95 to 60 cents. Night admissions at the Victoria have been cut from $2.40 to $1.80. The Globe and Mayfair slashed 20 cents off their night admissions, reducing prices to $1.20. Loew's State reduced its morning scale from 80 to 70 cents and its one-to-five price from $1.20 to 95 cents, as previously reported.

Legalize Sunday Shows

ATLANTA, March 27. — Sunday amusements and sports are now authorized here, the City Council having exercised its local option under state legislation passed recently. The move legalizes a situation that has existed for sometime.

Rank Films Got 11 Academy Awards

J. Arthur Rank's British productions won eight Academy Awards for 1948, led by Sir Laurence Olivier, for his part in "Hamlet."

Other awards won by Rank productions are: Art direction, black-and-white: Roger K. Furse, for "Hamlet;" color: Hein Heckroth, for "The Red Shoes;" costume design, black-and-white: Roger K. Furse, for "Hamlet;" best music score for a dramatic picture: Brian Easdale, for "The Red Shoes;" set decoration, black-and-white: Carmen Dillon, for "Hamlet;" and set decoration, color: Arthur Lawson, for "The Red Shoes."

Sound Award Is 16th For Western Electric Equipment

The 1948 Academy Award to "The Snake Pit" for the best achievement in sound recording marked the 16th time in the 19 years since the award was established that it has gone to a producer using Western Electric recording equipment, a company spokesman said here.

base period, was up to 71.0 per cent above 1935-39 figures by the end of December. The previous high was at the end of March, 1948, when it was 67.7 per cent above the base period.

The children's price index, which had been falling steadily since late in 1947 and which at the end of September was at the lowest point in three years, also rose sharply in the last quarter of 1948. It went from 57.3 per cent above 1935-39 levels at the end of September, to 62.8 per cent at the end of 1948. The index has never been higher than this, and only onuce before—in February, 1947—had it been that high.

As a result of the rise in both indices, the combined weighted adult-children admission price index also hit a new high. It went from 65.7 per cent above base levels at the end of September, to 69.9 per cent at the end of 1948. Previous high was 66.9 per cent at the end of 1947.

Burial for Fidler In Denver Today

DENVER, March 27.—Lon Fidler, holder of Monogram-Allied Artists franchises in Denver, Salt Lake City and Kansas City, died here Thursday night following a heart attack. All Monogram exchanges, home office and studios will cease activities at one o'clock, Monday EST., for five minutes in respect for Fidler. At one time he was a salesman for United Artists and branch manager for Universal-International.

Burial will be in Denver tomorrow. He is survived by the widow.

price of $4,500,000 for Howard Hughes' 24 per cent stock interest in the new independent RKO Theatres, to be formed as part of the reorganization of the present company, is provided for in the option held by Atlas Corp.

Hughes has the right under the option agreement to seek cash offers for his theatre company stock from outsiders and, if they are obtained, Atlas has the right to meet them. The theatre company stock is to be offered by Hughes to Atlas at a price not to exceed $4,500,000 only in the event he is unable to obtain outside offers. RKO was given until March 30 by the U. S. District Court here to obtain stockholders' approval of the plan. It would become ineffective if not approved by that date.

NY Case No Video Hindrance: 20th

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Twentieth Century-Fox again told the Federal Communications Commission that violations of U. S. anti-trust laws in a field other than radio communications should not automatically disqualify a firm from holding a radio or television license.

The company made its point in answering a motion by the Massachusetts Broadcasting Corp. to disqualify 20th-Fox from proceedings for a Boston television station because of the New York trust case decision.

The film firm pointed out that it cannot get a decision on the point through the ordinary channel of a ruling in a specific processing because the television "freeze" is holding up all hearings. Accordingly, it said, the Commission must resolve the uncertainty by a declaratory ruling.

FCC Limits Para., 20th Video Licenses

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Despite objections by Paramount and 20th Century-Fox, the Federal Communications Commission has acted on its policy of granting only short-term, temporary renewals of television licenses for Paramount case defendants.

The action came in three separate parts. In one part, the FCC extended from March 1 to June 1 the deadline for Paramount Television Productions, Inc., to complete station KTLA and experimental station W6XYZ in Los Angeles. In a second action, it gave Paramount only a special temporary authorization to continue two experimental television relay stations in conjunction with KTLA and W6XYZ. Finally, the Commission gave Television Productions only a 60-day renewal of its authorizations for five experimental theatre television relay stations in New York, and took similar action on one theatre television relay set-up of 20th-Fox in New York.

state and local governments, the reports of three different "task forces" to the Hoover group, submitted to Congress on Friday, recommended turning the admission tax back to the states and municipalities.

One report pointed out that the government derives only about one per cent of its revenue from admission taxes while this levy is becoming an increasingly important revenue source for states and local governments. It was recommended that the government relinquish the admission tax to the states.

Another task force recommended that the government reduce or relinquish the admission tax "as soon as practicable" since it could be effectively administered by state and local governments and since it was a relatively minor and non-essential revenue source for the national government.

The third report came from the Council of State Governments. It said the admission tax was peculiarly well suited for state and local collection. Concentration of the tax base, it pointed out, tends to be greatest in the urban centers where governmental costs are the highest. Moreover, it said, amusement enterprises usually need a lot of special police, health, fire and other local services not supported by license charges.

The Hoover Commission's report, on Federal-state relations, pointed out that many tax sources are now exploited by both state and Federal government, and that in some cases there is even a triplication of taxation.

'Red Pony' Hit Scored

Love for Animal Brings Happiness

BY HERBERT L. LARSON

Drama Editor, The Oregonian

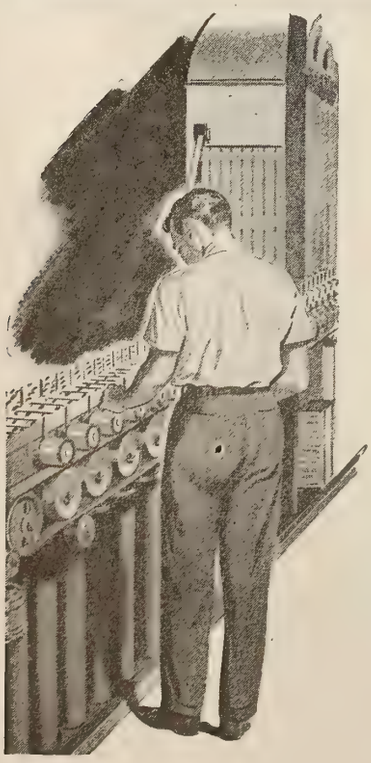
"The Red Pony," a John Steinbeck story filmed in Technicolor, will nip at the heart. The film is now unreeling at J. J. Parker's United Artists theater with Myrna Loy and Robert Mitchum in starring roles.

In the role of the youngster who is wrapped up and tied tightly by his love for a red pony is young Peter Miles, a boy whom every screen fan will take to heart.

In the picture from Republic studio theater-goers will find much that is heart-warming entertainment. There is more to the film than just a boy's love for a pony. Shepperd Strudwick is fine as the lad's father. He plays a former school teacher who has never been able to adapt himself to ranch life. His son turns to the hired hand, Robert Mitchum, for guidance in the training of his pony.

Despite efforts of his tactful wife (Myrna Loy), to draw him nearer to ranch life, the father is shut off by an unseen barrier.

The father leaves the ranch for a reunion. In his absence the pony becomes ill. Mitchum had assured the youngster that it would be safe to leave the animal in his care. During a storm the pony breaks loose and runs into the hills. In the eyes of the boy Mitchum has "lost face."



In the crisis, the boy's mother sends for her husband. He is pleased to learn that, at last, he is needed at home. The pony dies and remainder of the well-directed story concerns the way in which Mitchum regains the boy's faith and the family is reunited in a deeper understanding.

Guardian of her most important "bath"...

He makes sure that the dailies take their all-important bath... inspecting, testing, keeping constant check as the exposed footage runs through the developing, fixing, and washing tanks and driers.

To his skill and watchfulness... as film representing "box-office gold" literally slips through his careful fingers... motion pictures owe much of their well-earned reputation for technical excellence.

This skill is more effective... the burden of constant vigilance lessened ...when he works with dependable film of superior quality. That's why he always welcomes the family of Eastman motion picture films.

20th-Fox Will Pursue Rental Plan: Lichtman

Reply to ITOA Blast Hits Brandt Film Buys

Reiterating that if "producing companies are left without a proper return on their investments and their energies," the source of supply of good motion pictures is in danger of survival, Al Lichtman, 20th Century-Fox vice-president, yesterday reaffirmed the company's determination to seek "more equitable" film terms for its product.

Lichtman's statement replied to a criticism of the 20th-Fox endeavor made last week by Harry Brandt, president of Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York, whom Lichtman charged is buying films "for himself and his booking combine at ridiculously low prices."

"If this condition prevailed throughout the country," Lichtman said, "it would force every first-class producer of motion pictures to shut up shop."

N. J. Allied Wary of 20th's Rental Bid

Following a special meeting here yesterday, Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey issued a statement terming "arbitrary, unrealistic and unfair to the independent exhibitors" the new, increased rental terms for which 20th Century-Fox has started to campaign. The organization called the meeting following 20th-Fox's announcement last week that it would seek higher rentals.

"The receipts at the box offices of the independent theatres have decreased to figures that leave a small

Drive on UK Quota Gaining Momentum

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Sentiment continues to mount in the Senate today for State Department or Congressional action to force Britain to modify or eliminate its film quota.

There were three major developments:

1—Five leading Republican Senators called on Secretary of State Dean Acheson to inform them what steps have been taken by the Government "to have the British government materially reduce or eliminate quota restrictions which discriminate against American industry and agriculture." U. A. Board Meeting On 25 from Nassers

United Artists' board of directors is expected to meet here this week to vote on ratification of a new deal to distribute 25 pictures from Nasser Productions during the next five years.

Contract, which provides for distribution fees of 30 per cent for UA, was negotiated on the Coast by UA president Gradwell Sears and James and George Nasser. It would become effective immediately upon approval by the board.

The Nassers, who have their own studio, will channel product of other producers operating on the lot through UA, as well as releasing their own films through the company under the pact.

16 Features From MGM in 6 Months

Adding two new pictures for June, William F. Rodgers, distribution vice-president, reports that M-G-M's releasing schedule for the next three months will consist of eight pictures, the same number as for the first three months of the year, for a total of 16 from January 1 to the end of June. It is likely that Rodgers may add a reprint to the June schedule, namely, "The Wizard of Oz," which is slated to open shortly at the Mayfair here.

"Big Jack," "Edward, My Son" and "Neptune's Daughter" have been added to the schedule, while "Conspirator" has been set back for later release.

During April there will be "Caught," third Enterprise film to be released by M-G-M; "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "Little Women"

Rules Theatres Not Liable for Paying Performers' Taxes

HARTFORD, March 28.—A U. S. Treasury Department decision which concerned a Petrillo ruling has saved the State Theatre, local 4,000-seat motion picture-vaudeville theatre, thousands of dollars and "bushels of paper work," according to a Hartford certified public accountant, Maxwell E. Lerner, who said that because of the Treasury ruling, independent theatres, like the State, can no longer be held the "employer" of its performers.

The local theatre, since Jan. 1, 1941, has paid Social Security, withholding and unemployment taxes for those taking part in acts and name bands appearing on its stage.

According to the Treasury Department's ruling, however, theatre performers are described as "independent contractors," which means they must

The 1948 Academy Awards

THE 21st annual awards of merit of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences at the Academy Award Theatre last week appear as of now to have met with widespread approval.

The explanation, perhaps, is in the great diversity of recognition which the 1948 awards represent.

Many were of a character pleasing to the critical fraternity; not a few underscored popular choices already made by the public; many were in accord with trade opinion at large and others were gratifying to large sections of the components of the production community.

In short, recipients of the 1948 awards all had their large and enthusiastic followings, and for every shade of disagreement or disappointment, inevitable in every award year, there were compensating areas of popular agreement.

The special awards this year were more than a litttle gratifying to the trade itself.

That Walter Wanger should be singled out "for distinguished service to the industry in adding to its moral stature in the world community by his production of the picture, 'Joan of Arc'," in the words accompanying the special award to Wanger, is heartily endorsed by all responsible sections of the industry.

The award to Wanger is the first in the 21-year history of the Academy to be based upon the motion picture's service to morality.

Not only is that award well merited in Wanger's case but it is of major importance in the future of the industry for the encouragement it affords producers and artists to continue to undertake the filming of great moral stories which open new horizons to the art while endowing the industry with new dignity and stature in the eyes and minds of the public.

The production of such a picture as "Joan of Arc" is, in truth, a great service to the industry throughout the world. For that reason alone the new and special award is well merited. And apart from that, it is fitting that those who undertake the difficult and the hazardous on planes of high endeavor be given the recognition and encouragement of an award.

That is of the very essence of the Academy's awards. It is to be hoped that special awards of the kind will be given a permanent place in the annual ceremonies, and that they will always find as deserving recipients.

The industry, too, was gratified by the special award made to Adolph Zukor for his services to the industry over a period of 40 years. One of the real, living pioneers of the industry, Zukor held positions of influence, great responsibility and leadership throughout the whole period during which the industry achieved its greatest growth.

A special award for the grand old man of Paramount helps to express for thousands in every corner of the motion picture world the warm regard and high esteem in which they hold Adolph Zukor.

Bestowal of the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial award on Jerry Wald for the most consistently high quality of production achieved by an individual producer in 1948 also met with wide approbation in the industry. Wald's honor is the more notable in that there have been years since the founding of the Thalberg Memorial award in which it has not been bestowed by the Academy.

The high number of awards which went to Warner artists and properties and to the J. Arthur Rank productions, "Hamlet" and "The Red Shoes," were remarked upon, inside and outside the industry on a scale which clearly ranked them among the high spots of the 1948 winners. There was wide approval of and special interest in the father and son team of John and Walter Huston, who captured a trio of honors with "Treasure of Sierra Madre," John for direction and the screen play, Walter for best male supporting role.

Walter attributed his good fortune to foresight. When John was a boy, he explained, I told him that if he became a screen writer when he grew up, to be sure to write in a good part for his old man.

Exhibition was represented in the 1948 awards to the satisfaction of many from that and other branches of the industry. The special award to Sid Grauman, for raising standards of motion picture exhibition, was unique of its kind and left many with the hope that it will be continued. SHERWIN KANE

"Ma and Pa Kettle"

(Universal-International)

REMEMBER raucous Marjorie Main and granite-faced Percy Kilbride in their supporting roles of the bucolic "Ma" and "Pa" Kettle in "The Egg and I"? Well, they're back again with their large brood of children and their unorthodox concepts of living. Required this time to put across a whole picture with a callow type of humor that ranges from frank slapstick to unabashed gagging, the couple is likely to recruit many new admirers from among family audiences. Seekers after subtle, smooth comedy, however, had better look elsewhere for laughs. This picture appears likely to hit its best commercial stride in neighborhood houses.

Directed at a halting pace by Charles Lamont, the screenplay of Herbert Margolis, Louis Morheim and Al Lewis takes the Kettle family out of the run-down, junk-laden farmhouse that so sorely chagrins the more civic-minded members of the rural community, and puts it into an ultra-modern residence. Pa wins the push-button electronic house by submitting the best slogan in a contest sponsored by a tobacco company. Once the multitudinous family is ensconced in the new home, Pa's sang-froid is put to the test by all the amazing new household appliances and inventions, and Ma and the 14 youngsters prepare to resist eviction with shot-guns and sling-shots when a cantankerous neighbor challenges the legitimacy of Pa's contest entry. A happy ending is inevitable, of course. Meanwhile, love has blossomed between eldest son Richard Long and a pretty magazine writer, played by Meg Randall. A large supporting cast includes Patricia Alphin, Esther Dale, Barry Kelley, Harry Antrim and Isabel O'Madigan. Leonard Goldstein produced.

vice-presidents A. W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld, will conduct the third of a series of round-table exhibitor luncheon meetings on distribution problems affecting the industry at the Warwick Hotel in Philadelphia today.

Calls Disparity 'Unhealthy'

"The public is continuing to give its support to good motion pictures," Lichtman said. "This is proven by the healthy boxoffice receipts for such pictures in theatres throughout the country. This would be highly encouraging were there not an unhealthy internal state of affairs with respect to the disparity between the distributor's and exhibitor's share of the boxoffice receipts. If this condition continues and if the producing companies are left without a proper return on their investments and their energies, it is obvious that the very source of supply of good motion pictures is in danger of survival.

"It must be faced and it must be faced with the highest business statesmanship. Upon its correction depends the welfare of the industry as a whole which includes not only theatre owners, but also many thousands of workers in all branches of our industry whose livelihood is derived from films.

Seeks Mutually Beneficial Level

"What we are undertaking in our survey is to make sure that both the distributor and the exhibitor have a healthy business on a level mutually beneficial. I believe that we are serving the exhibitor by calling his attention to the danger to him in an unfair division of the public's dollar. We hope to arrive at an equitable yardstick for rental of our films with every theatre we serve. We are striving to do this by eliminating from our business horse-trading methods and establish the highest plane of business relationship between exhibitor and distributor. We also hope to promote better showmanship on the part of all of us—exhibitors, producers, distributors and all allied interests—to the end that we will be able to maintain on the highest level possible the public's interest in our endeavors," Lichtman said.

"While our across-the-table face-to-face talks with exhibitors are just starting, Mr. Harry Brandt of New York has complained in the trade-press about the 'unconscionable arbitrary and unfair pricing of film by 20th-Fox'. This is startling in view of the fact that we have not met with the New York exhibitors nor officially with Mr. Brandt and thus had an opportunity to disclose our plans to them," he said.

Charges Brandt Pays Too Little

"From inquiries I have made regarding accounts in our New York exchange, I have been informed that Mr. Brandt has been buying for himself and his booking combine at ridiculously low prices. If this condition prevailed throughout the country, it would force every first-class producer of motion pictures to shut up shop.

"Therefore, I do feel that my friend protests too much. Mr. Brandt is a very clever fellow and has my deepest admiration. I can well understand that the outcry on his part is the strategy usually employed by clever generals who believe that a strong offensive is the best defense.

"We are inviting all the New York exhibitors to attend a luncheon next Friday and we hope that Mr. Brandt and the membership of the ITOA will attend. We also hope that Mr. Brandt will bring with him all the exhibitor clientele for whom he is doing the buying.

"Harry Brandt and his family have been buying pictures from me since he was in knee britches. I can never recall using brass knuckles on him. In fact, I never owned a pair. But, judging from the advantageous deals he has been making for himself, it seems to me that the brass knuckles are on the other hand, or else he has been using chloroform on the film salesmen," Lichtman said.

"While Mr. Skouras appreciates Harry Brandt's defense of the goodwill he has built in this industry, I am certain that Mr. Skouras would more happily welcome the goodwill of Mr. Brandt in any plan that will assist in solving the problems which the distributor and producer alike face at this time.

Wants Better Relationship

"Furthermore, I would like to point out that it was at Mr. Skouras' urgent appeal, and at a great personal sacrifice and jeopardy of my health, that I undertook the job of trying to bring about a better understanding and relationship between distributor and exhibitor. In the 40 years I have devoted to this industry, I have always done everything in my power to raise the sights of every branch of the business—exhibitor, distributor and producer alike.

"Mr. Martin J. Mullin, president of New England Theatres, Boston, who graciously presided at our meeting in Boston congratulated Mr. Skouras and the company for sending important executives into the field to participate in an open discussion with exhibitors. He thought it was a splendid idea and felt it would do a lot of good and he thought other companies should adopt a similar policy. I regret very much that he was misquoted in one of the motion picture trade journals.

Protests Won't Deter Tour

"I want to reiterate that we are seeking that common ground where exhibitor and distributor can discuss their mutual affairs and problems. We will not be deterred from meeting exhibitors on grass roots levels by tirades of self-generated anguish. If the ITOA does not understand that a serious problem now confronts the industry, it is not because they are unaware of the true facts. At our open meetings, exhibitors air their sentiments and acquaint us with their problems. We do the same. If this is dictatorship, we might as well tell the Senate and House of Representatives to abdicate.

"We shall continue this procedure, which is in the best traditions of democratic assembly and we will not be deterred by individuals who seek special privilege, and we will not fail to maintain the spirit of goodwill which is now the uppermost need of our business. We feel that we have embarked on a program by which the industry and the public and, above all, the exhibitor himself, will be benefited and for which the exhibitor in the long run will be most grateful," Lichtman concluded.

Philadelphia Exhibitors to Hear Lichtman, Smith Today

As the third in the series of 20th Century-Fox round-table exhibitor luncheon meetings gets under way today in Philadelphia the company announces that the New York meeting, previously scheduled for Thursday of this week, will be held on Friday at the Hotel Astor, starting at noon.

Attending the Philadelphia session today will be 20th Century-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman, A. W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld.

profit and any increase in picture rentals would absorb this profit," the post-meeting statement issued by Jersey Allied president Edward Lachman asserted.

"During recent years," the statement continued, "20th Century-Fox has created a friendly relationship with New Jersey independent exhibitors based upon a recognition of the inability of distributors and exhibitors to accurately and fairly determine the value of pictures until they have played in the exhibitor's theatre. It was for this reason that most contracts have been made with the understanding that the terms are subject to subsequent review. The stated purpose of 20th Century-Fox to discontinue this selling plan and to require firm contracts with no review will destroy all goodwill heretofore existing between this distributor and its independent customers."

The conciliation boards set up at the recommendation of 20th-Fox distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., to attempt to settle differences arising between exhibitors and distributors "will be very busy from now on," it was predicted by Jersey Allied.

'Wait-See' Attitude Shown By Indiana ATO Toward 20th Plan

INDIANAPOLIS, March 28.—A wait-see attitude toward 20th Century-Fox's "equitable rental" plan of flat sum film sales based on attendance is advanced by the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana.

Claiming the plan "harks back" to a New York District Court ruling against fixing of admission prices three years ago, the ATOI declares: "Without further clarification we don't quite subscribe to this as an equitable plan, where the film company is assured that they will get their investment back, unless the exhibitor is also guaranteed that he will not show a loss on the engagement."

ATOI also took a dim view of "an apparently new Fox policy" to vest greater authority on approval of deals in the home office. "Probably the rejection of deals by some individual behind a desk in New York who never saw the theatre and was never in the town and who has no personal knowledge of the exhibitor's personal problems has been as much to the detriment of good distributor-exhibitor relations as any single factor," it declares.

In his talks to NT personnel here, Skouras dwelt on the necessity of utilizing the circuit's sliding scale rental policy in ways that will assure producers a maximum return from meritorious attractions, declaring: "We don't want to abuse any producer, large or small. The number of independent producers has shrunk alarmingly, and we must take heed of this situation as indicating what may happen. They have produced pictures and are entitled to a square deal. Don't mistreat good film."

Applying NT's established formula in a manner to give worthy product the full benefit of the utmost playing time it warrants was the keynote of instructions given to division members.

pinet, company president, said: "I am very pleased that such a large proportion of the owners of our business have confirmed the judgment of our directors with respect to the proposals which are so important to the future of our operations. As provided in the plan, separation of the businesses through consummation of the plan will become effective at some time prior to Nov. 8, 1949, as determined by the board of directors of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp."

The reorganization plan is pursuant to a consent decree entered into by RKO with the Government in settlement of the company's part in the anti-trust suit against Paramount, et al.

At yesterday's meeting the stockholders approved an amendment to the company's by-laws reducing the number of directors from nine to seven and an amendment providing that no annual meeting of stockholders for the election of directors shall occur during the remainder of 1949.

The theatre company stock is to be offered by Hughes to Atlas at a price not to exceed $4,500,000 only in the event he is unable to obtain outside offers. RKO was given until March 30 by the U. S. Atlas' option on the Hughes' stock gives the investment company the right to meet any offer which Hughes might obtain from other parties, and in the event no offers are made, Hughes could be forced to sell to Atlas at not more than $4,500,000.

According to industry sources familiar with the situation, Kingsberg is the only serious bidder for the Hughes' interests, at present.

Reviews

"Bride of Vengeance"

(Paramount)

APPARENTLY more concerned with story values than historical authenticity, this reconstructed tale of the Borgias has been filled with sufficient conflict, excitement, and a name cast to assure its reliability at the box-office. Paulette Goddard is interestingly cast as Lucretia Borgia, with Macdonald Carey as her brother Caesar, and John Lund as the Duke of Ferrara, around whom this 16th century tale of intrigue swirls.

The production occasionally rises to spectacular dimensions, as when armored soldiers meet in battle, but generally the screenplay relies on the spoken word of development. Carey's characterization of the ruler is one of oily intrigue. Obsessed with thirst for power, he has his sister's husband assassinated under circumstances that make it appear that the Duke of Ferrara did the deed. Lund then suggests Miss Goddard into marrying the duke so that she thereby could get her classic revenge by poisoning him. At the same time, Lund figures he would gain dominance over the dead duke's territory. Unfortunately for Lund, his ambitious conspiracy backfires when Miss Goddard falls in love with the duke.

Producer Richard Maibaum has given a handsome frame to a screenplay by Cyril Hume and Michael Hogan, from a story by the latter. Miss Goddard cavorts in a variety of eye-catching garments, and her performance is satisfactory though not subtle. Carey emerges vigorously as the villain, while Lund certainly has feminine-appeal as the dashing duke. Mitchell Leisen directed.

Running time, 91 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, May 6.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"The Lovable Cheat"

(Skyline—Film Classics)

PURELY in the mood of a tongue-in-cheek lampoon, "The Lovable Cheat" recounts how a sly old rascal, having suddenly fallen from wealth, outwits a horde of snarling creditors. Taken from a play by Honore de Balzac, which has its setting in the Paris of two centuries ago, the film is best for its incisive character studies that are reminiscent of some of the better Gallic productions. Oddly, though, the film for the most part is like a photographed stage play, with a minimum of sets and an occasional over-abundance of dialogue. The cast is a fairly good one, headed by Charles Ruggles, Peggy Ann Garner and Richard Ney.

Ruggles plays the focal role as the suddenly impoverished gentleman of Paris. With the aid of his butler, Alan Mowbray, Ruggles resorts to every guile and subtlety to keep at bay his exasperated friends-turned-creditors. Finally, Ruggles hits upon the idea of having his daughter marry a wealthy count as a solution to his financial problems. The only trouble with this idea is that the count turns out to be "phony," and besides his daughter, Miss Garner, is in love with a humble bank clerk, Richard Ney. When a maze of satirical complications are ironed out, true love wins out, and Ruggles is saved from jail by the unexpected return of a long-disappeared partner who has since become wealthy.

The well-remembered Buster Keaton, as a poker-face creditor, and Curt Bois, as the disreputable count, fill out the cast of the Skyline Pictures production for Film Classics release. Richard Oswald and Edward Lewis produced and did the screenplay; Oswald also directed. Rosario Castagna was associate producer.

Running time, 74 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Partmar charges that under its settlement with the government, Paramount is free to evict the plaintiff from the Los Angeles theatre and that this is not consistent with the U. S. Supreme Court's opinion in the suit.

Partmar charges that the New York court erred in rejecting the move to intervene because it gave no findings on theatre issues still before the court, that the court did not recognize the Paramount Theatre to be a "fruit of the monopoly" and on other counts.

The New York court is expected to rule on the new move within a week and if granted, Partmar would take the appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Canada Sets Loan For TV Stations

TORONTO, March 28.—A loan of $4,000,000 is being made by the Dominion government to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Revenue Minister J. J. McCann announced in the Commons today, to proceed with the establishment of television stations in Toronto and Montreal.

McCann told Parliament that in addition to the one immediate government-controlled TV station in each city authorization would be given for one private television broadcasting studio under annual license in Toronto and Montreal. It is considered possible that Famous Players Canadian Corp. may secure the privilege for Toronto because its experimental television department is understood to be in an advanced stage of development.

Drive on UK Quota

sylvania, Knowland of California, and Brewster of Maine.

2—Senator Downey, California Democrat, forwarded to Acheson a vigorous protest against the British film quota, and asked for word as to what "the Department is planning to do to remedy this discriminatory action."

3—Senator Knowland, who started the ball rolling last week, said he is making progress in working out specific amendments to hit back at British discrimination, and that they might still be ready in time to add to the pending bill to continue ECA through June 30, 1950. If not, Knowland said, he would offer them to the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, the ECA appropriations bill, or some later measure. He stressed the technical difficulty of drawing these amendments.

While the letter signed by the five Republican Senators covered a broader subject than films alone, several of the signers said films had been uppermost in their minds. Senator Brewster stated he would hit the British film quota in a speech he plans to make tomorrow or Wednesday.

The five Republicans said that it seemed to them to be inconsistent for the British government to establish economic iron curtains—whether in the form of quota arrangements, discriminatory taxes or currency restrictions—at a time when Congress is being urged to contribute to the opening up of the channels of trade.

Senator Downey, pointing out that British producers could not supply enough films to fill even a 20 per cent screen quota, said that he could see no economic justification for the present 40 per cent quota and could describe it only as "punitive action against an American industry.

"Not only is the quota unfair and discriminatory," the California Democrat said, but "it is also in direct conflict with everything we are trying to do to promote world recovery. The American people are spending billions of dollars to help the rest of the world, and many American industries are making important trade concessions to stimulate a freer flow of world commerce. These sacrifices we are willing to make, but the least we can expect in return is that the recipients of our aid will do their share to carry out the objectives."

NCA Seeks Outside Aid in Tax Fight

MINNEAPOLIS, March 28.—Minnesota independent exhibitors are urged by Stan Kane, executive counsel for North Central Allied, "to enlist the support of leading merchants and citizens of the community to oppose passage of legislation to enable villages and cities to impose an admission tax, and up to the extent of such Federal admission cut or elimination." The bill is now on general orders in the House, and a Senate measure is now pending in the committee on municipal affairs.

In addition to contacting each member of the legislature, Kane urges exhibitors to get at least 25 prominent citizens of the community to send wires, letters or postcards to lawmakers opposing municipal admission taxes on the grounds that taxation is a "retail sales tax at excessive rates" and the levy would fall on the small wage earner.

'The Red Pony'

A screen play by John Steinbeck, directed and produced by Lewis Milestone for Republic Pictures, with the following cast:

Tom.....Peter Miles
Teacher.....Margaret Hamilton

Nino.....Nino Tempo

John Steinbeck adapted his own novel, "The Red Pony," for the film of the same name which opened yesterday at the Pilgrim Theater. It is a story of strong human emotions, presented on the screen with a stark simplicity and freedom from superfluous detail that make it an extraordinarily vivid production. If anything, the emotional lines are overdrawn, and the spectator's heart at times takes a greater beating than is necessary.

A young boy is misunderstood by his father, who seems to be slightly out of step with the world, and the problems of family relationships are brought to focus by the crisis ensuing in the fatal sickness of the lad's beloved pony. The father, blinded by his own inability to fit into the way of ranching life, is no help to the boy, and the hired man assumes a fatherly role in his place. The boy thinks he is getting a raw deal both ways, however, when he mistakenly assumes that the pony's sickness is the result of the hired man's negligence. Throw in a garrulous grandfather who is living in the past days of the pioneer transcontinental trek, and a mother who is long-suffering, strong of character and pretty of face and figure, and you have the situation in a nutshell.

Robert Mitchum acts the part of Billy, the hired man, with naturalness and stern good nature. Louis Calhern makes the grandfather at once pathetic, primitive and gruffly affectionate. Myrna Loy plays the mother, a nearly wooden character, with a spark of warmth. Peter Miles, in his first starring role, as the boy, does a splendid job of acting a difficult emotional part. Shepperd Strudwick acts the father suitably ill at ease. —B. O. G.

Dear Mr. Lichtman:

On Friday, March 25th, your company was invited to attend an open forum for the purpose of bringing facts and figures to prove that you are honestly entitled to a greater share of the Independent Exhibitors gross at the box office.

Disregarding our invitation, sent to you by the largest number of Independent Exhibitors in the New York Exchange area, you called your own meeting for this Friday.

If you are trying to psychologically lessen the impact of our resolution may we advise that you have failed. We will not attend your meeting.

Good will is a precious asset. Years of hard work on the part of your company went in to create it.

The reaction of exhibitors in your own first two meetings has practically destroyed it.

BrewsterTakes Quota Fight to Senate Floor

Says State Dept. Must Act Against British

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Senator Owen Brewster, Maine Republican, told the Senate today that the U. S. State Department must intervene against the high British quota on American films "because its ramifications go far beyond this one industry."

Taking the floor as debate resumed on a bill to extend the ECA, Brewster charged that the high quota was "intended to oust American films from the British market as quickly as possible." The quota "jams the gears of reciprocity," he declared.

Mexico City, March 29.—Motion pictures again claimed most of the $20,000,000 spent here last year for public entertainment, reports the Municipal Treasury Department. The 93 theatres operating claimed $13,500,000 of that sum for 50,464,540 admissions, compared with the $1,100,000 gross by eight stage houses on 1,802,752 admissions.

The 1948 overall amusement gross hit a new high and was $900,000 higher than in 1947, which the Department calls remarkable because there was less economic depression in 1947 than there was in 1948.

Three More Groups To Aid Bond Drive

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder announces receipt of pledges of cooperation in the industry's participation in the forthcoming savings bond drive from three additional film groups, the Screen Directors' Guild, Screen Actors' Guild and the IATSE.

Ben Hecht Resumes

Ben Hecht has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to do the screenplay of the yet unpublished novel of Leo Brady, "The Edge of Doom," which will be in the bookstores in September from E. P. Dutton. "Hecht's decision to forswear Hollywood writing assignments, made six months ago, was reversed under the persuasion of Goldwyn," according to the Goldwyn office here.

Charles J. Closmann, 66

NEW ORLEANS, March 29.—Charles J. Closmann, 66, pioneer in the electrical projection of motion pictures, died here on March 23, it was disclosed here today. His work in developing electrical projection started about 1913. He was also a pioneer in the field of outdoor films, presenting them here with vaudeville in 1913. He is survived by the widow, two sons and a sister.

Charge High Rentals Replace Percentages

MINNEAPOLIS, March 29. — Local distributors are circumventing their promise not to force percentages on accounts paying under $200 by quoting flat rentals at such high figures "it is still forced percentage—in fact." Twin Cities exhibitors charged here.

While no action was taken on forced percentages, the owners "scoffed at statements entirely at variance" with branch managers' practices in quoting terms, a spokesman said.

'Hamlet' Is Spurred

new films in town is "El Paso" with Louis Jordan's "Tympony Five" and Ray Anthony's orchestra at the Paramount where the first week's take is estimated at $68,000 which, by comparison with most other spots, is substantial business.

Also relatively big is "Outpost in Morocco" with Gordon Jenkins' orchestra on stage, which is headed for a first week's gross of $64,000 at the Capitol. "Kiss in the Dark" with Guy Lombardo on stage should give the Strand about $50,000 for a first week, which is also healthy business.

'Fan' Comes to Roxy

"The Fan" will bow in at the Roxy on Friday, replacing "Mother Is a Freshman" which, with Cab Calloway's orchestra and Phil Baker on stage, probably will wind up its third and final week with $56,000, a mild gross.

Immediate gains from previously reported price cuts at some runs here is not too discernible, according to theatremen, who express the belief that advantages will be felt on a long-range basis. Scales have been lowered at the Globe, Mayfair, Victoria and Criterion.

"Little Women," with a stage presentation at the Music Hall, should do about $115,000 in a third week, which is fair business; it holds for a fourth, to be followed on April 7 by "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" looks good for about $33,000 in a good third week at the State.

'Bad Boy' Off

"Bad Boy" was off as a newcomer at the Palace where the first week's business is estimated at $14,000; the film will bow out tomorrow night to make way for "I Shot Jesse James." "Impact," at the Globe, in a second week, should gross $10,500.

"Portrait of Jennie" had an elaborate premiere at the Rivoli last night for the benefit of the New York Milk Fund. "The Snake Pit" was away down at the end of its highly successful run at the Rivoli, bringing in only $4,000 in its final five days, two short of a full 21st week.

"The Red Shoes" is continuing at a good clip at the Bijou with about $13,000 seen for a 23rd week. "Knock on Any Door" is down to $13,000 in a slow fifth week at the Astor. "Criss Cross" dropped to an unfavorable $9,000 in its final four days at the Criterion, three less than a complete third week, and was succeeded yesterday by "The Set-Up."

"Joan of Arc" is likely to complete a 20th week at the Victoria with about $14,000, which is fair enough. "Casablanca," reissue at the Mayfair, should gross about $20,000 in a mild first week.

Hollywood, March 29.—The Protestant Film Commission will produce a minimum of 30 pictures, predominantly features, in the next two years, executive producer Paul F. Heard announces. A series of five features based on Democracy will be produced by Edward Nassour. Other themes to be dealt with are mental health, foreign missions, ministry, international relations, family life, church-and-community, the Bible in modern living, Christian Education.

Ask Court Switch in Auburn Trust Action

Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan reserved decision in U. S. District Court here yesterday on a defense motion calling for transfer of the Auburn Capital Theatre Corporation's $2,500,000 triple-damage anti-trust action against the Schine Circuit Corp. and major distributors to the Northern U. S. District Court in Utica, N. Y. The Auburn, N. Y., theatre plaintiff has charged conspiracy to deprive the Capital of product.

In opposing the motion, Milton Pollack, plaintiff's attorney, contended that under the new U. S. Code of Judicial and Judiciary Procedure, which became effective last September, action may be pursued in the District Court of the plaintiff's choice. Judge Ryan's ruling on the motion will settle a test case on that point, it is said.

Allow Intervention Appeal in Para. Suit

New York Federal Court yesterday allowed Partmar Corp. to take appeal to U. S. Supreme Court from the lower court's denial of a motion to intervene in the Paramount trust settlement. Consequently, attorneys John H. Amen and Russell Amen, for Partmar, will file a petition aiming to block the Paramount reorganization, or at least to partially upset it, with the Supreme Court.

Partmar, which operates the Paramount Theatre, Los Angeles, on lease from Paramount, charges that the Paramount decree allows the company to evict the plaintiff and this contravenes the Supreme Court decision in the industry trust suit.

Theatre 'Bank Night' Okayed in N. Mexico

SANTA FE, N. M., March 29.—Gov. Thomas J. Mabry has signed a bill legalizing "Bank Night" in New Mexico theatres.

The recent legislature passed the measure exempting "bona fide amusement establishments" from state laws banning lotteries. Theatres now may offer "prizes of cash or merchandise for advertising purposes . . . for the purpose of stimulating business."

based their decision to terminate their financial support of the awards feature on the grounds that "attaining Academy quality on the screen costs too much, due to the necessity of expensive retakes and other costly measures, and we are interested only in commercially successful product."

Hersholt had given indirect mention to "voices" crying out "we don't want Academy standards foisted upon us—we want to make commercial pictures, unhampered by considerations of artistic excellence" in his opening address at the Awards ceremony last Thursday night. Today he pointed out that the aggregate financial assistance supplied this year was $50,000 and asked how the industry could have secured comparable public relations benefits for that sum.

Hersholt said he had canvassed the matter thoroughly with Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America president, during the latter's recent visit here and asked him to arrange a meeting for him with company heads in New York. He pointed out his official connection with the Academy will be terminated by then and that, speaking as an individual free of contractural ties with all phases of the film industry, he will be in a position to speak plainly on the whole matter of East-West relations on the strength of his four years as Academy president and 12 as president of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. He expressed the hope that he can bring about a change in the decision by direct discussion but added that the Academy's many other activities are not affected and will continue operative as in the past.

000 for the next seven years. Additionally, it calls for a ceiling to be placed on further compensation to these executives, which has been estimated might reach a total of $1,750,000. The company also obtained from some officers and key executives stock options on common stock of 20th Century-Fox, of which National is a subsidiary. These options cover 18,500 shares of common at $22.50 per share and expire on Dec. 31, 1949.

Milton Pollack, general counsel for the suing stockholders, has indicated that he will present Justice Pecora's order in the near future in U. S. District Court here to arrange for dismissal of the stockholder actions pending against National, 20th-Fox and the four executives. A total of 15 individual suits were filed charging that Skouras under a stock option deal profited $4,281,250, that executives Elmer C. Rhoden and F. H. Ricketson, Jr., gained $1,027,000 each, and that executive Harold J. Fitzgerald profited by $513,000.

Justice Pecora complimented Demov, Pollack and other counsel connected with the case on their successful efforts to arrive at a settlement, and the jurist said that upon settlement of the order the court will pass upon requests for allowances for the attorneys.

would return the three per cent admission tax to the state and limit it to that figure. Ohio municipalities are now permitted to exercise admission tax authority.

Wood said that exhibitors, irrespective of where they operate, would be in a much safer position if the taxing power on admissions is left in the hands of the state rather than cities and other subdivisions.

"Up until this time we have been extremely fortunate in maintaining the three per cent rate, but we constantly face the danger of having some city or village increase the rate and find ourselves in the same position as scores of theatres in Pennsylvania, where local admission tax ordinances as high as 10 per cent have been enacted," Wood said.

Lichtman Calls

cities during which Lichtman and Andy W. Smith, Jr., vice-president in charge of 20th-Fox's distribution, will discuss with exhibitors the possibilities of developing a method of re-dividing the box-office dollar on a basis more favorable to their company. They hold this necessary to fortify production and as insurance bulwarking an uninterrupted flow of good films.

Calls Clearance 'Obsolete'

"We have failed to recognize that playing a picture in one first-run theatre in a city as large as Philadelphia and then putting it in camphor balls for 28 days after its downtown run before playing in the large neighborhood houses is an obsolete method," said Lichtman. "By the time it reaches the largest portion of the public in this city, many have lost interest in the picture and we fail to obtain maximum results for the exhibitor and ourselves.

"Also, the transportation problem has become acute in the larger cities and we have inflicted inconveniences on our patrons which has meant a loss of their business in our theatres. In Chicago the courts faced such a move and through simultaneous runs it has resulted in a tremendous increase in admissions for the vast majority of independents and circuits," he added.

Favors Sliding Scale

He continued: "Pictures find their own level of worth without the constant wrangling and bickering that is so prevalent in many places. It is my hope that in all theatres where it is worth while to play on a percentage basis the sliding scale will be adopted. However, the effectiveness of the sliding scale depends upon honest expense figures. In smaller situations, where the returns are small and operators barely eke out a living, we are always willing to serve him on flat rentals.

"We shall not be deterred from meeting exhibitors at grass-root levels by tirades from individuals who seek special privilege. This shortsighted attitude will only lead to their own destruction in the end because anything that is good for the industry is good for right-thinking men in it. We shall continue this policy of open discussion which is in the best American tradition."

Smith told the group 20th-Fox did an international gross of $84,000,000 in 1948 with a profit of $3,000,000 from distribution. The bulk of the profit, he continued, stems from theatre interests, a state of affairs which he interpreted as showing an unfair distribution of the box-office dollar and a need for substantial increases in film rentals. In order to maintain production at consistently high levels, he added, it is "vital" for distribution to have such an increase. He took the position that when an "occasional poor picture" turned up, it was the task of distribution and exhibition to bear "the burden" together.

Questions Combines' Methods

In a circumscribed attack on buying and booking combines, Smith observed: "We feel that the methods certain buying-and-booking combines employ in beating down film rentals produces unfair competition and places a premium on constructive effort—and penalizes the honest exhibitor who pays his just share."

Charles Einfeld, vice-president in charge of advertising-publicity, let go with a blast at Harry Brandt, president of ITOA of New York who is challenging 20th-Fox in its current move and who, on Monday, refused to attend a luncheon planned by the company for New York and New Jersey exhibitors in New York on Friday.

"I am impelled to call this meeting's attention to a handbill which is being circulated here by Mr. Kaplan, a paid employee of Harry Brandt of New York, in an effort to disrupt this friendly, democratic assembly in which we will attempt to labor for you certain problems which threaten the welfare of our great industry. We welcome this 'fellow traveler', for we assume he will be with us constantly as we travel across the width and breadth of this great land," he stated.

A Russian Trick

"This is a familiar trick at Lake Success. Commissars Gromyko and Vishinsky have evidently taught Harry Brandt how to take a walk. It's a corny trick and we are wise to it.

"As regards the New York meeting which Mr. Brandt is picketing in Philadelphia, let me say this: We had long since planned this New York meeting, which will be held this coming Friday. Mr. Brandt knew about the meeting last Saturday and we expect a large attendance of New York and New Jersey exhibitors. I think we know something about propaganda—its techniques—and how it can be used to becloud true issues and character. We have all seen it at work and the only way to combat it is through honesty and integrity of purpose. Mr. Brandt is 'crying wolf' and there isn't a man in this room who isn't wise to him. But, as a man who has the best interests of this industry at heart, I must say that I'm shocl that the very men who have so lc suffered the unfairness of picket li and boycotts and censorship could sort to these tactics.

"If this is the method which seric businessmen use to meet the vital iss confronting this industry today, I s to them—'you are being misled' anc warn them that this type of behav will destroy whatever public co dence they may enjoy.

PROTECTING THE THEATRE—FIRST PLACE IN ENTERTAINMEN

Quota Fight

State Department action against the British quota:

1—The Motion Picture Association of America had 20 California Congressmen to dinner, where MPAA President Eric Johnston and IATSE Vice-president Roy Brewer outlined the plight of the film industry abroad, specially in Britain.

2—Senators who have asked the State Department what action is being taken on the quota situation indicated they are growing restless at the lack of response. Work is continuing on amendments to be offered to the ECA bill or to later legislation to hit back at the British.

3—Brewer and Kenneth Thomson of the Screen Actors Guild were circulating around the Capitol, "button-holing" Congressmen and Senators on the British situation.

Brewer and Thomson are here to also urge upon William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, full AFL support of the film industry in dealing with trade problems abroad, Brewer said. Green is expected here on Thursday.

Brewster, in his Senate speech today, cited last week's Academy Award for the British-made "Hamlet" "as another example of the American motion picture industry's consistently fair-minded attitude toward the film industries of other nations." He reminded the Senate that the American film industry had never asked for barriers here against foreign films—"America is now and always has been a free market for the motion pictures of the world."

The film habit in Great Britain, Brewster said, can largely be traced to American films. "The British government can legislate foreign-made films out of Britain," he continued, "but they cannot legislate their own people into the box-office for British films."

The Maine republican, who had a lengthy conversation with M-G-M studio head Louis B. Mayer when the latter was here last week, said that the British quota cannot be defended on fiscal grounds, nor on the grounds of protection, since it does not really aid the British film industry nor the British economy in general.

Krim Reports

of over $3,000,000 is expected from "Tulsa," Walter Wanger's production.

Actual shooting at the E-L studios in Hollywood will resume in two or three weeks, Krim stated, as soon as scripts which have been in preparation for some time, are completed. First pictures to go before the cameras will be two Bryan Foy productions, "Port of New York" and "Trapped." Also being readied for filming is an untitled Mack Sennett feature, which will combine a contemporary script and story with historical "vintage" sequences of Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields, Sennett's bathing beauties and the Keystone Cops.

Additional scripts being readied for shooting soon are: "Marker X," "The World and Little Willie," "Twelve Against the Underworld" and "Wyoming Mail."

On his return to the studio, Krim plans to resume immediate negotiations with independent producers for release of their films by E-L. Several deals which have been under discussion will probably be completed within the next few weeks, he said.

SPG Negotiations

a follow-up of Monday's joint strategy meeting between SPG and its sister union, the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, will be brought to the full membership of SPG early next week for ratification, the latter union reported. It was said that an SPG meeting will probably be held the evening of the next negotiation meeting with the companies, thus giving the membership "the opportunity of discussing fully the latest position taken by management."

Plans outlined at yesterday's meeting include the "possibility of bringing the union's side of the story to the public on the broadest scale yet attempted, if necessary," the SPG declared.

Continued the union: "While responsible leadership of the guild stressed that they were in no way eager to break off negotiations with the companies, the feeling of those meeting yesterday was that the union is no longer willing to accept equivocal, evasive tactics from management."

Eloquent 'Red Pony'

By JUSTIN GILBERT.

A boy-and-animal picture must be told with utter sincerity. It is too easy, you know, to depict a kid as a maudlin moppet pining over his mute friend.

Lewis Milestone scrupulously shunned sugar for salt in his Technicolor production of John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony," at the Mayfair. His is a simple, wholesome, straightforward story of a boy's love for a horse and how its loss affects him.

This could have been a tear-tinctured opus, but it concentrates on details of ranch life, showing its lusty joy and dusty despair, in hard living, lightened by things unknown to most city dwellers.

The joy of the lad when he is given the pony is made eloquent and his grief at its loss poignantly comprehensible.

A wonderful little actor, Peter Miles, is surounded by a sterling cast in Robert Mitchum, Louis Calhern, Myrna Loy and Sheperd Strudwick. Mitchum is wonderful here, completely at home as a ranch hand. He brings Billy Buck to life. That "great" of the legitimate theatre, Louis Calhern, is superb as the garrulous grandpa who crossed the plains in covered wagons. A master of theatrics, he doesn't miss a chance. Myrna and Strudwick contribute to the warmth and charm of the film.

But young Miles is the one remembered as Tom of "Red Pony," a sweet-faced youngster who, without the usual juvenile film pathos, wins your heart and tears.

'Oscars' Still Have Majors' Moral Support

Deny Commercialism, Say Awards Need Not End

Major companies will continue to give their "moral support" and encouragement to the idea of making awards of merit for superior achievements in motion pictures, but will no longer make "deficit contributions" for the financing of ceremonies at which such awards are presented, ranking executives of five companies said yesterday.

Their statement, subscribed to by Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's president; Barney Balaban, Paramount president; Spyros Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president; Albert Warner, vice-president of Warner Bros., and Ned E. Depinet, RKO president, followed a statement issued in Hollywood yesterday by Jean Hersholt, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences, disclosing that company financial support of the awards ceremonies was being ended.

Whereas Hersholt implied that the Selznick Sees Rise In Picture Tastes

Tastes of the motion picture public are rising and greater support is being given to finer films, David O. Selznick declared yesterday in an address to the 40th anniversary conference of the National Board of Review, at the Hotel McAlpin here.

In explaining why the trend toward finer films has not been more rapid, Selznick pointed out that "productions

New England Allied Elects Ford, Pinanski

Boston, March 30.—Meeting of Allied Theatres of New England held today elected John J. Ford, chairman of board and Sam Pinanski president. Elected to the executive board were Charles Kuntzman of Loew's theatre; Ben Domingo, RKO Theatres; Martin J. Mullin, New England Theatres; Al Somerby, Lothrop Theatres.

Max Millincroft was elected vice-chairman and Stanley Summer treasurer.

Mullin was appointed to the legislative committee as chairman.

F. & M. Sues Para. On Joint Ownership

Fanchon and Marco, Paramount partner in the operation of the Paramount Theatre, Hollywood, yesterday filed an $850,000 treble-damage action in New York Federal Court against Paramount, charging that the terms of the joint ownership contract are in violation of the U. S. anti-trust laws.

John H. Amen, counsel for the plaintiff, said here that he intends to rely substantially on that portion of the U. S. Supreme Court's opinion in the industry anti-trust suit which held partnerships with other exhibitors to be illegal.

The complaint sets forth that Paramount charged "excessive and unreasonable fees" in licensing its prod-

British Quota Cut Is a 'Meaningless Gesture,' Says MPA

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The Motion Picture Association of America said today that the 5 per cent cut in the British film quota was "obviously a meaningless gesture, and removes neither the cause of the British industry's crisis nor the discrimination against American films."

The MPAA statement, the first official reaction to the British quota cut, was given to a meeting of California members of the House of Representatives by Joyce O'Hara, executive assistant to MPAA president Eric A. Johnston.

O'Hara said that the British Labor Party's action upping the quota from 20 per cent to 45 per cent, "done at the insistence of British producers even though they had not been able to meet a quota less than half that

Calif. Solons In Mass Drive Against Quota

7-Man Congress Group Slates Top Gov't Talks

WASHINGTON, March 30.—California members of the House of Representatives today appointed a seven-man committee to meet with Secretary of State Dean Acheson and other top government officials in an attempt to get government action to force the British to cut their screen quota back to the old 20 per cent figure.

This has apparently become the immediate objective of the industry. Action on the remittance freeze and the $17,000,000 yearly limit has been postponed until something is done about the new 40 per cent quota. Complete elimination of the quota apparently does not enter the plans at all.

The action of the House California

Re-elect All RKO Officers

Ned E. Depinet, president, and all other officers of RKO, were re-elected by the board of directors at a meeting here yesterday, Depinet announced.

Other officers are: Malcolm Kingsberg, John M. Whitaker and Gordon E. Youngman, vice-presidents; J. Miller Walker, secretary; Garrett Van Wagner, comptroller; William H. Clark, treasurer; Kenneth B. Umbreit and William F. Whitman, assistant secretaries; O. R. McMahon, H. E. Newcomb, T. F. O'Connor and A. E. Reoch, assistant treasurers.

Detroit Exhibitors Hit Plan to Raise Rentals

DETROIT, March 30.—The proposal being made by 20th Century-Fox to increase rentals was criticized today by Detroit theatre owners.

The Detroit opposition came on the heels of the announcement by Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox vice-president, that higher film rentals would correct a "lopsided" condition in which producers are struggling to break even.

"Fox is really killing the goose that laid the golden egg," declared Sam Carver, vice-president of the local Independent Theatre Owners and president of Detroit Consolidated Theatres.

"There are more than 12,000 theatres in the country with seating capacities averaging 500 which will suf-

First Quarter Tops Any Republic Year

Hollywood, March 30.—Business for the first quarter tops any previous year in the company's history, James R. Grainger, Republic executive vice-president, said upon his arrival here today from a tour of exchanges. Box office is steadily improving, he added.

N. Y. Variety Has 500 Applications

New York Variety Club, barely functioning as yet and with clubrooms still in the making, already has 200 applications for membership and 300 applications for transfers of members from Variety Tents in other cities. Under Variety rules a member must belong to the tent of his home city. Applications are being received by New York Variety at its new offices in the Hotel Astor.

Youngstein Pledges All-Out Bond Drive

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30.—Max E. Youngstein, chairman of the motion picture industry's advertising-publicity committee cooperating in the U. S. Treasury's savings bond drive, today pledged the government a campaign "equalling the most effective of the wartime bond drives, with full use of industry manpower from every branch of exhibition, production, distribution and advertising-publicity," according to a Treasury Department statement.

Addressing a group of film, government and industrial executives meeting at the Hotel Muehlebach here, Youngstein, who is Eagle-Lion's advertising-publicity vice-president, promised on behalf of the industry to set up bond premieres in key situations across the country; "name" stars for the "Covered Wagon Bond Caravan"; a special short subject; newsreel coverage, and other means of making the American public aware of the bond drive which runs from May 15 to June 30, the Treasury statement continued.

Youngstein emphasized that the film industry is participating in the campaign at the specific request of the Secretary of the Treasury, because of general recognition that the industry's technique of showmanship combined with information and selling programs are necessary for a successful drive, the Treasury continued.

Among those present at today's meeting were Elmer Rhoden, president, Fox Midwest Theatres, representing the industry in the Midwest; Senn Lawler, Rhoden's assistant; Earl Shackelford, state director, U. S. Savings Bonds Division for Missouri, and others.

Testimonial Tonight For Retiring Condon

John F. Condon, sales vice-president of Warner's reclamation plant, Film Cellulose, Inc., will be honored at a testimonial dinner by his associates tonight, upon the occasion of his retirement from the company after 32 years of service. Condon joined Vitagraph in 1917 as purchasing agent, and joined Warner Brothers in his recent capacity when the company took over Vitagraph in 1925.

The dinner will be held in the Brass Rail Restaurant, Brooklyn, with Joseph M. Spray, vice-president of Ace Film Laboratories, as master-of-ceremonies, and Herman Rottser as chairman.

Baltimore Dinner Honors Mechanic

BALTIMORE, March 30.—State and Congressional representatives, newspaper publishers and trade press representatives will be present tomorrow night at a dinner at the Belvedere Hotel in celebration of the 20th anniversary of Morris Mechanic as an exhibitor.

Following the dinner, the 20th Century-Fox production, "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," will have its world premiere at the New Theatre.

323 Houses Pledge Cancer Collections

BOSTON, March 30.—Nearly 100 of the industry in New England attended a luncheon at the Copley Plaza Hotel here yesterday as guests of Marty Mullin, chairman of the 1949 drive for the Children's Cancer Research Foundation. The gathering endorsed the drive and volunteered its cooperation to Mullin.

Mullin announced that during the past 24 hours, 323 New England theatres have pledged audience collections.

J. Searle Dawley, 71, Pioneer Director

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—J. Searle Dawley, director of early Edison films and associated with Famous Players, in its earliest days, died here yesterday at the age of 71.

Dawley entered the motion picture industry with Thomas Edison in 1907, shooting scenes in a Manhattan loft, and moving from there to a studio in the Bronx. He retired in 1938.

Pathe Industries, Inc., yesterday omitted its usual cumulative four per cent preferred dividend. The last payment was $1.00 on Jan. 3.

Jay Gove, 71, MGM Research Director

Funeral services for Jay Gove, 71, director of M-G-M sales research here, will be held at the Walter B. Cooke West 72nd Street Funeral Parlor tomorrow evening. Burial will be private.

Gove died suddenly yesterday morning at his home here from thrombosis. He had had several heart attacks in recent years and returned to his office on Tuesday from a rest of several days.

Entering the newspaper field early in life, he worked in many cities. He entered the motion picture industry as the first advertising manager of Fox Film Corp. He was later assistant general manager of the old Realart Pictures and sales manager for Associated Exhibitors and First National. He joined M-G-M in 1927 with the advent of short subject production and distribution, as sales development manager. Gove established a yard-stick for the measurement and comparison of box-office grosses of M-G-M pictures and in recent years he had compiled an analysis of theatre attendance which he hoped some day to publish in book form.

The widow, Inez Faralla Gove, survives.

Eastern Division Wins Realart Sales Drive

The "Budd Rogers Silver Jubilee Sales Drive," Realart Pictures' first sales campaign, has been won by the Eastern division. First spot went to Bob Synder and Manny Stutz of the Cleveland exchange. Second went to Bernie Mills of the Washington exchange, managed by Fred Sandy. In addition to winning first and second prizes, Cleveland and Washington will participate with Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New York and Boston in the overall prize for the winning division.

The Western division came in second, with Jack Zide winning first place, Henri Elman of Chicago winning second place. The third place Southern division was topped by Lee Goldberg's Cincinnati exchange, and the runner-up was George Phillips' and Herman Gorelick's St. Louis exchange. Cincinnati won first position nationally.

Mrs. Anna Stickerling

Funeral services will be held this morning in Jersey City for Mrs. Anna Stickerling, mother of Walter Stickerling of the RKO Radio home office. Mrs. Stickerling died Monday.

'Oscars'

awards financing was being withdrawn because the companies were more interested in commercially successful films than artistic achievements, the five company executives asserted that "The companies should not be in the position where they can be accused of subsidizing an artistic and cultural forum," as they have often been accused in the past.

Donated $50,000

Their statement also asserted that withdrawal of their "subsidy" from awards ceremonies does not preclude future Academy Awards being voted for superior achievements. The companies are reported to have donated $50,000 to finance the awards ceremonies last week.

Following is the statement of the five company executives:

"We intend to continue our moral support of the idea of making awards of merit for superior achievements in motion pictures. We shall, moreover, encourage additional awards based upon high standards of artistic worth and democratic selection.

"We shall continue our financial support of the original functions of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in technical fields, but we shall no longer provide for the ceremonies attending the annual awards of 'Oscars' by deficit contributions.

Deny 'Commercialism'

"It will be readily understood that this step is not a commercialistic one, but is in the interest of less commercialization. The companies, as companies, were never members of the Academy. It is an organization composed of individual artists and craftsmen in the industry. The companies should not be in the position where they can be accused of subsidizing an artistic and cultural forum. In fact, they so have been accused often in the past.

"We are heartily in accord with the principle of individuals in the industry democratically selecting the best in artistic achievement, if they wish to do so, and it is in the interest of this principle that we take this step to remove one source of accusation.

"It does not follow that our action in ceasing to pay the deficits of the annual 'Oscar' ceremonies precludes future Academy Awards or tends to discourage other distinctions for film attainment.

"Our decision was reached last autumn, and Mr. Hersholt and his executive board were notified on December 16, 1948, before any voting had begun on the year's annual awards, that the companies no longer would meet the deficits.

"We believe these selections should be free of any suspicion of company influence or of particular considerations that might sway the ballotting.

"The artistic standards of our industry are not dependent on this annual competition. The integrity of the artist is the determining factor, and there is always the safeguard of the demands of public taste and critical standards. There are many awards by many groups for which the creative talent of our industry can strive."

Review

"The Fan"

(20th Century-Fox)

PRIMARILY of interest to adult audiences, and even they may find its subject matter archaic and on the old-fashioned side, "The Fan" actually is Oscar Wilde's famed "Lady Windermere's Fan."

It is 24 years since the late Ernst Lubitsch produced Warner's silent version of the play with its flair for the epigrammatic. The new one, produced and directed by Otto Preminger, indulges in a bit of streamlining seeking to bridge the post-war with Victorian London, scene of the play.

An aged Madeleine Carroll is claiming a fan at an auction of bombed-out belongings. To establish her claim, she must be verified. This leads to an equally aged George Sanders whose memory requires considerable jogging. The jogging is the device by which Miss Carroll discards approximately four decades in order to get into the actual story of Lady Windermere and her fan.

It is the story of Miss Carroll, an attractive adventuress who maneuvers her unwanted way into the inner sanctums of Mayfair society through a hold on Richard Greene, the Lord Windermere who is married to Jeanne Crain. Greene sets up Miss Carroll in a town house with full trimmings while his circle gossips, thinks the worst and makes certain the rumblings reach Miss Crain. The situation is almost enough to break up the Windermere household and accelerate Miss Crain into Sanders' waiting arms. But Miss Carroll, who audiences know by this time is Miss Crain's adventuress-mother, salvages the situation in a pivotal scene at Sanders' apartment where she claims her daughter's fan for her own, saves the marriage and adds further tarnish to her own reputation. Thereafter she leaves England, her identity to her own daughter never divulged.

The pace is leisurely. The performances are generally competent, but rather studied, perhaps consciously so in order to keep them in the period mood of the piece. Some of the original Wilde epigrams—known as wisecracks nowadays—filter through but are not present in any profusion. Charming Miss Carroll and attractive Miss Crain have one especially strong emotional scene together. Martita Hunt, as the Duchess of Berwick, is well nigh perfect in her role. Production values are splendid and in excellent taste. Walter Reisch, Dorothy Parker and Ross Evans combined efforts on the screenplay.

Running time, 79 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

claims for "the average independent theatre owner."

"We know that the average independent exhibitor has paid, and is now paying through the nose, about all the traffic will bear," Zorn writes. He warns exhibitors not to take the 20th-Fox campaign "too lightly," asserting that "they have hired the talent and they expect to do the job." He contends that exhibition is earning "only 11 per cent" on its investment, even on the basis of 20th-Fox's own figure of $200,000,000 of net profit for all theatres in 1948.

"Certainly," Zorn concludes, "an exhibitor should pay a fair price for a picture, but you must know your limits."

uct to the theatre on an exclusive contract.

In a separate action now pending, Partmar Corp., an F. and M. subsidiary which actually operates the house, is seeking to intervene in the industry suit on the charge that Paramount, as lessor, is insisting upon evicting the company.

Plaintiff states that it collects five per cent of the gross for maintaining the theatre with earnings beyond that shared equally. Also sought is an injunction on Paramount's continued 50 per cent interest.

Blast Rental Plan

fer if they have to pay a higher percentage on each picture they show."

"Ultimately, the Fox deal would lead to raising prices to Mr. and Mrs. Moviegoer and that would mean a drop in business," he maintained.

Joseph Uvick, president of Allied Theatres of Michigan, asserted in a bulletin sent to exhibitors that, "Fox is not satisfied with an agreed percentage of your box-office receipts," referring to a sliding scale of rentals being discussed by 20th-Fox executives at regional exhibitor meetings.

Higher Admission Prices

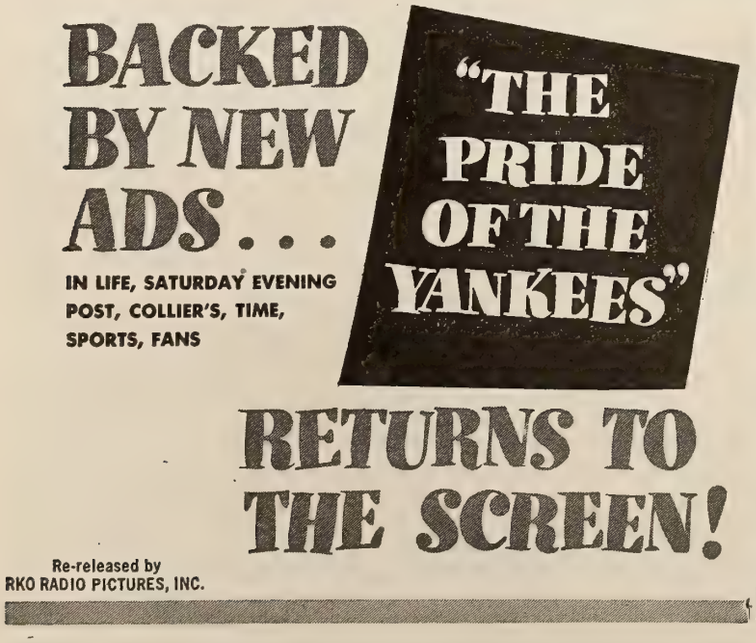
He also agreed that Fox's plan would lead to higher admission prices.

"Distributors cannot now legally force us to raise prices to our customers," Uvick contended. "The Supreme Court stopped that, but," he added, "that can be circumvented so that we will be compelled to do it for them, instead.

"All that is necessary is that the distributor charge us 15, 25 or 50 cents per seat, and hocus-pocus the admission price must go up, because we cannot sell for less than we buy," Uvick continued, referring to another proposal by the distributor providing for a fixed charge for each person who patronizes a picture.

Industry Needs Volume

"The back-bone of this industry is volume at lower and still lower admissions. To get greater revenue is to sell at less to more and more people. The Goldwyns, Selznicks, and other apostles of higher prices," or 20th-Fox vice-presidents Andy W. Smith, Jr., Charles Einfeld and Lichtman, "notwithstanding, are all wrong, always trying to sell for more. The usual ballyhoo may bring them in, but it's the exhibitor who sees them coming out with a realization that they have over-paid, and his is the direct responsibility," Uvick stated.



Uvick along with other exhibitors in this area welcomed the announcement of a tour by the three 20th-Fox executives to confer with exhibitors and their associations but he said he hopes that they keep in mind their own admission that "too many people in and outside the industry are given to panning the motion picture business."

Drive Against Quota

delegation came after the British situation was reviewed for them by MPAA representative Joyce O'Hara and IATSE vice-president Roy Brewer. Brewer told the representatives that Hollywood studio employment was 40 per cent below the levels of 1942 through 1945 and 1947, and was practically back to 1937 figures.

Other Capitol developments on the British tax were:

1—Senator Knowland, California Republican who started the ball rolling last week, took the industry's case to Presidential assistant John Steelman. Knowland stressed the employment aspects of the case to Steelman, who handles labor problems for the President. Knowland as yet has received no response from the State Department in answer to his demand for information as to government action on the British quota.

Won't Amend Pending Bill

2—Knowland admitted that amendments being discussed to hit back at the British probably would not be ready to offer to either the pending ECA bill or the up-coming reciprocal trade agreements extender. If they are finally offered, he indicated, they will probably be as amendments to a much later ECA appropriations bill.

3—Brewer and Screen Actors Guild secretary Kenneth Thomson continued to call on officials and legislators. Brewer hopes to line up official AFL backing for State Department quota action tomorrow when he meets with AFL president William Green. He may also try to reach Steelman and other officials tomorrow and Friday.

The bi-partisan committee appointed by the California House delegation will be headed by Rep. Cecil King and will include representatives Sheppard, McKinnon, Holifield, Hinshaw, McDonough and Jackson. They probably will meet with MPAA president Eric A. Johnston and other MPAA officials tomorrow or Friday, before starting their calls on Acheson and other government officials.

British Quota Cut

figure," had "undermined confidence in the whole British film industry, brought protests from the exhibitors who relied on American pictures for their theatres, caused studios to be shut down, and threw thousands of people out of work. In spite of the chaos in the British industry resulting from the 45 per cent quota, the British government's only answer is to propose to reduce the quota now by only 5 per cent."

The MPAA insisted that it did not want its fight on the British quota to interfere in any way with the ECA or reciprocal trade programs. Several legislators have been talking about amendments to the ECA or Reciprocal Trade Act to hit back at the British.

O'Hara reviewed the history of British-American film relations for the California members. He stressed that America is a completely free market for foreign films, and said U. S. producers believed that the motion picture as a medium of expression should have the widest opportunities for exchange among the peoples of the world.

"An entirely contrary point of view prevails in many other areas of the world, notably in Great Britain, which has adopted various restrictive devices discriminating against American films," he declared. "This British policy has been stepped up constantly in intensity since the war."

O'Hara reminded the Congressmen of the 75 per cent "confiscatory" tax, and stressed the American industry's willingness to work out an arrangement which would conserve British dollars and assure Britain an adequate supply of films. The March, 1948, agreement removing the tax but limiting American remittances to $17,000,000 a year was regarded as a mutually satisfactory accord on both sides of the Atlantic, he said, "and it was felt that a new era of mutual understanding and better relations was to begin. This hope was short-lived. Hardly had the agreement gone into effect when the British government adopted another drastic restriction on American films."

without making hysteria," Warner said in his statement covering the company's program. "We know the motion picture market is what the public makes it. And we knew that we were not going to meet the public's demand by reducing our resources. So we increased them. We have doubled our star list and the list of stories for the program ahead." Marlene Dietrich will join Jane Wyman in "Stage Fright," to be directed in England by Alfred Hitchcock.

The eight pictures which will launch the new Warner production schedule and their starting dates are: "White Heat," first to star James Cagney, April 11; "Always Sweethearts," April 11; "Barricade," April 11; "Chain Lightning," April 18; "Beyond the Forest," April 25; "Return of the Frontiersman," April 25; "The Miami Story," May 2, and "Perfect Strangers," May 9.

Other properties on the forthcoming schedule are: "Women Without Men," "Always Leave Them Laughing," "The Candy Kid Levels," "Back to Broadway," "The Glass Menagerie."

In addition, 25 other stories are in preparation for filming and casting.

Sees Rise in Tastes

must play to millions to get costs back" and, therefore, must appeal to the lowest common denominator. He said that "unless films are successful, they can't afford to be made, and this is doubly true today" because banks have tightened up and costs are tremendous. Hollywood pictures, Selznick continued, "must appeal to all ages, groups and tastes." Selznick cited the granting of the Academy Award to "Hamlet" as an indication of improving tastes. A year ago he said "you could not convince exhibitors and distributors that it would be such a success."

Another speaker, Gilbert Seldes, said that people between the ages of 20 and 30 go to motion pictures less than they did before, and after 30 they go very seldom. He advised the making of pictures that are more "mature and intelligent" to recapture the vanishing audience.

Richard Griffith, executive secretary of the National Board, revealed that a postcard ballot conducted by the board showed that "a wide variety of film choices is the principal desire."

DETROIT FREE PRESS calls it "Great stuff"

STAR GAZING

'The Red Pony' Meets Family Picture Tests

BY HELEN BOWER

GREAT STUFF for the family is on the United Artists Theater screen in the Technicolor adaptation of John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony."

Here is the basic appeal of "The Yearling," a boy's love for an animal and the character-building he gains from the experience.

Here, too, is an adult's struggle to adjust to unfamiliar ranch life and the effort of a man and wife to save their marriage.

Finally, at the other extreme of life, is the old grandfather who must avoid being tiresome with his reminiscences as wagon-train leader across the plains.

Lewis Milestone's expert direction has produced an easy, authentic picture of home and family life, beautifully photographed.

Effective and unusual background music has been composed by the modern, Aaron Copland.

Steinbeck wrote his own screen play, faithful to the original.

STARRED ARE Myrna Loy and Robert Mitchum, respectively the mother of young Tom Tiflin (Peter Miles) and Billy, the ranch hand who is Tom's hero.

Louis Calhern calls forth all his subtleties of characterization as the aged sire with white hair and mustaches a la Buffalo Bill.

Shepperd Strudwick works out of unhappiness and irritability as Fred Tiflin, Tom's father, who feels at first as if he were a stranger on his own ranch.

IN SIMPLE outline, Tom is given a red pony. Billy teaches him to care for it.

Tom teaches Gabilan, the pony, to unlatch a barn door, a trick that leads to tragedy and Tom's loss of faith in Billy.

Nothing in "The Yearling" was more stirring than Tom's fight with the buzzard he drives from his pony's dead body.

VERY MUCH a boy, yet giving his scenes full acting value and adding a quaint maturity, Peter Miles puts his heart into his role.

He isn't as touching as Claude Jarman, Jr. Neither is he supposed to be a backwoods or Florida "hammock" country lad.

Mitchum puts a quality of confidence and gentle strength into his portrayal of Billy. There is a quiet goodness that could hardly register as it does if the man didn't have it somewhere deep inside.

Miss Loy does less well than the others. Her distress is lifelessly dull. Up to the final scene she moves like an automaton.

WITHOUT USING cartoon sequences, "The Red Pony" also has the element of fantasy Walt Disney introduced less successfully in "So Dear to My Heart."

Two scenes early in the picture rise with natural charm out of the imagination of a young boy.

Logically, as Tom acquires a real interest in his pony, he lives less in his dream world.

On all counts "The Red Pony" can be recommended to the movie-goer of any age.

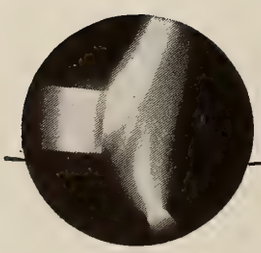
How bright can a drive-in screen be?



Use "National" Super-High Intensity Carbons and see!

THESE jumbo screens used in big, drive-in theatres require projection light of terrific brilliance. Otherwise, your patrons can't get that bright-screen sparkle they are used to in first-run, conventional theatres. They have to squint to see.

Give your patrons vivid, easy-to-see pictures by using "National" Super-High Intensity carbons in your drive-in theatre. These carbons give you brighter light than any other source of projection light obtainable. And, because "National" Super-High Intensity carbons produce light of almost perfect color balance, your color movies glow with rich detail.

The slight extra cost of "National" Super-High Intensity carbons is negligible when you consider the advantages in audience approval and bigger box office. Write for complete details.

20th's Rental Terms to NY Owners Today

Executives Make Fourth Stop in National Tour

Heralded by a week-long exchange of "opinions" between theatre owners and exhibitor organizations on the one hand and key sales executives of 20th Century-Fox on the other, the company's New York exhibitor luncheon-meeting for a general discussion of rentals and other industry problems, will get underway at noon today at the Hotel Astor here. The meeting will be the fourth in a nationwide "grass roots" tour by 20th-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld, in the company's declared campaign for "more equitable" rental terms for its product.

They have already told exhibitors that (a) the production end of the business will be in jeopardy financially if exhibition does not accept the thesis that slicing of profits should be more

New Financing for Independents

Arrangements have been completed by Filmicas, S.A., jointly controlled by American and Mexican interests, to finance independent producers in making "A"-type English-speaking films in Mexico with top stars, for worldwide release, it was announced here yesterday by Milton Gladstone, New York attorney, who is representing the company.

Filmicas plans to finance a minimum of 10 features annually. Contracts have been signed for the first and agreements are expected to be concluded shortly for three others. The first will be Seymour Nebenzal's production of "M." John Brahm will di-

New British Quota Approved by Lords, Despite Criticism

LONDON, March 31.—The House of Lords today approved the new 40 per cent film quota with mild debate and less pointed criticism than accompanied the quota's approval by Commons last night.

Lord Lucas, government spokesman, said that the position of Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, on the quota is something like that of a man with a drunken wife, everybody knows what to do with her except the man who's got her.

Lucas said the salvation of the Brit-

Television Contract Approved by NTFC

The new standard exhibition contract of the National Television Film Council was approved here last night by the organization's membership at a meeting in the Fifth Avenue Brass Rail Restaurant here. Leaving negotiable the rates to be charged for telecasting of films, the contract sets forth in specific terms the respective responsibilities of television stations and film distributors when product is bought or rented.

Stipulated in the NTFC pact are provisions taking into account musical performing rights, warranties, availabilities, print deliveries, payment of license fees, runs and clearances, etc.

Presiding at last night's meeting was Mel Gold, NTFC president. J. A. Maurer, vice-president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, addressed the meeting on "Films and Television."

Film Labor Confers With Truman Today

Washington, March 31.—Four labor representatives of the film industry will confer tomorrow noon with President Truman on the current fight against British quota restrictions. Roy Brewer and Kenneth Thomson, sent here by the Hollywood AFL Film Council, will be joined by Ronald Reagan and Richard Walsh, presidents of the Screen Actors Guild and IATSE, respectively.

Balaban Clarifies Circuit Asset Sale

All proceeds from Paramount's sale of its interests in seven of its principal partnership circuits will accrue to the new United Paramount Theatres, Barney Balaban, president of the corporation, disclosed yesterday in a new letter to stockholders which for the most part points up the advantages, and offers further explanation of the plan of reorganization.

Balaban calls attention to the fact that the proxy statement which was released on March 7 did not state that transactions involving the seven circuits are excluded in computing the amounts to be divided between United Paramount Theatres and the new Paramount Pictures Co. He added that an addition will be made to the text of the plan of reorganization to cover the point.

The circuits, proceeds from the sale of interests in which will go to the new theatre company, are: Interstate Circuit, Texas Consolidated Theatres,

To Hold Action Pending Atlantic Pact Signing

WASHINGTON, March 31.—MPAA president Eric A. Johnston today took the industry's fight on the British quota to Under-Secretary of State James Webb.

Johnston has a lengthy interview with Webb, outlining the industry's foreign plight, with emphasis on the British situation.

One piece of advice that Johnston handed out after the meeting to Congressmen and industry officials fighting the quota was to let things slide until the middle of next week, after the excitement on the North Atlantic pact-signing subsides.

Johnston indicated that the Con-

He represented 20th-Fox president Spyros P. Skouras and distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr. The premiere was staged in conjunction with a testimonial dinner at the Belvedere Hotel for Morris Mechanic, operator of the New Theatre, on his 25th anniversary in exhibition.

Bill Would Penalize Subversive Films

Washington, March 31.—Rep. Cavalcante, Pennsylvania Democrat, today introduced a bill to make it a crime to "prepare, print, edit, issue, circulate, sell, distribute, publicly display, bring into the U. S. or send out of the U. S." as part of a plan to overthrow the government any written or printed matter or any motion picture which "tends to incite contempt for the government of the U. S.," or any officer or employee of the government. The penalty would be a fine up to $10,000 and/or up to 10 years in jail.

By RED KANN

THOSE five Oscars captured by "Hamlet" in Hollywood last week will add a handsome decorative note to the J. Arthur Rank and Universal-International offices, of course. But the best guess is that the high brass in both organiztaions is getting as big, or bigger, a bang from scanning the receipts. Out of 96 American engagements, the net film rental is understood to have exceeded $1,300,000. It could go to $10,000,000 in five years as U-I happily calculates it.

There is a long history to be recorded about this Shakespearean film. Interesting, too. For instance, U-I originally contemplated the art-type of theatre as its best outlet. So, also, did a number of reviewers, including this one. But unusual grosses in early dates began to attract circuit attention, with the result that "Hamlet" is making a very nice dent in conventional exhibition at $2.40 top, evenings. To wit and in part:

Los Angeles: 23 weeks at the Four Star, a Fox West Coast house; Chicago: 17 weeks at B. and K's Apollo; Philadelphia: 11 weeks at Warner's Aldine; Cleveland: 10 weeks at Loew's Ohio; Dallas: two weeks at Interstate's Tower; Champaign, Ill.: two weeks at the RKO Orpheum; Bridgeport, Conn.: nine days at Loew's Lyric; Dayton, O.: one week at the RKO Dayton, then moves over.

The experience at the Park Avenue Theatre here in New York is a chapter of its own. There the attraction has weathered weather, anti-British picketing, an isolated theatre location and whatever else might have been going on along Broadway. Now in its seventh month, the first three were sell-outs. During-the-week matinees then shrank and the house ran along at about 85 per cent of capacity.

Last weekend's figures indicate to the distributor that the Park Avenue engagement, and the other 17 bookings around the country, will derive an average increase of about 23 per cent as a consequence of the Academy Awards. Not the least of them is the fact that "Hamlet" is the first non-Hollywood-made production ever to have captured the best-picture prize.

Today at U-I they are taking the position that their experience indicates a place in the mass medium of motion pictures for classic works brought to the screen with boldness and imagination and merchandised for what they are rather than for what the distributor thinks may lure patrons to the box-office. "Hamlet" is being sold strictly as Shakespeare, but there has been no neglect of the basic precepts of showmanship. Twenty men continue in the field, selling The Bard and Olivier to the masses and helping exhibitors sell tickets.

Regardless of where one may stand on the merits of demerits of the issue, there is no room for argument over the right of 20th Century-Fox to present its position in open forum. Nor is there room for argument over the right of any theatre group to present its position against a re-allocation of the box-office dollar in favor of the distributor in the same or any other open forum. This is nothing more than exercise of a democratic principle.

However, when a representative of the ITOA of New York seeks to pre-determine the viewpoints of exhibitors in another city—Philadelphia—by circulating, in advance of a luncheon they have decided to attend, copies of paid advertising voicing ITOA's opposition, it becomes a case of very small potatoes.

It may be safely assumed members of the New York exhibitor unit would be the first to deplore it if some individual, or some group, distributed handouts on whatever point may be at issue in front of their theatres.

If a principle is correct, it works in all directions and applies under all conditions. Expediency is no excuse.

Here is an enlightened approach to the vexatious, argument-provoking question over price. Charles P. Skouras, officially on behalf of National Theatres: "We don't want to abuse any producer, large or small. The number of independent producers has shrunk alarmingly, and we must take heed of this situation as indicating what may happen. They have produced pictures and are entitled to a square deal. Don't mistreat good film."

Sees Safety Film Replacing Standard

Rochester, N. Y., March 31. —A new type of 35mm. safety film for the professional field, which was introduced here in 1948 by Eastman Kodak, and which is now being manufactured in rising volume, is expected to replace the present inflammable standard nitrate stock within a few years. This was disclosed yesterday in the company's annual report to stockholders.

'Tulsa' Premiere Set by Youngstein

TULSA, Okla., March 31.—Final wrap-up of plans for the premiere of Walter Wanger's "Tulsa," scheduled for the Ritz and Orpheum Theatres here on April 13, was accomplished here today by Max E. Youngstein, Eagle Lion advertising and publicity vice-president, who is in Tulsa following meetings in Kansas City on industry participation in the U. S. Treasury's Savings Bond Drive.

Youngstein huddled with officials of Talbot Theatres, operators of the Ritz and Orpheum, headed by J. C. Hunter, president; Ralph Talbot, secretary-treasurer; and R. Drewry; and with members of his E-L organization working on the Tulsa opening and on 400 key theatre day-and-date engagements set to open in the Oklahoma City, Dallas, Memphis and New Orleans territories immediately following the premiere. Youngstein plans to visit Oklahoma City to confer with Roy J. Turner on the state's participation in the premiere.

Taxation Question Undecided: Snyder

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today he did not know whether the Federal Government can "get out of any field" of taxation at this time. Snyder made the remark in commenting on Treasury plans for the meeting here on April 21-22 with city and state government officials. The latter groups have cited the admission tax as one field from which the Federal government should withdraw in favor of state and local governments.

Snyder stressed that the April meeting will be strictly exploratory. The meeting will consider the problem, he declared, and then decide where to go from there.

Review

"Mr. Belvedere Goes to College"

(20th Century-Fox)

APPARENTLY 20th-Fox took one look at the results of its first, and quite phenomenal, experience with Mr. Lynn Belvedere on the screen and apparently asked, why not again? And, so, here for the second time is Clifton Webb as the amiably arrogant, admitted genius. Though it may not match "Sitting Pretty," which had the added advantage of being first to market, "Goes to College" is not likely to be too far behind when all the returns are in.

Webb's sophisticated clowning is the continual high spot of the campus comedy which is alternately subtle and broad and, in one instance, unexpectedly colored.

When the film gets serious, fortunately not too often, it is to allow Shirley Temple to engage the personable Tom Drake in some peculiarly cooked-up romance wherein she appears as a college student who does not tell anyone that she has a young son at home and that her husband was killed in the war. This is innocent stuff, somewhat incongruous, and not adding much to the entertainment.

Excuse for sending Mr. Belvedere to college is that he can collect on his prize-winning novel only on condition that he obtain a degree. The story, by Richard Sale, Mary Loos and Mary McCall, Jr., provides him with a good comedy foil in Alan Young as the browbeating sophomore plagued with the sniffles whose primary aim is to make life miserable for all freshmen.

Belvedere upsets all college traditions, over-runs the sorority house where he is employed as "hasher," wins a track meet with one pole vault, straightens out the romantic endeavors of Miss Temple and Drake, and breezes through the four-year course in a year.

Elliott Nugent's direction has the show running at a good, steady pace with a minimum of dull spots. Others in the film, which was produced by Samuel G. Engel, are Jessie Royce Landis, Kathleen Hughes, Taylor Holmes, Paul Harvey and Barry Kelley. Film was based on a character created by Gwen Davenport. Lynn Belvedere is a refreshingly new comedy figure. All the producer's story department has to do is figure where a man of his age and intellect goes after college.

Running time, 83 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

Allport and Eckman Coming from London

LONDON, March 31.—F. W. Allport, London manager of the Motion Picture Association of America, will leave here for New York by plane on April 8 for discussions with Eric Johnston, MPAA president, preliminary to the Washington meeting of the Anglo-American Advisory Film Council on April 21.

Sam Eckman, Loew's managing director here, will also leave for New York but it still is uncertain whether he will sail on the SS Queen Mary on April 13, when Sir Alexander Korda and Sir Henry French, British members of the Council, are scheduled to leave.

Hughes Gets Another Outside Production

HOLLYWOOD, March 31. — Howard Hughes has purchased the completed production, "Montana Belle," from producer Howard Welsch and Fidelity Pictures and plans it for early release by RKO Radio. The film, which stars Jane Russell, George Brent and Scott Brady, was directed by Allan Dwan and was filmed in Trucolor.

'Glamor' At Opening Of New FWC House

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Glamor turned out in full array tonight for the grand opening of Fox West Coast's new $400,000 Fox Theatre, Inglewood, erected on the site of the circuit's Granada Theatre which was destroyed by fire last year. Clifton Webb and Shirley Temple, co-stars of the premiere attraction, "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," led the talent contingent that included two dozen players, with an estimated 10,000 citizens lining the streets.

To Knight Fairbanks

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has been notified here that he has been made an honorary knight commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire for his work in Anglo-American relations and for his chairmanship of CARE. Fairbanks plans to go to Buckingham Palace to receive the knighthood in a formal ceremony.

'Ships' Gets 113 'Plugs'

"Down to the Sea in Ships" has received 113 "plugs" over the air since its release in February, according to Ulric Bell, 20th-Fox publicist.

TOA, SMPE to Talk Video on April 8

Theatre Owners of America has joined the Society of Motion Picture Engineers as a sustaining member, a TOA executive declaring that the move may eliminate the necessity of TOA hiring a television engineer to do research on theatre television. On April 8, a special committee of the TOA is scheduled to meet with SMPE representatives to discuss the extent of video liaison between the two groups.

It is likely that a TOA liaison committee will eventually forward questions on large-screen television, estimated costs and available connection to the SMPE which will then in turn provide the answers. Donald Hyndman of Eastman Kodak is head of the SMPE's theatre television committee.

It is understood that the idea of a TOA television research engineer was dropped not only because of the new SMPE tie-up, but also because several TOA members in areas not yet serviced by television stations had indicated their lack of enthusiasm in a venture which, for the present at least, has no bearing on them.

Many prominent exhibitors were on hand Monday night when RCA demonstrated its improved theatre television instantaneous projector at the SMPE convention in New York.

TOA's Gael Sullivan and Si Fabian within a few weeks plan to confer with executives of the A.T.&T. on communication problems relating to the piping of telecasts to theatres.

Schedule 9 Club Talks For M-G-M's Wolf

Nine speaking engagements at meetings of Kiwanis, Lion's and Rotary clubs have been scheduled for Maurice N. Wolf, assistant to H. M. Richey, exhibitor relations head for M-G-M. M-G-M's plans during its anniversary year, its progress as part of the overall development of the industry and its production plans will highlight the talks.

The first four engagements will take place before members of the Kiwanis, at Irvington and Jersey City, N. J., on April 5 and 7, respectively; at Lynn, Mass., April 12 and the following day at Taunton, Mass. Rotary members in Poughkeepsie will hear Wolf on April 20 and in Trenton on April 21. These will be followed by appearances at the Kiwanis at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., April 26; the Rotary Club, New Rochelle, April 27 and at White Plains, April 28, at the Lion's Club.

Johnston on Quota

gressmen and industry representatives would be more certain to reach the proper officials and to get a more sympathetic hearing if they wait until the pact is out of the way.

Meanwhile, Senator Knowland, California Republican, said he had received an acknowledgement from the State Department on his request for information as to what steps the government is taking on the British quota and that the Department had promised him a full report shortly. Knowland stated that the Department's report indicated that state officials were re-examining the entire question, and that some fairly basic decisions might result.

Johnston's advice to lie low until the middle of next week was taken immediately by a committee of House members from California. Appointed at a California delegation meeting yesterday to confer with State Secretary Acheson on the quota situation, the committee, headed by Democratic Rep. King, today decided to let things slide until Wednesday. King said he would try to set up a meeting then with Acheson and other top State Department officials.

Quota Approved

ish film industry needs to be worked out but the only help the government can extend must necessarily be of a first-aid nature only. He added that the government hoped the various Wilson film committees now sitting might find a way out for the industry.

In the Commons debate on the quota last night, Oliver Lyttelton, Conservative leader, charged that Wilson made a grave mistake in fixing the quota at 45 per cent last year without previous consultation with the American film industry immediately after reaching the agreement on the ad valorem film tax. Lyttelton said his information showed that the present reduction of the quota to 40 per cent did nothing to relieve the bitterness felt by the American industry.

Americans understandably became extremely obstructive in the matter of exhibition of British films, he said. Rightly or wrongly, they felt they had been treated in a smart way by the British government. Another consequence was that Americans became sullen and uncooperative in utilizing their blocked sterling for production purposes here, exhibitors ran short of good features, the public definitely attended theatres less often, with the result that unemployment is becoming rife in British studios, he said.

Due to Wilson's maladroit handling of negotiations with the American industry, the British industry as a whole is getting the worst of all possible worlds, Lyttelton remarked. The government acted as though the industry already had been nationalized, he said.

It is clear the industry is in great jeopardy, Lyttelton continued. The government should reconcile itself to losing face; it should recognize the necessity of having American cooperation and it is Wilson's duty to reopen negotiations with the American industry forthwith, he said.

Confronted with criticism from all sides of Commons, Wilson's 40 per cent quota was approved only by virtue of the disciplined Socialist majority.

In reply, significantly, Wilson admitted that the former 45 per cent quota was so impracticable as, possibly, to lead to the breakdown of the whole quota legislation, but he stubbornly said he believes the present situation is temporary and declared he would reimpose the 45 per cent quota as soon as practicable. Wilson pleaded lamely that recent legal decisions made it difficult for the Americans to negotiate with the British government or industry.

British Hit Ending Of Academy Support

London, March 31. — Local quarters, unfriendly to the American film industry, are making a great play of the withdrawal of financial support by major companies from the Academy Awards ceremonies, attributing the action to the Academy's generous recognition last week of the British-made "Hamlet" and "Red Shoes."

The statement of the five major company executives issued in New York yesterday making clear the reasons for the withdrawal of financial support under a decision made three months prior to the Academy's 1948 awards is expected to discredit the local criticism when the statement is circulated here.

Fortune Hunts

dent studios) were interviewed for its article analyzing the Hollywood slump."

The tone of the article is captured by the title subhead which reads: "With box-office down, foreign revenues cut, critics pained, older fans dwindling, reorganization at hand and television looming, the motion picture industry may be turning a historic corner. Eric Johnston demurs."

Fortune estimates that there are "perhaps 40,000,000 or more Americans who rarely go to the movies. Perhaps the motion picture industry," it says, "can no longer get along without the patronage of the large, mature audience over 30 years of age who seldom go to the movies. How to tap this market is something the industry knows little about."

The article gives what it describes as an "optimistic estimate" of 85,000,000 weekly theatre attendance in the United States in 1941, "and about the same in 1948," pointing out that in the same period national income, production and population all have increased. Accepting the peak attendance estimate of 90,000,000 a week in 1930, the article says it appears that in 20 years "the industry has suffered an absolute loss of 5,000,000 patrons a week while the nation increased 20 per cent in population."

"Today Hollywood is in the red as a result of rising costs and falling revenues."

Discussing more mature pictures for the irregular or untouched theatre audience, the article cites "Henry V" and "Hamlet," asserting that "The audience that made these pictures successful is the market that the industry generally ignores." Theatres could market a full year's program of such pictures successfully except for "exhibitor inertia, born of easy profits and lack of imagination," it contends.

30 Adverse Bills

of "what effective organization can achieve." He thanked exhibitors for "their fine support" and a number of legislators for "their understanding of our problems, their open-mindedness in accepting suggestions, and their willingness to listen." A number of exhibitor groups worked in close cooperation from the opening day of the session, their efforts being coordinated by attorneys Judd and Rosenthal. John D. Phillips, secretary of the MMPTA, came here for the closing of the session.

It was the second consecutive year that New York exhibitors escaped harm from adverse bills, although there was a close call in 1948 with the costly firemen-in-theatres bill.

Among adverse bills defeated were measures requiring advertising of original release date when a picture is shown more than a year later; legalizing Bingo for non-profit organizations; legalizing lotteries; requiring constant attendance of an adult male in public baggage locker rooms (some New York theatres have such lockers); providing court review where New York City license commissioner revokes or suspends the license of a theatre presenting an indecent or immoral stage show; requiring printing on the face of a ticket "partial or obstructed view," where such condition exists for reserved seats; authorizing municipalities to levy a 50 per cent tax on coat check concessions, and others.

The legislature did adopt a bill permitting a 50-cent charge for bonafide delivery of theatre tickets by a licensed broker. A bill changing the present 75-cent maximum resale price of tickets and substituting a sliding scale was not favorably reported. The lawmakers voted no change in the present permissive tax schedules, including a five per cent admission levy, which counties and cities over 25,000 population may enact.

Theatres and owner Julius Joelson against Skouras Theatres, George Skouras, 20th-Fox and Warner, seeks anti-trust law violation damages totaling $2,400,000.

The counter-litigation alleges that RKO and "one of its executives who said George Skouras is a menace to the motion picture industry and should be driven out," inspired a conspiracy, including the other defendants, to ruin Skouras' Park Plaza Theatre here by removing the clearance which that house had over J. J.'s Luxor. RKO, it is further alleged, conspired with Warner and Universal to provide product day-and-date with the Park Plaza, whereas the Park Plaza always had clearance over the Luxor. Both houses, situated in the Bronx, are in direct competition, the counterclaim maintains.

J. J.'s suit charges conspiracy and combination in opposition to its alleged attempts to secure first-run non-exclusive product for the Luxor. Monroe E. Stein is J. J.'s counsel.

Board To See 'Joan'

Members of the Conference Committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures will see "Joan of Arc" at the Victoria Theatre here today as the guests of Maurice Maurer, managing director of the Victoria; and Walter Wanger, producer, and RKO Radio, distributor of "Joan."

Balaban Clarifies

Malco Theatres, Tri-States Theatre Corp., Central States Theatres, Paramount-Richards, Inc., and Wilby-Kincey Circuit.

That part of the reorganization plan in the proxy statements dealing with the transfer of assets had set forth originally only that, "Proceeds (after payment of all expenses including taxes) resulting from the sale of theatre assets located in the U. S. between Jan. 1, 1949, and the date of consummation of the plan will be divided equally between the two new companies, except that the New Picture Co. will not share in any proceeds after it has received $7,500,000."

On another point, Balaban tells stockholders that upon acceptance of the reorganization proposal by the required two-thirds vote of stockholders, other holders would not be free to demand cash for their shares. He reports some stockholders had inquired on their right of appraisal and that in the opinion of "our counsel" no such right exists.

Balaban reiterates management's position on the advisability of entering the settlement with the government, holding it to be the only means of conserving the value of its theatre assets.

He discusses at length the voting trust arrangement, aiming to correct the impression of some stockholders who regard it to be a "far more restrictive device than it seems to me to be." He points out that the purpose of the trust is to cause a diversity of the ownership of the securities of the two new companies.

"Daughter of the Jungle"

(Republic)

THERE is sufficient excitement in action and adventure in "Daughter of the Jungle" to meet average requirements.

When a plane with a U.S. Secret Service agent and two prisoners and a pilot crash in a jungle they encounter savage tribes and wild animals and attempts to attack the party are made as they alight from the wreck. The natives are stopped by Lois Hall, an American girl who has been living in the jungle since the plane she and her father were traveling in crashed years ago. The girl has learned how to cope with the natives and knows the jungle trails. The Americans join forces with her and her father and attempt to get back to civilization.

Later the white men are surrounded and they try to make a deal with the natives so they alone would be allowed to go free. However, the prisoners are killed and the girl and the pilot, James Cardwell, make their escape.

Franklin Adreon was associate producer and George Blair directed. William Lively wrote the screenplay, based on an original story by Sol Shor. Others in the cast are William Wright, Sheldon Leonard, Jim Nolan, Frank Lackteen, George Carleton, Francis McDonald, Jim Bannon, Charles Soldani, Alex Momtoya, Al Kikune, Leo C. Richmond and George Piltz.

Running time, 69 minutes. General audience classification.

New Financing

rect. Norman Reilly Raine has written the screenplay. Shooting will start around April 21 at the Churubuscu Studios in Mexico City. United Artists will release "M" throughout the world.

The Filmicas plan offers independent producers both financial aid and studio facilities. The Churubuscu Studios, where "M" is to be filmed, has 12 stages and a film laboratory, and is partially-owned by RKO Radio.

Julian Gladstone is president of Filmicas, S.A., which has headquarters in Mexico City. Other officers are: Arthur Bohrer, New York merchant, vice-president; Mark M. Horblit, Boston industrialist and attorney, vice-president; Miguel R. Cardenas, former president of United Artists of Mexico, director; Albert A. Sepulveda, Mexican attorney, secretary, and Milton Gladstone.

According to Gladstone, who originated the Filmicas plan, a feature can be made in Mexico City for 25 per cent less than in Hollywood. Gladstone will leave by plane today for California to conclude negotiations with other independent producers.

in favor of those who make and distribute the product; (b) 20th-Fox is entitled to a 25 per cent increase in film rentals; (c) existing clearances governing first-run operations in key cities should be "modernized."

At a late hour yesterday indications were that there would be substantial attendance at today's luncheon-meeting.

Among those scheduled to attend from 20th Century-Fox are: Spyros P. Skouras, Lichtman, Smith, Einfeld, Joseph Moskowitz, Murray Silverstone, W. J. Eadie, Dan Michalove, W. C. Gehring, Martin Moskowitz, Frank Carroll, Ed Aaron, Pete Levathes, Emanuel Silverstone, Ray Moon, Howard Minsky, Sam Shain, Lem Jones, Morris Caplan, Seymour Florin, Clarence Hill, David Golding and Jonas Rosenfield.

Following the meeting Lichtman, Smith and Einfeld will leave for the Coast to view new product and also to continue similar meetings in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and other exchange centers in the West.

N. Y. Loew's Transfers

Serious Theme of Steinbeck Story Is Well Developed

By Emilia Hodel

The News Drama Editor

John Steinbeck's "Red Pony," a story about human relationships in a microcosm, is worthy of family attention this week at the Fox Theater.

This is the Technicolor story of Salinas Valley folk, strangers to the farming community and to themselves, who are finally brought together in understanding through the tribulations of a child.

The five members of the cast (outside of a few brief scenes with some school children) are Myrna Loy as the stern yet gentle mother. Shepperd Strudwick as the confused father unable to make the transition from school teacher to rancher, Louis Calhern as grandfather who lead Argonauts over the plains to California and still lives in that period, Robert Mitchum as the hired man who acts as conscience to the group, and young Peter Miles as the child.

The picture is told by Director Lewis Milestone not as an animal story, but as an adult problem.

Yet he has retained the charm of all such stories of children and their pets.

Gov't Presses Fight for Divorcement

New Brief Rejects Plan For Arbitration System

Department of Justice continued its fight for complete divorcement at the weekend with a new brief filed in New York Federal Court, which asserts that affiliation of theatres with production-distribution "assures exclusion of independent exhibitors from the first-run field under any competitive method of licensing."

The government's brief is in reply to the briefs and proposed findings submitted last month by the defendants who had maintained that recent changes in licensing and other trade practices made any further relief in

UA Board Approves Nasser Deal, Others

United Artists' board of directors on Friday approved a new releasing deal with Edward Nasser for three to five pictures a year for five years. Pact provides for distribution charges of 30 per cent by UA.

Also approved were deals to release "Johnny One Eye," Damon Runyon story which Benedict Bogeaus will put into production immediately, and "Two Hearts in Three-Quarter Time" which Douglas Sirk will produce in Europe, probably in Vienna.

Paramount Starts 12 in 4½ Months

HOLLYWOOD, April 3.—Henry Ginsberg, Paramount studio head, disclosed here at the weekend that five pictures will go in production during April and May, bringing to 12 the number of films going before cameras during the first four and a half months of the year. Two of the new productions will be in Technicolor.

The new pictures and starting dates are: "Copper Canyon," in Technicolor, to start April 11; Ray Milland, Hedy Lamarr and Macdonald Carey head the cast, under John Farrow's direction; Mel Epstein will produce. "Sunset Boulevard," Charles Brackett-Billy Wilder production, to start April 18, will mark the return to the screen of Gloria Swanson and Erich von Stroheim. "Dead Letter," Alan Ladd starrer, starting May 14, with Robert Fellows as producer. "Little Boy Blue," with music, starring Betty Hutton and Fred Astaire, starting May 16, with Norman Z. McLeod directing and Robert Fellows producing. Bob Hope comedy in Technicolor, "Where Men Are Men," starting May 18, with George Marshall as director; Robert Welch will produce.

Suchman Joins SRO As Sales Executive

Al Suchman will join the Selznick Releasing Organization in an executive sales capacity, effective today, it was announced by Sidney G. Deneau, SRO general sales manager.

Suchman has been in distribution and exhibition, more than 25 years, starting as a salesman with Universal. His most recent assignments were as Eastern and Canadian sales representative for Samuel Goldwyn, and Eastern sales manager for Eagle-Lion.

Mistake to Assume Theatres' Ad Costs

Distributors are guilty of only one extravagance, and that is that they have assumed the exhibitors' advertising burden, Spyros Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, told a New York exhibitor meeting Friday.

"The exhibitor stopped thinking when he stopped paying his own advertising bill," Skouras said. "The distributors' big mistake was in making that possible."

20th-Fox Ends All Adjustments; Weighs Sliding Scale Sales

Under a new selling policy, 20th Century-Fox will discontinue allowing credits or making adjustments and will adhere to terms of every deal as it was made originally, company executives told a meeting of New York exhibitors on Friday.

Spyros Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, said in reply to a question from the floor that the policy would apply to all theatres, including those affiliated with the company.

In addition, Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox vice-president, told the exhibitor meeting that he has recommended adoption by the company of the sliding scale method of selling, which must be based, he said, on an honest expense report by every theatre. Exhibitors who prefer to play on a flat rental basis will be permitted to do so providing a fair price can be agreed upon, Lichtman said. In such cases, he observed, honesty and fairness on the part of the distributor in setting

Truman to See Acheson On the British Quota

WASHINGTON, Apr. 3.—President Truman has promised to talk to Secretary of State Dean Acheson to see what the State Department can do to help the film industry in its fight on the British quota. 350 Hear Fox's Story; Gamble Challenges Costs

Twentieth Century-Fox on Friday took its campaign for a "more equitable" share of the box office dollar direct to Metropolitan New York and New Jersey exhibitors who, in an overflow crowd of 350, were told by distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., during a three-hour luncheon-meeting in the Hotel Astor here, that 20th-Fox last year had a deficit of $1,944,000 in nationwide operations.

Joined by his fellow vice-president, Al Lichtman, in his bid for a "new deal" in merchandising procedures prevailing in New York between exhibitor and distributor, Smith presented figures designed to support his contention that, the nationwide character of the deficit notwithstanding, the New York exchange area was responsible for the loss. Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

"PERSONALLY, I am against film quotas of any kind. I would get out of the business if I couldn't make pictures which deserve to be shown."—J. Arthur Rank, in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, June 5, 1945.

"That's good," Rank said when informed the new British quota had been set at 40 per cent. "I am quite happy with that." He said that in the long run the quota will prove more profitable for the British industry.—MOTION PICTURE DAILY, March 24, 1949.

In the nearly five-year interval between the two quoted statements, there were other utterances from Rank which make his complete about-face on the subject of film quotas less perplexing than it could be otherwise.

For example, a year ago after sensing the devastating effect of the American film embargo on the British theatre scene, Rank was reported to have said that never again would he permit the American industry to hold the power to close his theatres.

Perhaps it did not occur to him at the time that the American industry, through no design of its own, had held that power for 25 years. No display was made of it until the American industry rebelled against the confiscatory ad valorem tax imposed on its films by Britain. And when it was displayed it was not aimed at Rank's theatres but, rather, was an act of resistance and refusal to submit to a wholly unjust and discriminatory tax.

In the early days of the embargo, too, there was no outcry from Rank. The silence persisted for as long as British producers were able to delude themselves that the British market had been rid of American films and the Golden Age of British film production was at hand.

Then the returns from British box-offices could no longer be mis-read. The embargo had to be ended. The tax impasse had to be resolved.

No sooner was that done than British producers, Rank openly among them now, clamored for a high quota—not too high to eliminate the American picture as the foundation of the British theatre market (which it had proved itself to be, even to the unbelieving British producers), but more than high enough to give British pictures every artificial advantage and incentive to overtake and, perhaps, ultimately to displace the American film, allowing time enough.

Isn't that what Rank means now when he says a high quota will prove more profitable for the British industry?

Jack L. Warner's announcement last week of the company's production plans and resources was backed with impressive facts, figures and, above all, names—star names. His claim that the studio has the greatest array of talent available in the history of the company is no idle boast.

The studio contract list has been augmented by the arrangements which make David O. Selznick's talent roster available to Warners, by the deal returning James Cagney to the Warner lot; and by deals which bring to the company numerous other stars.

These and others, combined with the Warner contract list, comprise an exceptionally impressive star aggregation.

"We want to make history, not hysteria," remarked Jack Warner in his announcement.

With that kind of material, in such abundance, Warners may well do it.

The April issue of Fortune magazine strives impressively to get across its point that "the movies have come to the end of an era." From this point on, in Fortune's view, motion pictures in order to survive must capture huge new audiences, presumably with year-round programs of "mature" pictures. Either that or Hollywood must fortuitously come upon new technological developments which will make quality production possible at greatly lower costs. It suggests that television may hold some answer, for producers, at least.

Fortune's article would have been more significant six months ago. Today, the domestic and foreign markets are stabilizing at a level which most film executives believe to be normal for the times. Problems remain and will continue. But there is no feeling of crisis or ending of an era in the industry today, such as the uncertainties of the past two years might have induced the panicky to believe in six or more months ago.

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

TRADE VIEWS by W.R. WILKERSON

• WE HEARD SO MUCH TALK about the Stanley Kramer production of "Champion" that we took a look at it last night with the thought it could not be as good as painted. We're happy to report it's better.

Here is as good a piece of entertainment as any producer, major or minor, ever turned out; produced by what can be termed a "small independent." However, its values in production accomplishment match and exceed those in most of the recent top major efforts, accomplished at five times the cost of Kramer's offering.

Everything about the show is top drawer. It has a fine, believable script of the Ring Lardner original, has been perfectly directed by Mark Robson, who was one of the mob whose contract was dropped at RKO, and was magnificently photographed by Frank Planer, who is relatively new to Hollywood, arriving from Germany about 1939. It also boasts a great musical score by Tiomkin.

The cast would get frowns on any major lot, but they're all excellent and each will be playing important roles in top major pictures just as quickly as our big studios can work out deals with them. They're all new and fresh and lend great values to the picture. Kirk Douglas, who was originally brought out here by Hal Wallis, later went over to 20th for a role in "A Letter to Three Wives," with both producers dropping their options on his services. He is now set for some big going. A fine actor, a great personality. Ruth Roman has been grabbed by Warners as a result of this picture, and Lola Albright, who was one of the stock players MGM dumped recently, will land a choice ticket and quick. Paul Stewart is new to us, but we understand he has done some good parts hereabouts, and he would be an asset to any picture.

The picture makes sense in every department, will certainly do a big gross in its UA distribution, and proves beyond any doubt that "It can be done" when you discuss good pictures at reasonable costs—pictures that will match our best and shows that will delight our ticket buyers.

Our congratulations to Stanley Kramer and his production organization.

Speaking of Glamor

Universal-International has launched an extensive program of what used to be called "Hollywood openings." This combines personal appearances of U-I players at key premieres with much more than the usual fanfare given to big openings. And, as was demonstrated in the first of these events held in Cincinnati last week, this is an excellent means, not only of creating wide-area interest in a particular picture, but it also has a revitalizing effect public relations-wise for the industry as a whole.

Contacts by screen personalities with the press, public and exhibitors under such favorable circumstances as were afforded "The Life of Riley" opening at Cincinnati can do much and give new meaning to glamor as it applies to this business.

he said, had a 1948 gross that was $2,400,000 less than the previous year.

"Our books are open for you to check any figure I have quoted to you this afternoon," he said.

As they had done at similar exhibitor luncheons in Boston, New Haven and Philadelphia recently, the 20th-Fox executives told the 350 persons attending the fourth gathering in their nationwide "grass roots" tour that production and distribution have succeeded measurably in cutting costs. In a question-and-answer period that followed the executives' talks, however, Midwest circuit owner Ted R. Gamble—who chose to speak in his role of Theatre Owners of America's board chairman—challenged that contention, particularly with reference to the "high salaries" of stars.

Skouras Defends Figures

At that point, Spyros P. Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, defended his vice-presidents' assertions on cost-cutting and invited Lichtman to reply to Gamble.

Earlier, Lichtman suggested that first-run New York exhibitors explore the possibility of opening pictures here at two or more theatres simultaneously.

"We launch a picture," he said, "with a large expenditure of money for advertising, and we tell the public that they can only see it at one theatre. They have to come great distances at great inconvenience in transportation and in other matters.

"After the run in that one theatre, we place the picture in moth balls for a considerable period of time before that picture reaches the fine theatres in the residential sections of these large cities. By that time the advertising is forgotten, and other pictures are being announced, with the result that we are losing a great portion of the patronage which, of course, means a great many dollars to all of us.

"Originally, the plan of showing a picture first run in a number of theatres simultaneously was put into effect, out of necessity, by the Skouras Bros. in St. Louis. Subsequently, it has been tried with amazing success in Los Angeles, San Diego, Denver, Portland and Kansas City. In all of these widely separated cities, it has been proven that playing pictures simultaneously in non-conflicting areas is a boon to the box office. The public is supporting these theatres, and are gladly paying first run admission prices in theatres where they formerly paid subsequent run prices at a great loss to all of us," Lichtman said.

Says Larger Audience Result

"Under this plan," he added, "all other subsequent run theatres are also moved up and the result is that a much larger theatre audience is developed because people see pictures when they want to see them.

"I believe if you will look over the Chicago situation, you will find that this move has resulted in a great increase in admissions to all theatres, including the circuits as well as the independents."

In closing, Lichtman said he had not been hired "to take money from theatremen but for the contributions I may be able to make toward the betterment of the industry."

Smith, who said only one picture out of 10 distributed by the industry recouped its cost domestically last year, supported Lichtman's contentions with figures. He said: "Costs have become so high that each picture we distribute represents a risk of many millions of dollars. For our company, the average negative cost for 24 pictures to be produced in 1949 will be $1,751,000. This actually means that the total cost, with prints, advertising and distribution, will average $2,900,000."

Foresaw Developments

Continued Smith: "More than two years ago, Mr. Skouras and his associates foresaw present developments and we were among the first to undertake cutting distribution costs as well as production costs.

"We have cut our distribution costs aproximately $2,000,000 annually and we find we can go no further without impairing our service to our customers.

"We formerly had 100 employees in our New York exchange and now have 76. We are continuing our efforts to cut production costs."

Smith continued: "Our company enjoys a sound financial postion today because of the great contribution to profits made by the 600 theatres which we own and operate.

"In studying our problems we find that the distribution of the box office dollar in many theatres today is unfair and we feel that we are entitled to a higher share. We seek to accomplish this in a friendly, business-like manner. We need a substantial increase from those theatres which have not been paying enough. Our overall film rentals are inadequate to enable us to make the high quality of box office picture which you require for the successful operation of your theatres. We have no quarrel with the many theatres that do pay us adequate film rentals."

Lichtman and Smith reiterated, from time to time, statements made at the three prior exhibitor meetings in their drive to persuade exhibition that 20th-Fox—and distribution in general—is deserving of a larger cut of the public's dollar. The former said he had not come to New York to "answer any attack." This apparently was a reference to the stand against the 20th-Fox campaign made by some local exhibitors and associations. Quoting from the law of Solomon, Lichtman said: "Let him who seeks equity before the court come with clean hands."

Lichtman gave the trade press a resounding verbal pat on the back for its role in keeping the industry abreast of the news, and he urged all branches of the business to give the trade press their support.

Invites Gamble to Dais

Other speakers at the meeting were 20th-Fox advertising-publicity vice-president Charles Einfeld, New York branch manager Seymour Florin and Skouras, who introduced the speakers.

Gamble, whom Skouras invited to speak from the dais, told the 20th-Fox executives that he agreed in principle with much of what had been said, but added that he "could hardly subscribe 100 per cent." He pointed out that exhibitors, too, have high investments and overhead costs in building theatres and in maintaining and refurnishing them to attract patronage. The exhibitor's costs, he declared, are comparable to production and distribution costs from a relative standpoint. Gamble said he does not believe "increased film rentals per se will be liked" by exhibitors, although he did aver that he thought the country's theatre operators are of a mind to hear and consider 20th-Fox's case. Gamble added that exhibitors have resisted sliding-scale selling because many found it used to get even higher terms from them. No one company is to blame in this connection; rather all have done that, Gamble said.

Questions Picture Cost

Gamble questioned whether the nation's exhibitors regard $1,750,000 as a proper cost for a picture and, assailing stars' salaries in particular, declared that exhibitors believe Hollywood costs are needlessly more than they should be. "There is too much overhead in Hollywood before the cameras are turned," he said. Gamble, who agreed that selling methods could stand some overhauling, asserted that there is "nothing" in the present methods to enable the exhibitor to "profit proportionately on pictures that do succeed." The TOA executive said he believes a full review of present conditions should be made by all branches of the industry before any definite action is taken. Lichtman agreed with him on that point, but continued to maintain, in his reply to Gamble, that Hollywood has achieved notable results in cost-cutting, perhaps as much as could be done.

Gamble was vigorously applauded by the assembled exhibitors when he concluded his remarks.

In supporting the company's campaign, Smith said that rentals from the industry's foreign distribution in 1946 were 37½ per cent of the total. "In 1948," he said, "it was 35 per cent, which is a shrinkage of two-and-one-half per cent in percentage, but in dollars it represents a shrinkage of over $50,000,000 due to the fact that the money is blocked in these foreign countries." Added Smith: "When I tell you that in 1948, from a world gross of $84,000,000, our combined distribution profit was only about $3,000,000 you can readily appreciate that had only one or two more of our pictures proved inadequate we would have a loss and not a profit."

Among those on the dais, in addition to 20th Century-Fox executives and speakers, and Gamble, were: Leonard H. Goldenson, Si H. Fabian, Oscar Doob, Sam Rinzler, Sam Rosen, Robert Weitman, and others.

a price is as necessary to such a deal as is honesty on the part of the exhibitor concerning theatre expenses in arriving at a percentage deal.

A. W. Smith, Jr., 20th-Fox vice-president and general sales manager, said that New York exhibitors who had made deals for "Snake Pit" before the no-adjustment policy was established would be allowed credit if they came to him with their figures and showed they were entitled to an adjustment. In all other cases a firm deal will be made and adhered to by the company, he said.

May Ask Exhibitors To Finance Awards

HOLLYWOOD, April 3.—Exhibitors may be invited to share the costs of future Academy Awards functions, on the ground that they reap direct additional box-office profit from films and players receiving the awards, or the whole cost may be recouped by accepting commercial sponsorship for a radio broadcast according to informed quarters consulted following the announcement by the Academy's board that the award ceremonies will be continued as in the past 21 years, regardless of the major companies' withdrawal of financial support.

The foregoing are among several alternatives which will receive consideration by the new board which will take over following the annual election of officers and a board this month. Under Academy procedure, half of the board's membership terms expire annually.

It is understood that radio sponsorship presently is the most generally favored plan, since practicability is clearly indicated by the fact that Camel cigarettes in the past has made such a proposal, which was rejected. The offering price would amply cover award ceremonies.

Allied Fears

course," Myers said, and "in this state of affairs a drive to increase film prices is decidedly out of order."

"Calling it a more equitable division of the box-office dollar is a mere quibble; if film rentals rise, admission prices will have to be increased, and thus the motion picture industry will be handicapped in its race with competing amusements and will be going counter to the economic trend," he said.

Myers suggested that the answer to the producers' problem was not higher prices but increased efficiency, less waste, cutting out dead wood, "especially executives who live only in the past," pictures made for the customers and not for the critics, and "above all, increased production." Myers said profits in the motion picture industry would hereafter have to be geared to production, as in all other industries.

Myers suggested that the distributors get any additional revenue they need by charging higher prices to the large circuits, especially affiliated circuits.

May Issue Bulletin

Myers said that the three possible methods of raising revenue outlined by Fox might be covered in a later bulletin if the campaign is continued. He said he believed the immediate objective was only to stimulate Fox salesmen to drive harder bargains, but that the long-range objective "appears to be to condition the exhibitors' minds to the idea that the producer-distributors should have a still larger slice of the receipts."

The bulletin quoted comments from nine Allied member groups, all critical of the Fox plan and which Myers said were typical of independent exhibitor comment. The bulletins were identified as those of Gulf States Allied, ITO of Wisconsin, Allied of Iowa-Nebraska, Rocky Mountain Allied, Mid-Central Allied, Mid-South Allied, MPTO of Maryland, ATO of Indiana and Allied of Kansas-Missouri.

Gov't Presses Fight

the industry anti-trust suit unwarranted.

Justice Department flatly rejected the system of arbitration as proposed by Warner, Loew and 20th Century-Fox on the grounds that the purpose of the plan "is to cement the power of these major defendants to continue their domination of the industry." Plaintiff states that for that reason the proposed system did not have the support of other defendants and that consideration of a "voluntary arbitration system would be proper and desirable" only after an ultimate court decision.

The "Little Three's" proposal of franchises which do not restrain trade would violate the Sherman Act, says Justice, adding that provisions for franchises in the consent decrees with RKO and Paramount are adequate. These prohibit franchises generally, making an exception only where they "may be necessary to permit competition" of an independent with an affiliate. The request by United Artists, Universal and Columbia to modify clearance and price-fixing relief also was attacked.

The RKO and Paramount settlements are relied upon by the government in its demands for divorcement by Warner, Loew and 20th-Fox. As a result of these consent judgments, the competitive advantages of the three remaining majors in the suit, if they are to remain as integrated companies, would be "substantially increased," Justice contends. Continued ownership of theatres by the three also would "tend to nullify the competitive benefits of the relief granted against Paramount and RKO," Justice claims, even to the extent of giving the three an unfair advantage over the new Paramount and RKO theatre companies.

Hearings in the trust suit will be resumed in New York Federal Court on April 18.

20th-Fox, Loew, Warner File Quarterly Reports

Twentieth Century-Fox, Loew and Warner filed regular quarterly statements with New York Federal Court on Friday, Loew reporting on its split with Paramount in the operation of Buffalo Theatres. This was announced some time ago. Warner, also as previously reported, said it no longer has any theatre interests with other defendants. Twentieth-Fox reported no changes.

Clark Aims to Quit D of J; Wright Does

Washington, April 3.—Attorney General Tom Clark has indicated to the White House that he would like to quit his post by summer, it was reported here over the weekend. At the same time it was disclosed that Robert Wright, government prosecutor in the industry trust suit, already has tendered his resignation, to become effective within 60 days. Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, in charge of the anti-Trust division, also is growing restless, it is understood.

Presidential assistant Clark Clifford is most widely mentioned as Clark's successor.

State Department to explore the entire question very thoroughly.

Delegation that called on the President consisted of Richard Walsh, president of the IATSE; International representative Roy Brewer, Screen Actors Guild president Ronald Reagan and SAG executive secretary Kenneth Thomson. They had a separate 25-minute interview with Presidential assistant John Steelman, whose attitude also was termed "encouraging."

The delegation was escorted to the White House by Carter Barron, local Loew representative.

One person present at the conference said that President Truman indicated he might take the matter up with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin while the latter is here.

Brewer said that the President showed "considerable interest and considerable knowledge about the industry, though he apparently was not too well up on the most recent British developments."

RCA will demonstrate and discuss large-screen television and give a progress report on theatre television.

Morning and afternoon sessions tomorrow will also be devoted to films and television. Among the speakers will be William C. Eddy, Roger Thompson, A. H. Brolly, F. N. Gillette, W. Engles, G. Lawlor, Otto Schade, E. F. McDonald and John R. Howland.

Union Musicians Get Increase for Video

American Federation of Musicians members have won a television wage increase under the terms of a new agreement, it was disclosed here at the weekend by James C. Petrillo, AFM president. The agreement followed several weeks of negotiations with representatives of the four radio networks.

The increase for local TV broadcasts is from 66⅔ per cent to 80 per cent of the applicable AM radio rate and for network TV broadcasts from 75 per cent to 90 per cent of the AM rate. The new contract runs for one year.

Detroit Variety Benefit

DETROIT, April 3.—The Heart of Variety charity fund will receive the proceeds from a preview of "Bad Boy" at midnight Friday, April 8, simultaneously in 12 outlying theatres, Edward Stuckey, Michigan Variety Tent's chief barker, announces. Theatres which will stage the screening are the Riviera, Fisher, Cinderella, Royal, Woods, Harper, Mel, Wyandotte, Royal Oak, RKO Uptown, Redford and the Calvin in Dearborn.

San Francisco Examiner says:

"Stirring drama"

"THE RED PONY," Republic's screen adaptation of the John Steinbeck book, is the draw at the Fox.

This is a simple and familiar story about a child who tries to fathom the complexities of a grown-up world.

Laid in the Salinas Valley, Photographer Tony Gaudio has done a splendid job in capturing the spirit of the farm country. And Director Lewis Milestone has wisely given the homespun drama a slow and melodic pace.

Peter Miles, interesting 10 year old redhead, is the imaginative youngster who lives on a Salinas Valley farm with his mother (Myrna Loy) and his father (Sheppard Strudwick). He has also a philosophical, if too talkative, grandfather, played with cured flavor by Louis Calhern.

To complete the child's adult surroundings is Robert Mitchum, farm employe . . . with a deep respect and awareness of the boy's thoughts.

To complicate his life is the undercurrent of animosity which permeates his home . . . animosity between his parents . . . born of the father's inability to fit into rural life.

It's the red pony, his personal possession and responsibility, that contributes to the child's development.

Flick will be appointed. Only three qualified.

The position has been vacant since Irwin Esmond resigned on reaching the age of 70 in April, 1945. Ward C. Bowen, director of visual aids and radio, has been acting chief censor.

NLRB Upholds Trial Ruling Against AMPP, 3 Studios

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The National Labor Relations Board ruled today that the Association of Motion Picture Producers and three studios, Warners, Columbia and Loew's, had violated the National Labor Relations Act by discriminating against 24 IATSE members who refused to cross Conference of Studio Unions picket lines or do "struck work" during the 1945 jurisdictional strike.

Charges of similar violations brought by other employes against Republic, 20th Century-Fox and RKO were dismissed. The decision upheld a trial examiner's report in almost all respects.

The board ordered eight employes reinstated to their former jobs, or the equivalent, with back pay for any

UA Plans Deal with 16mm. Distributor

United Artists intends to enter a franchise agreement with a regular 16mm. distributor for the release of narrow-gauge versions of UA product, rights to which it will obtain from indepedent producers along with releasing rights to their standard films. This was disclosed by Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., executive assistant to UA president Gradwell Sears, in a letter to Myron Blank, chairman of the Theatre Owners of America 16mm. committee, which was released here by the TOA yesterday.

UA's objective is to correct the "undisciplined" use of 16mm. product by way of barring them from places in competition with theatres.

Chaplin Says No to Fabian's Proposal

Hollyood, April 4.—Charles Chaplin has indicated he will not grant the Si Fabian-Ted Gamble request for a firm agreement to purchase United Artists' control, either in form of a short term option or other binding commitment exercisable by the theatre operators.

Chaplin's decision, it is believed here, terminates the Fabian-Gamble group's interest in negotiating for purchase of the company. Chaplin's 30-day option on Mary Pickford's U. A. stock will expire next Monday but it can be extended for another 10 days if Chaplin so elects.

Minneapolis Independents to Sit Tight on Double Bill Policies

Minneapolis, April 4.—The right of each exhibitor to "run his own business as he sees fit" was the answer of Minneapolis and St. Paul area independent theatre owners to critics of the "spreading orgy" of double bills, at a meeting of North Central Allied here.

Single bill members of NCA requested the double bill discussion, declaring the practice is "getting out of line" and would force Minnesota Amusement Co. into duals, as well as opening the way for giveaways in addition to double bills by some of the independents.

Double-billers argued that little of the product used by ace first runs, except problem pictures, are being used in dual bookings. Theatres riding behind the 28-day and other earlier clearances recently established in Minneapolis, rebuked the earlier run houses for attempting to interfere in double bills, which the late run stands contend is their "only salvation" against the advantages of competitive theatres with early clearance.

Theatres Paid $800,000 to Ascap in 1948

Off $500,000; Overall Revenue Up to $11-Million

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers collected approximately $800,000 from motion picture theatres for license to publicly use its music in 1948, as against $1,300,000 in 1947, it is understood.

Despite this drop, Ascap's collections from all branches of the entertainment industry, including radio, night clubs, hotels and dance halls, jumped from $10,000,000 in 1947 to an estimated $11,000,000 in 1948. Administration costs are figured at about 20 per cent.

Half of ECA Media Funds to Industry

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Nearly half of the funds earmarked by ECA during the first year of its information media guaranty program went to the U. S. motion picture industry, it was revealed here by the ECA today.

The contract with the Motion Picture Export Association for operations in Germany, calling for a guaranty of $457,139, is close to half the $962,814 committed to date.

Despite the fact that Congress allowed ECA $10,000,000 for the program, less than $1,000,000 has been used so far.

Coast 'Panic' Gone, Says Maxwell Shane

There is no longer a post-war "panic" in Hollywood, and the production branch of the industry appears to have settled down to a fairly firm level of economy, independent producer Maxwell Shane visiting here from the Coast, said.

But Shane sees still more room for savings in production costs. Location shooting, he holds, is a big cost-saver. He recommends the seeking of actual background locations not only for the sake of economies in terms of sets, but because of the "realism" with which they endow a picture.

Shane's most recent film is the documentary-style "City Across the

Review

"Flamingo Road"

(Warner Brothers)

THE melodrama is lurid and generous in this latest Joan Crawford vehicle about her love for two men and a relentless sheriff, also a political boss, who pursues her. "Flamingo Road" ought to register its chief appeal with women who are apt to respond to Joan's romantic troubles with considerable avidity.

In this film, based on a play by Robert and Sally Wilder, Miss Crawford's background is somewhat clouded. At the opening, she is a dancer in a carnival show and later explains her jobs have been varied, including burlesque. Zachary Scott, indolent deputy to sheriff Sydney Greenstreet, befriends her and gets her a job as a waitress, falls in love with her—as she does with him—but marries Virginia Huston to cloak his advent into machine-made politics with respectability. Greenstreet, sensing his stooge-candidate will not be clear of trouble while Miss Crawford is around, frames and sends her to the workhouse on a prostitution charge in his campaign to drive her out of town. But Miss C., equally as determined not to be pushed around, seeks sanctuary in the dubious establishment operated by Gladys George whose patrons include local and state political bigwigs. There, she meets Donald Brian, the political boss and marries him on the rebound from Scott.

The conflict behind this dramatic assemblage is the fight for control of the state. Greenstreet, deciding on himself for governor, throws over Scott who commits suicide. Miss Crawford, facing charges, is cleared. In what turns out to be self-defense but what was planned as murder, she kills Greenstreet, who had trumped up a labor peonage rap against Brian, and is cleared for a second time. The film closes on a romantic reunion and a vague inference that Brian will commit himself to a policy of democratic government in the future beyond the final shot.

The story is involved. Performances are competent with an occasional high moment allowed Miss Crawford. Co-author Robert Wilder wrote the script for which Edmund H. North provided additional dialogue. Jerry Wald produced with George Amy as his associate. Michael Curtiz directed.

Running time, 94 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, April 30.

Ascap Revenue

was the result of the two court decisions which held the Society to be in restraint of trade and enjoined it from collecting for public performance rights to its music in motion pictures. The New York and Minneapolis Federal Court opinions came about mid-year, thus Ascap could collect from theatres only during the first half of the year.

Pending the outcome of appeals of the rulings, Ascap is not billing theatres at all for music in films.

That Ascap's collections from theatres last year had not fallen to a greater extent is due to the fact that hundreds of exhibitors who pay relatively small fees, such as $100 annually, had made it a practice to send a check for the full amount upon expiration of each year's contract about Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, Ascap is continuing negotiations with representatives of television stations around the country on terms of its first non-gratis contract and although serious snags have yet to be encountered, it is believed there have been some disagreements.

Said to be cause for concern is the matter of "kinescope rights," or how Ascap may tax the telecasters for the projection of film recordings of programs. The transcriptions are playing a prominent role in telecasting currently, particularly where stations are not serviced by network facilities. In these instances, key stations are filming their programs and sending the prints to affiliates for subsequent reproduction.

returnable to them at any time, plus two per cent interest, he said.

The plan also calls for payment of death benefits equal to two years' salary, Skouras said. He emphasized this is in addition to other security benefits already established by the company for theatre managers with three years' service or longer. Skouras in 1942 started what is said to be the first retirement plan in exhibition. Benefits accruing to managers steadily have increased over the years. Group life insurance of $10,000 for each manager is also included in the plan.

"Security for our managers and their families long has been our primary concern," Skouras said, in commenting on the latest addition to the benefits which the company provides.

is expected that the price for the unit, without standby facilities, would be under $25,000. The system demonstrated was capable of projection 65 feet from the screen, which measured 12 by 15 feet.

Representing a marked improvement over past similar efforts, several types of pickups were used, including one from the air, one over a telephone wire, a motion picture, and over a closed circuit. The closed circuit projection, with its clear and unwavering signal, established the theatre potential of the equipment.

During yesterday's SMPE luncheon session, Dr. Allen B. DuMont said the DuMont Television Network is cutting down its use of film programs and developing more live-action programs. One of the reasons cited for the curtailment is "the poor quality of films available as well as rental and line charges." DuMont pointed out that the use of films for commercials is successful and he predicted an expansion of its use. Earl I. Sponable, SMPE president, presided at the luncheon.

DuMont said there are now 60 television stations operating in 35 cities, with 40 or 50 more expected by the end of the year. He said that as of March 1 there were some 1,315,000 sets in use, with 500,000 in New York. DuMont said that 14½ per cent of the homes in New York now have sets. He said that the indication is set owners go to the theatre less frequently.

DuMont declared that large-screen theatre television would be very popular for certain sporting events, but said whether "there would be enough of them to warrant installation in theatres remains to be seen."

River," much of which was filmed in New York without the use of sound equipment. Tape recordings of the city's noises were made and voices were dubbed in on the Coast, Shane explained. Universal-International is releasing.

The producer's next for U-I will be "Salem Frigate," which will go before the cameras in June with a budget of $1,500,000. Before Hollywood's economy wave set in, he said, the same picture would have cost $2,500,000.

Shane Here for Premiere

Continuing its policy of making producing personnel available for exploitation during premieres, Universal-International has brought Maxwell Shane, director of "City Across the River," and leading members of the cast to New York to participate in the picture's opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre.

BOSTON DAILY RECORD calls it "A delight"

'Red Pony' Fine Film

A refreshing theme and a fine script are factors which help to make Republic's "The Red Pony," now at the Pilgrim, a delight to see.

This Technicolor version of John Steinbeck's novelette stars Myrna Loy and Robert Mitchum with Louis Calhern, Shepperd Strudwick and Peter Miles playing other top roles.

There is conflict in this story. This time it is not a triangle of two men and a girl, or two girls and a man. "The Red Pony" depicts the antagonism which grows up between a nine-year-old boy, his father and the hired man. The father, having "married into" a ranch family, is unable to adjust himself after leaving the teaching profession.

Hard as he tries, the wistful man cannot grow closer to his family. He is deeply grateful to his serene wife for her skillful efforts to bring him into the family circle, but takes out his nervous resentment of the situation on his old father-in-law.

When his only son turns to the hired man for training, affection in guidance in all things the father's unhappiness reaches its poignant crest. How he works his way out of despair to contentment, with the indirect aid of a small red pony, makes for one of the best boy-and-animal films.

Myrna Loy, famed for her "ideal wife" portrayals, plays the mother, Shepperd Strudwick is seen as the father. Robert Mitchum has the role of the hired hand, Louis Calhern plays the grandfather and Peter Miles is the boy.

Lewis Milestone, who directed and produced, injected strong human appeal into every sequence.

Ascap Will Not Bill Theatres For Live Shows

Will Await Decisions in Pending Court Cases

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers is refraining from billing theatres for the use of music in supplementary stage shows pending the outcome of its appeals of Minneapolis and New York Federal Court decisions which enjoin the Society from collecting from exhibitors for the performance of music in films.

Prior to the two legal set-backs, Ascap had taxed motion picture theatres according to seating capacity, plus additional amounts covering "live" entertainment. The current rapidly increasing addition of vaudeville to film programs throughout the country would normally mean commensurately increased revenue for the Society.

Although there is no apparent ban on collecting for the "live" shows separately, Ascap feels that these are

Most N. Y. 1st Runs Are Off; 'Jennie' Grosses $41,000

Brisk business at a few New York first-runs, primarily where new attractions are on view, brightens the overall "showcase" scene only to a limited extent this week. Grosses at the majority of situations here are still showing plenty of room for improvement.

The big newcomer was "Portrait of Jennie" but even this fell a bit short of expectations, the estimated first week's take of $41,000 at the Rivoli being good but not overwhelming. "The Set-Up" is proving one of the better box-office draws which the Criterion has had in several months, this on the basis of an anticipated initial week's take of $35,000. 1949 Business Will Show Improvement Over '48, Says Yates

Reviewing Republic's operations at the annual stockholders' meeting here yesterday, company president Herbert J. Yates, Sr., predicted that the current year would show a decided business improvement over 1948.

Citing the company's reduction of its bank loans under a policy that was begun in 1946, Yates told the stockholders that he anticipated Republic would be clear of all bank loans by the end of this year.

Bearing out Yates' optimistic outlook, an announcement was made at the meeting of Republic's board, which followed the stockholders' meeting, that earnings before taxes for the 13 weeks from Oct. 31 to Jan. 29 last

"In the last resort," The Times comments, "the (British) film industry's future fortunes will be decided by the success or failure of the efforts of film producers to reduce costs and to increase the proportion of good films. TOA Counsel Doubts Group Booking Is Legal

Further doubt is cast on the legality of all film buying combines by the Paramount consent decree, Herman Levy, general counsel of Theatre Owners of America, declares in an analysis of the decree distributed to members of the organization yesterday.

Levy cites the decree provision which enjoins the new United Paramount Theatres company from booking or buying features for any of its theatres through any agent who is known by it to be also acting in such a manner for any other exhibitor, independent or affiliate.

Higher Tenn. Tax Seen a Certainty

NASHVILLE, April 5.—Theatre owners see little chance to prevent the passage of an increase in the gross receipts tax on amusements from three per cent on film houses without bank nights and four per cent on those with bank nights, to four and five per cent, respectively, since Gov. Gordon Browning has consented to its passage.

Previously, the annual gross tax of about $400,000 has all gone to the state, but the new measure would divide the proposed $500,000 on a 50-50 basis between the state and city governments. The fact that local governments thus share makes it more difficult to defeat in the state legislature.

D. M. Wiley, Writer

HOLLYWOOD, April 5. — Funeral services for Dwight Mitchell Wiley, magazine writer and Paramount scenarist since 1941, who died today at his home here, will be held Thursday at Pierce Brothers chapel, Santa Monica. The widow and two daughters survive.

Auger Services Tomorrow

Funeral services for Ed Auger, RCA sound equipment salesman, who died of a heart attack Monday evening in the lobby of the Statler Hotel, will be held tomorrow morning at St. Jean the Baptist Church.

Industry Untouched In 19 Legislatures

Washington, April 5.—Only 25 state legislatures are now left in session, the industry having emerged unscathed in the 19 that have met and adjourned, according to MP AA legislative representative Jack Bryson.

The four most recent legislatures to quit, Bryson said, were New Mexico, Nevada, New York and Kansas. A two per cent sales tax bill died in the Nevada legislature. Bryson pointed out that hearings are being held in Massachusetts on two censorship bills.

MPAA Will Sponsor 'Report on the Atom'

The Motion Picture Association of America will sponsor "Report on the Atom", said to be the first film story of atomic energy development in America, Eric Johnston, MPAA president, announces.

Produced by the March of Time, the two-reeler "will bring the public up to date on all phases of atomic development since the first bomb fell," according to an MPAA statement. It is the third in the association's public affairs series. Distributed by 20th Century-Fox, the film is available for spot booking by theatres which do not regularly play March of Time.

Bergman Group West On U. S. Bond Tours

Maurice A. Bergman, chairman of the industry committee on the forthcoming bond drive, May 15-June 30; Edward Lachman, co-chairman of the exhibitor division, and Max E. Youngstein, chairman of the publicity committee, will fly to the Coast today from here to line up Hollywood talent for bond tours and radio broadcasts. Gael Sullivan, also a co-chairman of the exhibitor division, will proceed West from Denver where he has been attending a convention of the newly-organized Colorado Association of Theatre Owners.

Fabian Not Notified Officially on U.A.

Si Fabian, head of Fabian Theatres, said yesterday he has not been advised officially as yet that Charles Chaplin has declined his request for a firm commitment in the form of an option or otherwise for the purchase of United Artists control. He added there has been no official response of any kind to his proposal, although it was made more than a month ago. In Hollywood it was reported that Chaplin had indicated he would decline the request.

Fabian's plan was to obtain the commitment to purchase and thereafter invite other theatre operators to participate with assurance that a deal could be consummated.

Free Subject on New Para. Product

Eleven of Paramount's new pictures are brought to the attention of audiences in a nine-minute subject, "Eyes on Hollywood," which the company will supply to theatres without charge, starting about April 10.

Alan Ladd does the narration as Mary Jane Saunders, juvenile player, journeys through Hollywood and tours the Paramount lot, catching some of the pictures in production, in the projection room or in reminiscing.

Features given attention are "Samson and Delilah," "The Heiress," "A Connecticut Yankee," "Bride of Vengeance," "El Paso," "Sorrowful Jones," "The Great Gatsby," "Red, Hot and Blue," "Bitter Victory," "Man-handled" and "Dear Wife."

The subject is the third in a series instituted by Stanley Shuford, Paramount advertising manager. Phil Pemberton, head of Paramount's trailer department, handled the production, and Leonard Neubauer did the script.

It is an interesting and entertaining reel, suitable for any audience and of definite value to Paramount accounts. It establishes audience awareness of the new product and creates an appetite for it. "Eyes on Hollywood" manages also to speak some good words for Hollywood which will contribute to public understanding of the community. S. K.

$100,000 Fund for Needy in Canada

TORONTO, April 5.—The Canadian Picture Pioneers, of which the president is J. Earl Lawson, head of J. Arthur Rank companies in Canada, has launched a $100,000 campaign for a benevolent fund to aid needy film persons, the country-wide drive being under the direction of Oscar R. Hanson, past president.

Through Arch J. Jolley, executive-secretary of the Motion Picture Theatres Association of Ontario, a civic permit has been secured for the staging of five midnight benefit shows in Toronto to open the campaign. The first performance will be conducted shortly at the Imperial Theatre.

Lynch Lauded At Albany Testimonial

ALBANY, N. Y., April 5.—George V. Lynch, chief film buyer for the Schine circuit, was feted by the film industry on his 30th anniversary with that organization at a dinner in the Ten Eyck Hotel last night. Sir Cedric Hardwicke was toastmaster.

Among those commending Lynch were: Si Fabian, A. W. Schwalberg, J. Meyer Schine (who spoke by phone from Miami), Louis W. Schine, John May, Steve Broidy, William Heineman, Tom Connors, Bernard Kranze, Congressman Bernard W. Kearney.

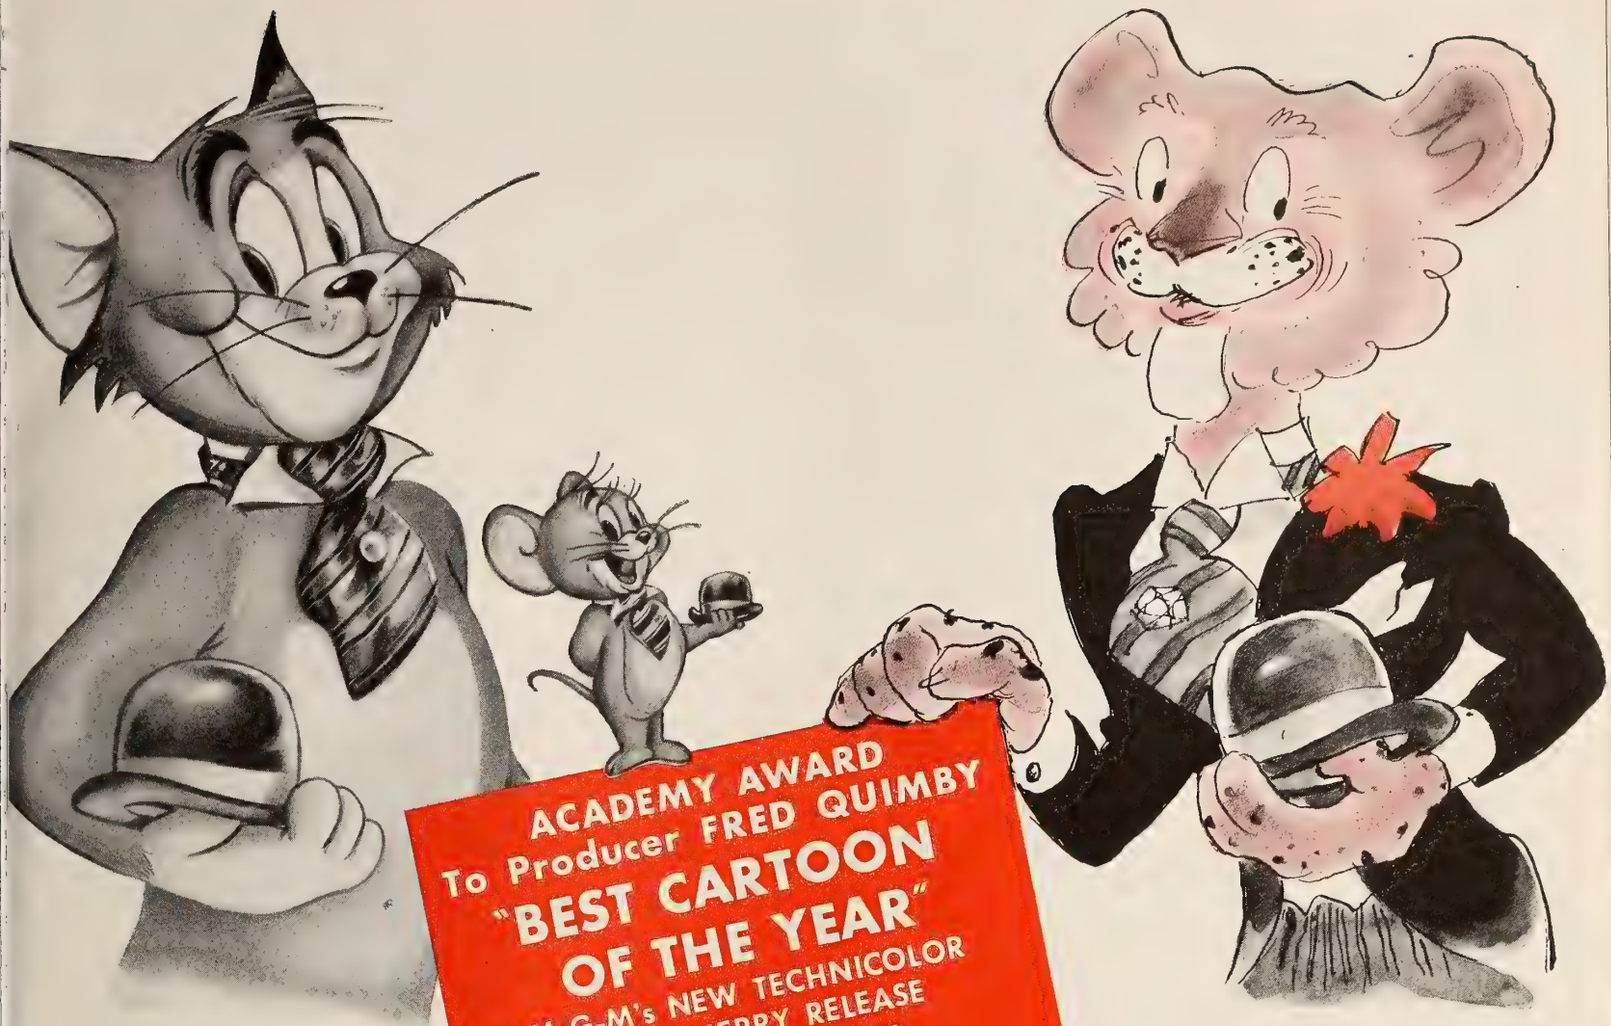
Foreign Income Off, Harmon Reports

TORONTO, April 5. — Hollywood's foreign revenue is down by $50,000,000, Francis Harmon of the Motion Picture Association of America said during his recent visit here from New York.

"Production and theatre attendance in the United States remain far above pre-war levels," Harmon said, "but like any other business, we depend heavily on export trade."

The MPAA executive added that if European governments had Canada's foresight and willingness to co-operate, everybody would be better off. He commended Canada for permitting the use of U. S. dollars for film imports from the U. S. even though the Dominion had a dollar crisis. Hollywood, in turn, is making films on Canada to help bring millions of dollars to the country in tourist trade.

With respect to countries behind the "Iron Curtain," Harmon said: "We are sending films not only for their entertainment value but also for the undertones that show our way of life."



Film Premiere of 'Tulsa' for Trailer

TULSA, April 5.—Battery of 35mm. sound cameras will film the premiere here of Walter Wanger's Tulsa" on April 15, with the footage to be worked into a special trailer, it was announced here today by Max E. Youngstein, vice-president in charge of advertising for Eagle-Lion, distributor of the film. Every phase of the 2-day premiere celebration will be covered by camera crews, he said.

programs, and greater activity in the industry in producing TV programs.

If the film industry continues apathetic in the face of television's advance, which he thought would not be the case, Austrian warned that film attendance may drop 10 per cent in the next five years.

Austrian said he thought "network radio as it now exists is about to enter the first stages of a rapid decline. "This decline," Austrian continued, "will accelerate rapidly in the next five years and at the end of five years be so difficult to maintain because of the lack of advertisers' dollars that it will give way to local and regional broadcasting and be superceded by Coast-to-Coast network television."

"tied in" with the restriction on film payments, according to an official of the organization.

Ascap's policy on all collections from theatres will of course be determined by the ultimate court rulings or perhaps by a consent decree, which is its current aim. Special counsel Robert P. Patterson is currently negotiating with the Department of Justice on a possible decree settlement, the basis for which has yet to be clarified.

Meanwhile, a substantial number of theatremen are holding in escrow money which is ordinarily paid to Ascap for public performances of music, both on stage and in films, with the intent of eventually paying when the entire matter is clarified.

Author Sues Enterprise

HOOLYWOOD, April 5.—Erich Remarque, author of "Arch of Triumph," filed suit here today against Enterprise Pictures, charging breach of a contract which calls for five $10,000 payments for his novel used in the picture of the same name.

Atlas Sells Another 33,000 Warrants

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Atlas Corp. has sold another 33,000 warrants for RKO common and was down to 234,812 warrants, according to a report by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The report on trading in film company stocks by officers and directors was the second successive report that showed heavy selling by Atlas. The previous report showed the sale of 50,000 warrants.

Other trading by officers and directors was light. At Monogram, W. Ray Johnston sold 2,300 shares of common, leaving him with 317 shares, and options for 12,500 more.

At Warners' Harry M. Warner gave away three blocks of common, amounting to 4,300 shares, leaving 274,050 shares held personally and 16,000 in trust. Columbia's Harry Cohn bought 100 shares of $4.25 preferred, for a total of 300 shares of preferred. He owns 141,327 shares of Columbia common.

Charles C. Moskowitz bought 1,000 shares of Loew's common, boosting his holdings to 3,500 shares. Loew's bought 224 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common; their total holdings are now 124,250 shares.

Henry Ginsberg sold 500 shares of Paramount common, and now has only 500 shares in his own name, plus 275 in his sons' names. Joseph E. McMahon bought 100 shares of Republic $1 cumulative preferred, his only holdings of Republic stock.

Andy W. Smith, Jr., reported that he held 200 shares of 20th Century-Fox common when he became an officer of the firm, and Al Lichtman said he held no 20th-Fox shares. Douglas T. Yates said he personally held 1,050 shares of Republic common and no preferred, while through Tonrud he held 106,635 shares of common and 12,200 shares of preferred. Albert W. Lind bought 500 shares of capital stock in Associated Motion Pictures Industries, Inc., for a total of 1,000 shares.

New York Grosses

week with about $80,000, which is moderate.

"I Shot Jesse James" probably will give the Palace a luke-warm $14,000, or less, in a first week. "Quartet" is bringing capacity business to the Sutton where a first week's gross of $18,000 is claimed.

"Little Women," with a stage presentation at the Music Hall, is likely to wind up a fourth and final week with a meager gross of $102,000 and is to be replaced tomorrow by "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." "Outpost in Morocco" with Gordon Jenkins' orchestra on stage is only fair in a second and final week at the Capitol, the gross being estimated at $48,000; it will be followed tomorrow by "City Across the River."

"Knock on Any Door" should give the Astor a minor sixth week's gross of $12,000. The Victoria looks for about $12,500 for the 21st week of "Joan of Arc," which is fair business.

"El Paso," with Louis Jordan's "Tympony Five" and Ray Anthony's orchestra, wound up a second and final week at the Paramount last night with a poor $51,000; it will be succeeded today by "Bride of Vengeance." "Hamlet" is still playing to a full house at the Park where the 27th week probably will mean more than $16,000. "Kiss in the Dark," with Guy Lombardo on stage, should give the Strand an adequate second week's gross of $34,000.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" at the State should do about $27,000 in a modest fourth week. "The Red Shoes" is holding up remarkably well at the Bijou with $14,500 in sight for a 24th week. "Casablanca," reissue at the Mayfair, might reach $17,000 in a slow second week. About $8,000 is apparent for "Impact" in a dull second week at the Globe; it will be followed by "The Champion" on Saturday.

Independent Film Financing by Majors

Widespread financing of independent production by some major companies is anticipated by film banking groups in New York and Hollywood, according to A. Pam Blumenthal, former West Coast investor who recently resigned as board chairman of both Film Classics and Cinecolor.

By inviting the independents to operate at studios of the majors, in participation deals, the latter would have an immediate advantage in the obvious cut in overhead expense, Blumenthal said, and would, of course, bolster their own film line-ups with the properties of the independents.

Substantiating Blumenthal's observations on the trend are recent reports that Warner has closed to participate in the financing of films to be made at the Warner lot by Cagney Productions and Burt Lancaster. It is understood that Warner is encouraging similar arrangements with other producers.

Blumenthal feels that the industry is in a "transition" stage and that more than 500 features annually soon will be made by major companies. These will cost mainly from $800,000 to $1,500,000, he figures, with economies already effected and more cost-cutting measures expected.

Blumenthal had been associated with Century Investment which reportedly had invested close to $23,000,000 in second money, completion bonds and other forms of independent production financing. He believes that the expected spurt in financing of independents by majors will encourage more activity by private financial groups in independent production.

He reports that some of the principal studios also are weighing as an overhead-cutting device the production of television subjects of the type which would not compete with standard motion pictures.

Ascap N. Y. Appeal Off to May 16

Hearing by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here of Ascap and ITOA of New York appeals from Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell's decision of last July, which prohibited licensing of theatres by the Society, as it is presently constituted, for the public performance of Ascap music, has been postponed to May 16.

Date for hearing of the appeals had been scheduled for April 14. Postponement was sought to permit continuance of the current Ascap consent decree talks with the Department of Justice by Robert P. Patterson, Ascap special counsel.

'Collarites' Wage Bids Up This Week

The industry's AFL and CIO "white collarite" unions here are prepared to submit demands this week to nine film companies for salary increases for home office employees. The unions opened negotiations with most of the companies a few weeks ago following a National Labor Relations Board election which determined the jurisdictional control to be exercised by each union. Up to now, talks with management have revolved around contract demands other than wages.

CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild plans to discuss salaries tomorrow with representatives of Columbia, Loew's, Paramount, RKO Radio, RKO Service Corp. and 20th Century-Fox. SOPEG reportedly has not changed its original intention to seek a 25 per cent wage increase for the "collarites" of those companies. Job security demands also will be presented by SOPEG.

AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 will present wage demands today to representatives of DeLuxe Laboratories. The local expects to confer on that subject with Republic officials before the week ends. Meanwhile, H-63 has written to Paramount president Barney Balaban for an appointment to open contract negotiations with Paramount-International executives.

SOPEG reports that the managements with which it has been conferring have flatly rejected the union's demand for three weeks' vacation for workers who have had five years or more continuous employment with a company.

SPG Pickets Broadway Houses As Contract Negotiations Fail

Members of the Screen Publicists Guild resumed picketing of Broadway first-run houses last night after officials reported to a special meeting held at the Park Sheraton that negotiations with major companies had failed to break a deadlock. SPG officials charged that the companies refuse to discuss a new contract unless the Guild is willing to forego all salary and security demands.

With Eagle-Lion the only major company to renew its SPG contract, which all expired last September, the joint strategy committee of the Guild and SOPEG, its sister union, will meet to outline a plan of action, a spokesman said.

Colo. Assn. Hears

if they make proper use of the new development. No sponsor can afford to back large TV productions, Shupert said, and "quickies" will only give the video audience an appetite for something better.

Paramount's strategy "includes turning television to the theatre's advantage through telecasting of stage shows and audience participation shows," Shupert said. "And we hope to include linking of theatres in a vast network to offer specially-arranged exclusive non-telecast events such as championship bouts, first nights at Broadway shows, and the like."

The convention ends tomorrow with discussion of resolutions, when the association is expected to affiliate with TOA, and the election of officers.

Para. Decree

U. S. Supreme Court and, now, of the Paramount consent decree.

"It would seem that it will be most difficult for a buying combine to operate either legally or beneficially for its accounts under such a provision, or under the findings of the courts," he concludes.

Levy also comments that the franchise provision of the decree will be received "warmly by many independent exhibitors because it validates and legalizes franchise agreements to enable them to compete with affiliated theatres."

He also alerts exhibitors to the clearance provisions of the Paramount decree, observing that "drastic changes in clearance and, in many instances, the complete elimination of it" are to be expected.

While noting that the conditioning of short subject licensing, one upon another, is not prohibited in the decree, Levy points out that one copyright may not be conditioned upon another under principles of law already established.

Levy calls attention to the language of the decree on theatre-by-theatre film selling, asserting that while it could be construed as compulsory competitive bidding both the government and Paramount are on record in court as asserting that is not what is meant.

progressively increased at the expense of the Americans as British output goes up; and the Americans, it would seem, are expected to be uncommonly obliging during the pediod while preparations are being made to squeeze them out of the market.

"Next year," says The Times, "they will be allowed to show more films in this country than this year, but not to withdraw more dollars. That would be reasonable enough if at the end of it conditions of free and fair competition were promised, but clearly they are not.

"It is not easy to reconcile the government's policy towards films, as Mr. Wilson (Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade) states it, with the government's general trade policy.

"Mr. O'Brien's (Tom O'Brien, National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employes) warning in the debate that 'artificial props' to the industry must not become permanent was timely.

"Monopolistic practices of the kind which helped the Americans to command the British market in the past have certainly to be countered, but the British industry must also fit itself to stand on its own feet. Public assistance, by whatever method, should be only a means to this end."

The editorial remarks that Wilson is indulging in "mere guess-work" when he fixes his quota.

Anti-Trust Unit

Committee voted the funds over the Bureau's veto.

The same was repeated this year. For 1949-1950, the anti-trust division asked for about $180,000 more than last year, the Budget Bureau sliced off $100,000 of the increase, and the House Committee today voted the full amount. It said it expects the division "to increase anti-trust activities."

In testimony before the committee released today, Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, in charge of the anti-trust division, cited the Paramount New York case as an example of "terrific" results obtained recently by the division. He also told the committee that he is planning to spend more time and money enforcing decrees and judgments. He urged that the Clayton Act be amended to give the government power to block one firm from acquiring the physical assets of another, as well as from acquiring the stock, and also recommended a substantial increase in fines for violating the anti-trust laws —from $5,000 to $50,000.

was $413,800. The board authorized a full payment of four per cent interest on the debentures of the company, due June 30 and Dec. 31, 1949. Moreover, the board declared a dividend of 25 cents per share on the preferred stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record on June 10.

Stockholders reelected to the board Edwin Van Pelt, Edward L. Walton and Douglas Yates, and named as a new director John Petrauskas, Jr., company treasurer. All will serve three-year terms.

The board reelected Yates, Sr., and all other company officers, as follows: James R. Grainger, distribution vice-president; Walton, Walter L. Titus, Jr., Arthur J. Miller and John O'Connell, all vice-presidents; Petrauskas, treasurer; Joseph E. McMahon, secretary; A. E. Schiller, Ira Johnson, and Robert V. Newman, assistant secretaries; N. K. Loder, Richard Rodgers and Newman, assistant treasurers.

be too difficult to get a good replacement at this late date, but that he would ask Universal to reduce the rental for the film as a result of the broadcast. All said they believed the broadcast would hurt their business.

A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Theatre Owners Association of Washington, wrote TOA executive director Gael Sullivan suggesting that the mattter of radio broadcasts of films before neighborhood showings be made the subject of a TOA bulletin. Brylawski recalled that Washington exhibitors had protested this practice before, and said he could not understand why nothing had been done.

Jinx Ingals.....Patty King

Simply told with warm, human interest is this film version of John Steinbeck's well-known story about a sensitive boy and the pony he loves.

The usual plot of a single problem and its overcoming is avoided, and instead, the story unfolds naturally and unhurriedly a series of events which reveal something of the lives of ranch folk in the California hills near San Jose.

It tells of the struggle the boy's father has to adjust himself to ranch life after a school teaching career; the boy's attachment for the hired man; the importance which the pony assumes in his life, how he raised it only to lose it and find contentment again with a newly born colt.

Little Peter Miles, a newcomer, gives a refreshing, quiet portrayal of the boy; Mitchum convincingly does the strong, taciturn hired man; Louis Calhern is fine as the boy's grandfather, an old, ex-indian fighter; Shepperd Strudwick, who is coming up in the movie world, does a good job as the lad's father, and Myrna Loy performs dependably as his mother.

There are good touches of real humanity in the picture, which is filmed in Technicolor, and an apparently authentic portrayal of homely ways of living. Steinbeck, himself, did the screenplay and Aaron Copland contributed an excellent musical score to help make it a pleasant, believable film.

UA Purchase Progressing, Says Nasser

Seeks Other Exhibitors' Aid; Nassours Not In

HOLLYWOOD, April 6.—Preparations for the purchase of United Artists by Nasser Brothers are progressing favorably, although closing is not immediately imminent, James Nasser said here today.

"We are working hard on the deal," he said, "and on lining up other exhibitors to come in with us, but we have two or three weeks' more time to work it out." [Charles Chaplin's option on Mary Pickford's stock expires Monday, but it can be extended another 10 days under terms of the agreement.—Ed.]

"We think UA is a fine company and believe it can be made one of the biggest in the business," Nasser continued. He declined to name other exhibitors invited to participate and denied that Nassour interests are in the deal, as has been reported.

Nasser's purchase plan contemplates complete control of UA through acquisition of both Chaplin and Pickford interests.

Cockrill Reelected Colo. ATO President

DENVER, April 6.—Initial convention of the Colorado Association of Theatre Owners wound up today by reelecting Dave Cockrill president and treasurer; Pat McGee, vice-president, and Charles Gilmour, secretary. These and William Agren, A. P. Archer, Larry Starsmore and Dave Davis constitute the board, all reelected. British Ticket Tax Status Unchanged

London, April 6.—Britain's new budget, apart from technical adjustments providing relief in rural areas, calls for no change in the nation's present entertainment tax.

Exhibitors had sought reductions in the tax to offset declining theatre attendance, while producers have campaigned for a share of the tax collections as an increased production subsidy.

Proposals to Act Against UK Being Drafted

Arnall Says Knowland is 'Tremendously Interested'

First definitive government action against film trade restrictions abroad is now taking shape in Washington in the form of proposals now being drafted by Sen. William Knowland, California Republican, for early presentation to Congress.

This was disclosed by Ellis G. Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, who returned to New York yesterday from Washington, where he discussed

Rep. King, Johnston Confer on U.K. Quota

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Rep. King, head of a committee of California representatives which will urge the State Department to take action against the British screen quota, conferred here today with Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America.

The committee has been having trouble lining up interviews with top State Department officials who are all tied up with Atlantic Pact matters but hopes to get going at the end of this week or early next.

Include Exhibitors In Academy Voting: Cowan

Independent producer Lester Cowan, former executive-secretary of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, proposed here yesterday a five-point program for insuring the perpetuation of the Academy's annual award in spite of recent differences of opinion between major companies and the Academy administration over subsidies. One point calls for exhibitor participation in the actual selection of award winners.

Cowan, who is visiting New York from the Coast, outlined his program as follows: (1) popular selection of winners must be abandoned in favor of a return to the committee system

'Lab' Union Avoids Direct Pay Hike Bid

When new contract negotiations open here on Monday between representatives of 22 Metropolitan New York film laboratories and the IATSE local representing 1,750 "lab" technicians, the customary demand for outright pay increases will be absent.

John Francavilla, president of the laboratory technicians Local No. 702, reported here yesterday that the union membership has approved a six-point new contract program proposed by a negotiating committee. None of the points calls for wage hikes, per se.

Wright Will Enter Private Practice

Washington, April 6.—Robert L. Wright, whose resignation from the Department of Justice was reported on Monday, said here today that his argument in the Paramount case in New York District Court on April 19 will be his last official Department act. He will leave government service on April 29 and plans to remain in Washington in private practice.

Wright, who handled the industry trust suit from the start, said that he did not think much more work on the case would be required by "anyone in the anti-trust division" after the April 19 proceedings.

Indiana ATO Board Assails 20th Plan

INDIANAPOLIS, April 6.—Board of Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, meeting here, passed a resolution stating that it "looks with disfavor on the 20th-Fox sales plans and is not interested in considering the present plans because they are impractical, complicated, unsound and because it cannot be seen how the plans can be of any possible benefit to the exhibitor."

It describes the 20th-Fox plan as "patently a device to secure increased film rentals," whereas "exhibitors generally need a downward revision in film prices."

Twentieth Century-Fox officials were not available last night for comment on the resolution passed by the ATO of Indiana.

Albany TOA Warns Of Local Tax Levies

ALBANY, N. Y., April 6.—The Theatre Owners of America here warns exhibitors in New York to be on the alert for any suggestion of local admission taxes, as authorized under state laws enacted in the 1947-48 legislature. Local TOA executive director Leonard Rosenthal disclosed that "at meetings in various sections state officials have been urging communities to take advantage of admission taxes." An impost of five per cent can be voted by counties and cities with a minimum 25,000 population. Binghamton recently approved such a tax.

Rosenthal warned that exhibitors "must be particularly watchful during periods of budget proposals."

Oppose Two Bills to Regulate Exhibition

BOSTON, April 6.—Joint Committee of State Administration today held hearings on Bill No. 731, relative to the appointment of a board to supervise and regulate exhibition of motion pictures and Bill No. 1035 to establish a commission to review certain films and comic books. Rep. Bernard Lally is sponsor of the bills.

Rep. Copin Cameron stated both bills were impossible and unworkable. Several speakers voiced the opinion that further censorship is not needed at this time. Mrs. Anna Hughe Driscoll, executive secretary, and Frank Lydon, field representative of Allied of Massachusetts, and Ray Feeley, executive secretary of the Independent Exhibitors of New England, voiced opposition to the bills.

52 TV Films for General Mills

HOLLYWOOD, April 6.—Apex Pictures will make a series of 52 television films, at a cost of $10,000 each, for General Mills, it was learned here today. Based on the radio show, "The Lone Ranger," the films will run for thirty minutes, with commercials for the food company included.

Seek Product for Syrian Market

Baheej Malik, general manager of the Dollar Film Co. of Beirut, is in New York to negotiate distribution deals for the Middle East with American distributors on a dollar, or "hard currency," basis.

He reported yesterday that small pictures have dropped off in value in Syria to the point where "customs duties cannot be recouped on them." However, top attractions continue to attract heavy patronage although grosses are off their one-time peak. Strong dramas and action films appeal chiefly in Malik's territory. Color is an asset, but only when it is good, he added.

Hugh Braly Leaving Para. District Post

Hugh Braly, Paramount district manager in the Los Angeles area, will leave the company at the end of this week after an association of 30 years. It is understood that the post has been eliminated as a result of the company's increase of division managers from four to five.

Amend Cohn Charges

Review

"Massacre River"

(United Artists)

Hollywood, April 6

GUY MADISON, Rory Calhoun, Carole Mathews and Cathy Downs are the four points of a romantic pattern worked out interestingly in this Windsor production by Julian Lesser and Frank Melford for Allied Artists release. The place is the West, the period immediately after the Civil War, and the natural setting, which sometimes overshadow by sheer beauty the action taking place, is handsomely re-created in sepia tone. Emphasis is upon the romantic factors, rather than the incidents of physical conflict, but these latter make up for that in violence, notably in the case of an Indian fight toward the close of the film in which various misunderstandings are cleared up and the love equation is solved.

The original screenplay, by Louis Stevens, concerns, in the beginning, the rivalry between Cavalrymen Madison and Calhoun for the hand of Miss Downs. Although pals, they become less than that when Madison, after winning Miss Downs' promise of marriage, becomes enamoured of Miss Mathews, colorful part-owner of a frontier gambling house, a relationship which terminates in Madison's killing of her business partner. Madison and Miss Mathews set out for places afar, and Calhoun, believing Madison also guilty of the slaying of Miss Downs' brother, actually committed by Miss Mathews, follows them. Indians attack the party and Miss Mathews, dying of wounds received, tells the truth about what has happened.

Running time, 78 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Francavilla explained that the local has decided to put emphasis this time on demands for health, welfare and security benefits to the exclusion of increased salary considerations.

Negotiating points, as enumerated by Francavilla, are: a shorter work week at prevailing pay rates, a health and welfare program, improvement in vacation plans, improvement in holiday plans, improvement in severance pay conditions, and differential considerations with respect to technicians employed on midnight shifts.

Coast SPG Votes for Independent Status

HOLLYWOOD, April 6.—Screen Publicists Guild has voted to disaffiliate from the Painters Brotherhood and to function henceforth as an independent guild.

In the same referendum, the membership rejected a proposed affiliation with the IATSE, which had filed an NLRB petition for an election to determine an appropriate bargaining agent. Dissatisfaction with the Painters Brotherhood affiliation has prevailed since the 1945 studio strike, in which the SPG participated as an affiliate.

Republic Profits Up; Pays 25c Dividend

Dividends of 25 cents per $1 share on cumulative preferred stock were announced yesterday by the Republic board of directors for payment July 1. Herbert J. Yates, president, reported a net profit of $248,800 for the 13 weeks ended Jan. 29, as compared to $139,945 for a similar period a year ago.

NT Division Meets Today

KANSAS CITY, April 6.—Charles Skouras and other National Theatres executives arrived here today to attend a meeting tomorrow of all branch managers in this division.

Technicolor Profits

British print footage rose from 50,487,851 in 1947 to 56,802,044 in 1948.

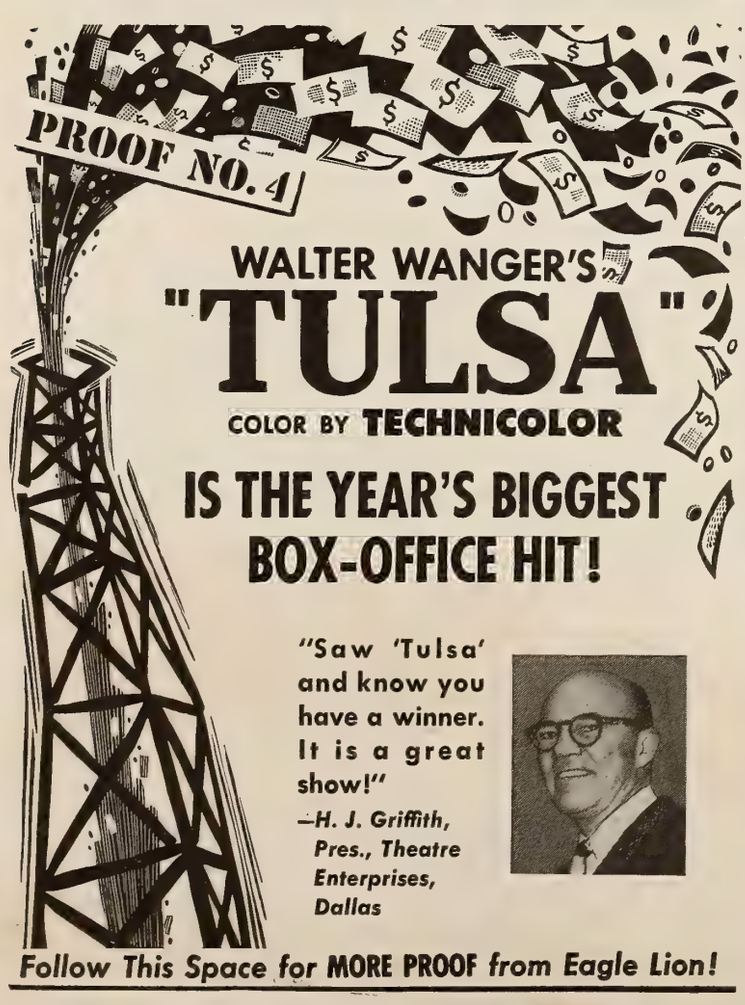
Technicolor's net sales in 1948 were $20,016,066; in 1947 they were $17,407,975. Consolidated net profit before deductions amounted to $4,584,175 in 1948 and to $3,492,049 in 1947. Net profit after all deductions was $1,775,834 in 1948 and in 1947 it was $1,422,752. Net earnings per share in 1948 were $1.93 and in 1947 they equaled $1.55. Dividends per share of capital stock amounted to $1.25 in 1948 and payments totaled $1,146,021; in 1947 they were $1, for a total of $913,497.

List Current Assets

Current assets were $7,754,258 at the end of the year and current liabilities were $3,232,747. The cash balance and United States government obligations together amounted to $6,087,768.

"The Technicolor companies closed the year in a very strong liquid position," it was said. Besides the $6,000,000 in cash and United States obligations, and over $4,500,000 net in quick assets, there were outstanding no bank loans, no preferred stock, no mortgages and no options on stock of Technicolor, the company reported. Nearly $2,000,000 were invested in permanent assets during 1948 as part of an expansion program.

The expansion program is now almost completed, according to Dr. Kalmus. This program was estimated in April, 1947, to double capacity from 160,000,000 feet to 320,000,000 feet of positive prints a year at a cost of $3,500,000. "At present," Dr. Kalmus stated, "delivery of prints of features commences five months, on the average, from the time photography is completed. Of this time, approximately three months are taken by the producer for the delivery of cut negatives to Technicolor, and the remaining two are required by Technicolor for the preparation of an 'answer print' for the producer's approval and the starting of delivery of release prints. Deliveries of prints of foreign versions and domestic reissues are almost immediate at present time. The backlog of such orders, accumulated during two years of strikes, has been eliminated," said Kalmus.



British Production Doubled

Technicolor, Ltd., British affiliate, has nearly completed its expansion program and is now manufacturing about double the quantity of film that it did in 1947, it was said.

"The Technicolor policy in England," Dr. Kalmus' report said, "is aimed at cooperation as far as possible with American producers who are establishing production units in various parts of Europe, particularly in England."

Danish Producer Is UN Information Aide

Mogens Skot-Hansen, Danish film writer-director-producer, has been named information officer by the United Nations Department of Public Information. A former UN film officer for Europe with headquarters in Paris, Skot-Hansen will be the liaison with the U. S. Film Committee, which cooperates with the UN and Visual Information Division headed by Jean Benoit-Levy and represents all phases of U. S. film production, distribution and utilization in theatrical and non-theatrical fields.

To Act Against UK

industry affairs with Knowland and other officials.

Late last month Knowland told the Senate that an investigation of Anglo-U. S. film difficulties was warranted and that he was considering amendments to the Economic Cooperation Administration and the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act to insure non-discriminatory treatment of American films by the British.

Arnall said yesterday that he had no knowledge of the specific nature or form of the bill which the California Senator is drafting, but added that he is "highly encouraged" by Knowland's "tremendous interest" in the U. S. industry.

Prefers State Dept. Action

Arnall said he would prefer the State Department to discharge its "absolute duty" of protecting American film companies in their dealings abroad. However, he felt that legislation would be an adequate substitute. Presentation of the Knowland proposals will be followed by committee hearings and these will bring the position of the U. S. industry to the attention of the State Department as well as the public, Arnall said, in pointing up the advantages of the measure.

An amendment to the ECA would, of course, be directed against all ECA countries, rather than England alone.

Arnall said he recognized that England's present economy might make some restriction on American dollar remittances necessary, but maintained that the British Government should make some guarantee that blocked currency will be freed eventually. This could be in the form of bonds or certificates which would mean that American companies could remit blocked dollars, perhaps on a percentage basis, over a period of years, he said.

Britain's playing-time quota of 40 per cent for British product would be the type of "discrimination" which the Knowland bill would endeavor to correct, Arnall believes.

Academy Awards

of voting, with committee members to serve only one year, (2) there should be no "special" awards unless the committee decides in favor of them, (3) English pictures should be classed with other foreign-made pictures, which, he added, should not even be considered for Academy awards, (4) "a few" outstanding exhibitors should be invited each year by the committee to cast award votes, and (5) the committee might also invite a group of "distinguished Americans" outside the industry to cast votes in the case of deadlocks.

The producer, who spoke over the telephone yesterday with Academy president Jean Hersholt, in Hollywood, reported that the latter said he will not resign. Cowan did not confer with Hersholt regarding the suggestion that exhibitors take part in selecting Academy Awards, but he said Hersholt will be in New York next month to talk with theatre owners regarding possible arrangements for telecasting to theatres Academy Award ceremonies of the future. At that time, Cowan added, Hersholt and exhibitors would have an opportunity to assay the suggestion that exhibitors help select award winners.

Cowan, who reviewed the history—"political" and otherwise—of the Academy Awards, held that they should be for the U. S. industry exclusively. British and other foreign pictures, he maintained, have no right to "dislodge" American pictures from the running, particularly since there is no apparatus for properly appraising all foreign pictures.

Latest method of selecting winners, Cowan believes, is not fool-proof, since extras and others who are among the 2,000 who vote can vote for nominations for reasons other than merit. The committee system, he contends, is practically fool-proof in that committee members could be elected democratically and hence would not be "dominated" by special interests. The "press agentry" that has been attendant on the Academy Award institution must go, Cowan declared, adding a word of disapproval for the "commercialization" which he said has been identified with the awards.

Expressing the hope that the awards will continue, Cowan said that each year they serve as "the one big, honest" effort in industry public relations.

executive, is a past president of the SMPE. The award was a bronze plaque and the citation was read by Loren L. Ryder, also a past SMPE president.

Earl I. Sponable, president of the SMPE, who presided at the banquet, announced that the board of governors has favorably received a recommendation that the name of the society be changed to the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers. The change of name requires an amendment to the SMPE constitution. The recommendation will be brought up at the fall meeting. In the meantime, notices will be mailed to all members telling of the proposal. After the fall meeting ballots will go out by mail and the change will depend on the results.

During yesterday morning sessions, C. D. Miller of the Battelle Memorial Institute explained a camera developed by the National Aeronautics Committee which photographs at the rate of 500,000 frames per second. Projected at normal film speed, the action of one second would take eight and two-thirds hours to be viewed on a screen.

Earlier, John R. Howland of Zenith Radio Corp. announced that plans have been formulated to test Phone Vision on a commercial basis later this year in an undisclosed Western city. He said arrangements are being made to equip 300 homes with receivers in the locality to receive the program. It will be the first commercial test of the new system of sending television images over telephone wires.

Steinbeck's 'The Red Pony' Is Poignant Story at Aldine

By Mildred Martin

Having worked together in bringing John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" to vivid screen life, Lewis Milestone and the author have once more joined forces for "The Red Pony," at the Aldine.

From three early Steinbeck stories "The Gift," "The Promise" and "The Leader of the People"—Producer-director Milestone and his distinguished scenarist have woven a picture rich in abiding beauty and compassion. For "The Red Pony" is a great deal more than a simple story about a little ranch boy and the grief that comes to him through the death of his pony, his first shocking discovery that grown-ups aren't infallible.

OFFERS POIGNANT STORY

Were "The Red Pony" only a boy and his horse, dog or dancing caterpillar story, there would have been small point in adding it to the long series of tales of a similar sort that have found film favor. The great difference between this picture and its predecessors lies in the quality of the writing and, triumphantly, in Steinbeck's ability to see deeply into the human heart of whatever age.

For in addition to the poignant story of an imaginative youngster who dreams of medieval processions, rings of performing white steeds and who loves his gift pony, Gabilan and the hired hand, Billy Buck, above all else, Steinbeck fills his dramatic canvas with other arresting figures. There is, for instance, the boy's father who at last overcomes the feeling that he is a stranger, not only in the community but to his own family. There is Tom's mother who understands she can protect neither her husband nor her son from life.

FILMED ON A RANCH

There is Billy Buck, "part horse" himself, who loves kids and horses and knows the importance of keeping promises. And there is the wonderful portrait of the child's grandfather, pioneer and Indian fighter, who has told his tales of "Westerin'" so often no one wants to hear them anymore, whose life and usefulness ended when he led the last wagon train across the continent down to the sea.

Filmed on an actual California ranch, directed with delicacy and at a leisurely pace, "The Red Pony" benefits from fine casting. Outstanding and almost uncannily right for their roles are sensitive little Peter Miles as the child who nearly breaks his heart over his pony's illness, the horror of finding Gabilan's body attacked by buzzards, and Louis Calhern, the old, old man to whom the past is still vivid and vital.

COLOR IS EXCELLENT

Robert Mitchum distinguishes himself, also, as Billy; while Myrna Loy and Shepperd Strudwick are quietly effective as the parents who manage to solve problems of their own.

The color is excellent, both in the daytime and numerous night scenes. The charming score for "The Red Pony" was composed by Aaron Copland and, deservedly, has taken its place as a serious musical suite which was played by the Houston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Efrem Kurtz.

MPA to Weigh Expansion of Theatre Unit

Harmon Would Head New Department; Up to Board

Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America at their meeting here today are scheduled to consider proposals for expanding the Association's exhibitor relations activities on a national basis.

If the plans are approved, Francis Harmon, MPAA vice-president in charge of the New York office, would head the new department. David Palfreyman, present head of the MPAA exhibitor relations department in Washington, reportedly would become assistant to Harmon in the greatly expanded theatre department.

Details of the program presumably remain to be determined after MPAA directors have expressed themselves on the proposals and indicated the type of budget which they would approve for the new department.

According to trade reports the ex-

Two Allied Units Offer Fox Advice

Allied of Texas suspects 20th Century-Fox's new campaign for increased film rentals is directed at the affiliated circuits in line for divorcement which, it says, for years have enjoyed special film rental privileges.

Allied of Iowa-Nebraska cooperatively advance some suggestions for increasing distribution revenue. The bulletins of both Allied organizations

MPIC Asks Quota Action

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—The Motion Picture Industry Council today issued a statement calling on the U. S. State Department to proceed, under existing legal authority, in negotiations with the British government looking toward lowering restrictive barriers against American films. The statement came after a Council meeting last night which ran into the morning hours, with Ronald Reagan, Council co-chairman, and Roy Brewer, who with Reagan conferred with President Truman on quota matters last weekend, reporting fully to Council members.

The Council represents all talent guilds, the Hollywood AFL Film Council, and all studios. The statement reads in part:

"Faced with the greatest unemploy-

Heart Attack Fatal To Hal Hode, 61

Hal Hode, film industry veteran, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in Forest Hills yesterday at the age of 61. Hode was executive assistant to Jack Cohn, executive vice-president of Columbia Pictures. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Hode; a daughter, Mrs. Myer Beck; a son, Stanley; two sisters, Beatrice and Kate; a brother, Ira, and a granddaughter, Linda Mary Beck.

Hode was born in this city on March 8, 1888. He began his career in the industry as an operator with

Anti-Quota Booklet Is Issued by MPAA

Washington, April 7.—An eight-page printed booklet, entitled "British Views on the British Film quota," is being mailed by the Motion Picture Association of America to Congressmen, government officials, press and radio reporters, and industry leaders.

The pamphlet, intended as "background," quotes British exhibitors and members of Parliament on the quota. Needless to say, all are against the present high 40 per cent quota.

Youngstein Again Heads the AMPA

Max E. Youngstein, Eagle-Lion's advertising-publicity vice-president, yesterday was reelected president of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers at a membership meeting held at Trader Tom's Steak House here. It was the first time in the history of the organization that a president was elected to succeed himself, according to AMPA old-timers.

Elected to complete the slate for the forthcoming year were: Harry McWilliams, vice-president; Harry Blair, treasurer; Marjorie Harker, secre-

Knowland Would Bar Trade Act Benefits for 'Discriminating' Nations

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Senator Knowland, California Republican who touched off the Congressional fight against the British film quota, today offered an amendment to a forthcoming bill to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. The legislation offered would hit back at Britain and any other country discriminating against American films and other products.

Knowland offered his proposal as an amendment to a bill which the Senate will take up next week to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. The amendment directs the President not to make any new tariff concessions to any country that discriminates against American products "through restrictive quotas, discriminatory taxation or other restrictive trade practices."

Moreover, existing trade agree-

Film Code Sought In Germany: Mayer

One of the three dominant plans of the motion picture branch of the American Military Government in Germany is to set up a production code of self-regulation similar to that in this country, Arthur Mayer, head of that division, asserted here yesterday. Mayer, who arrived here earlier in the week to consult with Army officials and industry heads, said that unless such a unified code is set up, there will be some 14 different forms of censorship in the various German states.

The second vital concern is the

TOA, SMPE Start Study Of Theatre Video Today

First formal meeting of television groups representing the Theatre Owners of America and the Society of Motion Picture Engineers to explore the possibilities of telecasting into theatres, will be held at the Hotel Statler here today. It was made clear by a TOA spokesman that definitive steps could hardly be taken until a thorough job of research throws sufficient light on practical theatre uses of the new medium.

Numerous theatremen in the New York area have been engaged in informal conversations on adapting video in recent months, but as S. F. Fabian, circuit operator reports, there

Stromberg Deals Set, Leaves for Coast

Under the new alliance with Dembow, the latter will assume numerous financial and business duties, including the making of arrangements for production financing, and other functions to be worked out later. Stromberg thus will be in a position to concentrate exclusively on production. First release under the new association will be "Too Late for Tears." United Artists will distribute that picture and two others under the current pact with Stromberg.

Notify Fabian His UA Bid Is Rejected

S. H. Fabian, circuit operator here, has received a formal refusal by the Charles Chaplin interests of his bid for a firm offer by Chaplin on sale of controlling stock in United Artists. Meanwhile Chaplin, who is a partner with Mary Pickford in UA ownership, and has the option on her stock, is continuing talks on a possible sale with James Nasser on the Coast.

Fabian had refused to enter negotiations unless he received a Chaplin commitment, possibly in the form of an option to purchase.

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

ONE of the brightest chapters in the industry's war-time record was the measure of the job it undertook, and delivered, during the various bond drives. The overwhelming drama of those days, of course, is gone now. The zeal and the determination brought to full flower in order to knit the economic sinews of the nation ever tighter are part of the past. Today, the concern is over inflation—a battle on a different front.

To combat this, the Government will launch a bond drive beginning May 15 and terminating June 30 and it again turns to this industry for a substantial assist. The greater the volume of savings bonds sold, the sharper the attack on inflation. If this danger can be successfully warded off, commodity prices will come down further. If wages are maintained, it is highly likely the people will have more to spend on their entertainment, always including motion pictures.

Therefore, and if you prefer it this way, it can be argued here is a selfish reason to give Washington all the help it needs in putting over the impending drive with a generous margin of success.

But here is another approach, which, in our viewpoint, is the essential approach. When this, or any other major industry, is asked by its Government to join in a move which is designed to aid the national economy, it ought to be enough. We believe it will be.

There can be no doubt that the campaign now taking form will be pushed to its limit. The opportunity is self-evident. No exhibitor will want to forego the chance to prove again to his community that his theatre is continuing in the vanguard when the opportunity of performing a public service is offered.

The industry committee, proceeding under the general chairmanship of Maurice A. Bergman, is attacking the assignment in the established tradition of men who know their way. There will be a short subject starring Jack Benny, titled "The Spirit of '49." In itself, it will be enough of an attraction to grace any showman's screen.

Hollywood will arrange tours of stars on the kind of personal appearances they made in limitless numbers throughout the war. This, too, will excite and accelerate the public's attention.

Bond premieres, another reversion to a well-proven wartime device, are on the program.

Exciting in prospect will be a tour of 100 "Covered Wagons" which will travel each state to symbolize the slogan of the drive —"Be a Modern Forty-Niner."

Radio, obviously, will not be neglected.

This is the beginning. More is on the way, all of it intended to tie bonds and films together on a program which will influence the sale of both.

Metro plans meeting up with a lot of exhibitors, too. Ninety-six "Friendship Meetings" in as many cities are plotted for the week of April 18. Leo will feed all hands and throw in a couple of its heralded big guns to boot. "The Stratton Story" will be one. "The Secret Garden," the other.

The idea is a goodwill gesture in one nationwide swoop. No accident, either, in describing them as "Friendship Meetings."

Rustle of Spring: At 10:05 yesterday morning, they were standing four and five deep from the box-office East along 50th St., then north on Rockefeller Plaza, for the debut of Bing Crosby in "Connecticut Yankee," plus the annual Easter show, at the Music Hall.

REVIEWER: LOU FISCHLER, film buyer, Cinema Circuit, N. Y. (Exhibitor 15 years).

"Here is a picture that can't miss. It's the best fight picture I have ever seen and probably the best ever made. It's better than 'Body and Soul.' It's potential gross is really terrific. One thing is certain — a new star is born in Kirk Douglas. Women will love him. The picture starts off with a bang and there is no let up until the picture ends. Only once every couple of years do you get a film like this one. All exhibitors' should take advantage of it. It's a knockout!"

REVIEWER: WALTER J. F. HIGGINS, film buyer, Prudential Circuit, N. Y. (Exhibitor more than 25 years).

"Action fans will eat it up. This film is the finest fight picture I have ever seen — and that includes 'Body and Soul.' After 'Letter to Three Wives,' one or two more pictures like this and Kirk Douglas should be all the way up on top. Added to Douglas' fine performance, the director has turned in a masterful job that makes the most of a good story."

Studio Equipment Up for Auction

Hollywood, April 7.—Equipment from the David O. Selznick studio, originally valued at $350 000 and recently sold to auctioneer David Weiss, will be sold to the highest bidders at an auction to be held April 25.

The equipment is said to be largely obsolescent and its disposal is considered advantageous for Selznick, who probably will not resume production until next year after his return from Europe.

Coast Production Drops Two, to 24

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—The production index stands at 24, dropping two from last week's 26. Four films were started, while six were sent to cutting rooms.

Shooting started on "On the Town," Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer; "Safety Pins," Monogram; "Renegade of the Rancho," RKO Radio; "Bandwagon," 20th Century-Fox. Shooting finished on "The Cowboy and the Indians," Columbia; "Malaya," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Leave it to Henry" and "Frontier Fear," Monogram; "File on Thelma Jordon" and "After Midnight," Paramount.

H.M. Warner Receives French Legion Cross

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—The French Republic honored Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, today, when he was presented with the Cross of an Officer of the French Legion of Honor. The presentation was made by Alexandre de Manziarly, French Consul here, in recognition of Warner's services to France, including his recent chairmanship of the American Friendship Train and the French Gratitude Train.

In accepting the Cross at ceremonies held at the Warner studios, Warner said: "International expressions of the faith and good-will that the peoples of separate nations hold for one another are the very foundations upon which a free and peaceful world may grow and flourish."

Reviews

"Too Late for Tears"

(Stromberg-United Artists)

HUNT STROMBERG's latest production is a deftly constructed story of a lethal lady with no qualms about the number of murders she commits in order to obtain a satchel-full of stolen money. Rich in melodramatic drive and sustained excitement, and with sultry Lizabeth Scott as the pistol-packer, "Too Late for Tears" is stocked with all the requisites for good box-office wherever fiction of its type satisfies.

Roy Huggins did the screenplay from his own Saturday Evening Post serial, and Byron Haskin's direction gives it proper emphasis on pace and thrills. Don DeFore and Dan Duryea are given top billing with Miss Scott. Supporting players include Arthur Kennedy, Kristine Miller and Barry Kelley.

Miss Scott is about as avaricious and cold-blooded as they come, having driven her first husband to suicide, and subsequently depositing the weighted body of her second mate in a lake, poisoning a confederate in her money plot and planning her sister's murder. All this before she plunges to her death from a hotel in Mexico and, for an added touch, the dollars which she had been clutching go soaring with the wind.

At the start, the stolen money was tossed into her automobile by mistake and thereafter, Duryea, a shady character who had intended it for a car driven by a cohort, is out to recoup it. He ends up fatally poisoned. DeFore, a personable performer, appears as the brother of Miss Scott's first husband and he winds up marrying her sister, played by Miss Miller.

Running time, 99 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, July 8.

GENE ARNEEL

"Big Jack"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Hollywood, April 7

THAT big Wallace Beery public which believes their idol can do no wrong doubtless may be counted on to bellow at this, and weep a small tear in the final minute, but it figures to prove quite a strain for that bigger public which can take its Beery or let it alone. The principals who go along with Beery on this excursion are Marjorie Main, Richard Conte, Edward Arnold, Vanessa Brown, Charles Dingle, Clem Bevans and some others, giving an exhibitor quite a hand of names to draw from, but the why of their going, and, for that matter, of the whole project, seemed to escape the comprehension of the audience which witnessed the preview at the Egyptian Theatre, and this use of the term "audience" includes the undersigned.

According to the picture, a doctor named Alexander Meade performed the first abdominal surgery on a human being at a small town in Virginia in 1802 while a backwoods bandit named Big Jack Horner held at bay a mob of townsfolk intent upon hanging the doctor for stealing bodies from a graveyard in the course of his preparations for the operation. That could be historically correct, and under some circumstances an interesting item of Americana, but producer Gottfried Reinhardt, abetted by author Thoeren and writers Gene Fowler, Marvin Borowsky and Osso Van Eyes, have utilized it merely as a fragile peg on which to hang a story which may be most accurately and very generously termed a travesty.

Not to undertake the telling on paper of a tale which all of those writers could not bring to life on film, it can be summarized here as a hop-skip-jump account of the half-earnest, half-vindictive assistance given a sincere young doctor and grave-robber by an unlettered and determinedly comic bandit who dominated the Maryland-Virginia border country in 1802. Stick-ups, abductions, grave openings, grunts, groans and shrieks are among the materials employed, with laughs at all times the objective. Richard Thorpe, a director who believes performances by players are the salvation of more pictures than most people realize, got a lot out of these players, but he could not get out of the story the values that producer and writers did not put into it. The only picture which a long memory can dredge up to compare generically with this one was Preston Sturges' "The Great Moment," of 1944, which dealt with the first use of anaesthesia in dentistry and which, like this one, dealt with it humorously, with a box-office result which everybody concerned would be happy to have forgotten about permanently.

Running time, 86 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Vitagraph in 1904, left that position to join the Navy and on his discharge became a reporter on the Newark Evening News, in 1911. Later he became associated with Kalem, from which he resigned in 1913 to become assistant general sales manager for Universal.

In 1920, Hode was named general sales manager of Cosmopolitan Productions, changing to Educational Films in 1923 as manager of the New York branch. He managed his own film exchange from 1925 through 1927 and for a short time after that was sales director of short subjects for Universal. He joined Columbia in 1928 as director of public relations and subsequently became director of sales promotion. He was named executive assistant to Cohn in 1933.

Hode had been organizing a television department at Columbia to sell video rights to dated company product to telecasters.

Hode was active in the formation of the Picture Pioneers, an organization of veterans of the motion picture industry, and was serving as secretary-treasurer at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held at Riverside Memorial Chapel, at 3:00 P.M. today. Burial will be at Maple Grove Cemetery, Queens.

John C. Shannon, 68, Former Fox Manager

MEMPHIS, April 7.—John C. Shannon, Sr., 68, former manager of Fox Films office in Memphis and, until his retirement about two years ago, operator of theatres at Portageville and Hayti, Mo., died this week of pneumonia at a hospital at Ironton, Mo., it was learned here today.

Tennessee Owners Face Tax Increase

NASHVILLE, April 7.—The Hamilton County delegation has introduced in both Houses [of the Legislature] a bill which would increase the state amusement tax from three to four cents on regular performances and from four to six cents on Bank Nights.

The state, under provisions of the bill, would be required to share proceeds of the tax equally with cities.

MEMPHIS, April 7.—Allied leaders today wired protests to members of the General Assembly against the proposed state admission tax increases.

Portland Owners Face Tax of from 2 to 12%

PORTLAND, ORE., April 7.—In order to meet the city's growing expenses, tax commissioner Ormond Bean has submitted to the City Council a tax program which includes proposed amusement taxes ranging from two to 12 per cent.

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—A $200,000 advertising-exploitation budget has been set for "The Syndicate," to be produced by Roy Del Ruth and to star George Raft, associate producer Joe Kaufman has announced.

Correction

In a review of "Massacre River" appearing yesterday in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, United Artists was erroneously listed as the distributor. The picture is an Allied Artists production.

Irving Mack Reports Giveaways Spreading

Chicago, April 7.—Giveaways at motion picture theatres are heading for an all-time high since before World War II, reports Irving Mack, head of Filmack Trailer Corp., who says the more popular giveaways and special nights are "Money Nights," "Grocery Nights" and "Amateur Nights," with a marked trend toward television set, automobile and free vacation giveaways.

Local stores and business firms are participating in a majority of these special activities.

still are many questions to be answered and first and foremost among them is, how can it be done?

To aid in their investigation, Fabian and theatre-operating colleagues in the East recently retained Nathan L. Halpern, formerly assistant to the president of Columbia Broadcasting, to undertake extensive research.

Fabian pointed out there have been no conclusions reached on any of the basic factors involved. Full consideration must be given, he said, to the best means of transmission, whether by coaxial cable or micro-wave relay, to program material and point of origin, to costs for the entertainment itself as well as the equipment, and which would be the most feasible, either for each theatre to offer video on a separate basis or with a number of houses linked in a joint operation.

TOA video representatives at today's meeting will be: Walter Reade, Jr., co-chairman of the organization's television committee; Marcus Cohn, consultant; Robert W. Coyne, Gamble Enterprises; Nat Lapkin, Fabian Theatres; Stanley W. Prenosil, TOA assistant executive director, and Halpern.

SMPE Convention to Close Here Today

One of the highlights of the closing sessions of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers today at the Hotel Statler here will be a paper on "Desirable Locations for Theatre Sites," to be delivered by E. G. Faludi, of Town Planning Consultants, Toronto. Another talk, on "Air Cooling of Motion Picture Film for Higher Screen Illumination," will be delivered by F. J. Kolb of Eastman-Kodak.

SMPE Sees MOT's 'Atom'

March of Time's "Report on the Atom," its latest release through 20th Century-Fox, was screened last night at the Hotel Statler here, to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers meeting on the fourth day of its 65th semi-annual convention.

Settle Sargeant Suit

Author Winthrop Sargeant's damage action against RKO Radio, Goldwyn Productions and Samuel Goldwyn has been settled outside of U. S. District Court here. Sargeant had charged that unauthorized use was made of parts of his book, "Jazz," in the production of "A Song Is Born."

Two Allied Units

discuss the 20th-Fox effort without rancor.

Texas Allied says the largest part of industry income rests with affiliated circuits from which it says it does not believe the "distributor has been getting his fair share of the box-office dollar." If those are the theatres 20th-Fox has in mind, well, and good, says Texas Allied. But if the company means the "little fellow," it remarks, "we all better hunt the cyclone cellar."

Iowa-Nebraska Allied believes that distribution revenue from affiliated theatres can be increased 20 to 30 per cent "by proper selling." It suggests that home office sales officials and district managers handle theatre accounts which average more than $250 per picture, and that branch managers and salesmen take care of the rest. The latter should visit every town and theatre in their territories regularly, making deals based on individual situations rather than on national policies which it claims cannot be applied to numerous smaller situations and which, therefore, remain unsold.

"Every theatre is a possibility," the bulletin reminds, but many possibilities with a huge aggregate revenue remain unsold because of sales policies that cannot be made to fit 17,000 theatres, it claims.

"Joe Young," which is of the "King Kong" type, is slated for release in July, and "Ribbon" is tentatively set for October but may be advanced to an earlier date, Lewis reports.

Argosy is committeed to RKO for the delivery of two more productions and is scheduled to release another through United Artists. Company owns several story properties but has not decided on its next. Cooper and Ford produce on the RKO Pathe lot in Culver City.

Public Hearings Kill Two Mass. Bills

BOSTON, April 7.—By unanimous vote, the Joint Committee of State Administration today threw out a proposed bill which would establish a commission to supervise and regulate motion picture exhibition. Also rejected was a proposal for another commission to review films and comic books.

The action followed public hearings on the bills, at which several persons spoke in opposition, including Mrs. Anna Hughe Driscoll, executive secretary of Allied of Massachusetts, Frank Lyndon, field representative of the same organization, and Ray Feeley, executive secretary of the Independent Exhibitors of New England.

Court Dismisses 'Informer' Suit

KANSAS CITY, April 7.—The Circuit Court of Madison County has dismissed one of the suits brought under the "informer clause" in an old law on aisle widths, according to reports received here. The suit was against an independent exhibitor at Fredericktown, and was dismissed on the grounds that the law violates the state constitution.

Question Status of TOA Conciliation

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—The conciliation panel of the Theatre Owners of America's Albany unit decided at a meeting yesterday to write to Arthur H. Lockwood, TOA national president, to inquire whether the national committee to assay local panel findings is functioning. A third and final meeting in connection with the single complaint to come before the Albany panel is being held in abeyance, pending receipt of Lockwood's reply.

Under the conciliation operations set up by the TOA, local panels were to function on a 60-day trial basis.

At yesterday's meeting of the Albany TOA membership, the question was weighed as to whether a national TOA organizer should be assigned here to attempt to bring into the local organization several large circuits which have made no definite move to join.

A TOA headquarters spokesman said in New York yesterday that the organization's conciliation machinery is intact, but he amended this with the observation that "there has not been much conciliation activity."

Fabian Unifies Four Circuit Districts

S. H. Fabian, president of Fabian Theatres, reports the unification of the Brooklyn, Staten Island, Port Jervis and Middletown, N. Y. districts, under Louis Goldberg, Staten Island district manager, and Harold Fisher, Middletown and Port Jervis district manager.

Ed Fabian, Brooklyn manager, will spend much of his time upstate with Saul Ullman, Fabian upstate district manager. Elias Schlenger, Staten Island publicity director, will become resident district manager of that area.

Seek RKO Accounting In N. J. Operations

Long Park, Inc., and Trenton Theatre Building Co. have served Trenton-New Brunswick Theatres and RKO Theatres with a complaint requesting an accounting under a 1942 agreement whereby RKO operated the theatres in Trenton and New Brunswick, N. J., according to Walter Reade Theatres here. The period of the accounting is from Sept. 1, 1942, to March 15, 1948, it was stated by Reade.

Long Park and Trenton Theatre Building own and control 50 per cent of the stock of Trenton-New Brunswick Theatres, and RKO owns the remaining 50 per cent.

Hearing Again Put Off

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—Federal Judge Campbell Beaumont today again postponed, until April 18, hearings on RKO's petition for an injunction to restrain United Artists from releasing "Champion," on the ground that certain fight scenes in it virtually duplicated scenes in "Set Up."

Stockholders to Meet

Theatre Service Supply Co. of Salt Lake City, and Associated Industries of Dallas have been named by Edward Lachman, president of Carbons, Inc., distributors for his company in their respective areas.

Studio Equipment Up for Auction

Hollywood, April 7.—Equipment from the David O. Selznick studio, originally valued at $350,000 and recently sold to auctioneer David Weiss, will be sold to the highest bidders at an auction to be held April 25.

The equipment is said to be largely obsolescent and its disposal is considered advantageous for Selznick, who probably will not resume production until next year after his return from Europe.

Coast Production Drops Two, to 24

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.—The production index stands at 24, dropping two from last week's 26. Four films were started, while six were sent to cutting rooms.

Shooting started on "On the Town," Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer; "Safety Pins," Monogram; "Renegade of the Rancho," RKO Radio; "Bandwagon," 20th Century-Fox. Shooting finished on "The Cowboy and the Indians," Columbia; "Malaya," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Leave it to Henry" and "Frontier Fear," Monogram; "File on Thelma Jordon" and "After Midnight," Paramount.

H.M. Warner Receives French Legion Cross

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—The French Republic honored Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, today, when he was presented with the Cross of an Officer of the French Legion of Honor. The presentation was made by Alexandre de Manziarly, French Consul here, in recognition of Warner's services to France, including his recent chairmanship of the American Friendship Train and the French Gratitude Train.

In accepting the Cross at ceremonies held at the Warner studios, Warner said: "International expressions of the faith and good-will that the peoples of separate nations hold for one another are the very foundations upon which a free and peaceful world may grow and flourish."

Postpone ITOA Forum Because of Holiday

April 14 meeting of the Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York, for the purpose of discussing 20th-Fox's increased rentals program, has been postponed indefinitely because that date launches the Passover holidays. A new date is expected to be set shortly.

Meanwhile, the organization has not received from 20th-Fox executives an acceptance or rejection of an invitation to attend an ITOA open forum.

"Too Late for Tears"

(Stromberg-United Artists)

HUNT STROMBERG's latest production is a deftly constructed story of a lethal lady with no qualms about the number of murders she commits in order to obtain a satchel-full of stolen money. Rich in melodramatic drive and sustained excitement, and with sultry Lizabeth Scott as the pistol-packer, "Too Late for Tears" is stocked with all the requisites for good box-office wherever fiction of its type satisfies.

Roy Huggins did the screenplay from his own Saturday Evening Post serial, and Byron Haskin's direction gives it proper emphasis on pace and thrills. Don DeFore and Dan Duryea are given top billing with Miss Scott. Supporting players include Arthur Kennedy, Kristine Miller and Barry Kelley.

Miss Scott is about as avaricious and cold-blooded as they come, having driven her first husband to suicide, and subsequently depositing the weighted body of her second mate in a lake, poisoning a confederate in her money plot and planning her sister's murder. All this before she plunges to her death from a hotel in Mexico and, for an added touch, the dollars which she had been clutching go soaring with the wind.

At the start, the stolen money was tossed into her automobile by mistake and thereafter, Duryea, a shady character who had intended it for a car driven by a cohort, is out to recoup it. He ends up fatally poisoned. DeFore, a personable performer, appears as the brother of Miss Scott's first husband and he winds up marrying her sister, played by Miss Miller.

Running time, 99 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, July 8.

GENE ARNEEL

"Big Jack"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Hollywood, April 7

THAT big Wallace Beery public which believes their idol can do no wrong doubtless may be counted on to bellow at this, and weep a small tear in the final minute, but it figures to prove quite a strain for that bigger public which can take its Beery or let it alone. The principals who go along with Beery on this excursion are Marjorie Main, Richard Conte, Edward Arnold, Vanessa Brown, Charles Dingle, Clem Bevans and some others, giving an exhibitor quite a hand of names to draw from, but the why of their going, and, for that matter, of the whole project, seemed to escape the comprehension of the audience which witnessed the preview at the Egyptian Theatre, and this use of the term "audience" includes the undersigned.

According to the picture, a doctor named Alexander Meade performed the first abdominal surgery on a human being at a small town in Virginia in 1802 while a backwoods bandit named Big Jack Horner held at bay a mob of townsfolk intent upon hanging the doctor for stealing bodies from a graveyard in the course of his preparations for the operation. That could be historically correct, and under some circumstances an interesting item of Americana, but producer Gottfried Reinhardt, abetted by author Thoeren and writers Gene Fowler, Marvin Borowsky and Osso Van Eyes, have utilized it merely as a fragile peg on which to hang a story which may be most accurately and very generously termed a travesty.

Not to undertake the telling on paper of a tale which all of those writers could not bring to life on film, it can be summarized here as a hop-skip-jump account of the half-earnest, half-vindictive assistance given a sincere young doctor and grave-robber by an unlettered and determinedly comic bandit who dominated the Maryland-Virginia border country in 1802. Stick-ups, abductions, grave openings, grunts, groans and shrieks are among the materials employed, with laughs at all times the objective. Richard Thorpe, a director who believes performances by players are the salvation of more pictures than most people realize, got a lot out of these players, but he could not get out of the story the values that producer and writers did not put into it. The only picture which a long memory can dredge up to compare generically with this one was Preston Sturges' "The Great Moment," of 1944, which dealt with the first use of anaesthesia in dentistry and which, like this one, dealt with it humorously, with a box-office result which everybody concerned would be happy to have forgotten about permanently.

Running time, 86 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Vitagraph in 1904, left that position to join the Navy and on his discharge became a reporter on the Newark Evening News, in 1911. Later he became associated with Kalem, from which he resigned in 1913 to become assistant general sales manager for Universal.

In 1920, Hode was named general sales manager of Cosmopolitan Productions, changing to Educational Films in 1923 as manager of the New York branch. He managed his own film exchange from 1925 through 1927 and for a short time after that was sales director of short subjects for Universal. He joined Columbia in 1928 as director of public relations and subsequently became director of sales promotion. He was named executive assistant to Cohn in 1933.

Hode had been organizing a television department at Columbia to sell video rights to dated company product to telecasters.

Hode was active in the formation of the Picture Pioneers, an organization of veterans of the motion picture industry, and was serving as secretary-treasurer at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held at Riverside Memorial Chapel, at 3:00 P.M. today. Burial will be at Maple Grove Cemetery, Queens.

still are many questions to be answered and first and foremost among them is, how can it be done?

To aid in their investigation, Fabian and theatre-operating colleagues in the East recently retained Nathan L. Halpern, formerly assistant to the president of Columbia Broadcasting, to undertake extensive research.

Fabian pointed out there have been no conclusions reached on any of the basic factors involved. Full consideration must be given, he said, to the best means of transmission, whether by coaxial cable or micro-wave relay, to program material and point of origin, to costs for the entertainment itself as well as the equipment, and which would be the most feasible, either for each theatre to offer video on a separate basis or with a number of houses linked in a joint operation.

discuss the 20th-Fox effort without rancor.

Texas Allied says the largest part of industry income rests with affiliated circuits from which it says it does not believe the "distributor has been getting his fair share of the box-office dollar." If those are the theatres 20th-Fox has in mind, well, and good, says Texas Allied. But if the company means the "little fellow," it remarks, "we all better hunt the cyclone cellar."

Iowa-Nebraska Allied believes that distribution revenue from affiliated theatres can be increased 20 to 30 per cent "by proper selling." It suggests that home office sales officials and district managers handle theatre accounts which average more than $250 per picture, and that branch managers and salesmen take care of the rest. The latter should visit every town and theatre in their territories regularly, making deals based on individual situations rather than on national policies which it claims cannot be applied to numerous smaller situations and which, therefore, remain unsold.

"Every theatre is a possibility," the bulletin reminds, but many possibilities with a huge aggregate revenue remain unsold because of sales policies that cannot be made to fit 17,000 theatres, it claims.

Drafts Bill

ments cutting tariffs on goods from such a country will be terminated at the earliest possible date, with the President directed to take advantage of any "escape clauses" in the agreement.

The California Republican admitted that the motion picture industry was one of the industries uppermost in his mind when he drafted the amendment.

Indications that the amendment may run into Administration opposition were contained in a letter Knowland released today from Under-Secretary of State James E. Webb, replying to queries from Knowland and four other Republican Senators, including Senator Taft of Ohio, as to what the State Department is doing about foreign discrimination against American goods. Webb's general attitude was, "We'd like to end that discrimination, too, but we can't rush things."

To Meet Acheson

On the other side of the Capitol, Rep. Cecil B. King, head of a committee picked by California Representatives to talk to the State Department on the British quota met with Webb today. King outlined the concern of the California delegation over the high British quota and its results on employment and payrolls in Hollywood. Arrangements were made for the full committee to meet with Secretary of State Dean Acheson sometime next week.

In his letter to Knowland, Webb said that discrimination abroad against American products was made necessary by an inadequate supply of dollars. By conserving dollars, these countries can make the most of the Marshall Plan, Webb wrote, and so speed the day when they'll no longer need American taxpayers' money.

He said that the Administration's current policies are designed to return at the earliest possible date to a pattern of world-wide non-discriminatory multilateral trade, with the European countries trading with the dollar countries as well as among themselves.

Sees Progress

"The progress during the last year to achieve this objective has been real," Webb declared, "but we are not yet at the point where European countries can achieve a balance in dollar payments without careful conservation of dollar earnings. Relaxation of existing restrictions on trade and currency convertibility involve questions of timing which are of the utmost complexity."

Webb recalled that Britain tried to restore limited sterling convertibility under the British loan agreement in the summer of 1947, but with disastrous results and rapid inroads on her dollar reserve that forced a return to non-convertibility.

"The Department earnestly endeavors to avoid such premature measures in the future which would only result in an increasing burden on the U. S. taxpayer, while at the same time moving toward the earliest reattainment of multilateral, non-discriminatory world trade," Webb wrote.

Reviews

"Scott of the Antarctic"

(Rank-Eagle Lion)

THE British have brought to the screen the fateful story of Robert Falcon Scott, that nation's great Antarctic explorer who raced the Norwegian Amundsen to the South Pole in 1912 and who lost that contest, to die with several of his men on the return journey when only 11 miles from a supply base.

The story of Scott and his battle with the elements in the face of overwhelming obstacles has been transferred to the screen by the Rank Organization and producer Sir Michael with terrifying realism, made even more effective through the use of Technicolor. It is a superb photographic accomplishment that will astound the audience which, at the same time, will freeze in its seats as the blizzard howls across the bleak, icy expanse of the Antarctic.

While the makers have reproduced Scott's trek with meticulous attention to historic detail and while John Mills here gives the performance of his life, American exhibitors may nevertheless be tempted to treat "Scott" as a documentary rather than an entertainment film.

It is unfortunate that director Charles Frend did not see fit to give the film more movement, a little more dramatic punch. American audiences may find it difficult to understand a man deliberately walking out into a storm to his death with a casual "I may be a while."

From a technical, photographic and performance point of view, "Scott" deserves nothing but the highest praise. The screenplay by Walter Meade and Ivor Montague, provides the basis for some outstanding acting by such veteran performers as Derek Bond, Harold Warrender, James Robertson Justice, Reginald Beckwith, Diana Churchill and Anne Firth. Not enough emphasis can be placed on the skillful use of color which gives the camera eye a depth and vividness of outstanding quality.

Running time, 111 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 20.

"Rustlers"

(RKO Radio)

THE average follower of Western outdoor tales will find enough of that which is to be desired in hard riding and fierce fighting and gunplay in "Rustlers." Herman Schlom produced and Lesley Selander directed, along a routine, straight down-the-line formula. The story is simple and easily told.

Tim Holt and Richard Martin are cowpunchers who run into a cattle-rustling situation while trying to land jobs. Martin makes a "killing" at a gambling saloon and finds that the money he won is marked and was stolen by the saloon keeper from ranchers. The sheriff is in cahoots with the rustlers. There's a lot of chasing up and down canyons and it takes a little while for Holt and Martin to clear themselves but everybody is happy by the time the sun sets. "Rustlers" has some good photography. Holt and Martin are adequate. Lois Andrews is seen as a singer in the saloon. Others in the cast are Martha Hyer, Steve Broidy, Harry Shannon, Addison Richards and Frank Fenton.

Running time, 61 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

"Ride, Ryder, Ride"

(Eagle-Lion)

THE FIRST in a new series of Westerns, "Ride, Ryder, Ride" makes its bow with an abundance of action in Cinecolor. Jim Bannon is Red Ryder and a young Indian boy and a grizzled old cowhand are the star's partners. As a Western it rates satisfactorily.

Bannon represents the forces fighting for law and order. Don Kay (Little Brown Jug) Reynolds and Emmett Lynn, as "Little Beaver" and "Buckskin," make up the trio. The three thwart a holdup of a stage coach in which Peggy Steward, newspaper publisher, is riding. When her brother is killed by a suave, French-accented gang leader who is taking over control of the town, she joins forces with Red Ryder and eventually has him put behind bars.

Exhibitors playing this series will have the added advantage of promoting Western pictures presold through radio and comic-strip syndication. The series is based upon the character created by Stephen Slesinger.

Running time, 58 minutes. General audience classification. February release.

Dollar Situation Tightens in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 7.—The new weakening of the peso, its sudden increase to more than seven for a dollar, is a new worry for the film trade, particularly for U. S. and other foreign distributors and also for those who import equipment and materials. The trade hears insistent rumors of early resumption of the gold monetary standard which Mexico abandoned in 1931, because of the present world gold situation and the belief that a gold backing would strengthen the peso and improve things economically.

Fox Midwest Shifts 4 in Job Changes

KANSAS CITY, April 7.—Appointment of Ralph Adams as film buyer for Fox Midwest, succeeding Lon Cox, resigned, was announced here by Elmer C. Rhoden.

Chet Hilton, formerly booker for District 5, will take Adams' place as District 2 booker, with James Dennis, formerly in film statistics, taking over Hilton's post. Jack Redmond, formerly manager of the Esquire, will assist Senn Lawler in advertising, specializing on first-run campaigns here and in other key towns.

ment in the history of Hollywood, in a large part due to the discriminatory trade barriers set up by the British government, MPIC, representing every major labor and management group, urges the government of the United States, through its state department, to enter immediate negotiations with the government of the United Kingdom to eliminate these practices which have injured the motion picture industries of both countries.

"We are sympathetic to the post-war difficulties of Great Britain and to the great sacrifices of the British people, as is evidenced by the dollar remittance agreement negotiated by Eric Johnston and James A. Mulvey, representing the American industry. This agreement was entered into at a considerable sacrifice to the American industry. Notwithstanding, the British government, shortly after the conclusion of this agreement, broke faith with the American industry by doubling the required playing time for British pictures on screens in Great Britain.

Sees Harmful Result

"It had been clearly understood at the time the agreement was negotiated that the existing quota for screen time would not be disturbed. Raising this quota did not in any manner help to solve the British dollar problem. Its only result has been to injure the American industry, deepen the plight of British exhibitors, and add to unemployment among British film workers. Unless these restrictions are part of a program aimed at the destruction of the American film industry in the world market, we are unable to understand their purpose.

"We ask the State Department to take this action under the authority of the general agreement on tariffs and trades, and the International Trade Organization charter."

prevention of the establishment of a film quota. Mayer declared that "if we don't use judgment and forebearance" and hold down exports so that the market is not flooded with films, "we will have restrictions on the number of films imported." Mayer praised "the wisdom and foresight" of the Motion Picture Export Association which has kept U. S. film exports to Germany down to 52 a year. French and British industries followed suit with 35 films a year, he said.

The third prime consideration is to lift the monetary moratorium to a limited degree. By limited, Mayer explained, he meant to the extent that blocked marks could be put to use in the Germany economy. At present marks are blocked 100 per cent.

Lists Branch Activities

Among its other activities, the motion picture branch issues a weekly newsreel, produces educational documentaries, and distributes American documentaries.

Mayer pointed out that there are many restrictions in Germany, such as maximum film rentals of 43 per cent and maximum admission prices.

At the moment the AMG is seeking to complete the liquidation of UFA, the motion picture monopoly.

Mayer plans to return to Germany at the end of the month. He expects to remain in his post for a few more months and then resign.

Formula Set For Industry Shorts Costs

Rentals To Meet Actual Costs; Trustees Named

With companies agreeing to waive distribution charges for handling the industry promotional short subjects, a board of trustees of 20 members, representing all segments of the trade, has been established to control and disburse all rentals from the U. S. and Canada release of "The Movies and You" series.

This was disclosed in a joint statement on Friday by William Ainsworth, president of Allied States; Y. Frank Freeman, board chairman, Association of Motion Picture Producers; Eric A. Johnston, president, Motion Picture Association of America,

Brandt Says ITOA And 20th Will Meet

Harry Brandt, ITOA of New York president, said on Friday that he had received word from Al Lichtman, 20th Century-Fox vice-president, now on the Coast, that he and other 20th-Fox officials are willing to meet with ITOA on their return to New York to discuss 20th's current drive for increased film rentals.

ITOA boycotted the company's meeting with New York exhibitors, then invited 20th-Fox officials to meet with it April 14. ITOA subsequently set aside that date because of the approaching religious holidays.

Warners Contend Joint Partnerships May Be Liquidated

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The New York District Court judgments and consent decrees permit any big five company ordered to dispose of a theatre owned jointly with an independent to ask for the dissolution of the partnership or jointly-owned company and public sale of its assets, even though there is a prior contract under which the big five company agrees to offer the theatre property to its partner at a specified price before selling to anyone else.

That is the argument which Warner Bros. advanced in District court here Friday. It is of great importance to every big five company and to practically every independent exhibitor who owns a theatre jointly with a big five company. According to lawyers here, many of the Paramount partners have such contracts with Paramount, and the same holds for Fox, Loew's and RKO.

Warners made the argument in con-

'The Barkleys of Broadway'

[Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer]—Astaire and Rogers Return

THE team of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, fondly remembered by thousands of exhibitors, return to the screen together after an absence of a decade in M-G-M's opulent Technicolor production, "The Barkleys of Broadway."

The picture is a treat for the eyes and ears of a wide age span. Dances, songs and music are top grade and tailored to measure for the starring team. Sets, costumes and color are intriguingly rich enough to be box-office factors in their own right. The story, however, follows well-charted lines and its too familiar pattern seemingly slows the picture's pace from time to time, contributing to an impression that its 109 minutes of running time may be more than actually are required.

Astaire and Miss Rogers are Mr. and Mrs. Barkley, a stellar song and dance team whose professional life and ambitions keep their romantic

By SHERWIN KANE

ACCORDING to the best information obtainable, the British members of the Anglo-U. S. Advisory Film Council will go into the Washington meeting with the American members next week intent upon repeating their demands for increased American playing time for their pictures.

After the interminable explanations, the patient discussion, the frank replies that have been given the British producers over the past several years, by official and unofficial sources alike, it would seem that reasonable men would understand by now that playing time in the theatres of America is not in the power of any small group of men to give.

Even if it were, and they were disposed to give it and to absorb the financial losses that large-scale playing of British pictures here entails, it is doubtful if it could be done without the American principals running afoul of the anti-trust laws.

That, perhaps, is what makes it so difficult for British producers to comprehend. They are not troubled at home with anti-trust laws. No doubt they assume even that the impending appreciable divorcement of affiliated theatres within the Amercan industry is no more than window-dressing for appearances' sake and that producers-distributors here will continue to exercise some measure of control or influence over the separated theatre operations.

Their situation at home, which permits J. Arthur Rank, for example, to dominate British exhibition and thereby dictate playing time which decides the fate of a vast amount of product, apparently makes it difficult for them to comprehend that that condition does not prevail here.

The sorry state of British production today no doubt increases their unwillingness to understand. Their pictures are not profitable at home but their troubles would dissolve almost overnight if they could establish a steady flow of dollars from this market. That is the straw to which they cling. To understand that there is no widespread demand for a continuous supply of their pictures here, and that without it there is no power that can give them arbitrarily the playing time they desire, would be to lose that straw.

The British delegation is doomed to disappointment if, as is said of it, it hopes to come away from the Washington meeting with extensive playing time commitments for British pictures. Its members doubtless will return home and renew their blind complaints of discrimination and hoary charges of conspiracy to keep British pictures out of American theatres.

It may not even occur to them, or if it does it will make no difference whatever, that they head, with the backing of departments of their government a campaign of discrimination against American pictures in Britain which the country's leading newspaper, The Times of London, views as preparation for squeezing our films out of the British market.

Sooner or later British producers will have to accept the fact that the American market, like most other markets, must be won by the merits of their product and its acceptability to the American public. It is unobtainable as a gift. Nor can it be had as a bribe in payment for relaxation of penalties designed to deprive American pictures of their place in the British market.

Will H. Hays, as arbitrator of the division among distributors of the money released by France under the Blum-Byrnes agreement, is about to conclude his hearings. They have been in progress here for many months, with George Borthwick, former Motion Picture Association treasurer, called back from retirement in California to serve as expert and adviser on questions of accounting.

The taking of testimony by individual companies has followed formal legal procedure, with distributors' attorneys on hand and representatives of foreign departments and accounting departments testifying.

Local betting is 2 to 1 there will be no more consent decrees in the so-called Paramount case — unless the new Attorney General will settle for less than divorcement.

Await Chaplin Option Extension Today

Hollywood, April 10. — Although Charles Chaplin has declined to comment, he is expected to extend for 10 days his option to sell the United Artists, which expires tomorrow.

Nasser Brothers, now believed to have the field to themselves, continued negotiations over the weekend with interests associated in their purchase plan, which is said to be in the final stages.

IATSE to Charter Studio Publicists

HOLLYWOOD, April 10. — IATSE will issue a charter covering studio publicists, not withstanding the Screen Publicists Guild vote earlier this week for an independent status, Roy Brewer, IA international representative, said in a statement issued over the weekend.

Brewer said that a bargaining election petition, now before the NLRB, will not be withdrawn. Brewer's position is that the majority of workers now actively employed in the studios voted in favor of IATSE affiliation, while those who voted against were in the main unemployed.

SPG Pickets Back At Broadway Houses

Picketing of Broadway first-run houses will be resumed today, the Screen Publicists Guild announced, with the demonstrations planned to continue until negotiations between the Guild and producers, now deadlocked, are resumed.

The SPG posted temporary picket lines last Tuesday night, after a special membership meeting where Guild spokesmen said that the producing companies had refused to sign new contracts unless wage and security demands were withdrawn.

Senate Passes ECA Bill; House to Act

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A bill extending ECA operations through June 30, 1950, was passed by the Senate Friday, with up to $10,000,000 available for information media guaranties.

The House, where its Foreign Affairs committee has increased the media fund to $15,000,000, is expected to pass its version of the ECA bill this week.

Two-Cent Tax Legal

WASHINGTON, April 10. — The Fairfax Corp., operating theatres in Virginia, has lost a court battle against a two-cent admission tax in nearby Falls Church, Va., where it owns the State Theatre. The company had attacked the tax as beyond the city's taxing power, but a Fairfax County Circuit Court said the tax was legal and dismissed the suit.

life off-stage in constant turmoil. Miss Rogers secretly fancies herself a dramatic actress and her appetite for a legitimate role is whetted by a young playwright, Jacques Francois, who sees her as just the type for the title role in his play of the young Sarah Bernhardt.

Astaire rebels at the idea and, when Miss Rogers accepts the role, the two separate. Threatened with a failure as a dramatic actress, Miss Rogers is coached to success by Astaire who employs a ruse to correct her deficiencies. Meanwhile, the playwright, Francois, becomes romantically interested in Miss Rogers.

HER reconciliation with Astaire is managed by her discovery of his ruse and with the friendly assistance of Oscar Levant as their mutual friend. The happy ending is achieved with the song and dance team returning to new success on the musical stage.

The dancing of Astaire and Miss Rogers is as smooth and polished as ever, although some of the sparkle and verve of a decade ago may seem to be missing. The likeable qualities remain and many an individual scene shines brighter than the whole.

There is lots of fine music by Harry Warren and lyrics by Ira Gershwin, and the tuneful number "They Can't Take That Away from Me," for which George Gershwin wrote the music.

Charles Walters directed with care and fluency. Betty Comden and Adolph Green did the original screen play. Arthur Freed produced, with Roger Edens as associate producer.

"Shoes with Wings On," a unique dance number in which the shoes in a cobbler's shop take off from shelves and counters by themselves for an engaging dance routine, was directed by Hermes Pan, with the dancing shoes effects done by Irving G. Ries.

The Technicolor photography is particularly impressive and contributes much to the effectiveness of Irene's lavish costumes for Miss Rogers, to the art work of Cedric Gibbons and Edward Carfagno, and the decorations of Edwin B. Willis and Arthur Krams, all outstanding in their own rights.

SUPPORTING roles are engagingly filled by Levant who, in addition to his role as friend of the Barkleys, is featured in several of his distinctive piano solos; by Billie Burke, as a flighty matron; Gale Robbins, as Miss Rogers' stage understudy and feminine foil for Astaire in arousing his mate's jealousy.

Musical numbers were engagingly staged and directed by Robert Alton, with musical direction by Lennie Hayton.

The production is in the tradition of richness for which the studio is known. There is an abundance of entertainment in the complete package and with it the box-office pull of the starring team's names.

Running time, 109 minutes. General classification. For May release.

Propose Changes in Securities Forms

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Securities and Exchange Commission has proposed an extensive overhauling of the forms which film companies and other firms must fill out to register securities, make annual or quarterly reports to stockholders, or report sales to the SEC. Some would be simplier, other more complex, and still others just different. Interested persons have until April 15 to submit comments.

Form No. 10-K, the annual report, would be broadened to require firms to disclose more complete information on changes in business and physical properties, important legal proceedings, and developments in such proceedings. Form No. 8-K, the quarterly report, would have to disclose institution or termination of important litigation, changes in the general character of business, acquisition or disposition of a substantial amount of assets, submission of reorganization plans to any group of security holders, defaults on senior securities, institution of bonus, profit-sharing, pension and retirement plans, and guarantees of securities of other issuers.

Form No. 9-K, for quarterly reports of gross sales and operating revenues, is a new form to replace the present 8-K, and Form 10 is for registration of securities on a national stock exchange is being simplified in some respects and broadened in others.

Shorts Series

and Arthur Lockwood, president, Theatre Owners of America.

At the start, the companies will charge their regular minimum rental for a black-and-white, one-reel subject with adjustments to be made on subsequent releases so that the rentals will meet, but not exceed, the production costs of the series. Studio overhead will not be included in the costs. The method of determining the rentals is said to be in line with a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the TOA at its meeting in Washington several weeks ago.

First Within 30 Days

"Let's Go to the Movies," first of the series, will be released by RKO within the next 30 days. Four of the 12 films in the project have been completed and three others are near completion. The remaining five are scheduled for release by Aug. 1.

It was pointed out in a joint statement that some exhibitor interests felt that 50 per cent of the usual shorts rentals would be sufficient to cover costs, while the national distributors committee insisted that the full rental would be needed.

A compromise formula was arrived at, under which the board of trustees is to be instructed to examine all costs of the first four subjects after they are released, and if these are lower than the original estimate, the board is to consider the reduction of rentals for future releases to approximate the actual costs and avoid the accumulation of a large surplus.

The statement further explained: "If after such a study and a possible readjustment of film rentals based thereon, the cost of the entire 12 subjects should be recouped from less than 12 releases, then the balance of the 12 releases are to be made available to exhibitors without any rental whatsoever."

Last 6 May Be Free

Thus, it is pointed out, that "if those who sincerely feel that 50 per cent of the usual rental will recoup the cost of these films are correct, then the trustees will release the last six without charge."

The estimated average cost is $28,250 per film and is broken down as follows: $18,250 for script and actual production (no studio overhead included); $7,500 to film laboratories for 600 prints of each release, and $2,500 per subject for press books and other publicity.

At Friday's meeting of the MPAA, instructions were telegraphed to Freeman, who is chairman of the committee of exhibitors, producers and artists in Hollywood, which is supervising the making of the films, to proceed with the final five films in the series.

The others already completed are: "This Theatre and You," Warners; "Movies Are Adventure," Universal, and "The Art Director," 20th Century-Fox. Near completion are "The Sound Man," Columbia; "The Screen Actor," M-G-M, and "History Brought to Life," Paramount. Slated for immediate production are: "A Film Goes to Market," "Screen Writers," "Screen Directors," "Moments in Music" and "The Stylist."

Name Trustees

In addition to Ainsworth, Freeman, Johnston and Lockwood, who will serve ex officio, others invited to act as trustees are:

Abe Montague, chairman, national distributors committee; I. E. Chadwick, president, Independent Motion Picture Producers Association and member of the production committee; Jean Hersholt, president, Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, and member of the production committee; Charles P. Skouras, also representing TOA; Trueman T. Rembusch, also representing Allied States; Rotus Harvey, president, Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners; Harry Brandt, president, Independent Theatre Owners Association, New York; John J. Fitzgibbons, representing Canadian exhibitors; Joseph Vogel, chairman, theatre committee of Motion Picture Association; Robert J. O'Donnell, chief barker, National Variety Clubs; Myer Schine, Gloversville, N. Y.; and the following trade paper editors and publishers: Martin Quigley, Quigley Publications; Ben Shlyen, Box Office; Jack Alicoate, Film Daily; Charles E. Lewis, Showmen's Trade Review, and Abel Green, Variety.

Warners Contend

nection with a suit by the K-B Amusement Co. to force Stanley Co., Warner subsidiary, out of the MacArthur Theatre.

K-B and Stanley, as a partnership, operate the theatre under a lease from the jointly-owned MacArthur Corp. Warners, in a consent judgment entered in New York in December and modified in March, has already agreed to get out of both the lease and the owning company. The argument now is just how it should get out.

Wants Contract Prices

K-B has asked the court here to force Stanley to give its part of the lease and its stock in the corporation to K-B at prices fixed in the contract setting up the MacArthur Corp. This provided that if either partner wanted to get out, it would first offer its stock to the other at book value and its share of the lease to the other under a complicated formula based on annual earnings in previous years.

Warners on Friday asked the District court here to dissolve the lease, liquidate the MacArthur Corp., and dispose of its assets at public sale, with the proceeds being divided between the two firms.

Obviously, Warners believes that it will not do very well if it has to sell out to K-B under the contract, whereas it may do quite well if the company is dissolved and its assets sold publicly. Many other big five joint-ownership situations might fit into the same pattern.

Claims Dissolution Right

Warners argued that the New York court judgments gave it the right to dispose of its interests in jointly-owned theatres either by sale or dissolution, and that it chose dissolution. It said that the contract to buy if the other partner offered was designed for a totally different situation, when one partner wanted to get out voluntarily, and could not be stretched to cover dissolution or even sale under a court judgment.

K-B is expected to reply that the contract provisions take precedence over any court order, and that dissolution cannot be used to get around the contract. In this specific case, K-B will argue, the lease was drawn up after the Paramount case was originally argued and this provision was specifically included with an eye on eventual forced sale or dissolution of the Warner interest in the MacArthur.

Argument on the case is set for April 25.

annual convention and was considered an important step towards the solution of remaining problems in the realization of commercial theatre television.

Although Friday's meeting was entirely of an exploratory nature and not designed to formulate conclusions, it was announced that the two groups will reconvene in a few weeks to consider specific points on the agenda of the meeting.

Discussion leaders were Donald E. Hyndman of Eastman-Kodak and chairman of SMPE's theatre television committee; and Walter Reade, Jr., of Walter Reade Theatres, and co-chairman of TOA's television committee.

Other participants in the conference, including representatives of equipment manufacturers, research laboratories, film producers and theatre owners were:

Discuss Theatre Sites At Closing SMPE Meet

Considerations determining the selection of sites for theatres were discussed here Friday at the final session of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers by E. G. Faludi, of Town Planning Consultants, Toronto. As the theatre is part of the urban retail structure, to a large degree it succeeds or fails as its location within the city structure is favorable or unfavorable, Faludi declared.

He outlined six basic steps in determining a site. They were: 1—determine size of population from which anticipated attendance will be drawn. 2-determine the social and economic groups of area and living and spending habits of group. 3—determine accessibility of the site. 4—determine future residential, industrial or commercial developments and probable changes in area. 5—consider findings in relation to existing theatres in area. 6—evaluate findings in relation to capital investment in land and building, anticipated operating costs and revenue.

May I also state that any such formula or sales plan that you adopt is your business provided you obtain this formula or sales plan from all exhibitors." (Italics are Harvey's).

The bulletin goes on to term "erroneous" statements made by 20th-Fox executives that exhibitors "have been grabbing too much of the ticket money," have been "getting away" with low prices and have slackened showmanship. Harvey suggested that conferences from time to time with Theatre Owners of America, PCCITO and Allied leaders would have made unnecessary the current "grass roots" tour by 20th-Fox executives in connection with the rentals campaign.

New York office and to be headed by Francis Harmon, vice-president of the organization.

Heretofore, MPAA's exhibitor relations department had been headed by David Palfreyman who maintains headquarters in the Washington office. Palfreyman is slated to assist Harmon.

While the new program is designed to establish a stronger and closer relationship between the major companies and exhibition, precisely how this will be accomplished could not be ascertained. A spokesman here said at the weekend that details of the plan have yet to be determined.

Eric A. Johnston, president, and all other officers of the MPAA were re-elected at the meeting of the board.

Other officers are: Francis S. Harmon and Joseph I. Breen, vice-presidents; Fred W. DuVall, treasurer; Sidney Schreiber, secretary; Stanley Weber, assistant treasurer, and John G. McCarthy and James S. Howie, assistant secretaries.

Abe Montague, Max A. Cohen and Charles E. Lewis appeared at the meeting to discuss the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital in a bid for financial support.

Appoint Committees For MPAA Activities

Executive committee of the Motion Picture Association of America, as announced by president Eric A. Johnston following the annual board of directors meeting here on Friday, comprises the following:

Johnston, chairman, ex officio, and Barney Balaban, Paramount; Nate J. Blumberg, Universal; Steve Broidy, Allied Artists; Jack Cohn, Columbia; Ned E. Depinet, RKO; Samuel Schneider, Warners; Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's; Spyros P. Skouras, 20th Century-Fox, and Herbert J. Yates, Republic.

Chairmen of other MPAA committees were announced as follows:

F. W. DuVall, MPAA, finance; Jack Cohn, membership; Joseph Vogel, Loew's, theatres; Nate J. Blumberg, public relations; Mort Blumenstock, Warners, advertising and publicity directors and advertising advisory council; Edwin P. Kilroe, 20th-Fox, copyrights; Ned E. Depinet, exhibitor and community relations; Roger C. Clement, Paramount, foreign legal advisory; Austin Keough, Paramount, general counsel; John G. McCarthy, MPAA, international division; Abe Montague, Columbia, national distributors.

Also, Edmund Reek, Movietone News, newsreel; Charles C. Moskowitz, Loew's, research; John J. O'Connor, Universal, solicitations; Albert S. Howson, Warners, titles, and Jack Cohn, television.

ing stopped on all three, threatening Rank with heavy expense.

The work-stoppage order followed the lay-off of Bert Batchelor, leftist shop steward for the E.T.U. at Denham. The union insisted he be retained but the stuido contended his services were redundant and claimed he should have been dismissed long ago but that he had been retained only because of his position as a union executive.

Rank recently reorganized his production activities on a basis which left only the Denham and Pinewood studios still operating.

Arnall Takes Film Problems To President

Confers at White House; To See Acheson Today

WASHINGTON, April 11.—SIMPP president Ellis Arnall today took to President Truman his fight to get the State Department working for the American film industry abroad.

In a half-hour conference with the President at the White House, Arnall reviewed the industry's foreign problems and told Mr. Truman that "it would be a very fine thing if the State Department would use its good offices for securing and insisting on fair and non-discriminatory treatment of U. S. films overseas."

Arnall said the President was so interested and concerned that he summoned Secretary of State Acheson immediately and informed Acheson of his interest in the industry's problems.

"In President Truman, I am convinced that the American motion picture industry has a very loyal and understanding friend," Arnall said. "I

British Restrictions Uneconomic:Lessing

British restrictions have proven uneconomic insofar as its industry is concerned, Gunther Lessing, vice-president of Walt Disney, Ltd., observed here yesterday on his arrival on the SS Queen Elizabeth from London. He asserted that the British industry would thrive if it entered open world competition by making fewer but better pictures, instead of trying to meet its unnecessarily large quotas.

He said that "50 per cent and maybe 60 per cent of the world gross

Circuit Court Rules Drive-In Ramp Patent Is Invalid

BOSTON, April 11.—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here has handed down a decision holding the drive-in theatre ramp patent of Park-In Theatres, Camden, N. J., invalid.

Numerous drive-ins throughout the country which have been paying royalties to Park-In on its ramp patent are affected by the decision. Park-In has not indicated yet whether it plans to appeal the decision to the Supreme Court.

The Circuit Court's decision was made in the eight-year old case of Park-In Theatres against E. M. Loew's Drive-In Theatre, Inc., of Providence. The U. S. District Court at Providence, in a decision handed down in March, 1947, ruled in favor

MPA Meet Thursday On Exhibition Plan

Board of directors of the Motion Picture Association of America will meet here on Thursday for further development of its plan to expand its activities in exhibitor relations. The idea was discussed extensively by the board on Friday, at which time final decision was not reached on the actual scope and specific nature of the proposed new functions of the organization's theatre department.

At that time, however, definitive action was taken in the form of appointment of a new committee on ex-

Rank Studio Peace Talks Progressing

London, April 11.—Work resumed at J. Arthur Rank's Pinewood Studio today as talks were continuing between Rank's people and the Electrical Trades Union in the hope of resolving the dispute which has kept the Denham Studio closed since Friday.

The union called a work stoppage after Bert Batchelor, chief shop steward at Denham, was laid off when he refused a transfer to the maintenance staff at the new Shepherds Bush studio.

20th Sales Tour Will Continue: Lichtman

HOLLYWOOD, April 11.—Twentieth Century-Fox vice-president Al Lichtman told a two-day company sales meeting here that he and company vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., will pursue their current "grass roots" national sales survey to its completion, and made it clear that no definitive policy has as yet been determined upon. "Twentieth Century-Fox will not make any announcement of any change in its sales plans until this study of buying and selling conditions has been thoroughly made," according to a company statement.

U. K. Quota Has a Special Danger, House Is Told

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Britain's high film quota is of particular danger because other countries in Europe and the sterling area follow Britain's lead on trade restrictions, Rep. McDonough, California Republican, told the House today. McDonough made his remarks in opposing an amendment to a pending ECA bill to the effect that one of ERP's main aims is to encourage unification of Europe.

The California Republican warned the House that encouraging European economic unification should not be at the cost of harming U. S. economic development, and cited the film industry to prove his point.

Adequate Vote Favoring Para. Split Apparent

68% of Stock In; Assures Approval at Meet Today

Division of Paramount into two separate and independent companies, one to engage in production-distribution and the other to operate theatres already has been given enthusiastic endorsement by stockholders, according to responsible sources who report that proxies representing 68 per cent of the authorized outstanding stock had been received at the weekend.

Only about one per cent of the vote is said to have been against the split of the corporation; thus the 66 2/3 majority which is necessary to ratify has actually been exceeded, it is said.

Stockholders will meet at noon today at the Paramount home office with a record attendance of approximately 300 individual holders expected. The indication is that Paramount will match the RKO affirmative vote of close to 80 per cent for that company's reorganization, when all proxies to be voted are in today.

Para. Accelerates Buying Up Its Stock

Paramount sharply accelerated last month the buying up of its own common stock on the open market with the purchase of 52,000 shares. This brings to 893,833 shares the total accumulated in Paramount's treasury under the stock-purchasing program instituted in November, 1946, by company president Barney Balaban.

Other recent monthly purchases follow: February, 25,100; January, 27,500; December, 41,700; November, 21,500; October, 40,500; September, 32,500; August, 22,200; July, 31,000.

3-Day Celebration For 'Tulsa' Premiere

TULSA, Okla., April 11.—A three-day civic celebration marking the first public showing of Eagle-Lion's "Tulsa" began here today with the arrival from Hollywood of players Susan Hayward, Chill Wills, Robert Preston and producer Walter Wanger. Formal events will start tomorrow night with a dinner at which Oklahoma's Governor Roy J. Turner will be host.

A two-hour parade, titled "Oil Industry's Salute to the Film Industry" will be held Wednesday morning as the opening event of "Tulsa Premiere Day," proclaimed by the governor. All Tulsa schools and stores will be closed Wednesday.

Following the premiere, to be held at the Ritz, Orpheum, Majestic and Rialto theatres, the Tulsa Press Club will sponsor a reception and midnight supper. All of the events relating to the premiere will be made available in a special advance trailer for theatres dating the picture.

35 Newsmen Going To 'Tulsa' Opening

Some 35 news and trade paper editors and reporters will attend the world premiere of Walter Wanger's "Tulsa," which opens at the Ritz and Orpheum Theatres in Tulsa, Okla., tomorrow, it was announced here yesterday by Max E. Youngstein, Eagle-Lion advertising-publicity vice-president.

Eagle-Lion officials attending will be headed by William J. Heineman, sales vice-president; Youngstein, and L. Jack Schlaifer, general sales manager. Wanger representatives Irving Lesser and Seymour Poe will also be present, as will Jack Kilty.

Independents Must Be 'Different': Kramer

"The independent producer must take a run at something different, and also be prepared to take a fall," according to producer Stanley Kramer. "If the independent can keep going, he will be in a better position in a changing industry to satisfy the public. If the independent can stay in business through the transition, he will be able to cope with the new medium better than the majors with their overheads."

The independent producer "who attempts these days to challenge the major studios must have a creative approach," Kramer, who produced "Champion" and "Home of the Brave" for United Artists' release, said here.

Renoir Will Make 4 Films in India

India was characterized as a "magnificent" place to produce pictures of fresh inspiration by Ken McEldowney, president of Oriental-International Films, and Jean Renoir, French director, in an interview at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here yesterday. And that is just what the pair intends to do, for they have set plans to produce four films in Technicolor in India for worldwide distribution.

The four will be made under the banner of Commonwealth, Ltd., of which Oriental-International is the American parent company, the pair explained. Renoir asserted that India has "a wealth of story material, background and color." McEldowney pointed out that the pictures will be the first full-length pictures to be made in India in Technicolor by an American or British company and he said that Indian authorities were receptive to the project. They will be made as British quota pictures and cast and technicians will be partly British, partly American and partly Indian, it was revealed. Worldwide distribution is intended, but no distributor has yet been set. Cost of each picture will be around $600,000 according to McEldowney. The first will be based on Rumer Godden's novel "The River." The pair will leave for Hollywood Friday to complete the script and select equipment and technicians. They will return to India to commence production in September.

SPG Takes Contract Deadlock to Mediator

In an attempt to "avoid the ocurrence of a serious labor dispute affecting the industry," the Screen Publicists Guild of New York, Local No. 114, CIO, has called upon the New York State Board of Mediation to intervene immediately in the negotiations deadlock between the union and major film companies, SPG stated yesterday.

In a letter to Arthur S. Meyer, Mediation Board chairman, SPG said that "the impasse is the result of the adamant refusal of the producers to discuss terms of a new agreement unless the union agrees in advance to forego salary increases and accept drastic downward revision of security, arbitration and other clauses gained by the Guild on contracts with the companies since 1942."

Review

"Sorrowful Jones"

(Paramount)

BOB HOPE, playing a Damon Runyon character in the style of Bob Hope, is something new for him and for his audiences. They will like him a great deal in this sentimental comedy based on "Little Miss Marker" which good memories will recall projected Shirley Temple into fame and fortune exactly 15 years ago.

Mary Jane Saunders, a cute and quite adorable newcomer, plays the role originally assigned to Shirley. She is the kind of youngster embroiled in the kind of story make-believe which will have women oo-ing and ah-ing practically all of the way as she twines her charm irresistibly around the Broadway wise guy and bookie played by Hope.

The story deals with Times Square, horses and fixed races and tells how Hope falls unwitting and unwilling heir to Mary Jane whose father is unfortunate enough to run into information about the fix and ends up in the East River as his punishment. The child becomes the problem, faced by Hope and shared by Lucille Ball, night club songbird romantically linked with Bob. The detail conveys how Mary Jane wins and Hope loses as the film fades into a happy finish while Bob and Miss Ball marry because they want to and also because they want to keep Mary Jane out of an orphanage.

"SORROWFUL JONES" finds its star wisecracking and indulging in his established brand of comedy, but there is less of that than is normally associated with a Hope vehicle. His soft side comes in for a more pronounced play and, while it is a switch, audiences undoubtedly will take it neatly in stride.

The climactic episode which makes it required to bring Dreamy Joe, the horse, into the hospital where the child is hovering between life and death is very tall and, actually, quite a ridiculous piece of business. But it is played alternately for laughs and tears and succeeds on both counts.

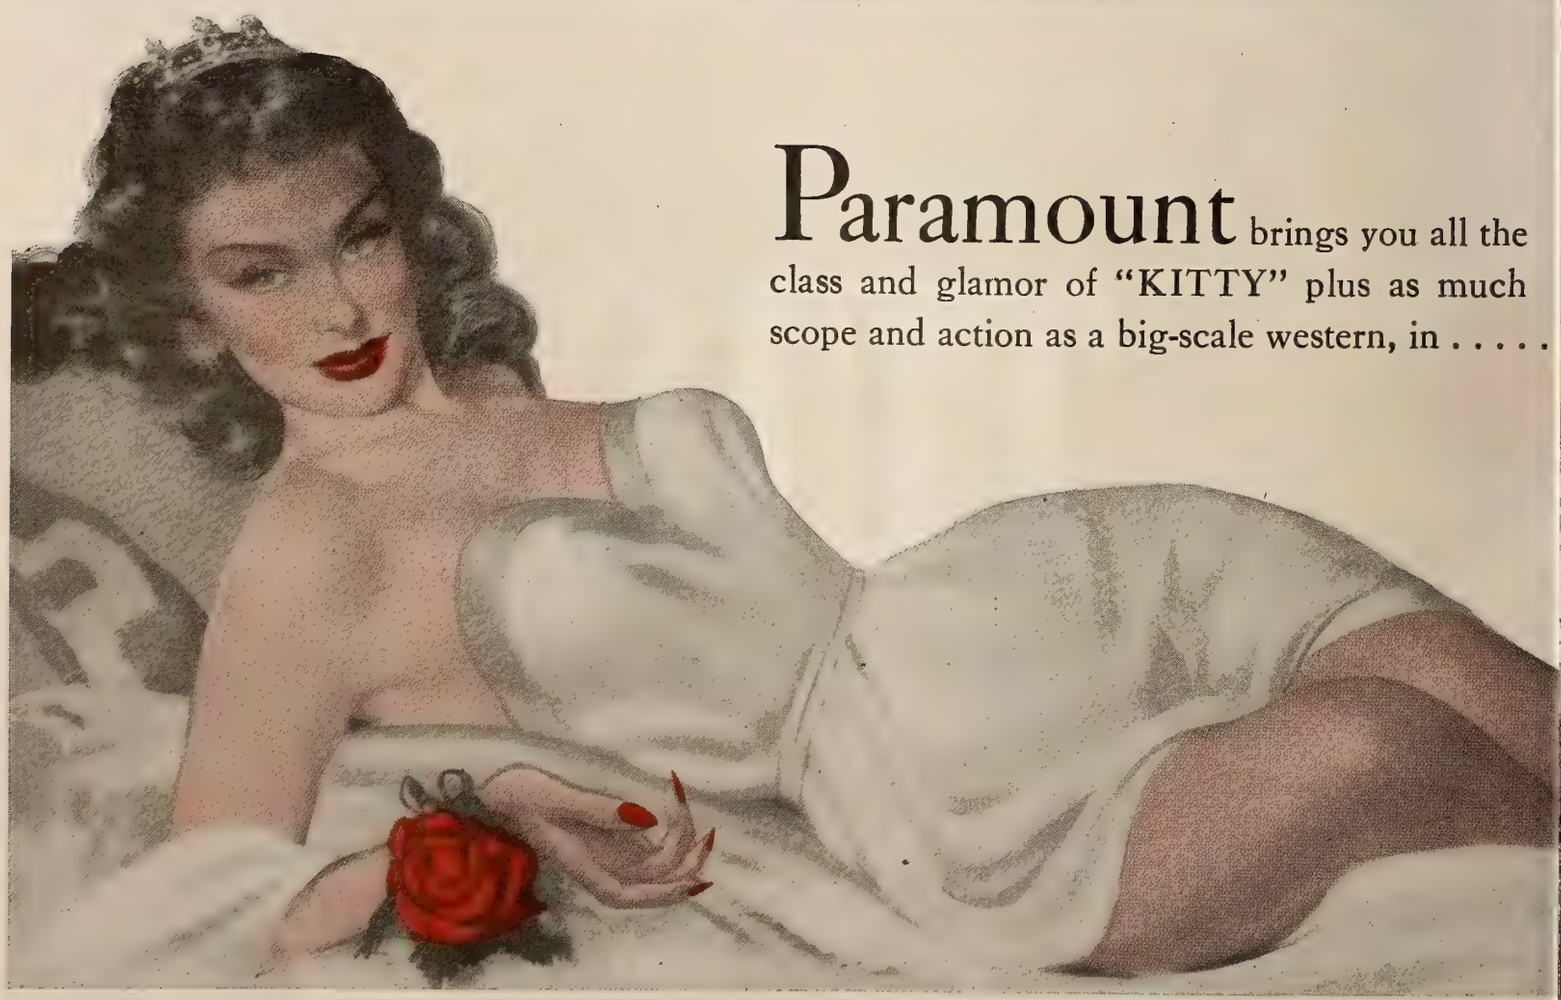
Performances of a small supporting cast, including William Demarest, Bruce Cabot, Thomas Gomez and Tom Pedi, are competent. William R. Lipman, Sam Hellman and Gladys Lehman wrote one screenplay from the Runyon story. This in turn was whipped into another screenplay, which was filmed, by Melville Shavelson, Edmund Hartmann and Jack Rose. Robert L. Welch produced and Sidney Lanfield directed with an unwavering eye glued to the commercial possibilities.

Running time 88 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, July 4, 1949.

RED KANN

Nat Holt Here for Financing Next Two

Nat Holt, independent producer, is here from the Coast to complete financial arrangements for his next two productions which he will release through 20th Century-Fox, each to be budgeted at $900,000 to $1,000,000.



A former exhibitor who recently completed "Canadian Pacific," also for distribution through 20th-Fox, Holt said here yesterday that he intends to start "The Fighting Man" on May 15 and "The Caribou Trail," to be made in British Columbia, probably in July. Like "Pacific," the two new films will be in color and will star Randolph Scott.

Holt reported that next year he will do "Santa Fe" in cooperation with the Santa Fe Railroad. He will return to the Coast at the end of this week.

Taplinger Starting Public Relations Firm

Establishment of a national organization for public relations is announced by Robert S. Taplinger and Associates, from the company's main office in New York. The firm has other offices in Chicago, Washington and Beverly Hills.

Taplinger was formerly with the publicity department of Columbia Broadcasting, which he left to open his publicity offices in New York, Chicago, and Hollywood. He sold his business to become director of publicity for Warner Brothers. Later he held other public relations posts in the film industry.

am very enthused about his attitude."

Arnall said that he had not specifically mentioned any country nor the special problems of the independents but rather had concentrated on the "general proposition that we are not effectively employing one of the best methods we have of selling democracy abroad—American commercially-produced films." Arnall declared that he had stressed American films as a method of implementing the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Pact and other elements of our foreign policy. Arnall will see Secretary Acheson again tomorrow on the foreign situation and may stay in town even longer contacting other key figures on the foreign situation. In his meeting with Acheson tomorrow, he will probably concentrate more on the British problem, Arnall declared.

the Motion Picture Association of America, McDonough reviewed the British film quota history and declared that the quota had cut deeply into Hollywood's foreign film market and brought about sizeable unemployment in Hollywood. Members of Parliament and British theatre owners opposed the quota, he said.

Rep. Judd, sponsor of the amendment, warned McDonough that unless the European nations were better unified economically the recovery program would not succeed and "the Marshall Plan countries won't have dollars for American motion pictures or any other American products."

It was then that McDonough said that the British policy especially disturbed him because British actions serve as signals to other countries.

Meanwhile the Senate put off at least until next week debate on extending the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. This is the measure to which Senator Knowland has proposed an amendment designed to strike back at discrimination against American films and other products by Britain and other nations.

A committee representing California members of Congress has not yet been able to set up an appointment with Secretary of State Acheson, to discuss with him the quota situation.

lating Film Finance Corp. reveals that it now is authorized to advance financing directly to producers who can satisfy the corporation that they have an organization qualified to produce a series of pictures and who are equipped with the necessary experts to produce such a program and have access to adequate private financing to supplement that supplied by Film Finance.

The government corporation hitherto had powers to make loans to distributors only.

British Restrictions

could be made in the United States," but added that instead the British are concentrating on 25 per cent of the market "by artificial restrictions." British films should compete in the American as well as the British market, Lessing said, "and they would not have studios closed."

Declaring that British producers' interests are parallel to American independents, Lessing declared that "the Paramount case and other government cases will eventually bring on free and open markets where pictures can be sold on their merit." Lessing is also chairman of the executive committee of Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and intends to make a report to that group shortly.

One of Lessing's main purposes overseas was to take care of the legal angles involved in Disney's "Treasure Island." Shooting will start in England around July 15. The film is being made by Disney under the British quota. Lessing also visited France and Switzerland.

Other arrivals yesterday were Sam Eckman, Jr., managing director of M-G-M, Ltd.; Kay Harrison, managing director of Technicolor, Ltd., and Gregory Ratoff, producer.

Drive-in Patent of Park-In on the basis of an agreement under which it licensed Loew's Drive-In in return for royalty payments based on a percentage of weekly gross receipts.

The Drive-In appealed the decision to the Circuit Court here, contending that the Park-In patents are invalid and hence agreement was not binding. Circuit Court upheld that contention.

Park-In contends it holds rights to Patent No. 1,909,537 for drive-ins, assigned to it by the inventor, Richard M. Hollingsworth, Jr.

State Dept. Aid In Quota Fight Seen by Arnall

Acheson, Others Discuss Foreign Discrimination

WASHINGTON, April 12.—SIMPP president Ellis Arnall spent today at the State Department, calling on officials from Secretary Acheson down, and came away convinced that "The American motion picture industry can count on the full, active and positive support of the State Department in seeing that our industry obtains and maintains fair and non-discriminatory treatment at the hands of foreign governments."

In addition to a 30-minute conference with Acheson, Arnall had lengthy interviews with Under-Secretary of State James Webb, motion picture chief Merrill C. Gay, and other Department officials.

Arnall emphasized that his conferences had not reached the point where the Department promised to enter into negotiations with any particular gov-

Lockwood Calls 20th Plan 'Ill-Advised'

Terming 20th Century-Fox's campaign for increased film rentals "ill-advised," Arthur H. Lockwood, president of the Theatre Owners of America, has advised exhibitors to take into account the increasing number of pictures on the market which, he said, requires "highly selective" buying.

In a bulletin issued yesterday, Lockwood also declared that 20th-Fox's advocacy of reduced clearance "is constructive and should be encouraged."

"Prompt overhauling of all clearances is the order of the day," he said.

Lockwood contends that approxi-

Says UK Financial Aid to Open Studios

LONDON, April 12.—H. G. Lawrie, managing director of the Film Finance Corp., disclosed here that financial aid from that government organization will enable several presently closed studios to reopen. Lawrie made the forthright observation that the government is now in the film business.

Immediately following the appointment yesterday of Lord Reith as chairman of Film Finance, formal announcement was made of financial advancements to four distributors and six producers. A hitherto undisclosed distributor, George Minters of Renown, has already received financial aid.

All of the producers are described as being reputable independents who previously had satisfied the corporation not only of their ability but also that private financing is available to

House Passes Bill Extending the ECA

Washington, April 12.—The House today passed a bill extending ECA through June 30, 1950, and allowing up to $15,000,000 a year for the information media guaranty program. The measure goes to conference with a similar Senate-approved bill, which allows only $10,000,000 annually for the film and other information media guaranties. A compromise measure is expected to be passed by both Houses and sent to the White House by the end of the week.

To Appeal Ruling On Park-In Patents

Park-In Theatres, Inc., of Camden, N. J., will appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court for a review of the decision by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston, which held that the ramp patent of drive-in theatres, held by Park-In, Inc., is invalid, according to Leonard L. Kalish, attorney for the latter company.

Park-In had filed an infringement action against E. M. Loew's Drive-In Theatres, Inc., on the grounds that the latter had refused to pay royalties for use of the plaintiff's Hollingshead patent. Scores of other houses paying royalties to the Camden firm could be affected by the decision.

Mayer Favors Continuing MPEA's Reich Operation

Arthur Mayer, head of the American Military Government motion picture division in Germany, indicated at a meeting of distribution foreign department chiefs here yesterday that he personally is in favor of continuation of Motion Picture Export Association operations in that occupied country. The occasion of his comments in that connection was a luncheon held in his honor at the Harvard Club by foreign heads of Motion Picture Association of America member companies and presided over by MPAA international division director John McCarthy.

Mayer, who is here from Frankfort to confer with government as well as industry officials, reported that the German industry is geared at present for the production of between 25 and 30 pictures annually. However, he

Para. Split Is Approved by Stockholders

78.18% of Stock Favors Plan; 1.15% Voted Against

By a vote of 78.18 per cent for and 1.15 per cent against, stockholders of Paramount Pictures, Inc., at a special meeting at the home office yesterday ratified the plan of reorganization of the corporation. An affirmative vote of 66 2/3 was necessary.

Representing close to 80 per cent of the total stock issued and outstanding, 5,202,183 shares were voted in the affirmative as against 76,576 shares in opposition, it was reported at the close of the meeting by Robert O'Brien, corporate secretary.

The negative vote was the lowest cast on any issue ever put before the stockholders, Barney Balaban commented, in expressing his gratitude for the cooperation and support given management by the investors.

Paramount Gets 17 In Partner Splits

Paramount has dissolved partnership operations of two circuits, emerging with full ownership of 14 houses of a 72-theatre company, and taking full ownership of three houses of a 15-theatre company, Leonard Goldenson told stockholders here yesterday.

He said that in both cases Paramount and the partner each had 50 per cent interests and that the theatres which Paramount is to take full possession of had constituted 50 per cent of the earnings of each entire circuit, despite the wide numerical difference.

N.Y. Variety Charter Presented Oct. 27

New York's new Tent No. 35, Variety Clubs International, will be formally inducted at charter presentation ceremonies to be held at the Hotel Astor, here, on October 27, it was announced yesterday by Max A. Cohen, chief barker. International officers of Variety, and representatives of all tents, are expected to attend the induction, and an expected turnout of some 2,000 will include virtually all Eastern industry toppers, as well as many from the Coast.

The tent's clubrooms on the 10th floor of the Astor are expected to be ready for use in mid-May. Fred Block has been engaged as the club's executive manager. Block for many years was identified with the Mutual Wheel enterprises of the late Izzy Hirk.

Cohen planes to the Coast on Friday and from Hollywood will go to San Francisco to attend the International's convention, opening on May 2. He will return here by plane on May 7. Eastern delegates to the convention will press for the selection of New York City for the fall meeting. This would permit the International board to convene coincidental with the induction meeting of Tent 35.

Bronston to Produce 250 Musical Reels

Twenty-one musical films featuring the Santa Cicilia Orchestra, under the direction of Jacques Rachmilovich, have been completed in Rome as the initial step in a production program to establish a television and theatrical-film music library of 250 reels by American and European orchestras, it was announced here yesterday by Samuel Bronston, independent producer formerly associated with United Artists and Columbia. Twenty additional reels will be produced in Rome next month. The films will also be released for theatrical and 16mm. distribution.

Bronston took Rachmilovich and an American production crew to Europe with him to film the first group, at the Cine Citta Studios in Rome. The unit included Ben Berk, production supervisor; Jerome Cappi, director, and Hugo Grimaldi, film editor.

Bronston heads his own film company, Samuel Bronston Productions of California. He is also executive vice-president of Trans-Pacific Film Co., which operates theatres in the Far East, principally in the Philippines.

DeTitta Cites Value Of Newsreel Rivalry

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 12.—The competitive spirit among American newsreels have made them popular throughout the world, Arthur DeTitta, assignment editor of 20th-Fox Movietone News, declared this morning in an address before the district public information officers' seminar at the U. S. Naval Air Station here.

DeTitta, who disclosed in detail the operational problems and challenges that newreelers face in both peace and war, told the seminar that "by reason of a bewildering, but perfectly functioning, reciprocal exchange system, it is now possible for us to show any important actuality in practically every country of the world within two days."

Until recently, DeTitta said, Movietone released a television newsreel five times a week, "and hopes to do so again in the near future."

NY 1st-Run Grosses Generally Show Marked Up-Swing

Business at New York first-runs is better this week with robust grosses especially at those theatres which brought in new shows and with substantial improvement at other runs in sight.

"Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," with the annual Easter pageant on stage at the Music Hall, had a superb opening gross of $91,000 for Thursday through Sunday and a total of $148,000 apparent for the first week. "The Champion" is giving the Globe its best business in several months, the first week's take being estimated at $45,000 which is a very high figure for that house.

"City Across the River" is proving to be the best attraction which the Capitol has had this year; the film, with Art Mooney's orchestra on stage, is expected to draw a splendid first week's gross of $72,000. "Bride of Vengeance," with Charlie Barnet's orchestra on stage, should provide the Paramount with a good initial week's gross of $65,000.

"Portrait of Jennie" is fairly substantial at the Rivoli where an estimated $32,000 is in sight for a second week. At the Roxy, "The Fan," with Ginny Simms, plus a variety show and an ice revue on stage will wind up a slow second and final week tomorrow night with only $52,000 in the till; it will be replaced on Friday by "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College."

Second week of "The Set-Up," at the Criterion, is good at $24,500. At the Strand, "Kiss in the Dark," with Guy Lombardo's orchestra, is mild with $28,000 apparent for a third week. Fifth week of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" should gross a modest $22,000 at the State. Only $10,000 is seen for the seventh week of "Knock on Any Door" at the Astor.

"Casablanca," a re-issue, at the Mayfair, probably will get a mediocre third week's gross of $13,500. "Quartet" is doing phenomenal business at the Sutton which looks for $16,000 in a second week. "Hamlet," at the Park, continues close to capacity with over $15,000 grossed in a 28th week. "The Red Shoes," at the Bijou, should do $14,500 in its 25th week, which is excellent business.

Radio City Music Hall Will Open at 7:45 A.M.

To accommodate holiday audiences, Radio City Music Hall has scheduled extra performances of its Easter program with doors opening at 7:45 A.M. tomorrow, Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday through Saturday of next week.

The three-part program includes Bing Crosby in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" on the screen, and the annual pageant, "Glory of Easter" and a new holiday revue, "Springtidings," on stage.

Benefit Premiere Apr. 20

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Premiere of J. Arthur Rank's "Scott of the Antarctic" will be held here April 20 at the Playhouse Theatre as a benefit for the American Cancer Society. With Mrs. Harry S. Truman heading the list of sponsors, Capital society is expected to support the screening.

Goldwyn Due Today Has Record Schedule

Samuel Goldwyn, accompanied by Mrs. Goldwyn, will arrive in New York by American Airlines this morning, "committed to the most active season of his career," according to a company statement.

With executives of RKO Radio, which releases Goldwyn product, he will discuss plans for the tri-state premiere of "Roseanna McCoy," in Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee, in August. Later in the season, Goldwyn and Sir Alexander Korda will release the Archers' production of "The Elusive Pimpernel," starring David Niven. On his return to Hollywood, Goldwyn will conclude plans to film "My Foolish Heart," to be followed by a screen transcription of the Leo Brady novel, "The Edge of Doom." Ben Hecht is doing the screenplay.

Also on his schedule is "Illinois Incident," "The Awakening," and "Commencement," these in addition to the two pictures Goldwyn will release later this year.

Canada Asks Merger Of 'TV' Applications

TORONTO, April 12.—In a further sudden move, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has instructed the four Toronto applicants for television licenses to get together for the operation of one cooperative video station here. Before easing out of the responsibility of accepting one application the CBC governors announced yesterday that all bids for private television licenses had again been indefinitely deferred. The government controlling authority had also ruled that only one private station could operate in both Toronto and Montreal after CBC television starts in each place 18 months from now.

The latest edict ruins the plan of Famous Players Canadian for a CBC license for the exclusive transmission of TV programs to its own theatres in Toronto. Local television applicants immediately protested that the CBC ruling is impracticable and the situation is again up in the air.

Col., Manufacturers To Promote Autry

Columbia Pictures was host here recently at a promotion meeting with representatives of distributors of Gene Autry products to coordinate a nationwide campaign for the joint promotion of both the products bearing the cowboy star's name and the six pictures starring him which Columbia releases annually.

Kill Anti-Ascap Bill

BOSTON, April 12.—The joint committee of state administration has killed the bill to establish an anti-monopoly board to further regulate the copyright law and to discourage price-fixing and monopolistic practises. Under it, music copyright owners would be required to file a list of their works and fix a rate for each piece. Among those who testified at hearings was Oscar Hammerstein, second vice-president of ASCAP, who declared that the proposal has proved impractical from the viewpoint of music writers, music users and the public.

ernment or to take any steps besides studying what the Department can legally do to aid the film industry abroad.

"I don't know what approach the Department will ultimately adopt for carrying out its policy," the Georgian said. "We didn't go into that. But the President is interested, the Secretary and Under-Secretary are interested, and I am certain they will do everything they possibly can to help us."

Arnall said that he hit especially hard on the industry's British problems in his talks with State Department officials, but also went into the South African, French and general foreign situation.

The SIMPP official left here tonight for New York, but plans to keep in touch with the State Department and other officials in Congress and Washington agencies.

mately 50 pictures annually may be classed as "unique and original" because of public demand to see them. He argues that the other 350 annually have doubtful market prospects unless their distributors enjoy the goodwill of exhibitors.

The TOA president contests the argument that producers must get back their investments, with a profit, by asserting that "No one has any 'right' to anything. The producer of a motion picture should take the chance of gain or loss based on public reception of his production, just as the producer of a legitimate play does."

"If the presently existing old-line producing companies are unable to produce enough pictures to supply the market, I for one am not concerned," declared Lockwood. "In spite of the risks involved, and the difficulty in financing production, I am sure that new producers and producing companies will emerge. There is also the strong possibility that exhibitors, if faced with unreasonable demands for higher terms, or a shrinkage in the supply of pictures, will create their own supply of 'A' product either by strengthening some of the smaller companies now in business and encouraging them to make more 'A' product; or by creating a franchise company similar to the old First National. Such a franchise move has been under serious consideration for a long time; and, in the opinion of competent counsel, is legal under the anti-trust decision, since it would deprive no existing theatre of its supply of product, but rather would create additional product for the general market," Lockwood said.

Will Not Film Maltz Tale

Twentieth Century-Fox announced here yesterday that it will not produce the recently-acquired property "The Journey of Simon McKeever" by Albert Maltz, as had previously been reported. Maltz was one of the "unfriendly 10" witnesses who were called to testify last year at hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee in Washington.

Repeal Blue Laws

ZION, Ill., April 12.—By a vote of 1,597 to 1,305, the people of Zion have voted to permit the operation of entertainment establishments on Sunday.

Paramount Split

of Paramount's settlement of its part in the industry anti-trust suit by the stockholders was the last legal requirement for the division of the corporation into two wholly independent companies. As previously reported, Barney Balaban is slated to be president of the new Paramount Pictures Co., and Leonard Goldenson is expected to become president of United Paramount Theatres with the formation of the two new companies before the end of the year.

Almost Equals RKO Vote

The return of proxies almost equalled, percentage-wise, the vote for the RKO reorganization, despite the fact that RKO had fewer individual holders and its plan of divorcement permits ordinary shareholders to retain stock in both new RKO companies. Under the Paramount plan, 50 per cent of dividends on the stock of the new theatre company are to be withheld until the holders dispose of their stock in that company or until the theatre stock trusteeship is terminated by the court in five years or less.

O'Brien told the meeting that stock in the new companies will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange today, the trading to be on a "when-issued" basis. Over-the-counter trading of the futures has been going on for some time.

Balaban, Goldenson and Edwin Weisl, board member, repeated assurances that agreement to the terms of settlement of the trust suit was the only means of preserving the values of the corporation's theatre assets. Balaban pointed out that Paramount was in the unusual position of having more than two-thirds of its domestic theatres tied up in the partnerships which the U. S. Supreme Court has declared illegal. He commented on this in answer to a question on why the other majors apparently plan to continue the case in court.

Nearly 300 Present

Close to 300 individual holders were in attendance at the meeting, with considerable interest expressed on television's effects on theatre business. Balaban said there has been no experience that video has made any inroads on theatre audiences, and indicated that as television expands Paramount plans to adapt the new medium to its benefit.

Adding to that, Goldenson said that studies of television have been made and he has determined that there is no better medium through which to "sell" motion pictures in homes by televised trailers. Weisl observed that some of the estimated 40,000,000 non-theatre goers conceivably could be attracted to motion pictures than with the televising of trailers.

Balaban told the meeting that Paramount's present intention is to continue ownership of its stock in Du Mont. Company figures these holdings, which have been discussed at length at hearings before the Federal Communications Commission, have a market value of approximately $10,000,000.

Balaban Confident

Balaban acknowledged the "vital interest" in the commercial prospects for the new companies, but said that "in a great measure this involves prophesy." He added: "However, I believe that the new new companies will do as well as Paramount would have done if it had been permitted to continue." He again expressed the opinion that they would be "strong, prosperous enterprises."

He said that theatre earnings from Jan. 1 of this year to date are "very close" to last year's level except for the areas in the Midwest and West which were struck with severe weather over a period of a few weeks. J. J. Fitzgibbons, head of Famous Players Canadian, added to Balaban's remarks with the report that Canadian business is very close to the 1948 revenue.

Film earnings are "suffering" though, Balaban said, because restrictions abroad, particularly in England, are now being felt whereas all earnings in that country for the first half of last year were remittable. He estimated that Paramount funds frozen abroad at present amount to $5,000,000.

In conclusion, Weisl lauded Balaban for having taken "the hardest end of this business, out of his loyalty to stockholders," meaning Balaban's choice to stay at the helm of the new picture company. "He could have taken the theatres and let this young fellow, Mr. Goldenson, take the pictures," Weisl said. Goldenson joined in the tribute to Balaban for his integrity and devotion to duty.

The meeting was smooth-running, lasted only two hours, and was marked by many expressions of confidence in management from the floor. At one point, Balaban was lavish in his praise of Goldenson who, he said, "enjoys an unexcelled reputation in our industry for his capacity as an executive and for his outstanding qualities of personal integrity and character.

Paramount's television system was demonstrated throughout the meeting.

Para. Stockholders' Meeting Is Telecast

Unique feature of the Paramount stockholders meeting at the home office here yesterday was television. Two video cameras scanned the meeting room throughout the session so that the investors could see themselves on receivers which picked up the pictures through a closed circuit.

lected $2,000,000 in cash and notes.

Goldenson declined to identify the two circuits.

He disclosed that Paramount will announce in trade publications and perhaps in local areas those theatres which it intends to sell, excluding, of course, houses which are to be traded against each other with partners.

Last year, Goldenson said, Paramount's 449 wholly-owned theatres earned $11,000,000. Of these, 69 must be sold. Additionally it will dispose of properties which it may buy from partners for subsequent sale to other parties.

Attending from MPAA and MPEA were: Fred DuVal, Joseph Goltz, Herbert Ehrlanger, Ted Smith, Taylor Mills, Addison Durland and Alfred F. Corwin.

MPEA Germany-Austria Status In Hands of MPAA Directors

Decision is expected to be made by the directors of the Motion Picture Association of America at their meeting here tomorrow as to whether or not Motion Picture Export Association operations will be continued in Germany and Austria. Spokesmen for the distribution foreign departments said yesterday that the matter is now out of the hands of the foreign managers and will be taken over by MPAA president Eric A. Johnston and the association's directors.

M-G-M has made preparations to operate independently in Germany and Austria, but other MPEA companies have not. However, it is said that if one company chooses to withdraw from joint operations in those occupied countries, independent operations for all will necessarily follow.

them equalling that which the government will loan.

British Lion Film Corp. is to receive an advance of $2,000,000, having had its accounts and program prospects exhaustively examined. It was originally expected that British Lion would receive $4,000,000. Lawrie emphasized that "these loans are not charity" advances.

Huge Loss Seen for British Lion Films

LONDON, April 12.—An eventual loss of not less than $2,800,000 is anticipated on British Lion Film Corporation's present production program, Harold C. Drayton, chairman, estimates in a statement to stockholders accompanying the annual report. This will prohibit payment of dividends for some time to come, he adds.

A 30 per cent dividend was paid by the corporation on its ordinary stock last October and financial circles are asking whether present conditions were unforseeable by the company's directors six months ago.

The government's Film Finance Corp. made a $4,000,000 loan to British Lion last year on condition that the Sir Alexander Korda nominees vacate their positions on the company's board. Drayton took over thereafter. He is now seeking authority to increase British Lion's borrowing powers from $8,000,000 to $26,000,000.

meet tomorrow at which time several provincial delegates propose to denounce the agreement, which runs to the end of this year.

The stock market reacted to the government's failure to grant admission tax relief, with J. Arthur Rank's Odeon circuit ordinary shares being the chief victim.

According to the White Paper on National Income and Expenditure, more was spent on entertainment last year than in 1947, but less than in 1946. Expressed in millions of pounds, expenditure on entertainment, which in 1938 was £64,000,000, had risen in 1946 to £121,000,000 on cinemas and £62,000,000 on all other entertainment; it was £108,000,000 and £66,000,000 respectively in 1947, and £112,000,000 and £68,000,000 respectively in 1948.

Revenue from entertainment tax last year is given as £49,000,000, the same as in 1947, compared with £55,000,000 in 1946 and £8,000,000 in 1938. Estimated receipts from entertainment tax for 1949-50 are £45,000,000.

For the year just ended, the budget estimate was £46,250,000, or considerably less than actual collections proved to be. The Treasury expects to lose £100,000, this from the complete tax relief it granted exhibitors, mainly operating mobile units, in areas whose population density does not exceed 640 to the square mile. That was the only entertainment tax relief granted in the new budget.

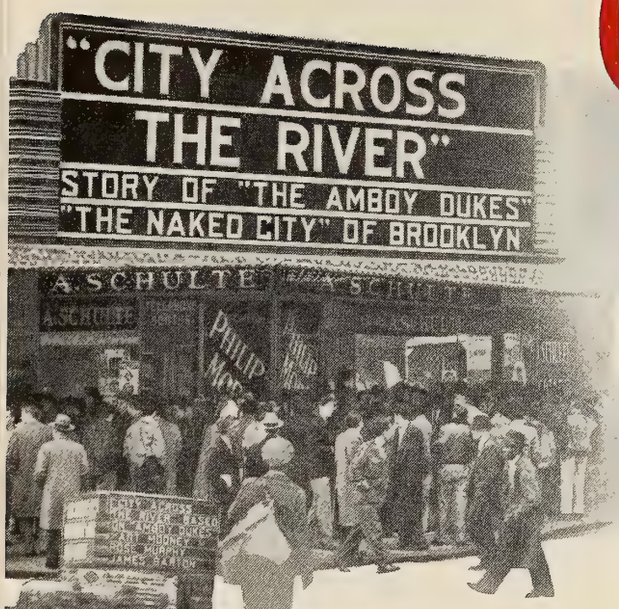
duced to give the American public "an accurate picture of every phase of the motion picture business, from production to distribution and exhibition," reports the Motion Picture Association of America.

The subjects will be released at the rate of one every two months. In addition to "Let's Go to the Movies," three others have been completed. They are: Warner Brothers' "This Theatre and You," Universal's "Movies Are Adventure," and 20th Century-Fox's "The Art Director." Three others are nearing completion: Columbia's "The Sound Man," M-G-M's "The Screen Actor," and Paramount's "History Brought to Life." The other five subjects will go into production immediately; the titles are: "A Film Goes to Market," "Screen Writers," "Screen Directors," "Moments in Music," and "The Stylist."



A committee of exhibitors, producers and talent in Hollywood, of which Y. Frank Freeman is chairman, is supervising production of the films.

Rep. King Hits British Gov't. On Film Quota

Indicts British Ministry In Congressional Record

WASHINGTON, April 13. — Rep. Cecil R. King, California Democrat, today told the House of Representatives in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record, that the British government's policy toward the American film industry since the end of the war "has been one of steady harassment, with the obvious purpose of driving American motion pictures from the British market."

King, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced that he was asking the committee to investigate the situation. The Ways and Means group handles reciprocal trade legislation and will also be assigned the International Trade Organization charter.

King blasted the British government with the strongest language yet put in the House record. He heads a committee of the California House delega-

Paramount Theatres 'Futures' At 24½

About 100 shares of United Paramount Theatres futures changed hands in the first day's "big board" trading yesterday with the "when-issued" stock opening at 24½ and remaining unchanged.

Stockholders' ratification of the plan of reorganization on Tuesday had no effect on trading in the parent corporation issue. It opened and closed at 22⅜ with about 3,100 shares traded. Futures in the new Paramount picture company were not traded.

Para. Suit Hearing Is Off to April 21

New proceedings in New York Federal Court in the Paramount-industry anti-trust suit have been postponed from April 19 to April 21 with all parties to the action agreeing to the two-day delay. Reason for the postponement is attributable to the original date conflicting with other work of some of the attorneys.

To Postpone Schine Hearings For Month

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Justice Department officials indicated here today that there would be a further postponement of a month or more in the April 18 date set for further proceedings in the Schine anti-trust case in Buffalo District Court.

Purpose will be to give both the Department and Schine more time to work out details of a consent decree settlement. Justice attorneys and counsel for Schine met yesterday in their first session in two weeks or more. Indications were that progress was slow.

Judge Knight originally set March 18 as the date on which he would rule on introduction of new evidence, with a later postponement to April 18.

Film Costs Up $166-Million In 10 Yrs.: US

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Cost of work on films produced for commercial exhibition jumped from $186,776,000 in 1939 to $352,530,000 in 1947, the U. S. Census Bureau reported today. This includes work on completed films, on positive prints, and also work unfinished at the end of the year.

Industry observers point out that Hollywood production costs have been downward since 1947.

Strike Halts All Rank Production; 2,000 Idle

LONDON, April 13.—All J. Arthur Rank production came to a halt today when Electrical Trades Union members at his Pinewood studio went out on strike.

Denham, Rank's only other active studio, has been closed since Friday by the dispute with the ETU. An estimated Rank studio personnel of 2,000 are idle.

Pinewood workers called a stoppage last Friday when the dispute broke out at Denham over the lay-off of Bert Batchelor, union shop steward, but work was resumed at Pinewood on Monday. Today's strike was called by the union as a result of the refusal of Rank officials to discuss the dispute with a view to reinstating Batchelor. Two pictures were in work at Denham and one at Pinewood, with a new one scheduled to start this week.

Other unions affected by the complete shutdown are endeavoring to

Rydge To Favor UK Product Over US

Sydney, April 9 (By Airmail).—Norman Bede Rydge, managing director of Greater Union Theatres, has told the directors, executives and managers of his organization that he had pledged the circuit to "do everything in our power to advance the cause of British films in Australia." That pledge is believed to be another move in the "cold war" between London and Hollywood.

As a remedy to poor business he suggested extra efforts to win a broader audience and a cut in the entertainment tax which increases admissions by 32.6 per cent.

To Promote British Product in Canada

Ottawa, April 13.—A determined drive to show more British films in Canadian theatres during the remaining months of 1949 is understood to be in the making, spearheaded by the efforts of the J. Arthur Rank Organization of Canada whose Odeon circuit now consists of 116 directly-operated theatres in this country.

Behind the drive is said to be the intention to make the Canadian industry a more dollar-producing factor in U. K.-Canada trade.

Coast Production Up One, Total Is 25

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—The production total was increased to 25, one above that of last week. Six pictures went into work, and five were completed.

Shooting started on "My Next Husband," "South of Death Valley," Col.; "Annie Get Your Gun," M-G-M; "The Kid Came West," Mono.; "Wyoming Bandit," Republic; "Ringside," Screen Guild (Lippert Productions). Walter Wanger Is Cited for 'Tulsa'

TULSA, Okla., April 13.—An estimated 100,000 saw the "Tulsa Day Parade," lasting three hours today in the greatest street event in the city's history on the occasion of the premiere, tonight, of Eagle-Lion's production of "Tulsa." It was followed by square-dancing in Western costume on roped-off downtown streets, covered by Life photographers. W. G. Skelly, president of Skelly Oil, was host to 500 at last night's dinner at the Tulsa Club. He praised Walter Wanger for creating a true picture of American industry in the face of Communist influences.

Governor Roy Turner appointed Wanger and the "Tulsa" cast colonels on his staff. He said the picture was a credit to Tulsa and to Oklahoma.

Today the press and radio contingents from Boston, New York, Chicago and Hollywood were guests of the Tulsa Press Club at a reception which was followed by the premiere of the picture tonight at Ralph Talbot's Orpheum and Ritz theatres.

UA Augments Staff For 'Home' Handling

United Artists has augmented its publicity staff here for special concentration on Screen Plays' "Home of the Brave," it was announced here yesterday by Howard Le Sieur, UA director of advertising-publicity. Added to Al Tamarin's home office press staff for assignment on the new Stanley Kramer production are: Joseph Wolhandler, on general coverage; George Nelson and Phil Cowan, on organizational contact, and Neil Scott, on special handling.

This unit will supplement UA's permanent staffers Tess Michaels and Charles Handel. They will work with Screen Plays' own contingent, which includes George Glass and Myer Beck, Eastern advertising-publicity director; also assigned is Joel Preston.

Del Ruth To Make 2 With Frozen Funds

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—Roy Del Ruth and associate producer Joe Kaufman plan to use frozen funds accrued in the release of their "Babe Ruth Story" and "It Happened on Fifth Avenue" for the financing of two productions to be made in Europe.

They will personally "case" the European production situation by plane in five foreign capitals, planing from here immediately following a preview of their current production for United Artists' release, "Red Light," which is now being scored and edited.

Dieterle, Caramelli Sign Production Deal

William Dieterle has been signed by Feruccio Caramelli to produce and direct for Associated Artists in Italy an original entitled "Stromboli," the two disclosed jointly in an interview here. Renzo Avanzo, writer-director, will assist Dieterle. "Stromboli," they said, will be produced in English.

Caramelli, Italian exhibitor-producer-distributor, said that during his stay here he purchased equipment and closed deals for Selznick reissues and new and forthcoming Selznick, Goldwyn and Edward Small product. He has a standing distribution deal with United Artists.

Soundcraft Acquires Three Video Firms

Tele-Video Corp., manufacturer of "Picturecraft" television sets, which project pictures up to seven by nine feet in size, has been acquired by Reeves Soundcraft Corp., according to H. E. Reeves, president. Tele-Video also makes receivers that are distributed by Telecoin Corp.

Also included in the deal are Bace Television, makers of a 15-inch tube receiver, and Airdesign, Inc., electronic equipment makers. With Reeves Soundcraft already making recording discs for the film and radio industry, the new acquisitions are expected to expand its market.

Most Companies Set Early Closings

Most film company home offices have made arrangements for time off today and tomorrow for employes who wish to observe Passover or Good Friday. Passover, beginning today, will be regarded as a full day of permissible absence from the offices by all companies, while Good Friday, tomorrow, will be regarded generally as a half-holiday for those employes who wish to attend religious services. Warners, however, will close all day tomorrow.

M-G-M BACKLOG NOW ONE OF BIGGEST and STRONGEST

WITH THE WINDING of a trio of features early this month, Metro's backlog of unreleased pictures jumped to 19, making it one of the strongest in the company's long and successful history. In addition, four more features are slated to roll in the immediate weeks ahead, among them the two important musicals, "Annie Get Your Gun" and "On The Town."

The current backlog includes: "The Forsyte Saga," "Madame Bovary," "That Midnight Kiss," "Border Incident," "Scene of the Crime," "Little Women," "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," "Conspirator," "Malaya," "The Barkleys of Broadway," "Big Jack," "The Secret Garden," "The Great Sinner," "The Stratton Story," "In The Good Old Summertime," "Neptune's Daughter," "Any Number Can Play," "Challenge to Lassie" and "Edward, My Son."

It is becoming increasingly evident that Dore Schary and Louis B. Mayer weren't indulging in idle boasts when they told the company salesmen recently that the studio would build up a total of 67 pictures this year. Practically all of the large group of Metro producers have a heavy schedule of work ahead of them.

Of great interest in Hollywood, is an original musical to co-star Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire. This would seem to confirm reports that Metro biggies are bursting at the seams with pride over "Barkleys of Broadway," the first Astaire-Rogers co-starrer in a decade or more.

King Hits Quota

tion appointed to meet with Secretary of State Acheson and other government officials on the British quota and has also been in constant touch with Motion Picture Association president Eric Johnston. His address carried the obvious blessings of MPAA.

King declared that the British government has thrown up one barrier after another against American films, and has attempted to excuse these actions because of its need to conserve dollars. "That is an excuse—an alibi—which won't hold water," he said. He pointed out that the agreement limiting the remittances of American firms—"an extremely generous one on the part of the American motion picture industry"—took care of Britain's need to conserve dollars. Thus, he said, this cannot be used as an excuse for the high quota.

King said he would indict the British producers only "mildly," saying "that perhaps they 'misled' the British Ministry into believing they could supply the British home market all by themselves. Let us say that they nudged the British government into drastic acts against American interests with the understandable idea of garnering a greater return for themselves, but as it it turned out, they have simply outslickered themselves, and my primary indictment of the Ministry must stand. The Ministry should have foreseen the result."

King said in his speech that "trade restrictions breed trade restrictions," and that while American films faced problems all over the world, Britain was the "gross offender." "The British Ministry gives beguiling lip service to the theory of reviving world trade," he said, "but reneges on its word. We give our billions and keep our promises."

The California Democrat reminded the House that the American film industry has never asked for protection here from foreign competition but has welcomed British and other pictures. American pictures won their share of the British market because the British people wanted them, he said, and "they still want them." King also stressed the importance of films as part of our foreign policy.

British producers were not able to fill even a 20 per cent quota, King declared, and quoted extensively from speeches by Sir Alexander King and Tom O'Brien to show that British exhibitors and film labor also opposed the high film quota. He reviewed the 75 per cent British tax, the remittance agreement, and the subsequent quota hikes.

Wants Fair Treatment For U. S. Films Abroad: Acheson

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared today that it was the State Department's "firm attitude" that the American motion picture industry should "receive fair and non-discriminatory treatment in foreign countries and that the Department should do all it can within the bounds of propriety to insure that."

While Acheson's statement had some significance, coming after considerable agitation on the British quota from the Motion Picture Association of America, the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and members of Congress, observers here were quick to point out that the Secretary left himself a very big "out"—his qualification that the Department would only do what can be done "within the bounds of propriety." Exactly what can be done within the bounds of propriety is the big question.

California Solons, Acheson Meet Tomorrow on UK Quota

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A special committee of the California members of the House of Representatives will meet with Secretary of State Acheson Friday afternoon to voice the California delegation's concern over the British film quota. The group is headed by Rep. Cecil King, California Democrat.

MPEA's Future

would operate in conjunction with more intensified efforts in public relations.

The indication is that the companies will return to competitive operations in Germany and Austria, this based on steps already taken by M-G-M to break with the MPEA in the two countries. The film company has not as yet served any formal notice on the MPEA of its intentions although it has proceeded with licensing plans to operate independently in Germany. Austria, being operationally linked with Germany, also would be included in M-G-M's apparent plan.

While MPEA could continue without M-G-M it is considered likely that other member companies would consider this infeasible and would follow suit.

Arthur Mayer, head of the American Military Government's motion picture division in Germany, has disclosed that at today's meeting he will recommend continuation of the MPEA there.

There have been reports on some sentiment favoring individual operations in Japan, Korea and Indonesia but no action is known to have been taken by any of the MPEA companies.

Members' contracts with the foreign trade organization will expire during the summer, beginning in June in some countries and in July and August in others. This excludes the Eastern Europe (Iron Curtain) area, MPEA contracts for which had been renewed for another year last March 10 by all members.

Meeting of the Anglo-American Films Council in Washington on April 21-23 is another subject which is expected to be taken up today.

persuade ETU to adopt a more reasonable attitude.

The situation naturally diminishes the possibility that British producers can furnish enough films to fulfill the new 40 per cent quota.

Batchelor was dismissed as unneeded after he declined a transfer to the closed Shepherd's Bush studio as a maintenance man. Rank officials said Batchelor had been absent 60 per cent of his scheduled working time and should have been dismissed long ago.

a preliminary report on the survey of film production it carried on as part of the 1947 U. S. census of manufacturers. This survey, conducted in 1948 on 1947 business, was the first comprehensive survey of film production since the 1940 census, based on 1939 business. No profit figures are given, nor any figures on individual companies.

Establishments in film production, including laboratories, firms renting studio facilities, and firms doing other work for production, jumped from 178 in 1939 to 277 in 1947. The number of employes dropped slightly, from 35,345 to 34,799, but the salary and labor bill rose from $142,500,000 to $293,000,000. Expenditures for new plants and equipment rose from $6,000,000 to $15,400,000.

The number of black-and-white features dropped from 493 in 1939 to 348 in 1947, while the number of color features rose from 27 to 68. Cost of the 348 black-and-white films in 1947 was $165,432,000, compared to $117,830,000 for the 493 black-and-white features in 1939. The 68 color films in 1947 cost $43,703,000, compared with $14,356,000 for the 27 color films in 1939.

Cost of work during 1947 on films not finished at the end of the year jumped from $37,758,000 in 1939 to $119,892,000 in 1947, and costs of laboratory work rose from $18,594,000 to $53,329,000.

Rank Accepts Eight Awards at Luncheon

HOLLYWOOD, April 13.—Accepting eight Awards presented by Academy president Jean Hersholt at a luncheon here today, J. Arthur Rank said, "In these days when we are so beset with misinformation about one another, and with the misunderstandings that have resulted, these eight awards are a particularly significant demonstration of true sportsmanship by the Academy membership. It is a great honor for me to act as a messenger in delivering these 'Oscars' to the winners in England."

"These statuettes are visible evidence," Hersholt said, "of Hollywood's fair-minded attitude toward the film industries of other countries. We feel that the Academy has been a strong instrument in the creation of finer films, and has inspired progress in motion picture techniques here and abroad."

"Manhandled"

(Pine-Thomas—Paramount)

SWIFT excitement has been conjured up by director Lewis R. Foster in the making of this William H. Pine and William C. Thomas production about a couple of murders, a manhunt, and the manhandling—mental and physical—of a bewildered young woman by as sneaky and treacherous a villain as the screen can offer. The marquee lure of Dorothy Lamour and Dan Duryea, who perform convincingly in these roles, is worth citing, of course, in commercially appraising this film; but the assets of "Manhandled" do not stop there. Add a taut—if somewhat formulary—crime detection screenplay by Foster and Whitman Chambers, some slick and realistic sets, and competent photography, all compounded quite satisfactorily by efficient direction, and there presents itself a picture which should prove reliable in almost all types of situations.

The audience is kept informed as the story unfolds as to who the culpable parties are in the murder and jewel robbery which set the plot to thickening. First of all, it is evident that the shiftless private investigator, whom Duryea portrays, has designs on the jewelry owned by writer Alan Napier's wife. Actually, however, he does not get a chance to slay the lady. A phony psychiatrist, for whom Miss Lamour is an unwitting secretary, kills Napier's wife after making certain that both the husband and the police will think it is a case of wife murder. But Duryea catches on to the quack's scheme, steals the jewels from the killer, and proceeds to plant evidence which would frame Miss Lamour while professing to be in love with her. Into the picture steps handsome insurance investigator Sterling Hayden, who, together with shrewd police detective Art Smith, saves Miss Lamour from the villainy which has been afoot, and sees that Duryea gets his just deserts. Rounding out the cast are Irene Hervey, Harold Vermilyea, Irving Bacon and Philip Reed. The script was based on a story by L. S. Goldsmith.

Running time, 96 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, June 10.

U. S. Production in Italy on the Increase

OTTAWA, April 13.—Production has increased considerably in Italy in the last two years, a great part of the activity being due to United States companies taking advantage of cheap production costs, states A. P. Bissonnet, Assistant Commercial Secretary for Canada in Rome, reporting to the Foreign Trade Department here.

Seven U. S. film companies were producing 10 feature films in Italy, Bissonnet reports, adding that the number of films produced by Italians has been on the decrease. In 1938 there were produced 65 Italian films and 230 foreign films were imported; in 1948, the figure was 49 Italian films and about 600 foreign imports.

Satellites Use U. S. Films for Propaganda

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen declares that the Department has been trying to assist in preventing American feature films from being frozen out of Russian satellite countries and "from being used to vilify and slander us." He said that satellite countries, if not watched closely, take parts of American films "which fit into a propaganda program against the U. S., cull them out, and present our own material as propaganda against the U. S. So we try to prevent films susceptible of that type of treatment from going into those countries."

Drop Radio Show Plan

the TOA invited all exhibitors of the district, National Screen vice-president George F. Dembow asked that the plan be continued for a trial. Subsequently, NSS president Herman Robbins asked the TOA to give the service as set up an additional 60-day trial, declaring that if at the end of that period NSS service was not satisfactory, he would accept the decision of the TOA and put the Albany branch back in full operation. Activities were curtailed because the company claimed it was losing $30,000 annually in Albany. Exhibitors had complained that the new plan was costing them extra money.

panies, overcoming the odds imposed upon them following the war.

"After making an objective survey of Hollywood, and talking to production chiefs of other companies, I can report that the motion picture industry has now undergone a major reorientation and is confidently prepared to serve the theatre-going public with entertainment on a quality level higher than ever before," he said.

"Like other industries we had to meet wartime conditions, but we have obtained a great measure of stabilization because 20th Century-Fox was among the earliest to start readjustment and has virtually completed the process of retooling inaugurated more than two and one-half years ago. We have overcome the odds imposed following the war because of the restriction of dollars in foreign markets, higher production costs and a return of domestic box-office receipts to normal levels.

"We can look ahead with confidence provided we continue to meet our responsibilities for serving the public with fine entertainment produced without extravagance, but under a forthright and courageous policy of catering to the most exacting requirements of the whole American public of all ages, as well as the people of other countries," Skouras continued.

"There is also a marked feeling throughout our industry that outcries of calamity and disintegration, so often heard from those who make it a pastime to belittle Hollywood, never were justified and will henceforth be met with affirmative action," he said.

New 20th-Fox product which Skouras cited included "Come to the Stable," "Prince of Foxes," "Pinky," "Twelve O'Clock High," "House of Strangers," "Smokey," "It Happens Every Spring," "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend," "Thieves' Market" and "You're My Everything," most of which Skouras previewed while at the studio.

A few months ago, a group of workers split from AFL's IATSE local No. B-100 and attempted to affiliate with the AFL's building employes local. The PLRB ballot will include the three unions and will also have a provision for the workers to vote for "no union" if they so choose.

$43-Million in 20th Dividends In Six Years

$15,000,000 Remittances Are Reported for 1948

During the six years, 1943 through 1948, 20th Century-Fox paid in dividends to preferred and common stockholders a total of $43,131,700, company president Spyros P. Skouras discloses in his annual report to stockholders, released yesterday. Some 32,000 individuals own stock in the company.

The report discloses also that the company's dollar remittances from operations abroad in 1948 were $15,000,000. This compares with $18,000,000 in 1947. However, the report states, expenditures of foreign balances for film production, story purchases and the like were equivalent

Bill In to Free Theatres From Minimum Wage Law

French, Korda Due; Rank Leaving Coast

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—J. Arthur Rank plans to leave here over the weekend for Washington where he will join Sir Henry French and Sir Alexander Korda for the meeting on April 21-23 of the Anglo-American Films Council. French and Korda are due in New York on Monday from London on the Queen Mary. American members of the council are Eric A. Johnston, Barney Balaban and Nicholas M. Schenck.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Rep. Lucas, Texas Democrat, today introduced a bill to amend the wage-hour law which would, among other things, make virtually all theatres exempt from the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the law.

Lucas's bill will be supported on the House floor by the powerful Southern Democratic-Republican coalition, and stands a good chance of being substituted for the Administration's bill, which would take in theatres or circuits grossing more than $500,000 a year, it is believed in Congressional circles.

Minor Damage to Theatres in Quake

Seattle, April 14.—Physical damage to theatres from the earthquake which struck this area yesterday appeared from early checkups to have been slight. Many neighborhood and small town theatres which do not give matinees were closed when the quake occurred. Minor damage was reported by some larger theatres, mostly to electrical and water systems and from excited crowds rushing for exits.

Attendance is off due to after-effects of the shock.

I can report the motion picture industry has now undergone a major reorientation and is confidently prepared to serve the theatre-going public with entertainment on a quality level higher than ever before." — *Spyros P. No. 2 RUSTLE: "[Barney Balaban] said [at the Paramount reorganization meeting] theatre earnings from January 1 of this year to date are 'very close' to last year's level except for the areas in the Midwest and West which were struck with severe weather. . . . J. J. Fitzgibbons, head of Famous Players Canadian, added to Balaban's remarks with report that Canadian business is very close to the 1948 revenue."—MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

No. 3 RUSTLE: "Loew's reports net profit of $4,117,117 after taxes for the 28 weeks ended March 17, an increase of $230,372 over the $3,886,745 recorded for the corresponding period last year."—MOTION PICTURE DAILY again.

"Quartet," made in Britain and released here by Eagle-Lion, grossed a formidable $17,597 in its opening week at the Sutton, immediately east of 3rd Avenue on 57th Street, and thereby outdistanced a previous opening week's record of $13,359, which went to "I Know Where I'm Going," also British-made. Second week of "Quartet" closed Monday night at an impressive $15,815.

Does J. Arthur Rank, whose companies produced both, continue to think there is a "plot" in America to keep his product off domestic screens?

If UA's blood count rose with "Champion," there seems to be no adequate description for the goings-on over "Home of the Brave," New York stage play by Arthur Laurents with a switch in theme from anti-Semitism to Negro discrimination.

The film follows "Joan of Arc" at the Victoria about mid-May and soon after opens in Boston and Chicago. At a negative cost of about $400,000, Grad Sears seems very positive he will recoup the investment out of these three key runs.

Disinterested, but experienced, distributors say it can be done if the runs are long and successful.

The Motion Picture Association's planned entry into exhibition relations under Francis Harmon is geared to the prospect of enrolling TOA and Allied adherents as dues-paying members, which is quite a prospect.

Eric Johnston is understood to be somewhat captivated by the idea of getting enough theatremen in MPA ranks to justify the claim that he represents the entire industry.

Grigori Alexandrov, Russian director, informed a Bucharest audience the other evening that the Soviet film industry is "very near" to producing smelling pictures. "We want to look through the screen as through a window. We want to hear, to see, but also to smell the breeze of the sea, the perfume of flowers and of green pastures," he is reported as stating.

There are those who maintain the Soviet is very close indeed to that accomplishment. And those who view with dismal eye the whole prospect. Among them our old philosopher-friend, Joe Skeptic, who remarks:

"Yeah, but you're apt to end up smelling things the studios never intended. I'm against."

Frank Capra is gloomy about his future prospects, according to the New York Times, because "there is an excess of caution and fear at Paramount and everywhere in Hollywood," whereas the producer-director likes to have a free hand for experimentation. Since the studio is said to have informed him $3,000,000 is maximum domestic gross expectancy these days and has rejected five projects as "unsafe," Frank is gloomy.

How are you feeling these days?

Wyler Wins Two Awards

William Wyler has received two more international awards for his direction of "The Best Years of Our Lives." The film was cited as the "best" release of 1947 in Great Britain by the British Film Academy, and named winner for "best direction" at the International Film Festival at Marienbad, Czechoslovakia.

Alger Dismissal Is Under Advisement

CHICAGO, April 14.—Dismissal of the Alger percentage case, which has been sought by eight distributor plaintiffs in U. S. District Court, here, remains under final advisement pending signatures of Master-in-Chancery Joseph W. Elward and the approval of Federal Judge William Campbell.

It is understood that immediately after the dismissal, expected with in a few days, the distributor-plaintiffs will file a new percentage suit in State Court against the Algers.

A hearing scheduled this week for benefit of the distributors in answer to their objections on the attorneys' fees previously approved by Elward went unanswered, virtually closing the case.

The Alger case is significant in distributor-exhibitor relations, because its outcome is earmarked to set a precedent in future cases of similar background throughout the industry.

Elward, in a recent statement, said: "I think it is a fair inference from the record that this alleged reason for dismissal (that the distributors may not be able to prove that the matter involved exceeded ($3,000) was not the only reason or the principal reason for the plaintiffs' decision to dismiss. For some other reason, not apparent of record, and with which the court has no concern, the plaintiffs wish to withdraw."

Elward had recommended approval of fees to Alger attorney Thomas McConnell of $4,061, and to Seymour Simon, representing the L. and P. circuit (an affiliate of Alger) of $1,500, which went uncontested by the plaintiffs. Representing the distributors is Miles Seeley.

Famous Players Net For 1948 Increased

TORONTO, April 14.—Famous Players-Canadian Corp. has net earnings of $3,286,264 in 1948, compared with $3,156,446 in the previous year. Gross receipts were somewhat higher than in 1947 because of the additional number of theatres, but there was a continued rise in operating costs in almost every department, said FP-C president J. J. Fitzgibbons.

Theatre projects involving an outlay of more than $3,200,000 were paid for out of current earnings and working capital, he added.

Fitzgibbons announced that a Paramount television system was to be established in the Imperial Theatre, Toronto. The FP-C president said another year of good business is anticipated.

100 Exhibitors in Protest Against Tax

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 14.—Some 100 exhibitors representing 250 theatres in South Carolina, meeting in Columbia yesterday, voted opposition to a proposed plan in the Assembly for an increased 10 per cent ticket tax. Bob Bryant of Rock Hill, S. C., presided.

Governor Thurmond, addressing the group, said motion pictures are the poor man's principal source of entertainment. Bryant said theatremen are prepared to resist any move to increase admission prices.

Review

"Sleeping Car to Trieste"

(Rank-Eagle-Lion)

GOOD character delineation and some fine bits of isolated comedy combine to make J. Arthur Rank's "Sleeping Car to Trieste" a delightful little film, even though the story runs a familiar mystery-thriller course. Discriminating patrons generally should find it rewarding. In the way of popular cast names, however, the production is shy; handling the acting chores are Jean Kent, Albert Lieven, Derrick De Marney and Paul Dupuis.

Virtually the entire story takes place aboard an Orient express which starts out from Paris. In the focal spot are an adventurer and his attractive companion, both of whom are pursuing a double-crossing accomplice in the theft of a secret political diary. A varied assortment of personalities comes into view aboard the train, including a sight-seeing G.I., a pompous British journalist, a vacationing police inspector, and a romantic young couple. In the course of their individual pursuits they become dramatically entangled over the diary. Following a murder, the film takes on the aspect of a detective story. John Paddy Carstairs' direction provides some excellent touches. George H. Brown produced this Two Cities Film from a screenplay by Allan Mackinnon, based on a story by Clifford Grey.

Running time, 95 minutes. Adult audience classification. For April release.

Congress Approves Extension of ECA

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Congress today approved and sent to the White House a bill continuing Economic Cooperation Administration operations through June 30, 1950, and authorizing the ECA to use up to $10,000,000 a year in its information media guaranty program.

The House had earlier approved $15,000,000 but the Senate stuck to $10,000,000, and the House gave way when the bill went to conference. ECA during its first year committed only about $1,000,000 for information media guaranties.

Sharp Drop of U. S. Films in Argentine

WASHINGTON, April 14. — The number of U. S. films released in Argentina dropped from 375 in 1947 to 261 in 1948, U. S. Commerce Department film chief Nathan D. Golden reported today.

The drop in the number of U. S. features was responsible for a drop in the number of features from all nations released in Argentina in 1948 to 453, from 557 in 1947. No Russian pictures were released in 1948, whereas 10 were shown in 1947. Twice as many Italian films were shown in 1948 as the previous year, but French releases fell from 37 to 23. British, Mexican and Argentine releases last year stayed at about 1947 levels.

2 Continue Studio Posts

MEXICO CITY, April 14.—Richard Tomkins will continue to represent American stockholders of the Churubusco studios here for the ensuing year, with Emilio Azcarraga, exhibitor and radio station operator, representing Mexican stockholders. Andres Serra Rojas, director general of Banca Nacional Cinematografico, S. A., has become a member of the studio's board.

Graham, RKO Executive

W. A. Graham, assistant manager of the maintenance department of RKO Theatres, died yesterday at his home in Westfield, N. J., after a long illness. Graham had been with RKO Theatres for 15 years.

Mexicans Must Use 80% Native Casts

MEXICO CITY, April 14.—Producers who depend upon the film trade's own bank, the Banco Nacional Cinematografico, have been ordered by Andres Serra Rojas, the bank's director general, to have at least 80 per cent of Mexican players in all pictures which they make. The banker recently merely requested all producers to give Mexicans preference. Mexican players, through their union, the Picture Production Workers, had complained that foreigners dominate the casts of Mexican films by 80 per cent. When the union again urged Rojas to act, contending that last year more than 200 of its members could not get work because so many foreigners were employed, he decided to issue the 80 per cent Mexican order to producers which his bank practically controls.

The order has given producers a considerable task in rearranging casts of new pictures.

13 Test Openings for "Stratton Story"

With the world premiere for "The Stratton Story" set for April 21 at Loew's Stillman, Cleveland, test engagements with special handling and promotion have been tentatively scheduled for 13 situations, it was announced by M-G-M.

For May, there will be at least seven test openings, to include the Four Star Theatre, Los Angeles; Music Hall, New York; Melba, Dallas; theatres in Denison, Greenville and Sherman, Texas, and Chicago. June openings are set for Pittsburgh, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia and Omaha. No general release date has been set.

DuMont television dealers will sponsor a new television series, "The Morey Amsterdam Show," on the Du Mont network on Thursday nights, beginning April 21.

Short Subject

"Report on the Atom"

(March of Time—20th-Fox)

The story of the atomic energy development program in the United States to date is told in terms that are comprehensible to the layman in this latest March of Time release. It was produced with the assistance and under the security control of the Atomic Energy Commission. It also has the endorsement of the Motion Picture Association of America, opening with a short commentary by Eric Johnston, MPAA president.

While the subject shows that atomic development is an important factor in modern warfare, it also dwells on the peacetime applications of this great force in industry, agriculture, medicine and biology. It is informative, exciting and deserves extra exploitation attention. Running time, 20 minutes.

New Greek Feature Shown by Helbanco

The recently formed Helbanco Distributing Corp., New York, held a press screening here of its initial release, "The Germans Strike Again," a 90-minute, Greek-made feature, the first of a series from that country which Helbanco will distribute here. President and vice-president of the company are Michael Scolidis and Angelo Petrello, respectively.

Produced by Finos Films, "The Germans Strike Again" is a dramtic fantasy about man's inability to settle his problems without recourse to war. The action takes place in contemporary Athens where the people are engulfed in constant bickerings over politics. One of the focal figures of the drama falls asleep and dreams that the conquering German armies are on the march again, and once held captive by the risen Germans, the Greek people realize with fullest impact the tragedy of their inability to have made most of peace. The best part of the film is its photography and some isolated bits of humor. Generally, however, the action is static and the motivations are not always logical. Directed by Alecos Sakellariou, the film has been provided with adequate English titles by Euthalie V. Starks. Heading the cast are Basil Logothetidi and Costas Tsaganeas. M. H.

Carlos Moore Named To UA Sales Post

Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president of United Artists, has appointed Carlos Moore special representative in India to serve as home office liaison with Western Indian Theatres, Ltd., UA distributor in India, Burma, Ceylon and Pakistan.

Moore was the company's general manager in India in 1937-42. He has also held various sales posts in UA's domestic sales organization. Accompanied by his wife, Moore will sail for his Bombay headquarters on Tuesday on the S.S. Steel Surveyor.

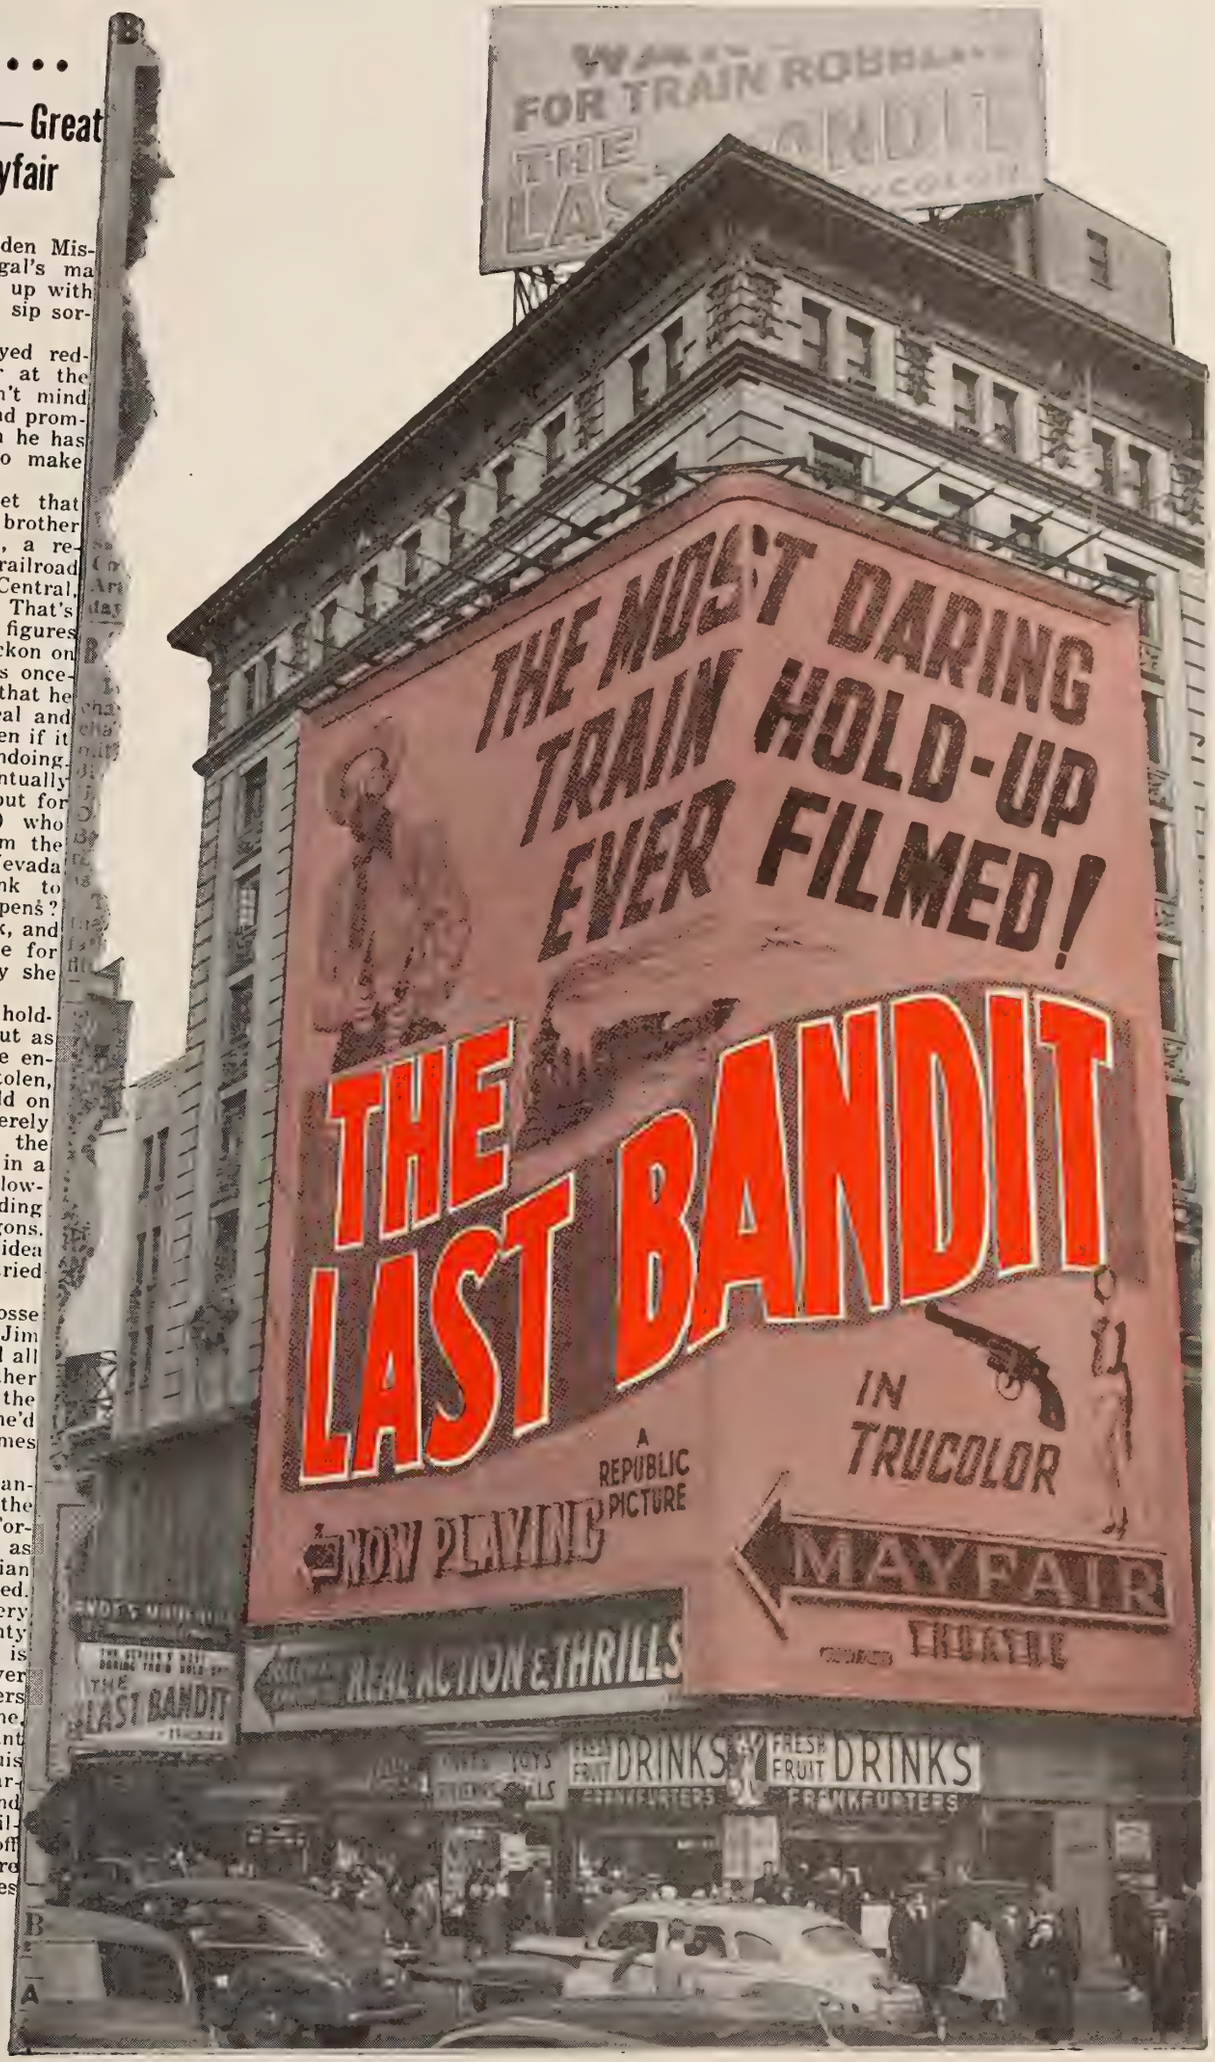
'The Last Bandit'—Great Train Theft at Mayfair

By IRENE THIRER

Out of the bandit ridden Missouri of the '70's, a gal's ma warns her: "if you take up with that Jim Plummer you'll sip sorrow with a spoon."

The gal is a green-eyed redhead (Republic Trucolor at the Mayfair), and she doesn't mind ma; takes up with Jim and promises to be his bride when he has stolen a load of gold to make them rich.

How's he going to get that thar gold? His own brother Frank, (William Elliott), a reformed outlaw, now railroad agent on the Western Central, will be the middle-man. That's how Jim (Forrest Tucker) figures it out. What he doesn't reckon on is the fact that Frank has once-and-for-all turned honest; that he won't be a part of the deal and that he'll save the gold, even if it means his own brother's undoing.



The good brother eventually falls—not for the scheme but for Jim's girl (Adrian Booth) who has come all the way from the Ozarks to Bannock City, Nevada to try and inveigle Frank to change his mind. What happens? She falls for him right back, and she's torn between her love for money and for him. Finally she realizes that ma was right.

Without Frank's aid, the hold-up is planned and carried out as a perfect crime whereby the entire train Local No. 44 is stolen, with a million dollars in gold on board. The outlaws don't merely steal the gold, but derail the train, running it into a cave in a mountain siding, afterwards blowing up the steel safe, and loading the ingots into waiting wagons. It's slick thriller; original idea stuff; not indeed the sorely tried Western formula.

Eventually the sheriff's posse catches up—and by that time Jim Plummer has bit the dust, and all his followers as well. Brother Frank emerges a hero, and the girl is cleared too because she'd switched sides mid-robbery. Comes the happy ending.

The people in "The Last Bandit" are agreeable, down to the last badman. Husky blonde Forrest Tucker steals the show as the terror of Missouri; Adrian Booth is comely and accomplished. Besides turning on some fiery histrionics, she sings a mighty pleasant folk song. Bill Elliott is as true-blue a railroadman as ever quit banditry for the rails. Others in the lineup include Andy Devine, Jack Holt, Minna Gombell, Grant Withers, Virginia Brissac, Louis T. Faust, Stanley Andrews, Martin Garralaga, Joseph Crehan and Charles Middleton. Thames Williamson's screenplay is 'way off the beaten path, and people are far more important than hosses in this bang-up opry.

Nassers-U. A.

ownership is fully expected to occur before Chaplin's option on Mary Pickford's half interest in U. A. expires next Thursday. Thus the closing, presumably, will be entirely in Chaplin's hands and he is known to be less reluctant than Miss Pickford to part with the company with which the two have been associated since its founding. United Artists is just entering upon its 30th anniversary.

The Nasser Brothers, official sources said yesterday, have agreed after a thorough study of United Artists' assets and current position, to meet the Chaplin-Pickford asking price of $2,700,000 for the half interest of each, or a total of $5,400,000. According to reports, the purchase price will be paid in cash.

Several prominent theatre operators, among them Robert McNeil, formerly of the McNeil and Naify circuit, San Francisco, are known to be associated with the Nassers in the purchase.

No Major Changes

It is generally believed that acquisition of UA by the Nassers would not be followed by any major changes in the executive administration of the company.

The Nassers are owners of General Service Studios, Hollywood, and plan to concentrate on obtaining a full schedule of production for their studio from producers releasing through UA. In addition, they own important California theatre operations and will concentrate on handling their West Coast interests, leaving UA administration to the present executive personnel here, it is believed. Nasser Brothers recently concluded a five-year deal for delivery of a total of 25 pictures to UA.

Prepare Credit Facilities

It is reported that the Nassers also are preparing credit arrangements by which independent producers can be attracted to UA by the available financing as well as deferments of studio charges which the Nassers are in a position to offer at General Service.

Agreement on the terms of the deal followed a favorable report on UA's condition brought back to the Nassers by Sam Wiesenthal, their financial representative, following a two weeks' study of the company's books in New York.

While agreement to meet the asking price normally would guarantee closing of such a deal, skeptics pointed out here yesterday that a group headed by Si Fabian, head of Fabian Theatres, actually reached an agreement on terms for the purchase of UA with Mary Pickford two years ago only to have the seller change her mind subsequently.

Fabian Kept Aloof

With that experience in mind, Fabian refused to enter the current bidding for UA, although invited to do so, unless a firm commitment to sell in the event terms could be agreed upon was issued to him in advance of negotiations. Chaplin declined that proposal recently.

It is pointed out, however, that no option was in existence at the time of Fabian's 1947 negotiations and the dealing then was with Miss Pickford who always has been more reluctant than Chaplin to part with her interest in the company. Chaplin and Miss Pickford exchanged options on each other's UA stock last January, Miss Pickford obtaining the option on Chaplin's stock first for a period of 30 days which was extended for another 10 days. No serious negotiations occurred during that period. Thereafter, an option on Miss Pickford's stock passed to Chaplin, with the initial 30-day period having expired last Monday. Chaplin also availed himself of the permitted 10-day extension, which period will expire next Thursday.

Although indications of interest were manifested by several other sources during the period Chaplin has held the option, the Nasser and Fabian groups were the only ones which were regarded as serious contenders. Like Nasser, Fabian too had planned to associate himself with other exhibitors in the bidding for UA if he had entered it.

MPEA in Germany basis and subject to future considerations of the problems which would confront the companies if they were to operate individually.

A spokesman for M-G-M, which had made some plans to operate competitively in Germany, said yesterday nothing is certain at this time. Arthur Mayer, chief of the film branch of the U. S. Military Government in Germany, offered a review of conditions there and advised a continuance of the MPEA.

The MPEA meeting followed a meeting of the Motion Picture Association of America, both organizations having an interlocking directorate, with an assortment of domestic matters reportedly taken up but with final decisions still yet to be reached. Among these was said to be the MPAA proposal for expanded activities in exhibitor relations.

Maurice Bergman, chairman of the motion picture division of the U. S. Savings Bond campaign, May 16-June 30, appeared before the board to discuss the industry's participation.

Board members who attended were Barney Balaban, Theodore R. Black, Nate J. Blumberg, Jack Cohn, Ned E. Depinet, E. W. Hammons, Eric A. Johnston, Austin C. Keough, W. C. Michel, Norton V. Ritchey, Herman Robbins, Nicholas M. Schenck, Sam Schneider, Spyros P. Skouras and Joseph R. Vogel.

Allied Urges

any sacrifice by exhibitors. "On the contrary," he said, in urging exhibitors to run the reels, "Allied is merely suggesting that they help themselves and the industry in general without sacrifice and without imposing on their patrons."

In two bulletins issued here today, Myers also took another swipe at the 20th Century-Fox campaign for a bigger share of the box-office dollar.

Myers said he regretted to read in the trade press that 20th-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman and Andy Smith, Jr., planned to "pursue their 'grass roots' survey to its completion." He pointed out that this did not mean that they will continue to claim that rentals must be raised. "Certainly that misbegotten idea should be quietly buried in the still of the night," he declared. "There will be no mourners."

Suburb Houses Up Prices

LOUISVILLE, April 14.—Reversing the trend toward lower admission prices in some Eastern cities, several suburban houses here have increased ticket prices from 34 to 40 cents.

20th-Fox Report

to an additional $3,000,000 in 1948 and $2,000,000 in 1947.

Theatre receipts in 1948, it was reported, "declined in comparison with 1947 by $9,444,000 and worldwide film rental by $1,535,000. However, income from other sources increased about $2,969,000. This favorable factor resulted in reducing the net decline in income to $8,010,000."

Domestic Rentals Drop

The decline in worldwide film rentals of $1,535,000, it was reported, "is represented by a drop in the U. S. and Canada of $1,669,000, coupled with an increase in the rest of the world by $134,000. Film rentals from foreign operations amounted to $30,044,157 in 1948 compared with $29,909,857 in the preceding year in spite of a further drop of about $2,000,000 in the United Kingdom caused by quota restriction. The UK, Australia and South Africa contributed 48 per cent of foreign film rentals in 1948 and 56.6 per cent in 1947."

Substantiating an estimate released on March 25, consolidated earnings of 20th Century-Fox and voting-controlled subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 25, 1948, after all charges, including Federal income taxes, totalled $12,509,265, the report disclosed. After deducting dividends paid on the prior preferred and convertible preferred stock of the parent corporation, consolidated earnings amounted to $4.29 per share on 2,769,107 shares of common stock outstanding at the year-end. The corporation reported consolidated earnings for 1947 of $14,003,640 which, after prior preferred and convertible preferred dividends, amounted to $4.81 per share on 2,769,016 shares then outstanding.

Shows Current Assets

The consolidated balance sheet at Dec. 25, 1948, shows current assets of $109,651,760 and current liabilities of $28,689,745, in the ratio of 3.8 to 1. Current assets include cash and government securities of $42,682,375 and inventories of $54,811,284.

During 1948 the corporation expended a total of $1,397,879 for retirement of 6,085 shares of prior preferred stock and 23,400 shares of convertible preferred out of retirement funds. In addition, the company and its subsidiaries expended approximately $5,400,000 during the year for additions to fixed assets.

Twentieth-Fox initially borrowed $5,000,000 in 1947 under the terms of a $25,000,000 credit agreement. No subsequent borrowings have been effected under the agreement and none are currently contemplated, the report states.

Economy Saves Millions

"Economy measures instituted in all phases of our business in 1947," it is reported, "resulted in savings of several millions of dollars in 1948, both in the cost of pictures, which were reduced substantially, and in administration, distribution, and overhead expenses. The drive for further economies is being pursued with vigor."

The company will continue its policy of producing pictures in Britain "as long as the necessity exists and blocked funds can be successfully converted into feature pictures to the advantage of your corporation," the stockholders were informed.

The company, which owns a total of 484 theatres overseas, "recently expended approximately 70,000 pounds of blocked sterling in acquiring a new theatre in South Africa, and a further 96,000 pounds by increasing its investment in the Amalgamated Theatre Circuit in New Zealand from 50 per cent to about 75 per cent," according to the report.

Twentieth-Fox "accelerated its study and development of television during 1948," it is stated, and its video research laboratory "is devoting all of its activities to the development of large-screen television for future use."

vision here, last week. Fabian held that post last year.

In accepting the chairmanship of the national division, Fabian called for "devoted support and total mobilization" of the industry to insure the success of the drive which supports the relief, rehabilitation and settlement programs of the Joint Distribution Committee, United Palestine Appeal and United Service for New Americans.

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, and Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, are among the 200 entertainment, business and professional leaders sponsoring the Joint Defense Appeal dinner which will cite Fabian for his services to civic and philanthropic causes.

The event, to be held on Wednesday, April 27, at the Waldorf-Astoria here, will climax the efforts of the Joint Defense Appeal to aid the 1949 campaign of the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York. Others from the industry serving as sponsors for the dinner include: Harry Goldberg, Leonard H. Goldenson, Arthur Israel, Jr., and Louis A. Novins.

Goldman Plans To Strengthen Phila. Position

Acquires Two from W.B., Will Enlarge Another

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Further implementing his plans for a more dominant position in first-run exhibition here, William Goldman has announced his intention of taking over operation of the 3,000-seat State Theatre in West Philadelphia from Warner Brothers next August 27 as a city first-run, of remodelling and enlarging the first-run Keith's and of taking over the Grange, North Philadelphia, from Warners.

Goldman has served notice on all film exchanges here that he will bid for Philadelphia first-runs for the State when he assumes its operation. There are indications that he may have in mind dual first-runs involving the State, along the lines being advocated by Al Lichtman, 20th Cen-

Anniversary Drive Will Honor Kelly

Marking the company's 30th anniversary on April 17, United Artists is launching an international sales drive, dedicated to Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president, and highlight an anniversary sales contest, the first in the history of U.A.'s foreign division.

The drive is scheduled to run through March 31, 1950. Participants in the contest will include the company's 22 territorial offices and 10 licensee agencies.

Current edition of Around the World, the foreign department's publication, edited by Samuel Cohen, highlights a 30-year history of the company.

Petition to Inspect Producers' Records

DETROIT, April 17.—United Detroit Theatres, co-defendant with Cooperative Theatres of Michigan in the restraint-of-trade action instituted by the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, will petition Federal Court here tomorrow for the right to inspect all documents on films made by the independent producers who are party to the suit.

Nasser, UA Officials Confer; Prepares Alternative Offer

HOLLYWOOD, April 17. — Weekend conferences between the Nasser brothers, bankers, United Artists officials and attorneys representing all factions appeared to be building steadily toward closing a deal for the purchase of the distributing company on or before the expiration of Charles Chaplin's option to sell Thursday.

James Nasser indicated on Friday that he is prepared to present an alternative arrangement, should Chaplin reject his offer to meet the asking price of $5,400,000 for the Chaplin-Pickford stock, which would entail outright purchase of Chaplin's share but would provide for Mary Pickford

Hollywood, April 17.— S. H. Fabian, from New York, and Ted Gamble, from Portland, Ore., arrived here over the weekend. It could not be ascertained immediately if they were preparing a competitive bid for the United Artists deal.

Briant Will Assist U. A.'s Fred Jack

W. A. Briant has been named assistant to Fred Jack, United Artists Southern sales manager, it was disclosed here at the weekend by Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., executive assistant to UA president Gradwell L. Sears.

Briant will have headquarters in the Dallas office, effective today. He recently resigned a salesman's post with 20th-Fox in New Orleans.

BRITISH GET U. S. PROTEST ON QUOTA

Set Central 'Vets' Film Agency May 14

May 14 is the deadline set by the U. S. Veterans Administration for the completion of its program for centralizing of VA motion picture booking and buying operations, it is reported following recent product-buying conferences here between distribution executives and E. J. Kelly, VA chief of motion pictures. Mrs. Adenia Stern, chief of VA's contract section, came with Kelly from Washington to participate in the talks.

Centralization follows the abolishment of the motion picture division's 13 branches. Under it William J. Jones, Jr., will continue as VA previewing and booking director in New York which will be the focal point of operations. Rental payments and procurement will be handled out of Washington.

Bidding by the distributors will begin shortly to establish the prices which the government will pay for the reels which will be shown by the VA in hospitals and homes across the country during 1949-50.

Wechsler to Para. As Hugh Owen Aide

Louis Wechsler, veteran in distribution and formerly associated with Eagle-Lion in branch sales, has joined Paramount as assistant to Hugh Owen, Eastern division sales manager.

State Dept. Told Bevin That U. S. Holds Quota 'Unfair, Arbitrary'

WASHINGTON, April 17. — The State Department has told the British Government that it believes its action on the British film quota was unfair, arbitrary and not in keeping with the Anglo-American policy looking toward free international trade.

This was revealed by a three-man Congressional delegation which went to the State Department Friday to protest the British quota on behalf of all members of the California delegation in the House of Representatives. The three—Representatives King and McKinnon, Democrats, and McDonough, Republican—had a 40-minute session with Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Under-Secretary James Webb, and film chief Merrill C. Gay.

Disability Benefits Set For NY Theatre Employes

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17. — The Condon-Mailler sickness disability benefits bill, approved by Governor Dewey, will require payments by all theatres with more than four employes and by the employes of such houses, effective Jan. 1, 1950. IATSE gave the State Federation of Labor strong support in the fight for enactment of the legislation, which the CIO opposed on the ground that all costs should be borne by employers.

Paul Shea, Warner Theatres employe in Elmira and director of District No. 10, IATSE, was one of the leaders in the AFL effort, according to Harold Hanover, secretary of the State Federation.

The law becomes effective on July 1, 1950, but from Jan. 1 to June 30, to accumulate funds for the start of payments on the former date, all employes will contribute a maximum of six cents weekly, and employers will pay equal amounts. Beginning July 1 employes will contribute not exceeding 30 cents per week and the employers the remainder of the cost.

Mary H. Donlon, chairman of the State Workmen's Compensation Board, which will administer the program, estimated the annual cost to employes and employers would be $90,000,000 to $100,000,000, divided about equally. Employers will have the choice of using the State Insurance Fund, private insurance carriers or company self-insured plans.

20th Executives Meet In Atlanta Today

Atlanta, April 17.—Twentieth Century-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld have arrived here from Chicago to meet tomorrow with sales personnel of the company's Southern division for conferences in connection with the trio's nation wide "grass roots" tour designed to bring about upward revisions in 20th-Fox's film rentals. Company's Southern division manager is Harry Ballance.

'Friendship' Meets Will Start Today

First of the series of M-G-M "Friendship Meetings" will get under way today in eight non-exchange cities when screenings in theatres will be held for "The Stratton Story" and "The Secret Garden." One of the pictures will be shown in the morning, followed by luncheon and then the second picture. In all, there will be 64 individual meetings, exclusive of regular trade showings in 32 branches.

M-G-M managers will be hosts at the invitational affairs, the aim being to bring two of the company's latest films to theatre owners unable to attend trade showings in branch areas.

First group of non-exchange towns include Butte, Columbus, Hartford, Houston, Lincoln, Minot, Mobile and Syracuse.

Tomorrow, M-G-M's executive personnel will be hosts to exhibitors in 15 non-exchange cities as well as 30 exchange territories. "The Stratton Story" only will be shown in branch projection rooms. On the following day "The Secret Garden" will be screened.

On April 20, 15 additional non-exchange cities will have the special screenings and luncheons. Fifteen more are scheduled for the following day, as well as the trade-showing in Boston of "The Stratton Story."

On April 22, three towns, Duluth, Newark and Richmond will stage the meetings. Erie will have its meet on April 26, and Columbia, April 27. The last two theatre parties will be held April 28 at Charleston and Raleigh.

Pickman Resigns E-L Ad-Publicity Post

Jerry Pickman has resigned his post of assistant director of advertising-publicity at Eagle-Lion to take another position in the industry, it was announced here on Friday by Max E. Youngstein, E-L's advertising-publicity vice-president. Following the announcement Pickman declined to comment on his new affiliation, but it is understood that he will head a new sales promotion department in one of the major companies.

Pickman has been in the industry since 1944 when he joined 20th Century-Fox to handle a special assignment. Later he was appointed assistant to Hal Horne, 20th-Fox director of advertising-publicity. After leaving that company, in 1946, he was associated with Selznick Productions, later joining E-L as publicity manager.

Dewey Signs Fino Bill

Push FCC Action on WarnerTVPurchase

WASHINGTON, April 17.—In an effort to force action by the Federal Communications Commission on its application to buy a Los Angeles television station, Warner Bros. gave notice that it would advertise its purchase plans in Los Angeles newspapers tomorrow. This step, and an announcement by the FCC in the Federal Register, are necessary prerequisites to approval of the purchase.

Warner has asked FCC approval of its plans to buy a Los Angeles television station, a Los Angeles standard station, and a San Francisco standard station from Dorothy Thackrey, New York publisher. The FCC has been sitting on the "package" application, pending its study of the anti-trust status of film companies.

Warner also pointed out that the commission might be worried that it would control two standard broadcasting stations in Los Angeles—the new one and its present KFWB. It said a contract had already been made with Ralph Atlass, of Chicago, to sell him the new standard station it would acquire under this "package" plan, keeping the television station itself and, for the time being, the San Francisco station. The contract with Atlass expires in August, Warner said, urging this as an additional reason for early FCC action.

"The Lawton Story"

(Hallmark)

Hollywood, April 17

A CURIOUSLY constituted and uniquely blended collection of screen materials which do not easily fit into standard theatrical categories is presented in this Hallmark production.

Its major content is an extremely interesting filming in Cinecolor of an Easter pageant, entitled "The Prince of Peace," presented annually in the Wichita Mountains near Lawton, Oklahoma, by the good people of that area and to an attendance that has numbered as high as 250,000 persons. Its secondary and introductory content is a semi-fictional story concerning the late Reverend A. M. Wallock of the First Congregational Church of Lawton, who founded the Easter pageant in 1926, and his family. This introductory story leads up to the beginning of the pageant itself and is cut back to momentarily from time to time thereafter as the latter progresses. Professional players and some of the Lawton pageant players are used in the introductory story, but the Lawton players take over exclusively in the pageant sequences and impart to them the warm impact of inspired amateurism.

Quite clearly the strongest appeal of the attraction is to the religious-minded, and there is a plenitude of warrant for soliciting the interest and cooperation of churches and church groups. The pageant itself corresponds in scope and spirit to the Passion Play at Oberammerergau and is reverently dealt with in the picture.

Probably the purpose of the introductory phase of the film is to broaden the base of exploitation and thus bring to the theatre many who might not pay to witness an outrightly religious subject, and as if in line with this purpose the producers have starred a personable and gifted six-year-old child, Ginger Prince, who acts very well but is given four song numbers to work into a little story that could have stood one without strain. Thus this section of the picture is made to seem somewhat more a showcase for Miss Prince's talents than an integral and homogeneous part of the whole, but this flaw is soon forgotten when the pageant gets under way.

The picture was produced by Kroger Babb, with J. S. Jossey and Neil E. Bogan as associate producers. Harold Daniels directed the pageant portion and William Beaudine the introductory story.

Running time, 111 minutes. General audience classification. For April release.

"Prince of the Plains"

(Republic)

MELVILLE TUCKER produced and Philip Ford directed this smooth-titled Western quite satisfactorily, using a new character of villainy in the person of the town's photographer who sets out to ruin local ranchers by murdering, through his henchmen, the town's banker and securing control of the bank in order to foreclose on the ranchers.

The villain, Rory Mallinson, does not, however, figure on Bat Masterson (Monte Hale), a hard-hitting cow-puncher who arrives on the scene to foil the shenanigans of the photographer. With the help of a kindly sheriff, the hero plays the son of the murdered banker and succeeds in saving $50,000 in insurance money and toppling the villain from a cliff in a nicely-staged battle.

Photography is good and the action has lots of spirit. The plot is slightly more complicated than in the average Western but is not really difficult to follow. Hale is the tall-and-silent type that is especially effective for this type of film. Paul Hurst provides some amusing moments as the sheriff. Shirley Davis is the feminine lead. Also in the cast are Roy Barcroft, Harry Lauter, Lane Bradford.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 8.

Salt Lake Club Sets 'Roundup' for June 14

SALT LAKE CITY, April 17.—Annual exhibitor-distributor "Roundup" of the Salt Lake Motion Picture Club will be held here June 14-17, it is announced by Harold Chesler, general chairman.

This year's event will be lengthened from three to four days, Chesler said, because of three state conventions of exhibitors to be held during that time. Montana, Idaho and Utah exhibitors are scheduled to meet during the affair.

The Victoria Theatre here has guaranteed United Artists $100,000 for the run of the UA-Screen Plays production "Home of the Brave," it was disclosed here at the weekend by UA president Gradwell L. Sears. The picture will have its world premiere at the Victoria in mid-May, following Walter Wanger's "Joan of Arc."

Para. Hits Partmar Move to Intervene

Paramount on Friday moved to block the action by Partmar Corp. which operates the Paramount Theatre, Hollywood, on lease from Paramount, to intervene in the Paramount consent decree in the industry trust suit. Partmar has contended that the settlement contravenes the U. S. Supreme Court decision because it allows Paramount to re-acquire operation of the house.

Paramount on Friday filed opposition papers in New York Federal Court which charge that it is free to evict Partmar under terms of the leasing arrangement. As lessor, Paramount claims that having cancelled its franchise agreement on films for the house, in line with the New York court opinion of 1946, the lease is now cancellable.

Partmar's move to intervene was denied by the New York Court but the right to appeal the denial to the U. S. Supreme Court was given.

Would Probe Loury In Ridge Trust Suit

CHICAGO, Apr. 17.—A motion to compel Ben Loury, Columbia exchange manager, to answer questions relating to his conversations with Harry Lustgarten, Balaban & Katz film buyer, and Abe Montague, Columbia general sales manager, with respect to the Olympic, Empress, Rockne, Harlem and North Avenue outdoor theatres, claiming that the conspiracy of which the Ridge Theatre complained in its Equity anti-trust suit extended to all independently operated theatres in Chicago was made Thursday by attorney Seymour Simon before Federal Judge John Barnes in U. S. District Court. Judge Barnes overruled defendant attorney Miles Seeley's objections to the questions.

A hearing is scheduled tomorrow in the same suit, on another motion made by Simon compelling Balaban and Katz and Great States to make available to the Ridge all of their books and records for inspection, to show admissions and film rentals received and paid by the circuit's "A" outlying houses.

Conditions Worse in Mexican Exhibition

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—Though Mexican theatres' general grosses are higher this year over last—some $35,000 more in January than for the same month of 1948—individual exhibitors are complaining of progressively decreasing business, attributing this to the worsening of the economic situation and to too many theatres. They fear the situation will be even worse because 36 theatres are due to open this year and to complicate matters they are all first and second runs. Exhibitors say they cannot afford to hike prices under these circumstances, though their costs are very high. They say that 57 cents (the dollar price based on seven pesos per dollar, the current exchange rate) standard for first-class first-runs is the maximum.

Only the exceptional picture now warrants more than a week in a first-run house here. Previously, the average picture that did well in the first week dropped off only 25 per cent in the second. Now, that type of picture is hardly worth holding over because it drops by 60 to 75 per cent.

4 Managers Win Awards

"The Lost Tribe"

(Columbia)

SECOND in the new "Jungle Jim" series, "The Lost Tribe" re-introduces Johnny Weismuller in the role of Jim. Although the lead characterization isn't too much of a liability, the inches Weismuller has added to his waistline belie the athletic character which he is called upon to portray here. However, there is excitement aplenty in the story, which was produced by Sam Katzman and directed by William Berke.

The tale is routine: Jungle Jim is asked by the leader of a peace-loving tribe living in a jungle Shangri-La to stop attempts by outside intruders to steal sacred treasures. They are determined, regardless, to get the treasure, but after a few killings and jungle fights involving animals, for which clips of previous documentaries are used with great generosity, the villains are beaten off, and the Shangri-La is restored to its peaceful atmosphere.

Best parts of the film are the trained-animal sequences and the savage struggles in the jungle. Photography is good and direction is par for the type. The story line is easy to take and simple to follow. Myrna Dell is a native girl who befriends Jungle Jim. Joseph Vitale and Ralph Dunn are also in the cast.

Running time, 72 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

"Frontier Revenge"

(Screen Guild) Hollywood, April 17

WITH Lash LaRue and Fuzzy St. John in the leads, this sagebrush saga follows the customary Western pattern. The redoubtable pair, in reality U. S. marshals, set out to break up a gang of outlaws by joining the desperados. In the course of action, Lash finds ample use of his educated whip and Fuzzy has several opportunities for bristling his beard and getting off a few equally whiskered gags.

Gang leader Ray Bennett attempts to double-cross his recruits in a fast chase climaxed by several shootings, rough-and-tumbles and nick-of-time arrival by Peggy Stewart, who, it turns out, is not really a dancehall entertainer but a lady marshal. The film has an exciting music score by Walter Greene. Ray Taylor's direction is understandably attuned to his own screenplay, which receives a photographic lift during the chase scenes from James Brown's camera. The film should comfortably fill any Western bill. J. Francis White, Jr., produced.

Running time, 55 minutes. General audience classification.

You don't have to go back half a century to find how the picture business has changed. Just a year or so ago, all an exhibitor had to do was book any million-plus film and start counting. But today the super-dupers are too often just plain "DUPER"! And many a star's slip is showing... at the boxoffice.

Today's public wants "meat and potatoes" entertainment... solid stuff with belly laughs and thrills that don't need psychologists to explain!

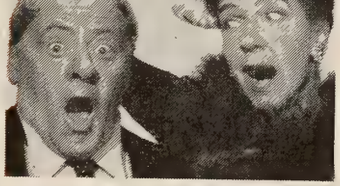
JIGGS and MAGGIE — When you've had one box office flop after another on the big "supers" and then people you've never seen before start arriving in droves to see this, it is some indication of what people want from Hollywood. They came, saw and advertised by word-of-mouth. Run it.—Bob Walker, Vintah Theatre, Fruita, Colo.

ANGELS' ALLEY: — The Bowery Boys — This is a "B" picture, but it did more business than lots of "A" pictures. — L. Brazil, New Theatre, Bearden, Ark.

JOE PALOOKA in The Knockout — This is an excellent series which is worth Sunday time. Receives only favorable comments. — Rahl and Hanson, Californi Theatre, Kerman, Calif.



Jiggs and Maggie in Society — There's only one picture in the last year to outgross this.—Jim Davis, Rio Theatre, Collinsville, Tex.

Trouble Makers — Have you ever had a "Bowery Boys" that didn't satisfy? I haven't.—Jim Dunbar, Roxy Theatre, Wichita, Kansas.

Joe Palooka in The Knockout—You can't pass this one up. Monogram has excellent series pictures.—Art Phillips, Haymond Theatre, Cromona, Ky.

State Dept. Protest

rnest Bevin was here early this ionth, Department officials took up ie film situation with his personal ecretary, R. E. Barclay, and outlined ie Department's stand. The govern- ient stressed that it was not trying o interfere in Britain's internal af- airs or tell the Labor Party Ministry xactly what quota should be set, but iat the British action had created uch resentment here and that the ritish approach should be more con- iliatory in working out the quota ith representatives of the British nd American film industries

Had Tried 'Channels'

It was learned that the Congress- ien had been told earlier, while Bevin as here, that the Department had ried for several months to work out, hrough Embassy channels, some solu- ion of the film situation, and had otten nowhere. Accordingly, they ere told, no attempt would be made o take the matter up with Bevin hile he was here. The Congressmen nsisted, and the matter was taken up ith Barclay just before Bevin left Washington.

Acheson suggested, it was reported riday, that the film quota be high on he agenda of the coming Anglo- American Film Council meeting.

Congressmen Encouraged

The Congressmen declared that they ame away encouraged by a "very atisfactory conference," and that hey were convinced the State De- artment was sympathetic to the in- lustry's needs and is working on the roblem. They said that Acheson in- licated that he realized the quota was creating unemployment and cutting industry earnings here, that the British action was significant in that other countries follow England's lead, and that the film industry is important not only as an employer but as an instrument of U. S. foreign policy abroad.

tury-Fox vice-president, in that company's current drive for exhibition revenue reforms. Goldman is known to be interested in the idea and the State, second largest theatre in the city and heretofore operated as a key neighborhood house by Warners, would fit into such a plan.

Goldman purchased the State about two years ago. The Warner lease on it expires this summer.

Goldman's plans for the Keith's Theatre, which he has been operating on a first-run policy, whereas it formerly was a second-run or move-over house, contemplate its closing around June 1, after which the office building in connection with it will be demolished and the theatre will be completely remodelled, modernized and enlarged from its present 1,700 seating capacity to approximately 2,500 seats. He plans to rename the theatre and reopen it about Thanksgiving Day. "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" is playing the Keith's first Philadelphia run now and is expected to continue there until about June 1.

Goldman's take-over of the Grange from Warners, whose lease on that theatre also is expiring, is scheduled for next September. That house, too, will be closed and remodelled before Goldman begins operating it.

man is trying to accomplish is for the good of the whole industry. If anybody in this industry does not believe that the source of supply is seriously threatened because it is impossible for producers to continue making quality product without a fair return, let the company which wrote the secret letter come out into the open.

"It is time that Myers stopped resorting to smokescreens, wisecracks and innuendos because the issue is very serious and clear and should be faced with business statesmanship and not wily evasions.

"We challenge this anonymous letter-writing company to come out in the open. All that 20th Century-Fox wants is a fair share for its product. It wants what the pictures are worth —no more, no less. It wants to continue to work for the best interests of the exhibitor."

M-G-M Replies to Allied Bulletin

M-G-M revealed on Friday that, to avoid any misunderstanding, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, had replied to Abram F. Myers, chairman and general counsel of Allied States, who in a recent bulletin suggested that 20th Century-Fox's current rental increase campaign might be an endeavor in behalf of all companies.

Following is the text of Rodgers' letter to Myers:

"Thank you for sending me your bulletin dated March 31, 1949, which I read with interest.

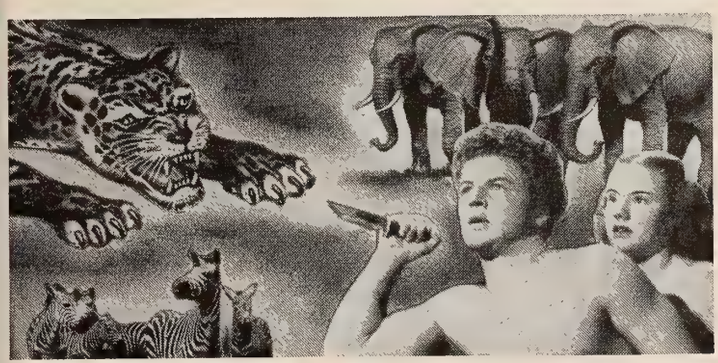
"You know that Mr. Lichtman is no longer associated with us. His new association is with 20th Century-Fox. He does not speak for us.

"Be assured, if and when we have any policy to announce we will announce it directly ourselves."

Rodgers' letter appears in the current issue of The Distributor, the company's sales department house organ.

St. Louis MPTO Hits 20th-Fox Policy

St. Louis, April 17.—Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois have adopted a resolution protesting the new sales policy projected by 20th Century-Fox. The exhibitors urged a downward revision of rentals to stabilize the industry in what they call a time of reorientation. The resolution was forwarded to Spyros P. Skouras and Andy Smith, respective president and general sales manager of 20th Century-Fox, by Tom Edwards of Farmington, Mo., president of the MPTO unit.



Stamper Heads 'IA' Local

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 17.—Jack Stamper has been elected president of IATSE Local No. B-33, with Elmer Hileman named vice-president. Paul E. Korda, French See Solution of U. K. Problem

Criticize Protest of U. S. State Department

By MANDEL HERBSTMAN

Optimism that Anglo-American film industry problems will be worked out at the meetings in Washington of the Anglo-American Film Councils, April 21-23, were expressed by both Sir Alexander Korda and Sir Henry French on their arrival here yesterday on the SS Queen Mary from London. Both are members of the British Council, along with J. Arthur Rank.

Declining to comment on the agenda of the meetings, Korda, managing director of London Film Productions, declared that he was "very optimistic" that the problems facing both nations "would be cleared."

Informed that the U. S. State De-

Strike at British Studios Near an End

LONDON, April 18.—Despite the spread of the Denham electricians' strike to Pinewood, indications are that the dispute will be settled immediately after the Easter holidays, this in part being based on the allegation that the strike is an infringement of the law which requires a trade union to give 21 days' notice of a dispute before calling a strike. This statutory notice was not given at either Denham or Pinewood, it is understood.

Comment has also been made that no ballot of the men was taken before the strike was ordered.

Theatres in Toronto Increasing Prices

Toronto, April 18.—Admission prices at a number of Toronto theatres of Famous Players and affiliated companies have been raised from three to five cents to meet higher operating costs. Generally, the odd-cent rates of scales were eliminated, the 66 cent night adult admission at large units being raised to a flat 70 cents and the early matinee fee of 36 cents going to 40 cents.

Other circuit companies and independent exhibitors are expected to follow suit.

UA in Deal for 1,000 Television Shorts

Another major distribution agreement for television film programs was concluded here yesterday between United Artists-TV and Ruby Films Corp., which will put well over 1,000 video films on the market within the next few months, it was announced by John H. Mitchell, director of UA-TV. The agreement was signed by the company with Edward Ruby, executive producer, and Val Irving, associate producer.

Under the terms of the distribution arrangement, United Artists Television will release three new program

N. Y. 1st-Runs Are Huge; Record for 'Yankee','Belvedere'

New York first-runs are turning the corner to a new prosperity this week with grosses mounting to record proportions. Superb business of the weekend continued in large part through yesterday and no lag in returns is anticipated by theatremen for the remainder of the week, this on the basis of the school holiday and the large number of out-of-towners in the city. Majority of runs are opening one to two hours earlier this week to allow for an extra performance.

"Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," with the "Glory of Easter" stage presentation, established a new record at the Music Hall, providing the house with $102,000 on Thursday through Sunday, which is

Nassers' U. A. Bid Runs into Bankers' Wall

Financing Conditions Stall Bid; Fabian Out

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—Prospects for consummation of the Nasser Brothers' bid for acquisition of United Artists was lessened today as financing complications apparently remained unsolved after a weekend of conferences, and Si Fabian and Ted R. Gamble, theatre operators, declined invitations to participate in the proposed purchase of Mary Pickford's and Charles Chaplin's UA stock.

The Nassers continued their discussions today with Bank of America and UA officials, but indications were the situation had not changed up to tonight. Meanwhile, Fabian left for New York last night and Gamble for his home at Portland, Ore.

Lack of agreement reportedly stemmed from Bank of America's conditions attached to its part of the financing of the deal. One condition,

KB Moves to Uphold Partnership Deal

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Theatre-owning defendants in the Paramount case cannot choose to dissolve jointly-owned theatre companies which they must dispose of under a court order—even if the court gives them that option—when they have a prior contractual obligation to sell their interest to their partner, the K-B Amusement Co. argued in District Court here today.

K-B is seeking to force Warner Brothers to sell its interest in the jointly-owned MacArthur Theatre to K-B at a price stipulated in a con-

Goodman Is Named Aide to Rosenfield

Abe Goodman, advertising production manager of 20th Century-Fox here, has been promoted to assistant to Jonas Rosenfield, advertising manager, by Charles Einfeld, advertising-publicity vice-president.

Goodman has been with 20th Century-Fox since 1926 and has been production manager since 1932. In addition to his duties as assistant to Rosenfield, Goodman will continue as production manager.

US-German Zone Houses Rise from 16 to 1,450

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The number of motion picture theatres in the American Zone of Germany has increased to 1,450 from a 1945 count of 16, according to the U. S. War Department.

The Department's report also stated that under an agreement between American Military Government film officers and representatives of the German film industry, distributors may help in the financing of German films if their money is counted as an advance payment on the film, rather than as a permanent investment. This is in line with Military Government's policy of keeping distribution, production and exhibition separate.

Effects of the currency reform as outlined in the report indicate that although the immediate effect was to reduce theatre attendance by 75 to 90

TOA's Conciliation Still Available

Speculation as to whether Theatre Owners of America's conciliation machinery is still operative has been forestalled by organization president Arthur H. Lockwood who, in answer to a direct inquiry made by the Albany, N. Y., TOA unit, indicated that disputes between exhibitors and distributors can still be brought before local TOA conciliation boards which, in turn, can make use of the organization's national conciliation panel if settlements are not reached on the local level.

Schine Hearing Is Put Off to June 20

Buffalo, April 18.—Hearing in the Schine Theatres anti-trust suit, which had been scheduled for today, has been adjourned to June 20, the postponement of 60 days having been agreed to by plaintiff and Department of Justice attorneys who meanwhile will continue negotiations of a decree settlement.

Para. Opposes 2nd Decree Intervenor

Paramount filed its objections in New York Federal Court yesterday to the petition of Harry Norman Ball, operator of the Penn Theatre at Ambridge, Pa., for the right to take an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court of the lower court's denial of his motion to intervene in the Paramount consent decree case.

The New York court granted the Ball petition the same as it approved the similar petition of Partmar Corp., Hollywood, which Paramount also has opposed.

Ball charges that the State Theatre, Ambridge, which is a Paramount partnership house, is a "fruit of conspiracy" within the meaning of the Supreme Court's opinion on partnerships and cognizance of this is not taken in the Paramount consent decree.

Topics scheduled for floor discussion follow: division of box-office dollar, forcing pictures, extended playing time, the decree, forcing of local checkers, admission scales, exhibitors rights, forced percentages, P.T.A. children shows, television, legislation, trade practices, auditing suits, film rentals, showmanship, overhead, local licenses.

To Weigh Atlanta Censorship Bans

ATLANTA, April 18.—A new "delayed-action" procedure of censoring motion pictures has been adopted by the Atlanta Carnegie Library Board.

Milton G. Farris, chairman of the board, recommended that board members "wait several days" after seeing a picture banned by the Atlanta censors before deciding whether or not to uphold the ban. He also recommended that representatives of film companies be allowed to submit a brief on the film in question.

"A considered opinion," he said, "is better than a hasty one."

The board adopted Farris' recommendation after two representatives of Columbia Pictures appeared before the board and asked for reversal on an earlier ban against "Knock on Any Door."

Broidy Observing 25th Anniversary

Steve Broidy, president of Allied Artists and Monogram, now here from Hollywood, is observing his 25th anniversary in the film business which he entered when he abandoned the study of law at Boston University to join the old Franklin Film Co. Sixteen years later, following sales posts with Universal, Warner and Monogram's Boston exchange, which he headed when it was set up in 1937, Broidy was elected to the Monogram board. By the end of 1940 he was sales vice-president, with headquarters in Hollywood. In 1945, he was elected president, and with the incorporation two years ago of Allied Artists, Monogram producing affiliate, Broidy became its president also.

Review

"Shamrock Hill"

(Eagle-Lion) Hollywood, April 18

SPRINKLED with Gaelic charm and elfin humor, this tidbid featuring Peggy Ryan and Ray McDonald should prove a pleasing and reliable program picture. Fact and fancy are neatly blended with dance, song and comedy. However, the Irish gaiety and brogue appear a little forced at times, and the little men don't ring quite as true as in an earlier Margaret O'Brien film of similar theme. Particularly good in character roles are Mary Gordon, James Burke and Tim Ryan as Miss Ryan's wise, ever-painting grandmother, inventive father and hair-growing Uncle Dan, respectively.

Peggy is the colleen whose loving care has made an imaginative play-haven for youngsters on Shamrock Hill. When industrialist John Litel decides the location is ideal for his contemplated television station, the two tangle and Peggy, with the aid of a man-aided miracle, convinces the practical business man that another hill will serve his purpose.

A refreshing youthfulness permeates the picture, thanks to Miss Ryan, McDonald, Trudy Marshall and Rick Vallin, the four offering a happily resolved eternal triangle plus one. The nimble Ryan and McDonald feet account for several delightful dance sequences, including an especially beautiful, fairylike production number. And for those who doubt the existence of leprechauns, producer-director Arthur Dreifuss cleverly worked in a quintet by the little fellows.

Running time, 82 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 14.

unprecedented for any like period, and appears on its way to a gross of $170,000 for the week, an all-time high. The show will enter its third week on Thursday.

Business is similarly exciting at the Roxy, which announces that "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," with Vivian Blaine and McCarthy and Farrell on stage, hit a new Easter weekend (Friday-Sunday) mark of $80,300, indicating a mammoth first week's gross of $160,000.

Also doing an amazing box-office job is "Wizard of Oz" at the Mayfair, where business for the first week of the reissue could reach $55,000. "City Across the River," with Art Mooney's orchestra on stage, figures to give the Capitol a robust second week's gross of $70,000, after ringing up $67,800 in the first week.

"Champion" is climbing to a huge second week's business, estimated at $55,000, at the Globe. "Hamlet" still is giving the Park peak returns, $16,500 being apparent for a 29th week. "Life of Riley" at the Criterion probably will bring an adequate $25,000 in a first week.

At the Strand, "My Dream Is Yours," with Lionel Hampton's orchestra on stage, is likely to do $60,000 in a big first week. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" is good for $28,000 in a sixth week at the State. "Portrait of Jennie" is holding up well at the Rivoli, where the third week is likely to bring $30,000. "Bride of Vengeance," with Charlie Barnet's orchestra on stage, should give the Paramount $55,000 in a moderate second week.

About $15,500 is apparent for the 26th week of "The Red Shoes" at the Bijou, where there seems to be no let-up in business. "Joan of Arc" is improving at the Victoria, where $18,000 is indicated for a 23rd week. "Knock on Any Door" should give the Astor an estimated $15,000 in a mild ninth week. At the Sutton, "Quartet" still is drawing choice business, estimated at $15,000 for the third week.

Philbrick's Ad Post Awaits His Return

BOSTON, April 18.—Edward S. Canter, executive assistant to Samuel Pinanski of American Theatres Corp., declared here that the circuit status of Herbert A. Philbrick, government witness at the Communist trial in New York, remains the same as before, his position of assistant advertising and exploitation manager being open for him "if he desires to return."

Try to Boost Local Tax

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—Attempt of the Warren, Ohio, city council to increase the local admission tax to five per cent, if successful, would open the door to similar action by city councils throughout the state, warns P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theatres Owners of Ohio, who is urging Ohio exhibitors to support a bill before the state legislature which would restore the admissions taxing power to the state.

Drive-Ins Delaying New Product Buying

MINNEAPOLIS, April 18.—Drive-in film buyers in the Minneapolis zone are lining up solidly in opposition to increased rentals and improved playing time announced by major film companies and independents alike, it is learned, and the jockeying for lower rentals reportedly will delay some outdoor stands openings.

Film companies have let the drive-ins know that rentals for the coming season will be in line with film prices for the conventional stands, plus a certain amount of percentage and preferred playing time. The independents and smaller majors are not expected to be tough in demanding either percentages or good playing time, but they are holding out for higher rentals up and down the line, declaring drive-ins last year "stole" their films.

Although a number of drive-ins in the Minneapolis zone have already set opening dates for this month and May, film companies report that very few product deals for the outdoor stands have been closed.

Say 20th Aim Is to Block Rental Cuts

MILWAUKEE, April 18. — Board members of the Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin at a meeting here expressed the opinion that the 20th Century-Fox plan for adjustments in rentals to benefit the distributor actually is designed to stave off anticipated requests for a reduction in rentals by exhibitors. It is understood that the directorate felt that theatremen are entitled to a slash of film costs of a minimum of 25 per cent because of the decline in box-office.

If and when Andy W. Smith, Jr. and Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox vice-presidents, visit Wisconsin they would be welcomed at a meeting with the theatremen and the latter would present their reasons for cuts in rentals, the board decided. John P. Adler is president of ITO of Wisconsin.

New Date for 'Barkleys'

World premire for M-G-M's "Barkleys of Broadway," scheduled for April 24 at Loew's State here, has been postponed to May 4.

Services for Beery Today on the Coast

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow at Forest Lawn Memorial Park for Wallace Beery, 64, veteran screen star who died Friday night at his Beverly Hills home of a heart ailment. Beery, who held a reserve commission as a U. S. Navy Lieutenant Commander, will be buried in his uniform. He was one of M-G-M's top stars for years.

Louis B. Mayer, M-G-M production chief, and another of that studio's executives, Edward J. Mannix, will be among the funeral pallbearers. Honorary pallbearers include Bing Crosby, Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, Spencer Tracy, Leo Carillo, George Murphy, Frank Capra, Jesse Lasky, Mervyn LeRoy, Joseph Schenck, Nicholas Schenck, Mack Sennett, Sam Wood, Darryl F. Zanuck and Jack Dempsey.

Beery, who had played in more than 250 pictures since 1913, won an Academy Award in 1931 for his performance in "The Champ," and received an Italian award for his characterization in "Viva Villa" in 1934. He was the brother of the late Noah Beery, screen actor, who died in 1946. They were sons of a Kansas City policeman.

Survivors include Carol Ann Beery, the actor's daughter; Mr. and Mrs. William Beery, brother and sister-in-law, and Noah Berry, Jr., nephew.

Some in NCA Would Abandon Smith Plan

MINNEAPOLIS, April 18.—A movement has been started by some members of North Central Allied to abandon the 20th Century-Fox Andy Smith plan of conciliating product and contract disputes, in retaliation for establishment by 20th-Fox of a new selling formula aimed at "equalizing" the split of the box-office dollar.

Smith and Ben Berger, NCA president, last year developed the conciliation plan as a means of halting a number of threatened court suits over alleged forced selling and other trade abuses, with NCA members backing the plan with a resolution.

Out-of-town members are now urging the NCA board to make conciliation a main subject at the unit's annual convention and election of officers May 22-23, and are asking support of a move to "throw out" any form of conciliation of grievances against the film companies.

Officials at 20th Century-Fox's home office declined to comment here yesterday on the Minneapolis development.

Reade's Drive-In Reopens

Walter Reade's Drive-In No. 1, near Woodbridge, N. J., has reopened after re-paving and enlargement. Supplementing the double-bill film fare are dance floor, pony rides, shuffleboard, quoits courts, a children's playground and a nursery.

36th Astor Anniversary

On April 27, City Entertainment Corp. will celebrate with ceremonies in the lobby of the Astor Theatre here what is described as the 36th anniversary of Broadway's first "all-movie show" in April, 1913.

TRIGGER is a Dark Horse!

(THE STORY OF AN UPSET AT SIX)

THERE'S a half-hour radio program on one of the networks at 6:00 p.m. Sundays.

It's not an expensive show, but a great one. It hasn't had a million dollars worth of ballyhoo. It has serious competition.

It's a dark horse—and it's pulling ahead.

In the Nielsen sweepstakes (December 19-25th), with 124 once-a-week entries, this show rated 18th (Average Audience) and tied for 21st place (Total Audience).

There are less than 6 points difference between this show and Jack Benny.

It's ahead (both total and average audience) of such shows as The Great Gildersleeve, Stop The Music (all 4 quarters), Red Skelton, Burns & Allen, Eddie Cantor, Date with Judy—and many other shows that cost two, three and four times as much.

And it tops its highest competing show by 6 points.

This is really an upset at 6 o'clock.

We wish Nielsen would let us publish the name of the show. But you know the name of the network.

What does this mean? For one thing, it means that with a good show, Mutual can deliver ratings. Even more important—Mutual can deliver ratings at a lower cost per rating point—and a lower cost per 1000 homes reached—whichever way you want to figure it.

In these days of hard selling—of efficient and economical selling—can you afford not to look at Mutual?

partment had protested the 40 per cent British quota as "unfair," Korda asserted that, "I don't know what is unfair when the American film industry already has two-thirds of the British market." Korda said he was pleased with the 40 per cent quota and that he did not think it was harmful to anybody. He said that the British industry can meet the 40 per cent quota, and even a 50 per cent quota if need be.

Korda dismissed the prospect of nationalization of the industry in England with the assertion that "I don't think it has a chance." He revealed that he has started three films and added that his production schedule for the year would be announced later.

French, director general of the British Film Producers Association, and a director of the Rank organization, sharply parried most of the queries put to him by the ship-news reporters. Relenting somewhat finally, he said that divorcement of the industry in England is under inquiry by the Lord Portal Committee, but added that even if the committee recommended divorcement he did "not know if the government would accept."

Like Korda, French said he is "optimistic" about the Washington meeting this wek. Asked about the British industry being able to meet the quota, he said "we always have filled the quota."

tract outlining conditions under which a partner planning to dispose of its interest must offer its interest first to the other partner. Warners argued 10 days ago that it did not have to sell the K-B under the contract terms, but rather could dissolve the jointly-owned corporation and dispose of its assets at public sale. It said the District Court's judgments and decrees in the Paramount case permitted this.

K-B, in a brief filed today, said that the New York District Court never intended to overrule existing contractual obligations.

Review

"Night Unto Night"

(Warner Brothers)

THE "action" in this adaptation of a novel by Philip Wylie is confined for the most part to the principal characters' grappling with philosophical questions of life and death and speculation as to the destiny of the human soul. This fact is stated here purely to inform exhibitors of the thematic mood of "Night Unto Night," and not to insinuate that the picture is "over the heads" of average audiences. Actually, notwithstanding its pretentions to profundity, the story unfolds on a note of romance and emotion rather than of genuine intellectuality. It is, essentially, a woman's picture. Kathryn Scola's screenplay and Don Siegel's direction both are sharply slanted toward the distaff trade.

Co-starred are Ronald Reagan and Viveca Lindfors, with support furnished by Broderick Crawford, Rosemary DeCamp, Osa Massen, Art Baker, Craig Stevens and several others. The setting is the East Coast of Florida, with the camera divided between a residential community and a lonely beach mansion where a biochemist (Reagan), who is subject to occasional fits of epilepsy, comes for his health and to work in quiet. He rents the home from a war widow (Miss Lindfors) who so sorely mourns the loss of her young husband that she believes she hears his "ghost" speaking to her when she is alone. She comes to visit Reagan occasionally and eventually falls in love with him, and thus no longer hears the "voice." Reagan, unknown to the girl, fears he will not recover from his disease, and therefore attempts to resist his feelings of love for her. During a party at the house, when a hurricane serves to isolate all present from the outside world, Reagan is overcome by a depression over the frequency with which his epilepsy has manifested itself, and retreats from the group to end his life with a bullet. Suspicious, Miss Lindfors follows him and talks him out of suicide with declarations of love and hope. Crawford, a painter with a flair for glib observations about eternity, affords relief occasionally from the generally dolorous atmosphere of a picture that somehow does not register the dramatic intensity it strives for. Owen Crump produced.

Brown Leases 2 Houses

it was reported, was that the new owners of United Artists assume some $3,500,000 of obligations of Enterprise Prod. in return for which the remaining free assets of the latter company would be assigned to it together with a percentage of profits from unliquidated product.

Another proposal said to have been advanced was that the First National Bank of Boston be invited to participate on the basis of a merger of physical properties of UA and Eagle Lion, the new company to assume certain obligations of the latter. The First National of Boston has been associated with E-L financing in the past.

Whatever the reason, the negotiations have failed to make progress since last week when financing of the UA stock purchase deal by the Nassers appeared to be assured. Where all was optimism last week, today no one would predict that a deal would be closed by Thursday, when Chaplin's option on Miss Pickford's half interest in UA expires.

Si Fabian, head of Fabian Theatres, arrived in New York from Hollywood yesterday but declined to comment on the UA situation. It was indicated, however, that he and Ted Gamble, head of Gamble Enterprises, have no plans to participate in the negotiations for UA control now in progress in Hollywood.

Loews', M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, Vitagraph, RKO, United Artists, and Columbia. The Momand suit alleges injuries from an anti-trust conspiracy against Momand Theatres in Oklahoma.

A brief filed by Jacob J. Kaplan said the issues in the current case were the same as in three earlier cases brought by Momand and that judgment in every case has been in favor of the eight companies involved in this proceeding.

Recovery in this case, the brief said, was barred both by the statute of limitations and by the fact that the issues had already been tried. "The petitioner (Momand) seeks in substance a declaration by this court that the public policy—that there be an end to litigation once fully and fairly tried—should not be applied in anti-trust cases," the eight companies said, "and that plaintiff should have two chances to try his cause of action; and, if two, why not three or more? This proposition is as unsound as it is novel," it was charged.

'Pit' Cuts Ordered by British Censors

LONDON, April 18.—Subject to cuts of approximately 1,000 feet, the British Board of Film Censors has given an "Adults Only" certificate to "The Snake Pit." The cuts are said to affect the most violent scenes.

Considerable pressure had been brought to bear on the Censor Board by representatives of the nursing profession who urged that the film be banned entirely. It was suggested that young girls seeing the film might thereby be deterred from becoming nurses. Anatole Litvak, here for consultation with the censors, replied that girls so deterred are unsuitable for nursing. Litvak now travels to Paris for similar consultations.

TOA Blames British for Rental Rise

Restrictions Abroad Hit Theatres Here: Lockwood

U. S. exhibitors are facing increased film rentals by distributors, "principally as a result of discriminatory actions taken by the British government against American films," Arthur H. Lockwood, president of the Theatre Owners of America, asserts in a statement which was released here yesterday on the eve of the Washington meeting of the Anglo-American Films Council, which starts tomorrow.

Lockwood states that it is "highly appropriate" to make the position of American exhibitors clear to the British members of the council and he thereupon points out that U. S. theatremen "carry our full share of the Lauding M-G-M for its "grass-roots" public relations operations, Myers said, "The lion demonstrates that it is smarter than the fox."

Referring to the letter by M-G-M sales manager W. F. Rodgers to Myers disclaiming any policy similar to that voiced by Al Lichtman for 20th-Fox, Myers praised MOTION PIC-

Nassers Still Try For U. A. Purchase

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.—Nasser Brothers continued their negotiations today for purchase of United Artists' control, but numerous conditions injected by banking interests involved in the financing still present a formidable obstacle to consummation of the deal by Thursday midnight, when the option on Mary Pickford's half interest in U. A., held by Charles Chaplin, will expire.

Overtime Parleys Aim At Schine Agreement

Washington, April 19.—Attorneys Willard McKay and Irving Kaufman, for the Schine interests, and Philip Marcus and Sigmund Timberg for the Government were locked in conference after regular business hours today in an effort to reach a final agreement on a consent decree to end the government's 10-year-old anti-trust case against Schine. At a late hour, there was no indication of their progress thus far.

Van Nomikos Sues B. & K., 4 Majors

CHICAGO, April 19.—Inability to compete for first-run product against the opposition B. and K. Southtown and Warner's Stratford brought about the filing today of an anti-trust suit asking for equitable relief by the Empress Theatre, operated by Van A. Nomikos, and located on the Southside of Chicago.

The Empress several months ago adopted a first-run policy, but the suit charges it is unable to secure product from Paramount, Warner, Columbia and United Artists, all named defendants. Balaban and Katz is also named. Plaintiff's attorney, Seymour Simon, filed the suit in Judge Phillip Sullivan's U. S. District Court.

London 'Hints' That a Dossier 'Indictment' Covers 30-Year Period

LONDON, April 19.—The indignation expressed in America over Britain's 40 per cent film quota has stirred caustic—but as yet unofficial—comment in the Foreign Office here to the effect that since World War I the U. S. film industry has consistently engineered limitations against the showing of British pictures on American screens.

Meanwhile, regarding a reported U. S. State Department protest to the British Embassy in Washington against the "discriminatory" quota, it was said here that Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin has no official knowledge of it.

It was suggested here—again un-

Strike at Two Rank Studios Collapses

LONDON, April 19.—The strike of electricians of J. Arthur Rank's Denham and Pinewood studios collapsed today, as expected, and spokesmen for Rank agreed to meet with officials of the Electrical Trades Union at the Labour Ministry on Thursday on terms of a settlement.

The outcome of the meeting, though officially unpredictable, is considered to be obvious in view of the ETU chiefs having originally put themselves completely in the wrong by infringing the law when they called the strike in defiance of a statutory obligation to give a 21-day notice of the existence of an industrial dispute. It is understood that the Labour Ministry has already talked roughly to ETU officials, warning them of dire consequences for continued misbehavior.

"The Stratton Story"

[Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer]—Big League Stuff

THE story of Monty Stratton, the country boy who lost a leg in a hunting accident about 12 years ago at the beginning of what promised to be a spectacular career in major league baseball, is told in an exceptionally fine motion picture. It should be an outstanding attraction in every theatre in the land.

James Stewart, as Stratton, gives what is far and away his best performance in a long time, perhaps the best of his career, and scene for scene, he is matched every step of the way by June Allyson, the girl who becomes his wife.

Sam Wood directed with all the sure touches and overall finesse which he gave to "Pride of the Yankees," with which "The Stratton Story" inevitably will be compared, for there is much in this to recall the other.

Stewart is picked up at a Texas sand-lot game by Frank Morgan, who plays a baseball has-been. After a winter spent in coaching the promising young pitcher, Morgan gets him a tryout with the Chicago White Sox

Tennessee Gets an Enabling Measure

Memphis, April 19. — Gov. Browning has signed into law a new Tennessee admission tax. It reduces the state tax from three to two per cent but authorizes cities to pass a two per cent tax on theatres located in their municipalities. Thus if cities take advantage of the act, the total city-state tax will be four per cent instead of three as in the past.

Rogers Hospital to Variety on May 30

Arrangements have been completed for Variety Clubs International to take over operation of the Will Rogers Hospital, Saranac Lake, N. Y., on or about May 30, it was announced yesterday by Robert J. O'Donnell, International chief barker.

The institution will be known as Variety Clubs International—Will Rogers Hospital and patients will be restricted to persons connected with the film industry and allied branches.

O'Donnell expressed Variety's gratitude to the film sales managers committee, "through whose efforts the hospital has been kept open, and also to company presidents who supported the managers in this difficult task and who more recently pledged their further financial support."

Plans for operation of the institution have been mapped out by a New York committee which comprises Max Cohen, Abe Montague, Chick Lewis, Si Fabian and Ted Gamble.

Settle $1,000,000 Rank Contract Suit

TORONTO, April 19.—An out-of-court settlement has disposed of the $1,000,000 breach-of-contract actions filed by Empire-Universal Films of Canada in U. S. and Canadian courts against J. Arthur Rank interests, Eagle-Lion, Monogram of Canada, Universal-International and United World, it is understood here. Terms of the settlement, which brings to an end a two-year dispute involving the distribution of some pictures in Canada and Newfoundland, were reached in New York following the recent arrival there from England of Rank who was to testify at a scheduled hearing of the suit in U. S. District Court there.

Empire-Universal alleged in the two actions that a block of films produced in England by Rank was to have been distributed in Canada by U-I's subsidiary, United World Pictures of Canada, in accordance with the terms of a nine-year agreement closed with the Rank Organization. The charge was made that the agreement was not fulfilled and that the product in question had been diverted to Eagle-Lion, Universal-International and Monogram for Canadian distribution.

New York attorneys handling the Empire-Universal-Rank litigation refused to comment yesterday on the report from Toronto that out-of-court settlement had been made.

Plans Set for K. C. Bond Campaign Rally

KANSAS CITY, April 19.—Proposed plans for a show at the Municipal Auditorium here on May 15 that will be broadcast as the "kick-off" feature of the Treasury's savings bond campaign, were made at a weekend meeting of motion picture, Treasury and local bond campaign executives, under the chairmanship of Elmer C. Rhoden, industry representative on the Jackson County-Kansas City bond campaign organization.

The regional industry committee also includes Senn Lawler, M. D. (Babe) Cohn and Bernard Joffee.

officially—that an impressive dossier could be made available in connection with the alleged restrictions put on British films not only in America but also in Britain, by Americans. This "evidence," covering a period of 30 years, could serve as a surprising indictment which would ill become the American industry which now is seeking the protection of its State Department's umbrella because Britons have "gotten tough" in their own territory, a spokesman said.

"Why cannot the Americans be content with 60 per cent of our market when our's in America is less than one per cent?" was one unofficial Foreign Office comment.

It is understood that the British Board of Trade is considering the cabled State Department protest, but opinion in official circles is that this is being done only to appease the manifested indignation of California's legislators in Washington.

Britain's independent exhibitors universally hope, of course, that the State Department protest will lead to an abatement of the quota.

at the team's California spring training camp. Stewart meets Miss Allyson on a blind date and the two fall in love.

BETWEEN alternately charming and humorous courtship scenes, Stewart's introduction to the big leagues suffers a reverse and he is sent to the Omaha farm team. While there he marries Miss Allyson. He is recalled by the White Sox and finishes the reason with the best pitching record in the American League, despite at least one particularly bad game the day a son is born to his wife.

Spending the winter on his Texas farm with his mother, played by Agnes Moorehead with her accustomed beguiling taciturnity, the hunting accident which necessitates amputation of a leg occurs. Thereafter, Stewart sinks into a spell of despondency. All efforts of his wife to renew his interest in living fail, but one day watching his infant son's attempts to walk, he recognizes a mutual bond of helplessness. Using an artificial limb, he begins the arduous task, with the child, of learning to walk.

Eventually, his wife succeeds in reawakening his interest in baseball and the time comes when he decides he must have the answer to his question whether he is as good a man as the next. He induces friends to permit him to pitch in a regional all-star game and his belief in himself is restored.

THE Douglas Morrow story is basically and in large part the real life story of Monty Stratton. In its essence it is an inspirational story of courage in overcoming a grievous handicap. But "The Stratton Story" is much more than that. It is the engaging story of a very likeable young man making his way to the top in the game all America loves; and the story of his romance and married life with an equally likeable girl. It is the story of their joys as well as their tragedy, and the rebirth of their hopes after utter dejection. It is appealing and amusing and moving. It is a motion picture for the whole family and many will want to see it more than once.

It boosts an already high batting average for Leo this season and with its release at the beginning of a new baseball year it should still be going strong when the nation is waiting for another World Series results.

Morrow did the screenplay with Guy Trosper, and Jack Cummings is credited with the fine production.

Baseball sequences are numerous and are miniature shows in themselves. Scenes range from spring training camps, through the American League circuit to post-season all-star games. Audience interest and theatre exploitation possibilities are enhanced by glimpses of the home parks of American League teams and of action therein. An able supporting cast is augmented by appearances of Gene Bearden, Bill Dickey, Jimmy Dykes and Mervin Shea as themselves, and by others of the baseball world who will be recognizable to the fans.

Running time, 106 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

say the chances of a deal being made are less than even.

The belief is general that if control of U. A. does not change hands by Thursday the present owners, Miss Pickford and Chaplin, will discontinue all negotiations for some time to come.

Meanwhile, official sources emphasized that the Nassers still are working diligently in an effort to consummate a deal and could upset the dopesters by effecting some last-minute compromises with financial groups tomorrow or Thursday. The odds, however, appear to be against it, largely because of the time element.

There were reports, too, of a British group said to have been interested in the bidding for U.A. by Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president of the company, which might come to the fore if and when the Nassers withdraw. Identity of members of the group has been closely guarded, but it has been ascertained that it does not include J. Arthur Rank. According to one report, Teddy Carr, former joint managing director for U. A. in Britain, is included in the group.

Official sources, however, admitting that they knew of the British group's interest, said that no formal offer for the U. A. stock has been made by it, and indications are that it lacks sufficient funds in this country to finance a deal and cannot get British Treasury approval to convert the needed pounds.

tax burden which is making possible the flow of vast sums for aid to Britain. We now find that our dollars are being spent to bolster a sick British motion picture industry for the purpose of competing with American films."

Britain's screen-time quotas and currency restrictions "strike at American film producers who are now attempting to transfer the adverse effect of these British moves to American exhibitors," Lockwood continues, adding: "Under the circumstances we can hardly be expected to look with enthusiasm upon the efforts of the British to obtain more playing time for their films in American theatres."

Reciprocate, Or Else, Myers Tells British

Says State Dept. Should Be Firm on the Quota

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Allied States Association general counsel Abram F. Myers declared today that it was time for the U. S. State Department "to deal very firmly" with the British on the film quota and on other American film restrictions.

He warned that if Great Britain persisted in its overly-protective policies, "we will have to put some limit on imports of British films here."

"We have been opening our markets to other countries to a degree never imagined before," Myers said. "There must be some reciprocity in such relations, or they simply will not stand up. The British government has a splendid record of fair dealing in its international relations, but seems to have slipped very badly in this particular instance.

"It is time Uncle Sam told John Bull that cooperation is not a one-way street," Myers declared.

'Stratton Story' Goes To RKO Loop House

CHICAGO, April 20.—"The Stratton Story" will follow "Joan of Arc" into the RKO Grand, it was learned today, making this the first top M-G-M film to play away from either the Balaban & Katz or Essaness Loop showcase houses. While terms of the bidding were not disclosed, it is understood that M-G-M was seeking a house which could play the film beyond the two-week limit imposed under Jackson Park decree rulings.

The film will probably play the

New Arguments In Para. Suit Today

Another step toward the ultimate disposition of the industry anti-trust suit will be taken today when attorneys for the government and the six remaining distributor defendants begin two days of oral arguments in New York Federal Court, preliminary to the court's promulgation of its opinion and decree.

Warners, Loew's and 20th Century-Fox are expected to continue their fight against complete divorcement, while the "Little Three" probably will again argue for modification of trade-practice edicts.

Government prosecutor Robert Wright will make his final public appearance in behalf of the Department of Justice at the hearings. As previously reported, he will quit the post on April 29 to enter private practice in Washington.

QUOTA PROTESTED 'ORALLY,' UK SAYS

Embassy Got Quota Protest, Acheson Says

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared today that the U. S. State Department has protested the British film quota to the British Embassy here.

Acheson said the Department believed the quota made the earlier agreement on remittances unworkable and also was directed at protecting the British film industry.

Asked to comment on the quota at his weekly press conference, Acheson first reviewed the remittance agreement and then the film quota actions. "It seemed to the film industry and to the State Department that the imposition of this quota did several things," he told reporters. "One of them was that it made quite impossible the working out of the agreement previously reached on the earnings of the Commercial Counsellor Received U. S. State Department's Message

LONDON, April 20.—Secretary of State Acheson's official protest against the 40 per cent British film quota was made orally to British Commercial Counsellor Percival in Washington, and not in the form of a formal note to the Washington Embassy as had been supposed originally, it has been learned here.

That accounts for the British Board of Trade's, and not the Foreign Office's, having taken the matter under advisement here, it was said.

The feeling has grown here that had Acheson been "vitally" concerned over the quota he would have addressed a formal note to the British Embassy in Washington. Opinion here is leaning increasingly to the view that the protest was made firstly to appease California's indignant legis-

Vogel Is Chairman Of Fund Campaign

Joseph R. Vogel, Loew's Inc., vice-president in charge of theatre operations, has been named amusement industry chairman of the Greater New York Fund by John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, campaign chairman.

Vogel's committee for the forthcoming fund-raising campaign, though not yet named, will include leaders in motion picture distribution, theatres, sports, legitimate theatre, music publishing, record companies, radio broadcasting, New York motion picture studios, the manufacture of musical instruments, theatre furnishings and projection equipment.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—State and local governments will make their most determined efforts to date to get the Federal Government to leave the theatre admission tax field to them when their representatives meet with U. S. Treasury officials here tomorrow and Friday.

The two-day conference, called by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, will deal with the problems of overlapping taxes and inadequate state and local revenue. While Treasury officials emphasize that the meeting is "exploratory," representatives of state and local government associations are "very hopeful" that definite decisions may be made in their favor.

Pickford Enters UA Negotiations

Hollywood, April 20.—Mary Pickford today for the first time joined the conferences between James Nasser and United Artists officers Gradwell Sears and George L. Technicolor Profit Up More Than 50%

Technicolor's Consolidated net profit, after taxes and other charges, for the quarter ended March 31, 1949, is estimated to be $663,750, equivalent to 72 cents, an increase of more than 50 per cent per share, over the $402,750 and 44 cents per share for the corresponding quarter of 1948, company president Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus reported yesterday.

Films Are Without Communism: DAR

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Daughters of the American Revolution motion picture committee has given the film industry a clean bill-of-health as free from Communist propaganda.

A report given to the national DAR convention by film committee chairman Mrs. Leroy Montgomery of Norwalk, Conn., said the committee had received reports from sub-committees throughout the country on all major films and "in not a single report was Communism reported as having been noted in any picture." Other highlights of the committee's report:

Double features seem to be on the wane in many sections of the country, and many states report that theatre managers are willing to try a single feature, plus good shorts.

Saturday-morning matinees for children are increasing.

"There are many fine, patriotic, educational and altogether entertaining short subjects" which go very nicely with a good single feature.

In many cases where a good film for children is shown, the second feature is not at all appropriate. Theatre managers should be urged to substitute another film more suitable for children with a good first feature.

The MPAA has given "fine cooperation," making many short subjects available for chapter programs and state conferences.

Friday night is becoming more popular as family night in theatres, and managers are making more effort to have films on Friday suitable for the whole family.

Government Claims $336,701 Evasion

CHARLOTTE, April 20.—Ellis Blumenthal, operating the Tryon Theatre here and houses throughout the Carolinas and Georgia, today faced a charge of attempting to defeat and evade the Federal income tax law to the amount of $336,701 for the years 1943 through 1945. The bill of indictment was presented by U. S. District Attorney Bryce R. Holt. It will come up in June at Federal Court in Greensboro, N. C. Investigators claim Blumenthal made returns for less than half of what they really were.

SPG to Turn to U. S. Mediation in Impasse

CIO's Screen Publicists Guild here will ask the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to take steps to break the deadlock in contract negotiations between the union and distributors, SPG indicated yesterday following the report that the companies have turned down an offer of the New York State Board of Mediation to review the situation.

The Guild charges that the companies have refused to discuss terms of a new labor agreement unless the union agrees in advance to forego salary demands and security and arbitration clauses.

DeLuxe 'Collarites' Vote In Favor of a Union Shop

DeLuxe Laboratory's "white collarites" yesterday voted 100 per cent in favor of a union shop in an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board here, it is reported by AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63, which recently won the DeLuxe unit away from CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild.

Special Para. Sales Post for Pickman

Schwalberg.

MGM Sets Final 26 'Friendship Meetings'

Having already held 40 get-togethers for exhibitors, M-G-M today will hold another 19 "Friendship Meetings" in non-exchange areas.

Today's sessions, at which M-G-M managers will be hosts, will take place at Akron; Cheyenne; Frankfort, Ky.; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville; Lansing; Little Rock; Lubbock, Tex., Madison, Wis.; Moline; Providence; Reading; Sacramento; San Diego; Sioux City; Spokane; Toledo; Tulsa, and Utica.

Dates and places of the seven final meetings are: Duluth, Newark and Richmond, on April 22; Erie, April 26; Columbia, April 27; Charleston and Raleigh, April 28.

Para. Opposes Brandt Plea for Particulars

Paramount has moved in New York Supreme Court here to vacate a demand by Harry Brandt and the 160-odd other theatre defendants for a bill of particulars in connection with the $573,000 percentage action brought by the company. The motion is due to be argued in court next month. The numerous defendants are corporations and individuals representing 97 Metropolitan New York theatres for which Brandt has booked product.

Says Consent Decree Bars Video License

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Federal Communications Commission today, in one of the most bitter tongue-lashings ever given any government agency on the Senate floor, was accused of being a captive of a few large firms in the radio-television field and of helping them "perpetuate their control" of broadcasting and television.

The denunciation came from Senator Ed Johnson, Colorado Democrat and chairman of the powerful Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which handles all radio legislation.

"Interests who have accepted consent decrees stand at the counter demanding the right to get into television," Johnson said. "The Communications Act makes it quite clear that convicted monopolists should not hold licenses, but strangely enough, the Commission has never promulgated a rule which would settle directly once and for all its own interpretation of the act on the rights of those who run afoul of the anti-trust laws."

Paramount, which entered a consent decree in the government's New York anti-trust suit, has applications pending for television stations and asked the FCC to settle its own interpretation of the act in this connection.

250-Theatre Opening For 'Younger Bros.'

With the backing of an extensive campaign by Mort Blumenstock's advertising-publicity department, Warner Brothers' production of "The Younger Brothers" is set for a Great Plains area premiere in 250 theatres during the first two weeks of May. In addition to the territorial campaign, company stars Wayne Morris, Bruce Bennett, Alan Hale, James Brown and Barbara Bates will take part in the event.

The Great Plains premiere will cover the following areas: Memphis, 27 cities; Omaha, 25 cities; Kansas City, 120; Oklahoma City, 20; Dallas, 56; St. Louis, 25, and Des Moines, 20.

The premiere playdates will tee-off at the Paramount Theatre in Kansas City on May 4. In addition to dispatching three field men to set up the campaign, Hall Walsh, Prairie district manager; Doak Roberts, South Western district manager, and local branch managers will assist in the campaign.

Polio Foundation Gets $400,000 Check

Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres, yesterday presented a check for $400,796 to Basil O'Connor for the Infantile Paralysis Foundation in behalf of National Theatres and a number of independent theatres in California. The presentation was made in the New York offices of 20th Century-Fox, and represents polio collections from all National Theatre divisions, including Southern and Northern California, Midwest, Mountain, Wisconsin, Northwest, Detroit and Philadelphia.

WARNER BROS. ARE GEARED TO GO

AS NEVER BEFORE!

Production Is Up, 27 Before Cameras

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—The production index has moved up to 27, two over last week. Eight pictures were started and six were completed.

Shooting started on "Lawless," Columbia; "Battleground," M-G-M; "Forgotten Women," Monogram; "Copper Canyon" (Technicolor), Paramount; "The Arizona Cowboy," Republic; "Always Sweethearts," "Return of the Frontiersman" (Technicolor), and "Barricade," Warners. Completed were "South of Death Valley," Columbia; "Safety Pins" and "The Kid Came West," Monogram; "My Friend Irma," Paramount; "Wyoming Bandit," Republic; "Ringside," Screen Guild.

Bernard, Thorner To Promote 'Laredo'

Judd Bernard and Everett Thorner, publicists, were engaged by Paramount yesterday for special assignments in the promotion of the world premiere of "Streets of Laredo" at Laredo, Texas, on May 16. With George Henger, Paramount's Southwestern representative, they will do the groundwork for an all-star junket which will tour Texas and Oklahoma following participation in "The Streets of Laredo Founding Week Fiesta" at Laredo.

In a wire from Laredo, Mayor Hugh Cluck announced that Paramount's prexy Barney Balaban has been appointed honorary mayor of Laredo for the premiere and has been made an honorary citizen for life.

CBS Shows 13-Week Net of $855,764

Columbia Broadcasting yesterday reported earnings of $855,764 for the 13 weeks ending April 2, 1949, against $1,553,686 for the corresponding period of last year. The 1949 profit is equivalent to 50 cents per share, compared with 90 cents per share in 1948.

Louis L. Marks, 62, Pioneer in Chicago

CHICAGO, April 20.—Services for Louis L. Marks, 62, former co-owner of the Granada and Marbo theatres, who died Monday in Grant Hospital, will be held tomorrow. With his late brother, Meyer Marks, he built a large circuit of theatres in Chicago, which they sold in 1928, including the Granada and Marbro, to Balaban and Katz.

Surviving are two sons, Jerome and Raymond, and a daughter, Mrs. Reeva Rosenfield.

Joan Blaine, Actress

Joan Blaine, radio, stage and screen actress, who appeared in the film, "The Knife," died Monday at New York Hospital. The widower, William Pitts, a member of Young and Rubicam, two brothers and two sisters survive.

Ross, Windsor Exhibitor

BOSTON, April 20.—Charles Ross, owner of the Windsor Theatre, Windsor, Vt., died here yesterday of a heart attack as he was transacting business on Boston's Film Row.

Reviews

"The Big Sombrero"

(Columbia)

GENE AUTRY heads the cast of this Cinecolor Western which has all the necessary ingredients of action, shooting, guitar-playing and singing. A Gene Autry production, with Armand Schaefer as producer and Frank McDonald as director, it rates well in its category.

This time Autry is somewhere South of the border, down Mexico way, where after being stranded with a show, he becomes the foreman of a ranch on which the "ranchers" are getting the wrong steer and a bum's rush.

Autry spots the villain almost from the opening reel, and could no doubt square things up in 10 seconds flat, but he drags things out nicely enough so that all Autry fans will have a wonderful time watching him gallop his horse Champion through some gorgeously photographed scenery.

The action scenes are all up to par and some of the sequences of the Mexican fiestas and dances are colorful and tuneful. The girl in the case is good-looking Elena Verdugo who is being swindled out of her ranch (until Autry comes along) by the villain, Steve Dunne, whom she has taken into her confidence. Everything ends nicely by the fadeout which again finds Gene singing the finale.

Running time, 78 minutes. General audience classification. A March release.

"Duke of Chicago"

(Republic)

A RETIRED middleweight fighter's return to the ring marks the central theme of this film. An exciting, but standard action drama, it reaches its climax when the former champion meets the current title holder. The leading parts are played by Tom Brown, as the fighter; Audrey Long, as a newspaper reporter, and Grant Withers, the leader of a betting syndicate.

Brown is forced to return to the ring after his book publishing business gets in debt. He challenges the present champion. A racketeer planning to make a fortune on the deal builds up good publicity stories so the public will bet on Brown. When it is realized that Brown will probably beat his opponent, the gamblers threaten to kill him unless he throws the fight. In the contest, Brown is slow in the first rounds but, finally, in the 15th, knocks out his rival. The gamblers make an attempt to kill Brown but police intervene. Stephen Auer was associate producer, and George Blair directed. Albert DeMond's screenplay is based on a novel by Lucian Cary.

Running time, 59 minutes. General audience classification. A March release.

Seasonal Dip at Key Houses

A marked drop-off was registered last month in first-run key-city grosses, but, in view of the Lenten season, it was not unexpected. According to reports on some 180 key theatres received from MOTION PICTURE DAILY field correspondents, other factors also played a part in impairing business at box-offices, namely, inclement weather and the March 15 Federal income-tax deadline.

Average weekly income for March fell to $13,633 from February's $14,632. Weekly average per theatre for March last year was $15,201.

Gaining impetus from the fast pace at which it started in late February, "Command Decision" moved up to first place grossing position last month. "Whispering Smith" emerged a fairly close second, while "Joan of Arc," the February leader, ran a strong third in March.

Pictures which also registered strongly last month but in fewer situations, were: "The Life of Riley," "A Letter to Three Wives," "Enchantment," "The Red Shoes," "The Boy with the Green Hair," "Chicken Every Sunday," "Family Honeymoon," "The Wake of the Red Witch," "Bribe," "So Dear to My Heart," "South of St. Louis," and "Knock on Any Door."

Coming through with better-than-average grosses from time to time were: "The Kissing Bandit," "John Loves Mary," "Paisan," "The Fighting O'Flynn," "Yellow Sky," "The Snake Pit," "My Dear Secretary," "He Walked by Night," "The Man from Colorado," "The Sun Comes Up," "The Countess of Monte Cristo," "The Dark Past," "Act of Violence," "Symphonie Pastorale," "Siren of Atlantis," "Alaska Patrol," "I Shot Jesse James."

Also, "The Girl from Manhattan," "Every Girl Should Be Married," "Portrait of Jennie," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "Canadian Pacific," "The Red Pony," "The Undercover Man," "Three Godfathers," "Bad Boy," "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "The Walking Hills," "Ma and Pa Kettle," and "A Kiss in the Dark."

the film company, paid approximately 32 per cent for film. But, the 32 per cent covered a double feature policy generally used by the circuit, with such programs as: 'Yellow Sky' and 'Paleface', 'Wake of the Red Witch' and 'Yellow Sky', 'Snake Pit' and 'Every Girl Should Be Married', 'Wake of the Red Witch' and 'Mexican Hayride'.

"What percentage of the gross would it have cost you, Mr. Independent Exhibitor, to play these double feature combinations? Compare your cost with the Fox circuit cost of 32 per cent of the gross.

"Before coming to exhibitors for higher film rental, particularly at a time when exhibitor costs have increased and box-office grosses have fallen, the producer-distributors should institute still greater economies in production and distribution. Figures were cited comparing the executive salaries in the motion picture industry with those of a great business enterprise such as the Union Pacific R.R.

"Hand in hand with the economy program by the distributors, there should be an equalization of film rentals to be paid by the heretofore 'favored' exhibitors. Such a double-barrelled campaign for economy and equalization would give the film companies all the money they need to properly operate their business, and yield them a fair profit."

to secure an appraisal of his 300 common shares and to force Paramount to purchase them.

If the order is granted, the way would be open for holders of 76,576 shares to follow suit, that being the number voted in opposition to the reorganization as against 5,202,183 in favor.

The "test" move was made yesterday in New York Supreme Court here by minority holder Sol Kokol.

In making his assertion in his March 31 letter to stockholders that they would not be free to demand cash for their holdings once the plan was accepted, Balaban reported that some stockholders had inquired on their right of appraisal and were informed by the company that in the opinion of "our counsel" no such right exists. Balaban warned, moreover, that the company would "vigorously resist" court action which might be taken in opposition to that opinion.

On April 12, close to 80 per cent of the total stock issued and outstanding was voted in favor of the reorganization plan which calls for the formation of two new companies, one a theatre company and one a production-distribution company, before the end of the year.

HARTFORD, April 20. — Federated Television Productions, Stamford, has filed a certificate of incorporation.

WARNERS BOOST SCHEDULE, ADD TO STUDIO STAR POWER

COMPANY HAS 15 PICTURES COMPLETED AND SET FOR RELEASE; 20 OTHERS PREPARING OR IN WORK; RECORD LIST OF 43 TOP STARS

A PROGRAM of expansion of Warner Bros. production resources, in work for the past several months, has been completed by Harry M. Warner, Jack L. Warner and Albert Warner.

The program is designed to meet what the company perceives as "a buyer's market in entertainment."

"We know," said Jack Warner, "the motion picture market is what the public markes it. We know we cannot meet the public's demand by reducing our resources. So we increased them."

The Warner studio, as a result, has:

15 pictures completed and ready for release
20 pictures in preparation or shooting
38 stars under contract, supplemented by at least 15 others made available through special arrangements
10 active producers and a like number of directors
Six individual producing companies whose pictures will be distributed by Warners.

The greatest possible star value will be given to the largest possible number of films, Harry Warner promised. The studio's goal, he said, is "quality pictures produced in quantity" to meet what he sees as "a greater market than ever before for good pictures. "In this period that demands better pictures than ever before," he added, "we have used the past several months to anticipate the demands."

STAR POWER GREATEST IN WARNER HISTORY

THE star roster at the Warner studio, always impressive, has been enhanced by several important arrangements recently completed which make available to it additional names of box office potency.

Under the Warner banner for sometime are such stars as: Lew Ayres, Lauren Bacall, Humphrey Bogart, Jack Carson, Dane Clark, Gary Cooper, Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Erroll Flynn, Danny Kaye, Viveca Lindfors, Gordon MacRae, Virginia Mayo, Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris, Patricia Neal, Edmond O'Brien, Eleanor Parker, Claude Rains, Ronald Reagan, Zachary Scott, Alexis Smith and Jane Wyman.

Through arrangements with David O. Selznick, the following players will be seen in Warner's forthcoming release schedule: Jennifer Jones, Gregory Peck, Joseph Cotten, Shirley Temple, Betsy Drake, Louis Jourdan and Rory Calhoun.

In addition, James Cagney returns to Warner Bros. to star in three pictures, plus several pictures for Cagney Productions, under William Cagney, for distribution by Warner Bros.

Other stars who have been signed to appear under the Warner banner are: John Garfield, Burt Lancaster, John Wayne, Randolph Scott, Kirk Douglas, Marlene Dietrich and Ginger Rogers.

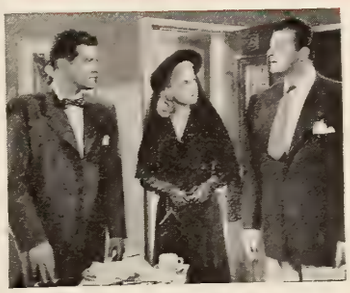
COLORADO TERRITORY

WARNERS TO DISTRIBUTE FOR SIX PRODUCING COMPANIES



JOINING Transatlantic Pictures, which has Alfred Hitchcock producing and directing several films for Warner Bros.' distribution and United States Pictures, under Milton Sperling are four new production units which will release through that company. These are: Cagney Productions, which will star James Cagney in a series of films under the guidance of William Cagney; Bryan Foy Productions; Norma Productions, which will star Burt Lancaster, and Roberts Productions, which will star John Garfield.

"Murder, Inc.," "The Hoodlum" and "Marked Children" are the next three pictures scheduled by Sperling's United States Pictures,

"WITH these stars and story properties, we believe our production clock is fully wound and the hands set in perfect timing to public taste," say the Brothers Warner, announcing one of the most ambitious production programs in the history of their company.

George Opposes Tax Cut as 'Oleo Rider'

Washington, April 20.—Sen. George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and generally in favor of excise tax cuts, said he opposed reduction of the admission tax and other excises when offered as a rider to a bill to repeal Federal Taxes and licenses for oleomargarine.

Sen. Johnson has offered the excise reduction as an amendment to the oleo bill in hopes of killing the oleo tax repealer. The Senate Committee will probably vote on the measure tomorrow.

other excises in the Federal-state-local tax scheme is one of five points on the agenda for the two-day conference. Another item is whether states and cities should be given the right to tax Federally-owned property in their jurisdiction. If this power were given, some of the steam might be removed from the state-local campaign for the admission tax.

Among the groups meeting with Snyder and other Treasury officials are the American Municipal Association, Council of State Governors, U. S. Conference of Mayors, National Association of County Officials, and the Federation of Tax Administrators. At least the first three organizations are on record as favoring Federal Government repeal of the 20 per cent admission tax so that state and local governments may step in.

Government, Film Leaders See 'Scott'

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Top levels of the film industry and of Washington officialdom turned out tonight for the premiere of J. Arthur Rank's "Scott of the Antarctic," at the Playhouse Theatre here.

Mrs. Harry S. Truman led the guest list at the premiere, a benefit for the American Cancer Society. Other Washington notables included Vice-President Barkley, Justices Reed, Rutledge and Burton and their wives, Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder, Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Brannan, British Ambassador and Mrs. Franks, and other Ambassadors, members of Congress, military leaders, and other government officials.

Film leaders included MPAA president Eric A. Johnston, M-G-M president Nicholas M. Schenck, Paramount president Barney Balaban, Rank, Sir Henry French, Sir Alexander Korda—all on hand for tomorrow's Anglo-American Film Council meeting, and Robert S. Benjamin and Jock Lawrence, president and vice-president of the U. S. J. Arthur Rank Organization; Kay Harrison, head of British Technicolor, William Heinemann, vice-president of Eagle-Lion Films, and I. E. Lopert, president of Lopert Films and owner of the Playhouse.

industry and the withdrawal of dollars because it greatly cut down the time American films can be shown. It also seemed to us more directed to the protection of the British film industry than to an exchange restriction because the exchange difficulties had been taken care of in the previous agreement."

Acheson continued that "the film industry has protested and we have made our views known through the British Embassy here." He said he hoped that "an adjustment will be made more equitable than the existing situation."

One reporter asked, just to be sure, was the Department passing on the views of the government or the film industry.

"We were passing on the views of the U. S. Government," Acheson declared firmly.

Meanwhile, California Congressmen will file a formal brief tomorrow.

It is understood that BOT president Harold Wilson, now vacationing in France, agrees in substance with unofficial Foreign Office opinion to the effect that since World War I the U. S. film industry has consistently engineered limitations against the showing of British pictures on American screens, and it is expected that Percival will be instructed to convey this contention orally to the State Department.

Remittances from AustraliaUnchanged

WASHINGTON, April 20.—It is "unlikely" that Australia in 1949 will liberalize 'to any appreciable extent" its restrictions on remittances by U.S. film companies, Commerce Department film chief Nathan D. Golden declared here today.

Golden pointed out that in 1948 remittances equal to 50 per cent of 1946 remittances were allowed to be sent to the U.S.

Some progress is being made in unifying film censorship laws in Australian states, Golden reports. Queensland, Western Australia and Tasmania have all transferred censoring authority to the Commonwealth Censor.

UK-US Council Meets All Day, Bars Comment

Only Six Top Men Attend Session; Details Secret

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The three British and three American members of the Anglo-American Film Council met all morning and afternoon behind closed doors at the headquarters of the Motion Picture Association here today, but clamped a tight "iron curtain" over the results of their deliberations.

At the conclusion of the afternoon session, members Eric Johnston, Barney Balaban, Nicholas Schenck, J. Arthur Rank, Sir Alexander Korda and Sir Henry French approved a brief statement declaring that there had been "a frank exchange of views in regard to the difficulties encountered by both the British and American film industries during the last two years." The Council members said they hope to issue a "more complete statement" tomorrow, when they are scheduled to

TOA Gross Report Plan Starts Today

Theatre Owners of America headquarters here will begin mailing today to its theatre members the forms on which picture grossing information is to be submitted in connection with the organization's plan to publicize the box-office performances of current pictures through a weekly bulletin, it was reported here yesterday by TOA president Arthur H. Lockwood. First edition of the bulletin is due to be released to members around May 1.

It is understood that the TOA here has been delayed in getting its gross-

Big Three Cite Competition; Fight Renewed

Final phase of the government anti-trust suit was opened in U. S. District Court here yesterday with 20th Century-Fox and Loew's attorneys re-asserting their argument against divorcement, holding the government has offered no evidence to support its proposal of such a remedy and, in hitting charges of market control, declaring that three of the remaining defendants in the suit operate only six per cent of the theatres in the U. S.

James F. Byrnes, counsel for 20th-Fox, informed the court that that company offered a divest itself of one

Make Firm Demand For Local Tax Right

WASHINGTON, April 21.—State and local governments today formally pressed on the Treasury their demands that the admissions tax be turned over to them.

This was the last item to come up at the opening day session of the two-day conference here between top Treasury officials and representatives of state and local government associations on the problem of overlapping taxes and inadequate state and local revenue. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder presided, with organizations present including the American Muni-

Nassers—UA Deal Is Off

HOLLYWOOD, April 21.—A brief statement by George Nasser at 10:30 P. M. dashed the widespread expectations of the sale of United Artists by Charles Chaplin to the Nasser interests under terms of an option that expired at midnight.

"We have been and still are interested in acquiring United Artists," Nasser said. "However, due to circumstances beyond our control, we are unable to meet the April 21 deadline."

With negotiations continuing up to the last minute, the deal under which Chaplin and Mary Pickford would receive $5,400,000 for their interests in UA was considered virtually complete. Checks for that amount were deposited at the Bank of America this afternoon, with only a formal statement that

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Legislatures in Tennessee, Oregon, Iowa and Colorado quit within the last 48 hours. So far this year, 23 state legislatures have adjourned, while 21 are still in session. Four did not meet.

In Colorado, a censorship bill and general sales tax were killed in committee. In Oregon, a 10 per cent admission tax died in committee, in Iowa a $1 reel tax was killed, while in Tennessee the legislature passed a bill permitting municapilities to levy an admission tax up to any amount by which the Federal ticket levy may be

Distributors May Use TOA Conciliation

TOA Panels Can Accept Complaints vs. Owners

ALBANY, N. Y., April 21.—Distributors are at liberty to file with Theatre Owners of America's local conciliation panels in the field complaints against exhibitors, just as the latter have been invited to name distributors in complaints.

This was revealed today as being TOA policy. An inquiry as to whether distributors may set before TOA conciliation boards complaints against exhibitors in connection with selling of pictures, etc., was sent to TOA president Arthur H. Lockwood by the Albany unit. Lockwood replied in the affirmative.

The panel here has held two meetings to consider complaints against distributors brought by an unnamed exhibitor. The three-man board was able to achieve some, though not complete, relief for the exhibitor, it is said. Twentieth Century-Fox was said to have agreed to "go all the

Postpone Vote on Tax Cut Proposal

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Final vote on a proposal to cut back the U. S. admission tax and other excises to pre-war levels has been postponed by the Senate Finance Committee until next week, because too many committee members were out of town to vote today, as scheduled.

The proposal, offered by Senator Johnson, Colorado Democrat, is an amendment to a bill repealing Federal taxes and license fees for oleomargarine and has instigated considerable debate on the Senate floor.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—California members of the House of Representatives today continued their pressure on the U. S. State Department for strong U. S. government action against the British film quota.

In a brief filed with Secretary of State Acheson, the California House delegation charged that the quota's purpose is to drive American films from the British market, "through the medium of an arbitrary and discriminatory protective device which violates the spirit and intent, if not the letter, of the Gatt and ITO charter."

The brief was filed by Rep. Cecil

B.&K. Earnings Off 8½-10% for Quarter

CHICAGO, April 21.—Earnings of Balaban and Katz for the first quarter of this year are running from eight and a half to 10 per cent lower than a year ago, according to unaudited figures reported by company secretary-treasurer John Balaban to stockholders at the annual meeting here. He ascribed most of this loss to the Jackson Park decree which limited runs at B. and K. theatres to two weeks.

At the same time, Barney Balaban, president, revealed that B. and K. earned $3,455,071, equal to $13.07 a share on B. and K. stock, for the year ended Jan. 1, 1949. This compared with $5,043,228, equal to $19.09 a share last year. Current assets as of Jan. 1 were $4,626,477 and current liabilities, $2,537,464 compared with $4,545,279 and $1,912,910, respectively, a year earlier.

New Opportunities For Showmen: Linet

With the resurgence of showmanship in motion picture theatres, there are numerous opportunities for new people who can combine theatre managership with advertising, publicity and exploitation abilities, Henry A. Linet, Universal-International Eastern advertising manager declared here last night at the spring seminar of the American Theatre Wing's training program.

Linet attributed the resurgence to developing competition from other forms of entertainment, including television and sports. He also sees theatre divorcement creating new opportunities for "showman" managers.

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

ORGANIZED exhibition now stands alongside major production and distribution on the British situation. This is the first time these interests have joined in a united stand and a common front on a problem from which no sector, however small, of the American industry can hope to escape.

The Anglo-American agreement on remittances, and the recently enacted 40 per cent British quota, in combination, confront American production with an ever-increasing burden, threaten Hollywood's qualitative standards and compel American distribution to ponder if, and how, it can bridge the economic gap by persuading American exhibition to pay more for American product.

Exhibition rises most reluctantly to the occasion and believes it is being caught in the middle.

Arthur H. Lockwood, president of TOA, on Tuesday said so in language which removed any doubts. Abram F. Myers, chairman of Allied's board, on Wednesday took the same position by a different approach.

"The British producers must realize that the enactment of arbitrary restrictions upon those who are our principal source of supply is a matter of unavoidable interest to us. Discrimination against them reacts against us. . . . The problem besetting the British industry can never be solved by penalizing the American industry. That can only lead to recrimination and retaliation."—Lockwood.

"We have been opening our markets to other countries to a degree never imagined before. There must be some reciprocity in such relations, or they simply will not stand up. . . . It is time Uncle Sam told John Bull that cooperation is not a one-way street."—Myers.

There should be no misunderstanding over Britain, her national pride and her ambitions for a firm place in the international production sun. No one, reasonably, can criticize such an objective. Nor should it be difficult to appreciate her demonstrated need to place severe brakes on the flight of dollars out of London. Many months ago, Eric Johnston, on behalf of the major companies, made it clear the American industry was sympathetic.

But prime-pumping British production through legislated trade barriers submits itself to all kinds of attack. More severely than before the quota restricts the market in which American, and any other product imported by Britain, may function. It throws into the laps of the majority of British exhibitors an impractical and unwanted something over which they have made vigorous protest without avail. Like its predecessor, the new quota puts a premium on mediocre and incompetent British production because it guarantees playing time regardless of how empty British theatres may get. It seems to us this is hardly the way to encourage a young industry to become strong, reliant and independent.

The British make almost a fetish of their obeisance to fair play. But there is a convenient forgetting in this case.

Their films enter this market at will and take their chances under the competitive conditions which prevail. When they deliver the goods and their price is held to be right by the customer, those goods are bought. They may complain they don't make enough sales, and they don't. But let them look their films squarely in an unprejudiced eye for the answer.

Everyone here knows it, if the British do not. Everyone here knows their product preponderantly has remained stubbornly British—so provincial in approach and treatment that the American audiences in wholesale simply refuse to buy it.

It's a free market for the British here and a controlled market for us there. Someone somehow may be able to square this with the precepts of fair play. Somehow it escapes us.

"The Secret Gardens"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

TRANSCRIBING this well-known Frances Hodgson Burnett children's story to the screen, M-G-M delivers an unusual motion picture. It has many dramatic merits, due largely to its fine cast, headed by Margaret O'Brien, Herbert Marshall, Dean Stockwell, Gladys Cooper, Elsa Lanchester and the new and able juvenile import from Britain, Brian Roper.

Clarence Brown has provided a finely atmospheric production, including a pictorially interesting switch from black-and-white to Technicolor in scenes enacted within the secret garden. The story's background of mystery and suspense is well staged but the unusual nature of the plot and some peculiar quirks of personality of the juvenile stars and male lead give the film a make-believe stamp that detracts from its value as adult fare. But most of it should be a delight to children and not too hard for most adults to take.

It is not a run-of-the-mill picture and for that reason it may prove to be a pleasant surprise in numerous neighborhood and small town theatres and to all exhibitors resourceful enough to devise and execute campaigns which will spotlight its many unusual features and possibilities.

Margaret O'Brien, an imperious, willful child, is orphaned in a cholera epidemic in India and sent to England to live with her wealthy uncle, played by Marshall. The huge, gloomy manor home and its nearby walled and sealed garden hide the secret of the tragic death, 10 years before, of Marshall's wife and mother of his invalid son, played by Dean Stockwell, a child as willful and demanding as Miss O'Brien.

Since his wife's death, Marshall has been on the verge of mental collapse and has vowed that human eyes will not rest upon the garden enclosure where she met her death. Miss O'Brien's curiosity is aroused by servants' tales. She finds the key to the forbidden garden's door and with the help of a servant's boy, played by Roper, they enter and transform the wasted enclosure to its original beauty by tending the neglected plants and flowers for a season. It becomes a wonderful, secret land for the three children, the invalid, Stockwell, being taken there in his wheel chair by the other two, although theretofore most of his 10 years of life had been spent in bed. In the out-of-doors he grows stronger and his health improves.

There comes the time when Marshall discovers his sealed garden has been invaded. In a rage, he storms in to punish the intruders. In the tense moment in which he discovers the children, his son rises from the wheel chair and takes his first steps. In the father's joy over the recovery of his son from what he had believed to be an incurable ailment there is the promise of normal living in the great house in the future.

Fred M. Wilcox directed. The screenplay is by Robert Ardrey.

course, Radio City Music Hall, traditionally a "must" for tourists at this time of the year, where a special detail of police is regimenting the crowds into some semblance of order. Here the customers are almost continually lined around a large portion of Rockefeller Center apparently undeterred by the prospect of waiting perhaps four house to see the theatre's annual Easter pageant on stage and "Connecticut Yankee" on the screen.

Showmen say their barometer on the extent of the influx is the number of persons entering their theatres and on this basis they figure that the population in the Times Square district this week probably is just a little short of 2,000,000.

Houses in the first-run belt are doing brisk business, almost without exception, led by the Music Hall, which is bearing out earlier estimates that the week will bring a record gross of $170,000.

The Paramount came in for its share of the big money with the debut of "The Undercover Man" with Duke Ellington's orchestra on stage. An estimated 6,800 admissions were registered by 11 A.M. on its first day.

Another outstanding success is "Mr. Belvedere," at the Roxy, where a first week's take has reached $162,335, an Easter week high. "Champion" is going at a record-breaking pace at the Globe. A pair of reissues, too, is up with the big ones. "Pride of the Yankees" is giving the Palace its most vigorous business in many months, the timeliness of the film evidently being partly responsible.

theatre in cities where it operates two or more, and to allow the entry of independent competition where it and other majors operate the only theatres, as the basis for a settlement with the government. The latter refused, he said, and negotiations of a consent judgment collapsed six months ago.

Justice Department attorney Robert Wright answered that 20th-Fox had insisted on "expanding" in other cities and for that reason an agreement could not be reached. Byrnes' rejoinder was that Wright had not participated in the decree meetings and inferred that Wright had no knowledge on which to base the answer he offered.

Yesterday's hearing opened with the presentation to the bench of an affidavit signed by Paramount secretary Robert O'Brien reporting on the stockholders' approval given that company's reorganization, thus severing Paramount from the case.

Wright made repeated references to the majors' "exclusionary power" and "abuse of power" in countering all argument for a court decree that would not order total divestiture. In New York's metropolitan area, he said, Loew's Theatres has prior run as a result of "exclusionary conspiracy."

John Caskey, also for 20th-Fox, and John W. Davis, for Loew's, cited the Paramount and RKO settlements as adding considerably to independent competition in exhibition and further rendering unwarranted any extensive divestiture order. Adding to that, Caskey said that 20th-Fox is willing to create independent competition i 10 cities where it has two theatres b the "sale or conveyance" of one o them. Also, he said, in six othe towns where 20th and another majo have theatres an agreement will b sought for one of the companies to sel to an independent.

John W. Davis, counsel for Loew's declared he "can't understand why th government opposed" the propose system of arbitration and asked th court to reinstate it in the decree.

The complaining exhibitor was notified a month ago that the conciliation board had done all it could under present circumstances, and that he could take further action on his own or wait to see if TOA could accomplish more later. The board has not heard from him since.

Trade opinion here is that extensive use of conciliation is unlikely while there continues the present uncertainty over establishing a national arbitration system for the industry.

This money was to be used for operating expenses and to establish financing for independent producers.

Amity Rules at UK-US Confab; To Meet Again

2-Day Session Attended By Six Top Leaders Only

WASHINGTON, April 24. — The Anglo-American Film Council will hold another session in the very near future, "possibly within several weeks." The two-day session of the Council broke up here Friday with both British and American members agreeing that a conciliatory attitude marked the sessions but with all statements in very general terms.

It was admitted that the British quota had come up, but all participants refused to reveal details of conversations on this point as well other items on the agenda.

A Council-approved statement said the meeting was exploratory and that results will be reported back to the members of the respective associations preparatory for the next Council meeting. Both Eric Johnston and J. Ar-

Demand For Local Tax Rights Fails

WASHINGTON, April 24. — The Treasury appears to have turned down requests by state and local governments that the Federal government get out of the admissions tax field.

This was apparent from a release issued Friday on the results of the two-day meeting here between top government officials and representatives of state and municipal government associations on overlapping taxes and increased revenue sources for local governments.

The representatives of the state and local governments, the release said,

Bank's Last-Minute Withdrawal Caused U. A. Deal Collapse

HOLLYWOOD, April 24.—Collapse of the deal for the Nasser Brothers' purchase of control of United Artists was attributed here at the weekend to an 11th hour decision by the Bank of America to withdraw, the bank having considered advancing $5,000,000 purchase money, with the Nassers to provide the remaining $400,000, it is said.

Thus the company fully remains with its former ownership, Charles Chaplin and Mary Pickford, each with 50 per cent. Little prospect of any deal is seen for the present.

Had the deal gone through, Miss Pickford had intentions of buying back into the company up to a possible 40 per cent with her money to

Leon Brandt Named E-L Ad Assistant

Max E. Youngstein, Eagle-Lion advertising-publicity vice-president, has promoted Leon Brandt to assistant director of advertising-publicity, to succeed Jerry Pickman, who resigned to join Paramount, where he starts today.

Brandt, who has been E-L exploitation manager since October, 1948, joined the company in 1946 as Midwestern exploitation representative in Chicago. He entered the industry in 1935 as a manager for Fox Theatres, leaving to set up his own publicity office. In 1942 he joined United Artists as home office exploitation representative.

GOV'T SUBMITS ITS DIVORCEMENT PLAN

Marcus To Replace Wright in N.Y. Suit

Philip Marcus, government attorney in the Schine Theatres anti-trust action, is slated to replace Robert Wright in the U. S. Paramount case, when the latter resigns his Department of Justice post at the end of this month to enter private practice in Washington.

AAAA Prepares Plan For TV Trusteeship

A committee of representatives from Actors Equity, Chorus Equity, American Federation of Radio Artists and American Guild of Musical Artists is about to draft a final plan for organization and administration of television jobs under a trusteeship for the Four A's, Actors Equity reports here. Recently the performer unions rejected proposals for a merger and partnership for television. The trusteeship was proposed following rejection of the merger and partnership.

"For those who believe that ultimate merger of all branches into one big union is still the goal which should be sought, this essay into a joint trusteeship is a first and a long step," Actors Equity maintains.

Court Takes Case Under Advisement; 'Little 3' Asks Separate Decree

The government's industry anti-trust suit was taken under advisement by the three judges of New York Federal Court on Friday following the government's proposal of its first specific order on the method of divorcement for the remaining circuit-owner distributors; additional expressions of interest by Judge Augustus N. Hand in the plaintiff's reasoning which holds vertical integration in the industry to be illegal; and a bid by the "Little Three" for a separate decree with modifications of trade-practice restraints.

Judge Hand's queries were prompted by U.S. attorney Robert L. Wright's objections to the proposed arbitration system which had been advocated by Loew's and 20th Century-Fox on Thursday, and by Warner counsel

Discloses Parity in 3 Branches' Incomes

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Total receipts of the film industry in 1946—close to $2,000,000,000—based on reports filed in 1947, were almost evenly divided between production, distribution and exhibition, according to figures released here by the U. S. Treasury Department.

The Treasury defines "total compiled receipts" as consisting of gross sales, gross receipts from operations, all interest on government obligations, other interest, rents, royalties, excess of net short-term capital gains over net long-term capital losses, excess

By SHERWIN KANE

NEXT month the nation's theatres will have at least two outstanding opportunities to render valuable service to the country, the motion picture industry and the theatre as a community institution.

Participation in the U. S. Treasury's savings bond drive and earnest effort in exploiting the first release in the industry series of "The Movies and You" short subjects are the means by which that may be accomplished.

Weeks of planning and labor by Maurice Bergman, industry bond drive chairman, and Max Youngstein, advertising-publicity chairman, and their committees will have prepared the way for theatre participation in the savings bond drive. The co-operation, the ideas, the materials to aid the government in the sale of savings bonds will soon be ready for theatres to make use of.

It has been four years since the government has called upon the industry to give its valuable help to such a campaign. The fact that the Administration and the Treasury are convinced that a savings bond drive is in the best interests of the nation at this time should be, and is, sufficient reason for loyal American exhibitors to enlist their invaluable public resources in the service of their government, and thereby contribute to the honor of their industry and the prestige of their theatres in neighborhood and community life.

Make ready and make room on your screens, marquees, lobbies and stages, in your advertising, publicity and exploitation, for the 1949 savings bond drive.

And help the sale of bonds within your own organization and by being a purchaser yourself.

"Let's Go to the Movies," first in the series of 12 subjects in which the industry will tell its own story to theatre audiences in the interests of a better understanding and improved public relations, will be released through RKO Radio about mid-May.

Exhibitors should need no urging to book and play these subjects. They were planned and produced with the sole idea of making the public better acquainted with motion pictures, the industry and its workers, and your theatre, to the end that industry achievements and problems, even its critics, will be regarded by the public with better knowledge and increased interest.

To book every subject in the series, to advertise and exploit each adequately, is not only a constructive service to the industry but is as well a contribution to the welfare of your own theatre. No audience will resent the screen time devoted to these subjects nor regard them as an intrusion or imposition. They are professional accomplishments, entertainingly done and centered upon that most interesting of all subjects to the theatre patron—motion pictures. They represent a suitable addition to any program, for any time.

Now that an eminently fair method of determining rentals for these subjects has been agreed upon there no longer is any valid reason why a place should not be made for them on every screen in the land.

One of the more encouraging and praiseworthy examples of exhibitor ingenuity and enterprise in promoting a picture to come to the attention of this department in a long time is that engineered by W. F. Deaton and J. L. Kelley of the Pix Theatre, Alva, Okla., on behalf of Universal's "The Life of Riley."

Co-owners of a small town theatre, Deaton and Kelley handle their own advertising and promotion as well as all the other phases of theatre operation. Necessity not only has made them independent of distributor largesses in the way of co-op advertising but also has developed in them a resourcefulness that too often is lacking in big city and big theatre operations. Strictly limited advertising funds do not deter these small town showmen from trying for, and getting, full page space in their local paper when they believe they have a hit show coming up.

Deaton and Kelley sold 12 local merchants on taking and paying for space which, in conjunction with their theatre's ad, filled a page in the Alva Review-Courier. Through a further tie-up, copies of the paper, individually addressed, were mailed to every home within a radius of 30 miles. Result: "Riley" was held over two days in that small town theatre.

Pickford Asks FCC For 2 TV Stations

Washington, April 24.—Mary Pickford has thrown her hat into the television ring with applications for Federal Communications Commission approval for two new stations in North Carolina.

Miss Pickford asked the FCC Friday for construction permits for stations in Durham and Winston-Salem. She estimated that each station would cost $215,000 to build and $250,000 to get operating. The application listed her net worth as "in excess of $2,000,000."

Wilcox's "Spring" Sweeps British Poll; Anna Neagle, Wilding Cited

London, April 24.—Producer Herbert Wilcox's "Spring in Park Lane," which was released here last year, has captured all of the British film awards in the nationwide poll of audiences conducted by the London Daily Mail, it was disclosed here at the weekend. The results follow closely the pattern of the Motion Picture Herald-Fame British film poll and box-office survey which disclosed "Spring" to be 1948's leading grosser here.

Not only was the film voted the best of the year, but its stars, Anna Neagle and Michael Wilding, were voted best actress and actor for their performances in the picture. Wilcox pictures won the awards of two previous years, and the results of the latest poll mark the first time that the triple crown went to one team.

Herbert Wilcox and his wife, Anna Neagle, are due to arrive in New York on Tuesday from London aboard the S. S. Queen Elizabeth.

of net long-term capital gains over net short-term capital losses, net gain from sale or exchange of property other than capital assets, dividends, and other receipts required to be included in gross income. Non-taxable income is excluded.

The Treasury figures show that 718 production-distribution corporate income tax returns had total compiled receipts of $977,857,000 in 1946, while 3,560 returns from exhibition showed compiled receipts of $971,517,000.

The Treasury some weeks ago released 1946 figures for the industry as a whole, but the production-exhibition breakdown was first released Friday.

There were 855 returns from production firms in all, but 137 did not include income data. Net income was reported on 350 returns, and no net income or a net deficit on 368. The 350 returns with a net income showed receipts of $948,342,000, a net income of $166,746,000, total income and excess profits taxes of $55,137,000, and dividends paid in cash and assets other than their own stock of $55,635,000. The 368 returns with no net income showed receipts of $29,515,000, a deficit of $12,287,000.

Theatres filed 3,691 corporate income tax returns, of which 3,074 showed a net income, 486 a net deficit, and the balance contained no income data. The 3,074 net income returns showed receipts of $942,389,000, net income of $202,829,000, total taxes of $73,179,000, and dividends of $57,641,000. The 486 no net income returns showed receipts of $29,128,000, a deficit of $1,121,000.

Alger Suit

hearing scheduled last week for objections to fees went uncontested by the eight distributor-plaintiffs.

The court action arose from the demand by the eight plaintiffs that the Alger books be submitted for audit by the distributing companies. Alger Theatres said it was willing to have the books audited but only by a reputable independent auditing firm and would pay any amount found due.

After the suit was brought several months ago, E. R. Alger, president of the circuit, pointed out that his company owns three theatres in conjunction with Publix Great States, a subsidiary of Balaban & Katz, which in turn, is owned by Paramount. All books of this company were kept by B. and K. in its Chicago office, it was said. This, Alger added, placed Paramount in the position of suing themselves for fraud.

After months of delay the Alger circuit said, the major companies asked for dismissal of the suit, but only after the circuit refused some payment to the companies without involving an audit.

No Favoritism in Booking, Rydge Says

Norman B. Rydge, chairman of Greater Union Theatres, Australia, asserts in a cable received here Friday that his recent pledge "to do everything in our power to advance the cause of British films in Australia" does not refer to preferential treatment for British films in GUT's bookings.

"As far as our booking policy is concerned," he said, "it remains, as always, a free, open market and at no time will I permit any discrimination against America or any other country's product."

Divorcement Plan

Joseph Proskauer on Friday. The proposed plan presupposes continued integration of exhibition with production-distribution.

"Isn't it true," asked Judge Hand, "that all he (Proskauer) is doing is protecting their (the distributors') right to show their own pictures in their own theatres?"

"The proposed arbitration plan goes further," Wright replied. "It gives them a right to discriminate in favor of their own theatres and the Sherman Act does not give them them that right."

"Do they have to give pictures on the same terms to other theatres?" Judge Hand inquired. Wright said that his objection was that the theatre could license the films of its affiliated distributor exclusively and then compete with other theatres for the films of other distributors.

"The key to the whole remedy," Wright maintained, "is the creation of wholly-competitive distribution, to eliminate the power and incentive in favor of affiliated houses and this can be achieved only when all theatres have an opportunity to obtain all product on the basis of normal, competitive considerations."

Earlier in the day Wright was asked by Judge Hand to reconcile his views with the U. S. Supreme Court opinion, frequently cited by defense attorneys, which held that vertical integration in itself is not illegal.

Repeats Stand

Wright's answer was that whether by a "calculated scheme" to build a monopoly or whether there were other motives for developing their theatre interests, the majors have the "power and incentive" to exclude competition. A similar answer was given when Wright was asked by Judge Hand what his attitude would be if the distributors had acquired their theatres "only yesterday."

Wright submitted his proposed order for divorcement in the form of a memorandum to the court, which reads as follows:

"On and after Dec. 31, 1949, all licenses for motion pictures distributed by (name of distributor to be inserted) for exhibition in any theatre regardless of whether owned or operated by it shall be in all respects subject to the terms of this judgment. On and after said date its production and distribution business shall be conducted separately from its domestic exhibition business and said business shall have no common directors, officers, agents or employes.

To Submit Plans

"Within 60 days of the entry hereof, the defendant (name of distributor to be inserted) shall submit a plan for permanently separating the ownership and control of said business respectively described in Paragraph A above. Such plans shall be served upon the Attorney General who shall have the opportunity to object thereto and present to the court such modified or alternative plan accomplishing the same objective as may be deemed appropriate."

Proskauer began summation of the Warner defense by rejecting as inappropriate precedents the Paramount and RKO consent judgments. Paramount was vulnerable, he said, because of its substantial joint ownerships held to be contrary to law. "The government doesn't have us by the throat as it had Paramount by the throat," he said.

"RKO, as everyone knows, was a 'stock situation'," Proskauer commented.

"There is no point to Wright's charge of competitive exclusion by putting our pictures in our own theatres," he declared, adding there was "not a single living witness here to support the charge of conspiracy, monopolistic intent, and so on."

Referring to the arbitration proposal, Proskauer declared: "We mean this to be an effective weapon in the hands of any exhibitor who feels he has been aggrieved."

'Little 3' Object

Counsel for United Artists, Columbia and Universal reiterated their objections to arbitration, primarily because, as UA's Edward Raftery put it, "it is too rich for our blood." He added that UA was "in the red last year and not doing much better this year." Cyril Landau, Universal attorney, said the company was in favor of arbitration but unable to sustain the costs.

Landau reminded the court that while the "Little Three" were not party to the arbitration system under the consent decree of 1940 they generally complied with the terms of the awards.

Raftery called for a separate decree for the "Little Three" to protect it from an anticipated flood of private trust actions. He said that 85 such suits are pending and other theatres are now waiting for the court's decree to use in more Sherman Act suits.

Raftery asked for the inclusion of admission prices on contracts only to determine rental, the right to license on a franchise basis wherever not in restraint of competition, and modification of the restraints on roadshows and moveovers.

Pleads 'Different' Problems

Louis Frohlich, Columbia counsel, maintained that the problems of the Little Three are "different," in asking for a separate decree. He said that the government is "bringing in compulsory competitive bidding by the back door" and the three companies are "vigorously opposed to it." He added that Columbia has "built a customer relationship" over the past 20 years and this would be threatened.

Frohlich said that the clause in the Paramount decree directing "theatre-by-theatre selling on the merits and without discrimination" was not called for by the Supreme Court and asked that this be clarified so that it could not be construed as meaning compulsory bidding.

Friday's session came to a close with a request by Proskauer to see the court's findings before they are signed, "so that we may offer some comment." Hearing this, Wright asked for an injunction against any theatre expansion while the court is deciding the issues. There are no ruling given on Proskauer's request and Wright's bid was rejected.

"I guess we will have to take the case and study it," Judge Hand said.

Wright Made Trust History, Boss Says

Upon occasion of his resignation from the Department of Justice, Robert Wright received the plaudits of Attorney General Tom Clark. In a letter to Wright, Clark said: "I accept your decision with more than the usual regret over the government's loss of an outstanding lawyer, realizing the full value of your distinguished services to the anti-trust division. Your tasks in the moving picture cases were monumental and the results you achieved have made anti-trust history."

Tax Demand Fails

urged that tax legislation this year should provide enough revenue to permit immediate repeal of the general admissions tax "in order to release an immediate revenue source to localities where local taxes on admissions are already authorized." Elsewhere state enabling legislation would be required. The approved release made no comment on this suggestion.

The release added, however, that the conference, among other things, explored a suggestion that the Federal government relinquish some excise taxes to localities, including taxes on amusements, gasoline, electrical energy and local phone calls, all "most suitable for administration by towns and cities."

"While present Federal budgetary conditions preclude the revenue loss which would result if the Federal government gave up these taxes, the conference agreed that when conditions permit general Federal excise tax revision, the interest of the states and municipalities should be recognized."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said that the meeting had made progress toward a better understanding of the problems involved, that the Treasury will consider all the suggestions, and that he would continue to work closely with the state and local organizations with a view to developing concrete proposals.

Among organizations represented at the conference were the American Municipal Association, the Council of State Governments, and the U. S. Conference of Mayors—all in favor of repeal of the Federal excise tax so that state and local governments can step in.

The Chaplin option on Miss Pickford's stock expired at midnight last Thursday with negotiations continuing almost to the last minute.

UA president Gradwell Sears said, upon leaving here Friday for New York, "The expiration of Chaplin's option with no deal being culminated means, as far as I'm concerned, that all negotiations are definitely at an end. I am returning to New York because I have a business to run."

Friday's meetings were conducted by the six Council members only behind closed doors, as was Thursday's meeting. A statement issued at the end of the meeting said the Council had been aware for a long time of the controversial issues which had arisen between the British and American industries have had a detrimental effect not only on the two industries but on Anglo-American relations.

"We have decided that in the future we shall discuss our problems and difficulties together and try to work them out to the mutual advantage of our two industries," the statement said. "Our hope is that the frank and cordial discussions at the meeting here will mark the beginning of new and better relations between our industries."

Sir Henry French declared it not important whether the quota is 40 per cent or 35 per cent but that representatives of the two industries had sat down together to work out their difficulties. He admitted the industries had been fighting for the past two years and praised the new spirit of cooperation.

U.S. Admission Tax Income Up 14 Per Cent

$4,304,680 Increase in April Month, Says Treasury

WASHINGTON, April 25.—General admission tax collections in March, reflecting February box-office business, were a smashing 14 per cent above comparable 1948 figures, the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue revealed here today. March 1949 collections totaled $34,716,074, compared with $30,461,572 collected in March, 1948, an increase of $4,304,680.

In the first nine months of the current fiscal year, starting last July 1, admission tax revenue rose to $298,098,655, an increase of $4,525,618 over the $293,573,036 for the same months in 1947-48.

March was the second successive month in which 1949 collections topped those of 1948, and indicates that 1949 box-office business ran ahead of 1948 for the only two 1949 months—January and February—for which Treasury

NY 1st-Run Income Big; $97,000 For 'Undercover Man'

New York's first runs enjoyed a continuation of big business over the weekend while yesterday's returns represented not too severe a drop despite the end of the holiday period.

"The Undercover Man," with Duke Ellington and Billy Eckstein on stage, is bringing top money to the Paramount, where the first week's gross is figured at $97,000.

The weekend at the Music Hall brought superb business, estimated at $102,000 for Thursday through Sunday, indicating a smash third week's gross of $153,000 for the third week of "Connecticut Yankee" with the stage presentation. The Roxy, too, is drawing unusually robust revenue with

State Dep't. Says Views Made Known on Highest Levels; Being Followed

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The State Department, in its strongest statement to date on the British film quota, today emphasized its "serious concern" over the restriction and left no doubt that it believed it had protested the matter to the British government very officially and on the highest levels necessary—despite assertions to the contrary from British officials in London.

The Department said it had made representations in London on the 75 per cent tax and on the original 45 per cent quota, and that it had recently made representations to officials "attached to Mr. Bevin's party and the British Embassy" with assurances that these protests would "be brought fully to the attention of the appropriate authorities in London and to Mr. Bevin personally."

4,336 Titles Filed in '48 Highest in Six Years

A total of 4,336 film titles were submitted to the title registration bureau of the Motion Picture Association of America last year, the largest number since 1942 when 4,572 were offered for registration, according to an annual report to Eric A. Johnston, association president.

In addition to MPAA member companies, there were 76 non-members participating in the service last year, against 59 in 1947.

Margaret Ann Young, director of the bureau, also reported that 3,847 titles were actually registered in 1948; 250 others were approved under the provisions of the Production Code for non-member companies which are not signatories to the title registration agreement; 183 were returned because of identity with existing prior registrations, and 56 titles were considered unsuitable. Some 564 protests were made on title priorities but only six required arbitration.

Missouri Getting New Building Code

St. Louis, April 25.—A new Missouri building code for theatres has been completed in the state Senate where it was halted two years ago. A last-minute amendment exempts churches, schools, tent shows, baseball parks and buildings with less than 180 seats. An amendment to require all motion picture theatres to be of fireproof construction was voted down. The legislation is a revision of Missouri's old theatre statutes which date from before motion pictures and had not been enforced on a state-wide basis.

Kane Successful in Legislative Battle

MINNEAPOLIS, April 25.—Every threatened piece of adverse film legislation in the 1949 session of the Minnesota legislature was defeated.

Principal credit for halting anti-film legislation in the state goes to North Central Allied and the unit's executive counsel, Stanley D. Kane.

Most notable victory for exhibitors was defeat of the proposed admission tax enabling act, which would have empowered municipalities to impose an entertainment tax in the event of a reduction or elimination of the Federal tax. The powerful League of Minnesota Municipalities fought bitterly for passage of this act. (Kane and his committees, aided by Minnesota Amusement Co., also succeeded in turning back similar bills in North and South Dakota.)

In Minnesota, Kane and NCA also succeeded in having the legislature bury a proposal of the state fire marshal to increase the state license fee for theatres from $5 to $25, and were responsible for killing a bill which would prohibit smoking in theatres.

A bill supported by the NCA which would have required ASCAP, BMI and other copyright owners to register song titles, failed of enactment, and a measure to legalize bank night failed to become law.

Indiana Theatres In a Time Mixup

INDIANAPOLIS, April 25.—Indiana exhibitors, particularly in smaller communities, are caught in a crossfire between city and rural areas over a highly controversial issue.

Most Indiana cities in the North and Central parts of the state went on daylight saving time unofficially last Sunday despite a state law passed by the rural-dominated legislature making it illegal for a city to adopt any other than Central standard time. The action generally was taken on "recommendations" of mayors or city councils, or by local merchants and industries working independently.

To add to the confusion, clocks in all state, county and municipal buildings, including schools, will remain on Central standard time, in compliance with the law, in the advanced-time cities. But schools and government offices will open and close an hour earlier to conform to the civic pattern.

The great majority of exhibitors are going along with the daylight saving program where it will be in effect.

"We Were Strangers"

(Horizon Productions—Columbia)

THE year 1933 was a crucial one in Cuban history. It brought the overthrow by democratic forces of a police state regime which for seven long years had trampled with audacity on human rights and civil liberties. The months which preceded the violence of open revolution in Havana were rife with intrigue and underground activity.

Producer S. P. Eagle has set down on celluloid in graphic and dramatic fictional strokes a glowing tribute to the laborers, intellectuals and artisans of Cuba who united in the campaign against tyranny. Under the astute direction of 1948 Academy Award winner John Huston, a high-calibre cast, headed by Jennifer Jones, John Garfield and Pedro Armendariz has translated the screenplay of Peter Viertel and Huston into a film of strong commercial promise. "We Were Strangers" offers exploitation-minded showmen a field day, which fact, together with the film's inherent box-office power, indicates long and prosperous runs.

Based upon an episode in Robert Sylvester's novel, "Rough Sketch," the Viertel-Huston script seethes with bitter irony in its examination of man's helplessness before the caprices of fate. The story focusses on a tiny group of revolutionaries—four men and one woman—which dedicates itself to the pick-and-shovel task of tunnelling through clay and cadavers from the cellar of the girl's home to the subterranean base of the vault of an aristocratic Cuban family in a nearby cemetery. The rebels plan to assassinate a popular politico—a more or less innocuous individual who is merely an instrument of the tyrannical regime—with a view to dynamiting the tomb when he is laid to rest, thereby killing all who would attend the funeral including the Cuban president and other key governmental figures. Thus the way would be open for a coup d'état.

After a month of arduous work the sweating, nerve-wracked diggers reach the tomb, then shoot down the politician—only to learn that the victim's family decides for sentimental reasons to bury him elsewhere! The little groups breaks up in dumbfounded disillusionment and despair, with newfound love keeping together only the leader, Garfield, and the girl, Miss Jones. The suspicion of secret police inspector Armendariz, a most ubiquitous fellow, brings him and his lieutenants to the girl's home where, amid the pyrotechnic thunder of dynamite-throwing and tommy-gun fighting, Garfield dies in Jennifer's arms just as news comes that Havana's revolutionary forces have succeeded in smashing the government in sudden street warfare.

Huston's direction has imbued this drama with feverish suspense. At times, however, the treatment could have been a little more on the concise side, with a view toward quickening the action and cutting the film's running time. Miss Jones's part called for a Latin accent; that was a mistake, for she does not use it with a completely convincing ring. All in all, however, performances are first-rate in a cast which includes, in support, Gilbert Roland, Ramon Novarro, Wally Cassell, David Bond, Jose Perez, Morris Ankrum, Tito Rinaldo, Paul Monte, Leonard Strong and Robert Tafur. Armendariz is a standout as the epitome of police tyranny. This is an Horizon Production.

Running time, 106 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

"Make Believe Ballroom"

(Columbia) Hollywood, April 25

YOUNGSTERS whose favorite pastime is listening to disc-jockeys' platters and chatter should accept this film favorably, even enthusiastically, notwithstanding its painful lack of pace, story and performance. "Make Believe Ballroom" appears likely to stand up well at houses which cater largely to the juvenile trade. Elsewhere it should quite innocuously round out the program.

While a strong story was not expected, or needed, the plot and its labored unwinding manage even to lessen interest in the several good musical specialties sprinkled throughout the picture. Perhaps the most discomforting feature is Ruth Warrick, a fine actress, in the role of a fast talking combination press agent and Cupid, one quite as unbelievable as the other.

Jerome Courtland and Virginia Welles, a pleasing pair of youngsters, are the central characters in the make-believe story, portraying a couple of carhops whose temperamental conflict blossoms into true love under the stimulus of the super-smart press agent and the competition of a disc-jockey contest.

Al Jarvis, a leading Los Angeles disc-jockey, plays himself in the film and probably does justice to the profession. It is certainly not his fault that adult audiences, at least, will be impatiently waiting between his spinning records. Solid entertainment is offered, in the order of juvenile audience response, by Frankie Laine, 11-year-old Toni Harper, Kay Starr, Jack Smith, the King Cole Trio, and the bands of Jimmy Dorsey, Charlie Barnet, Jan Garber and Gene Krupa. Ted Richmond produced, and Joseph Santley directed.

Running time, 78 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 12.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 25.—Funeral services for Joseph Jarvis, who died at Delmar, N. Y., today, will be held Wednesday at the St. Thomas Church there. Jarvis, for 15 years the proprietor of the Delmar Theatre, is survived by the widow and three children.

Against Reissues

practice of reissuing scores of mediocre films, often with new titles which mislead the public, is unfair to the movie-going public and results in alienating box-office patrons. Reissue of these pictures is also a major cause of studio unemployment, the Council said.

Delegates to the MPIC were urged to stress that reissues are creating bad public relations for the entire industry and to ask the intra-industry group to help prevent misleading advertising of the old pictures.

N. Y. Theatre Fire Death Record Clean

Through the cooperation of theatre owners and the public, the New York Fire Department has been able to keep spotless its record of not having lost a single life in a theatre fire for some time, Fire Commissioner Frank J. Quayle reports. Figures issued by Quayle showed that in 1948 his department's Division of Licensed Places of Public Assembly approved 2,380 premises for license out of 2,559 inspected. The total seating capacity of the licensed places was 1,815,087.

Urge Backing for 'Atom'

Charles Middleton, 75

HOLLYWOOD, April 25.—Funeral services were held here today for Charles B. Middleton, 75, actor, who appeared in 230 pictures since entering films in 1927 after a long career on the stage, in vaudeville, the circus and carnivals, who died Friday night after a three-week illness. William Farnum and Alan Mowbray gave readings at the funeral ceremonies. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery. A daughter, Mrs. William F. Ladd, survives.

Ticket Rise Should Be Avoided: Arthur

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—Edward B. Arthur, general manager of Fanchon and Marco, calls upon producers to reduce their "fabulous executive salaries" and profit-sharing arrangements to reasonable amounts, and also to refuse to spend "fabulous sums" in the production of pictures that never should be made, in order to continue to furnish the American public with "fine motion pictures" without forcing the public to pay an increase for its entertainment.

It is plain to all, Arthur stated, that the costs of doing business no matter what business, are necessarily reflected in the price charged to the public. It is the policy of Fanchon and Marco to keep its costs at the point where it may give the public the benefit of a reasonable admission price.

That policy may require the closing of a theatre to eliminate unnecessary duplication of costs in operations by showing quality product doubled up at a related theatre in the city.

That policy, he continued, may also require a refusal to pay film rentals that would necessarily require a raise in admission prices. He suggested the producers adopt reasonable economies that would enable them to furnish the best pictures without demanding more money from the American public at the box-office.

be fair with exhibitors and expects them to reciprocate, he said, disclosing that he is more determined now to create a position in the industry with respect to quality pictures for exhibitors. "We know more now than before and are about to attain our aim in the industry." Among those present were Arthur Lockwood, president of the Theatre Owners of America; Dan Murphy, president of the Independent Exhibitors of New England; Harold Stoneman, representing the Variety Clubs, and Sam Pinanski.

which governs dealings with RKO to be too uncertain.

RKO has 10 per cent of W. S. Butterfield Theatres and 30 per cent of Butterfield Michigan Theatres, the latter being the smaller of the two circuits controlled by the Butterfield estate.

The agreement directs that Butterfield could buy RKO's holdings at a set price but must do so before appraisal of the assets is made by a court-appointed appraiser.

Municipalities Will Insist on Local Tax

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Officials of state and local government associations will meet here either May 5 or May 12 to draw up a joint specific program for increased state and local revenue sources, including an admission tax.

The groups got a cold shoulder from the U. S. Treasury during a two-day meeting here last week on a proposal that the Federal government withdraw from the admission tax field and leave it to states and municipalities. The state and local groups now feel that they may not have made as much progress as possible last week on this and other points because each group was pushing a different program, and they hope to make more progress by getting together among themselves on a program and then taking it back to the Treasury as a common proposal.

According to the notice, the following officers received during the last fiscal year fees, salaries and commissions in the total amounts indicated: Skouras, company president, $252,385; Zanuck, production vice-president, $260,000; Silverstone, president of 20th-Fox International, $109,405 (Silverstone's 1948 remuneration exceeded his 1947 remuneration by more than 10 per cent, by $12,555, it is reported); Michel, vice-president and director of National Theatres, $116,830; Henderson, secretary-treasurer, $69,405; Eadie, controller and assistant treasurer, $55,270, and Thomas J. Connors, advisor to the distribution department, $54,000. All officers and directors of the corporation as a group received a total of $1,250,000 during the last fiscal year, the notice states.

Servicemen Like Good Westerns

Washington, April 25.—The man in Army uniform still goes for good Westerns, melodramas and comedies, according to a poll of film favorites taken by the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service.

The top 20 of 1948, listed in alphabetical order, were: "Albuquerque," "Best Years of Our Lives," "Beyond Glory," "Bishop's Wife," "Black Bart," "Call Northside 777," "Casbah," "Duel in the Sun," "Fort Apache," "Fuller Brush Man," "Intrigue," "Key Largo," "Naked City," "One Touch of Venus," "Rogue's Regiment," "Saigon," "To the Ends of the Earth," "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," "Tycoon" and "Unconquered."

N. Y. 1st-Run Income

"Mr. Belvedere Goes to College" and the stage show likely to complete a second week with $120,000.

At the Globe, "Champion" is proving all that could be hoped for at the box-office, with a rousing third week's gross of $40,000 apparent. "My Dream is Yours," with Lionel Hampton's orchestra on stage, is fairly strong at the Strand, with second week's income estimated at $40,000. "City Across the River," with Art Mooney's orchestra on stage, should give the Capitol about $51,000 in a third week, which is fair enough.

"Pride of the Yankees" is doing well at the Palace, which looks for around $12,000 in the second week of the reissue. "Hamlet," the constant big money-maker at the Park, should conclude a 30th week with $16,500. Other British imports which are doing remarkably high business are "The Red Shoes," which is likely to bring the Bijou an estimated $15,500 in a 27th week, and "Quartet," at the Sutton, where the fourth week's gross should reach $14,500.

"Portrait of Jennie" will ring up about $29,000 in a fourth week at the Rivoli, which is good business. "Life of Riley" collapsed at the Criterion, where only $7,000 is apparent for the final four days, three short of a complete second week. Criterion's next will be "Red Canyon," which bows in tomorrow and, subsequently, "Africa Screams," due on May 6.

The Astor will have a 36th anniversary ceremony in the lobby tomorrow, when "We Were Strangers" makes its debut. "Knock on Any Door" will wind up its 10th and final week at the Astor with about $9,000. The 24th week of "Joan of Arc" probably will mean about $14,000 to the Victoria.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" figures to give the State a fair seventh week's gross of $20,000, and will be followed by "Barkleys of Broadway" on May 4. "Wizard of Oz" is doing handsome business at the Mayfair, estimated at $30,000 for the second week.

U. S. Quota Protest

and the Department here are both following the matter closely, the Department said.

Today's outline of the U. S. government stand was contained in virtually identical letters from Assistant Secretary of State Ernest A. Gross to California Senators William Knowland and Sheridan Downey. Both had protested the quota and asked the Department what action was being taken.

The State Department's strong stand will undoubtedly strengthen the hand of members of Congress who have been threatening to strike back at Britain in some bill. Senator Knowland, who has introduced such an amendment to the pending bill to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, said he was very pleased with the Department's forthright statement.

Restrictive Measures'

Gross' letter to Downey said that the Department was concerned about the quota, "particularly inasmuch as it is coupled with other restrictive measures affecting the film industry." It said that when the British inaugurated the 75 per cent tax early in 1948 (the letter referred to a 75 per cent "import limitation"), the Department had "made representations on the highest level in London," and that it believed that these representations had to some extent paved the way for the March, 1948, film agreement removing the tax but limiting remittances by American film companies.

When the 45 per cent quota was announced, Gross continued, the Department again made representations in London "indicating its belief that the quota constituted excessive protection to British producers and that the British action was creating serious resentment, particularly in view of the good faith in which the American industry negotiated the aforementioned (March, 1948) agreement."

Spoke to Bevin's Aides

"The Department's serious concern over the problem," the State Department official concluded, "has been again strongly emphasized in consultations with officials attached to Mr. Bevin's party and the British Embassy. It has been pointed out that the Department considers the film quota excessive, that it is causing growing resentment on the part of the U. S. film industry and is an increasingly serious public relations problem. The Department has received assurances that these representations would be brought fully to the attention of the appropriate authorities in London and to Mr. Bevin personally. The foregoing has been fully reported to our Embassy in London which will, as will the Department, continue to follow the situation.

TOA Asks 400 To File Weekly Gross Reports

Checkup To Cover Towns Up to 25,000 Population

Theatre Owners of America executive director Gael Sullivan disclosed here yesterday that some 400 TOA members in the field, in towns of from 2,500 to 25,000 population, have been invited to submit weekly box-office reports for the organization's picture performance checkup plan which was approved by TOA's board of directors at its January meeting.

The checkup will be inaugurated on May 3 and will continue indefinitely. It will be based on picture performances in the previous week, computed in terms of percentages to normal gross, with 100 per cent considered normal.

The country has been divided into five geographical divisions: East, Central Atlantic, Midwest, South and West, with representative theatres se-

U. K. Industry Faces Changes, Says Wilcox

Although the possibility of the Lord Portal committee recommending divorcement in England was seen as unlikely by Herbert Wilcox, the British producer yesterday expressed the opinion that the committee would recommend the revamping of the British industry structure. Wilcox, who is chairman and managing director of Imperadio Film Productions, Ltd., London, arrived here on the S.S. Queen Elizabeth with his wife, Anna Neagle, and film actor Michael Wilding.

British Board of Trade Report Lists 1,367 Defaults Under 20 Per Cent Quota in 1948

London, April 26.—The Board of Trade reported today that there were 1,367 defaults on the old 20 per cent film quota during the year ended Sept. 30, 1948. This compares with 959 defaults during the previous year under the 17½ per cent quota then in effect.

British exhibitors generally regard the figures as a contemptuous commentary on the present 45 per cent quota and the 40 per cent quota scheduled to become effective next October 1.

The Board of Trade also discloses that 170 British feature films were registered during the year ended March 31, 1948. During the quota year 47,142,000 feet of film were exhibited in Britain compared with 46,412 000 feet in the previous year. Total length of British films exhibited was 12,559,000 feet.

Ascap Theatre Take for 1st Quarter 'Nil'

First Full Effect of 2 Court Decisions Felt

Ascap has felt the first full effect of the two court decisions against it, in terms of revenue, with collections from theatres for the first quarter of this year "just about nil," according to informed sources. The adverse rulings in New York and Minneapolis Federal Courts are now on appeal.

However, despite the loss of money from theatre licenses, the Society collected close to $2,500,000 for the first three months of this year, and this approximates the take for the like period of 1948, it is said. Accounting for this is the increase in income derived from radio, night clubs and other public music users. Prior to the legal set-backs, theatres yielded a little more than 10 per cent of Ascap's overall revenue.

Theatre collections fell substantially but not entirely after the court decisions against Ascap as many exhibi-

Six M-G-M Releases For July and August

Five new pictures and one reissue have been set for release by M-G-M during July and August. The latest additions to the schedule made by William F. Rodgers, sales vice-president, now give the company a total of 22 new films, plus the reissue for the first eight months of 1949.

Latest plans calls for the redistribution of "The Wizard of Oz" on July 1.

The July schedule will be supplemented by "The Stratton Story" only where special engagements prevail. In addition, there will be the Clark Gable's "Any Number Can Play," and "Madame Bovary," starring Jennifer Jones, Van Heflin, James Mason and Louis Jourdan.

For August there will be "In the Good Old Summer Time," in Technicolor, starring Judy Garland, and "Scene of the Crime," with Van Johnson.

Chicago's Astor Opens

CHICAGO, April 26.—The refurbished 300-seat Astor Theatre, located in the Loop and operated by Abe Teitel and Daniel Newman, today became the third first-run art house here to feature foreign product exclusively. Opening bill is "Volpone," a Siritzky release.

Urges British to Stress Quality Films

British producers should concentrate on making quality pictures to send to America and not attempt to compete with Hollywood with stereotyped pictures, Filippo Del Giudice, managing director of Pilgrim Pictures, Ltd., asserted here yesterday on his arrival on the S.S. Queen Elizabeth from London. The attempt to press certain British films on the American market is unhealthy and illogical, he said.

Del Giudice said he hopes there will be divorcement in England. He declared that the British quota "has nothing to do with any anti-Hollywood feelings" but is motivated by home needs.

Del Giudice plans to make 12 pictures in 1949-50. He revealed that while crossing on the Queen he met Robert Clark, executive director of production for Associated British, and William Moffat, managing director of Associated British Pathe, and set with them a deal for the production of two pictures with Associated and the distribution of the balance of his 1949-50 program through British Empire by Associated Pathe. The agreement is subject to approval of the board of both companies.

U-I Sales Drive to End on Saturday

Universal - International's "Unity Sales Drive" will end Saturday. The company's district managers, branch managers, salesmen, office managers and bookers in 31 exchange centers will divide $65,000 in cash prizes.

Awards will go to the four leading district managers, the first 15 branch managers; 10 leading salesmen in the East and South and the first 12 in the West, and the first four leading booking staffs in the East and South and the first five in the West.

8 Cities in 8 Days For 'Laredo' Stars

Paramount's Hollywood star "junket" of "Streets of Laredo" has been set for eight cities, with special representative George Henger and Al Jermy guiding the group on a special train.

The stars will appear in complete shows in Laredo, on May 16; Beaumont, May 17; Houston, May 18; San Antonio, May 19; Dallas, May 20; Fort Worth, May 21; Oklahoma City, May 23; and Tulsa, May 24.

Mandel West on 2 New RKO Theatres

Harry Mandel, advertising-publicity director of RKO Theatres, will leave New York by plane today for Kansas City to confer with division manager Jerome Shinback on the opening of the new RKO Missouri Theatre in that city. He will then confer in Minneapolis with Iowa division manager Harry Weiss on the opening of the circuit's new theatre at Marshalltown, Iowa. Opening dates for both houses have not yet been set.

New York Banned Seven Last Year

ALBANY, N. Y., April 26.—Of 1,648 pictures reviewed by the Motion Picture (censor) Division of the New York State Education Department during the year ended last March 31, seven were rejected and 47 were required to make deletions. This was disclosed in a summary issued yesterday by Dr. Ward C. Bowen, acting division director. It was Dr. Bowen's final report; he will be succeeded on May 16 by Dr. Hugh M. Flick.

It is the policy of the division not to identify rejected pictures by titles and distributors. However, Dr. Bowen did disclose that the seven which were refused licenses represented two foreign-made features and five American-made shorts.

General Precision Stock Rise Voted

Stockholders of General Precision Equipment, at their annual meeting here yesterday, approved an amendment to the certificate of incorporation authorizing an increase in the capital stock of the company from 800,000 shares, without par value, to 1,135,000 shares, to be divided into three classes. The new stock will consist of 120,000 shares of preferred, 15,000 shares of convertible preferred, and 1,000,000 shares of common stock, without par value.

Purpose of the increase, Earle G. Hines, chairman of the board, stated at the meeting is to make available shares of the new classes of stock for raising corporate funds at some time in the future, possibly for retiring outstanding bank loans, for raising additional working capital, when necessary, and to make provision for the requirements of an employe stock purchase plan which was also approved at the meeting. Under the plan, certain officers and employees of the company may acquire shares of the new preferred stock which later may be converted into common stock on a date and at a price to be fixed by the board of directors.

TOA Annual Meet To Start Sept. 12

Week of Sept. 12 has been set by the Theatre Owners of America for its annual convention which will be held at the Hotel Ambassador in Los Angeles. TOA treasurer Charles P. Skouras will be convention chairman.

Arrangements are being made to provide exhibition space for manufacturers of theatre equipment and supplies and for theatre concessionaires. Plans call for one business session a day and a forum on the final day.

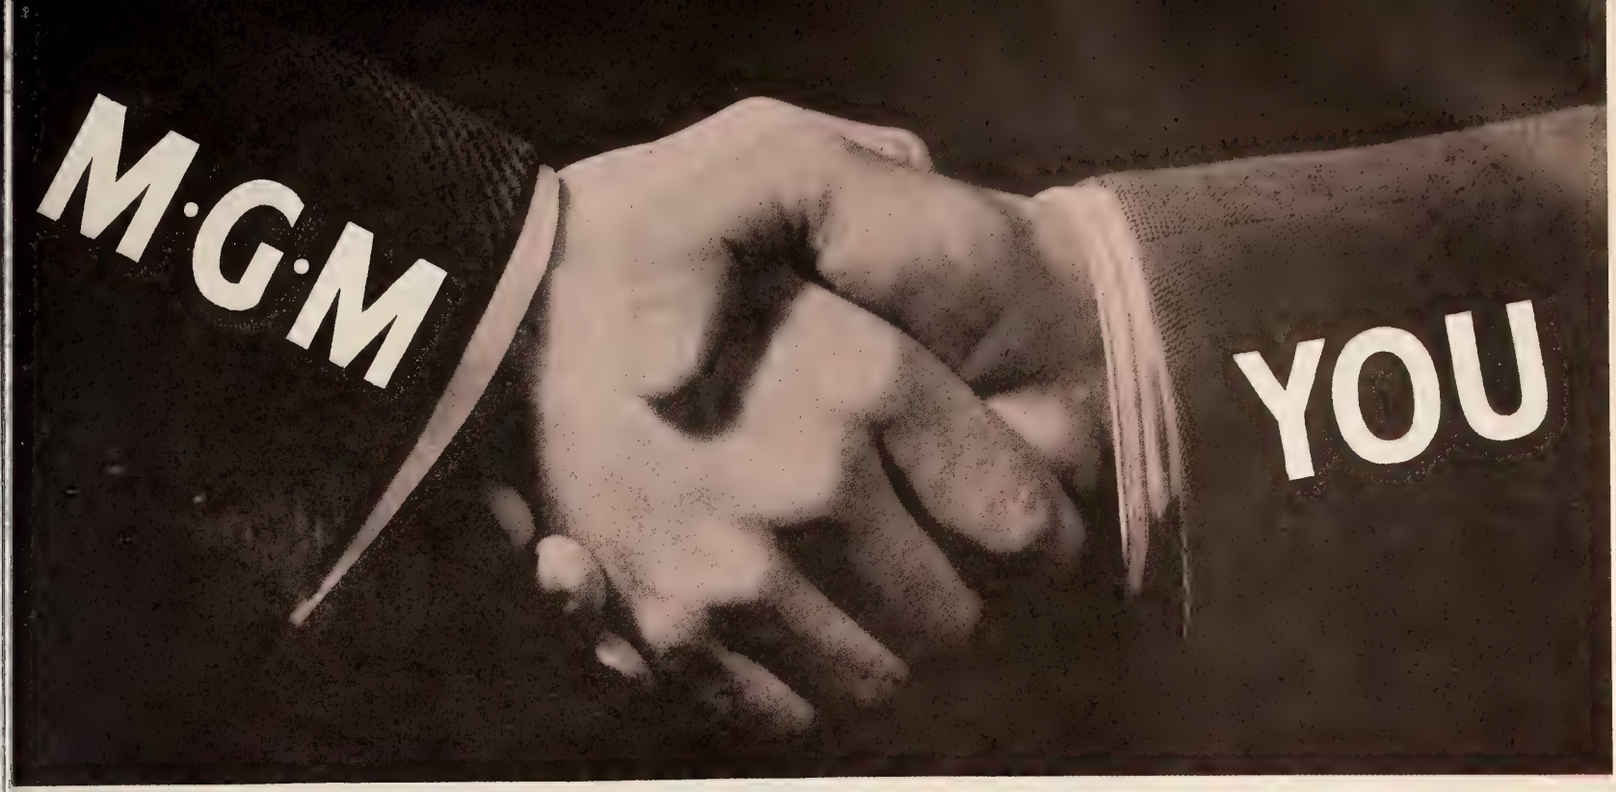
Plan 1-Week Limit For 'Youth Month'



Theatre Owners of America's "Youth Month" campaign directed against juvenile delinquency will be limited to one week this year, it has been tentatively decided by TOA executive director Gael Sullivan and U. S. Attorney-General Tom Clark. The two have been conferring on the subject.

"Youth Month," which last year was extended beyond a month, will not be sponsored exclusively by TOA this year, as previously. It is expected that this year all forms of communication, press, radio, television, as well as motion pictures, will participate. The plan is to invite all information media, and also business, labor and religious, educational, social welfare and other organizations to join in the 1949 program.

Trade Screening Close By Pleases an Exhibitor

JIM DUNBAR of the Roxy Theatre at Wichita has this item to report:

"An orchid to 'The Friendly Company,' Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Today I received notice inviting my wife and myself to a tradeshowing of two of their latest releases. This in itself is not new, but it is news when a distributor gives the exhibitor a break by screening products nearer the exhibitor's place of business.

"'The Stratton Story' and *'The Secret Garden' will be screened at the Civic Theatre here in Wichita. Seldom does an exhibitor drive 200 or 300 miles to a distribution center just to view a trade-screening. By screening products out in the territory, the distributor will benefit both himself and the exhibitor, in good will and intelligent buying.

"Personally, I hope the local screening is a huge success and that other companies as well as Metro will do this more often, both here and at other locations too far distant for the exhibitors to view the newest release at the distributors' screening rooms."

B'nai B'rith Roster Hits Record 1,635

"Benevolence, brotherly love and harmony, the ancient watchwords of B'nai B'rith, should be our impelling slogan as we approach our problems in the present unsettled world," Saul E. Rogers, film industry attorney, declared here last night in assuming the presidency of New York's Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith at the Lodge's annual presidents' dinner at the Hotel Astor here.

The dinner marked the induction of Rogers and other officers and was a tribute to retiring president S. Arthur Glixon. Before turning over the gavel to Rogers, Glixon announced that the Lodge's membership had reached a record of 1,635.

Leo Jaffe, Columbia Pictures, vice-president of the Lodge and retiring treasurer, was presented with a B'nai B'rith district award for efforts on behalf of the Lodge. Al Wilde and Ed Forer were presented with awards for fund-raising and membership enrollment. Glixon received a desk set for his record as president. Al Schwalberg made the presentation.

Jack Levin was toastmaster and dinner chairman.

France May Allow Dollar Withdrawals

David Kay, president of Foremost Films, distributors of foreign films in the U. S., has returned here from a tour of France with encouraging news for American producers who plan to make pictures in that country. The French government, Kay said yesterday, is preparing to lift the bars against the withdrawal of film investments and profits in U. S. dollars.

This anticipated move by the French government, according to Kay, will be aimed at encouraging French production, which, notwithstanding the fact that it has some 70 independent producers, has only a dozen pictures in the making at present, although 18 more are being prepared.

Kay, who has organized a French production company, Superb Films, has slated "The Girl from Maxim's" for filming beginning next month. He said he will make the picture in French and English simultaneously, a procedure which, he explained, will add 25 per cent to the cost.

SOPEG Cleared in Para. Vote Dispute

National Labor Relations Board regional director Charles Douds yesterday certified CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild as bargaining representative of Paramount home office "white collarites," thus dismissing charges brought by AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 that SOPEG had committed certain violations during the recent employes' election which settled the jurisdictional dispute between the rival unions. H-63 is not expected to appeal the decision to the NLRB in Washington.

SOPEG is now at liberty to begin new contract negotiations covering all home office "collarites" except those in Paramount-International, which shop was won by H-63 in the election. The "IA" local will open contract negotiations tomorrow with Paramount-International executives.

Review

"Edward, My Son"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

FINE acting, dramatic dialogue and careful staging make this an outstanding production of marked interest to the mature and entertaining to all those who may be attracted to see it. Based on the successful stage play by Robert Morley and Noel Langley, the screenplay by Donald Ogden Stewart deals with a spoiled son who is the cause, or occasion, of his family's unhappiness. The son, Edward, never is seen in the film. The story is told mainly through the person of the father, played by Spencer Tracy, who several times steps out from the action and addresses the audience with comments on what has happened and what is coming.

The direction by George Cukor aims at character development and allows the long and difficult plot to be spread over nearly two hours of running time. The story is told chiefly by dialogue; little of the action is on the screen. Edwin H. Knopf, the producer, assembled an excellent cast and gave the film a good mounting. Exhibitors need to rely on the drawing power of Tracy, the fame of the stage play and interest among their patrons in parent-child relationships. The film requires careful selling.

Tracy gives an effective portrayal of the father who puts his son, and himself, above law and custom. He sets fire to his shop to get money for an operation on the boy's leg, plus more for himself. Through unscrupulous operations the father prospers but the son goes from difficulty to difficulty. To save the boy from being expelled the father buys up the school mortgage. Later the youth is given so much money that he squanders it in drinking and loose living. The father even tries to soothe the feelings of a girl made pregnant by his son. When the son dies, stunting a plane during the war to impress another girl, only the father is sorry.

The wife, a part in which Deborah Kerr gives a moving performance, and the family doctor, Ian Hunter, really know the father, but are powerless to prevent the unwitting destruction of his son. On his road to power, Tracy ruins his partner, a pathetic figure, well acted by Mervyn Johns, who goes to prison instead of Tracy and commits suicide when he finds only ingratitude. Another suicide is the secretary, Leueen MacGrath, who was the father's mistress. She was discarded when Tracy thought his son might be hurt in divorce proceedings brought by his wife. Eventually the wife becomes an alcoholic and dies. At the end Tracy loses much of his power and is determined to find his grandson. However, the family doctor tries to prevent this so that the grandson may not be spoiled as the son was.

Running time, 112 minutes. Adult audience classification. For June release.

See No Problems In Selling 'Brave'

"Home of the Brave," first large-scale production to focus on Negro discrimination, will be sold to United Artists accounts in the South probably next fall with the distributor making no provision for "problems." UA already has screened the Stanley Kramer film for prominent exhibitors in the Southern states and all are said to be uniformly enthusiastic about its merits and assure the company they will license it when selling begins.

Company feels that "Brave" is a "big production" and will attract large audiences wherever played. On the basis of past experience with the Memphis censor board, which banned Hal Roach's "Curley" which depicts a Negro boy at play with white youngsters, objections to the Kramer picture from that source would come as no surprise. Court action by Roach and UA against Memphis censor Lloyd Binford on the "Curley" case is pending.

"Brave will open in New York and Chicago next month and the entire North will be covered before the film is launched in the South. Company is continually giving private screenings for various groups and claims that to date comments have been highly favorable with the "word-of-mouth" campaign well underway.

SMPE Publishing Theatre Handbook

A 428-page theatre engineering handbook, detailing physical requirements of the theatre, has been published by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which describes the book as "a contribution by the technical and scientific branch of the industry to the man who pays most of the industry's bills by marketing its product—the man at the box office."

It is titled "The Motion Picture Theatre—Planning and Upkeep," and presents in non-technical language data on theatre design, construction, modernization and maintenance. James Frank, Jr., directed the project.

Short Subject

"Seal Island"

(Walt Disney-RKO Radio)

"Seal Island" introduces a new Walt Disney series, "True-Life Adventures," the subjects of which will "delve deep and wide into the most vital concerns of man and the universe which affects his fate and fortunes." Although this three-reel production does not do precisely that, it most certainly depicts in thrilling details the fascinating life of Alaska fur seals herded on the Pribilof reefs of Seal Island in the Bering Sea.

There are few who will not be moved by the sweep of color, beauty and abundance of the rare plants and birds of the island, the impressive musical background and interesting cavortings of 100,000 seals which annually emerge from the sea each May, like clockwork, and depart in mid-fall. A Disney production crew stayed on the island through a full season, so we are told, to photograph the cycle of the seals, and the results of their patience and skill have produced an astonishing record of wild life, most deserving of the Academy documentary award accorded it last month. Plaudits aplenty to cinematographer Alfred G. Milote, to Winston Hibler's interesting and entertaining narration, to James Algar's direction and to the musical arrangements by Oliver Wallace. Running time, 28 minutes.

exclusively, from radio and television, and in a sense the theatre is expected to provide a testing ground for newcomers without resort to amateurs.

RKO officials feel that "for sometime interest in vaudeville has been reborn and that the public again is in a receptive mood for this form of entertainment." They did not mention that "live" acts are now in scattered demand by theatres in various sections of the country. But they are open to proof that the forthcoming Palace policy might prove feasible in other RKO theatres, perhaps as unit shows booked along lines more or less resembling standard practice when the Keith-Albee-Proctor vaudeville interests were in their hey-dey.

The Palace will shut down shortly for renovations from backstage to front, including new seats, decorations, carpets, settings and stage equipment.

Meanwhile, Ascap is continuing conversations with the government on amending the consent decree which they entered in 1940 and which now requires adjustments in view of the New York and Minneapolis court findings. a hearing before Judge Matthew F. McGuire.

Shortly before the court proceedings, K-B and Warners agreed on terms for Warners selling out and for K-B picking the new theatre site, providing that Warners does not have to post bond nor be in any way financially responsible for the new theatre. When this was presented to Kass attorney Louis Ottenberg, he refused to release Warners unless K-B furnished a similar bond. K-B attorney Robert Sher said K-B would assume all normal obligations and responsibility for fulfilling the contract for the new theatre, but would not post the bond. Then Judge McGuire recessed the hearings for a week, instructing the parties to try to get together on some compromise on the new house.

If a compromise cannot be worked out, the three parties will argue next Tuesday the original Kass motion for $100,000, and the original K-B and Warner motions on how the MacArthur venture should be dissolved.

Attorneys for K-B and Warners refused to discuss the exact financial terms for Warners getting out of the MacArthur, but it is understood that they are fairly close to those provided for in the 1945 agreement.

Defends MGM Sales At Griffith Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 26.—J. M. Eisenberg, Loew's executive from New York, testified today in the Griffith mandate hearing that independents in competition with the defendant circuits have had equal opportunities to purchase M-G-M product.

He appeared after testimony Monday by Daniel J. Loventhal, RKO Radio sales executive, also from New York. Both were questioned on specific competitive situations covered previously by government witnesses. Eisenberg declared emphatically that his firm makes product available to any exhibitor who desires to bid for it.

Eisenberg took the stand after attorneys for the defense and Justice Department lawyers had sparred at length over the introduction of depositions. Presiding Judge Edgar S. Vaught ruled that the defense could proceed with its interrogatories, and that the government would be entitled to submit additional cross interrogatories.

The interrogatories were resorted to by Griffith to obtain testimony from Sol Sachs, Dallas; Louis Phillips, New York; H. H. Martin, Dallas; and several other distributor executives, who could not come here.

Another 30 Days for Ascap's Video Pact

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has extended its gratis contract with telecasters another 30 days, to May 30, as negotiations on the Society's first non-gratis pact continues. When agreement is reached on terms of a license for video it will be retroactive to Jan. 1.

20th Phila. Clearance meeting of 35 exhibitors in the Ritz Carlton Hotel here today.

Neighborhood first-runs are now limited, by custom, to only eight or nine theatres with a total seating capacity of 16,000. Under the new plan, Smith said, neighborhood first-runs will be available to several dozen houses with a total capacity of 28,000. In addition, clearance over first-runs downtown will be reduced by an average of seven days.

Under the plan the territory will be divided into 18 zones each including one or more theatres. In those zones including more than one house the run will be opened to competitive sliding scale bidding. Any theatres not now listed in any zone, Smith said, may enter the bidding if it can meet standards set by 20th-Fox for theatres already in its zone.

The zones and theatres are: Zone 1, Keswick, Yorktown, Glenside; Zone 2, Erlin; Zone 3, Oxford, Lawndale; Zone 4, Liberty, Mayfair; Zone 5, Roosevelt, Circle; Zone 6, Roxy; Zone 7, Bandbox, Vernon, Colonial, Orpheum; Zone 8, Iris, Midway; Zone 9, Astor, Girard; Zone 10, Park; Zone 11, Fern Rock; Zone 12, Carmen; Zone 13, Logan, Rockland; Zone 14, Broadway, Savoia; Zone 15, Nixon, State; Zone 16, Towers; Zone 17, Benn, Benson; Zone 18, Suburban, Bryn Mawr.

Smith said the new plan might bring about some admission price changes but he warned exhibitors against starting any admission cutting wars. He told exhibitors that the same plan had been used successfully in Cleveland by the company and that three other distributors had followed 20th-Fox's lead in that city.

Clark, Moffat Here To Set AA Deal

Details of the first four pictures to be made in the long-term production deal between Allied Artists and Associated British Picture Corp., Ltd., will be discussed here by Robert Clark, executive director of the latter, and William Moffat, managing director of Associated British Pathe, Ltd. Both arrived here yesterday on the SS Queen Elizabeth along with Clifford George Dickinson, Monogram-A.A. representative for the United Kingdom. A press reception was held for them by Monogram-A.A. at the Hotel Warwick yesterday.

Under the arrangement two pictures will be made per year in England under the quota. A.A. will provide half of the finances and some of the stars. The pictures will be produced by Associated British Pictures and distributed in the British Empire by Associated British Pathe and in the Western Hemisphere by A.A. The rest of the world market will be divided equitably. Each film will be budgeted from $800,000 to $1,000,000. Shooting on the first is expected to start in September. It was pointed out that the deal predated the quota and frozen funds and emanated from mutual interest of the British and American companies.

Clark said ABC plans to make about 12 pictures this year inclusive of the two under the joint arrangement.

UK Industry

expects the Portal committee to propose are the abolition of the "barring system," the extension of playing time and the zoning of first-runs throughout the United Kingdom. Under the barring system, a film playing first-run in London can not play anywhere else in the country simultaneously. Among other recommendations which he sees as likely is the reduction of distribution costs to producers from the present 20 per cent.

Wilcox is here to set up an Anglo-American production plan for a series of pictures to be made in England under the quota with American stars, for the world market. An agreement, he asserted, will be consummated with "one of two major American companies." Wilcox and Wilding will confer today and tomorrow with Alfred Hitchcock here about the next picture to be made in England which will star Wilding. The film will be made by Hitchcock and distributed here by Warner Brothers.

Wilcox while here also plans to set American distribution of three films, "Courtneys of Curzon Street," "Spring in Park Lane" and "Maytime in Mayfair."

He plans to leave for Hollywood in a week for discussions with Bernard Giannini of the Bank of America. Wilcox made it clear that he will be seeing Giannini "not for financing" but to "get a comprehensive view of the economics of the industry" with regard to his Anglo-American production plan.

Wilcox asserted that the British industry could meet "the quota quantitatively but not qualitatively" and said he is for fewer but better pictures. He sees "no chance whatsoever of the British industry getting any portion of the entertainment tax plowed back to producers because that would then extend to other industries." He said the government takes the view that there is nothing wrong with the industry, except the inequitable distribution of money that is paid by the public.

Wilcox remarked that producers need to get more from exhibitors and pay less to distributors. To back his point he cited his film "Spring in Park Lane" which made a record gross of $5,600,000 in England. He said that out of this, $2,250,000 went for the entertainment tax; $1,800,000 went to exhibitors, and $320,000 to the distributor. Thus, Wilcox pointed out, "the producer is left only a little more than the cost of production."

U. S. Industry Hopes Hit in South Africa

Gold, Sterling Holdings Drop Breeds Pessimism

The American film industry's position in South Africa may have suffered a severe blow with the announcement by the South African Reserve Bank that that country's sterling and gold holdings declined sharply during March, it is believed in film foreign management circles here.

South Africa's sterling holdings fell nearly £5,500,000 ($22,000,000) last month, and at the same time gold holdings dropped £5,000,000 ($20,000,000), according to a monthly statement of the Reserve Bank.

Since the beginning of this year, the American film industry has been dogged by uncertainties in consequence of moves made by the Capetown government. When, late last year, South Africa clamped a 50 per cent-of-earnings restriction on films and all other imports, it was planned here to send to Capetown an American industry mission headed by Motion Picture As-

Value of Trade Shows Appears Negligible

Auburn Trust Action Set for Trial Here

Ruling in U. S. District Court here yesterday on motions made by defendants Schine Circuit Corp., et al, Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan declined to dismiss the $2,500,000 triple-damage anti-trust action brought by Auburn Capital Theatre Corp., Auburn, N. Y. Major distributors are among the defendants charged with having conspired with Schine to deprive the plaintiff of product.

The jurist simultaneously ruled against the defendants' motion calling for transfer of the case to the Northern U. S. District Court in Utica.

The practice of exhibitor trade screenings which originated within the industry trust suit consent decree of 1940 as a measure against blind selling has yet to prove itself as being of value to exhibitors.

M-G-M has been keeping a close check on exhibitor attendance at its showings, and its experience, said to be typical, is that the last 43 films trade shown had an average audience in each city of seven theatre owners or their representatives. The company figures its costs in having the potential buyers in the projection room or theatre at eight dollars each.

Here are M-G-M's records with the Ticket Tax Cut Loses by Only A Single Vote

Chances for Reduction Are Seen Brighter

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The outlook brightened today for a cut in the Federal admission tax, even though—and perhaps because—the Senate Finance Committee defeated by only seven to six a proposal to cut the 20 per cent ticket levy and other excises back to pre-war levels. The pre-war admission tax level was 10 per cent.

The outlook became brighter for several reasons: The fact that powerful Senate Finance Committee Chairman George favors excise reductions and voted against it today only because it was proposed as an amendment to a bill repealing Federal oleomargarine taxes; the fact that the Administration was able to defeat the move by only one vote despite the unusual manner in which it was proposed; the fact that Senator McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, broke away from Senator

Max Youngstein May Leave Eagle-Lion

While disclosing that he has received a number of offers from other companies, Max Youngstein, vice-president of Eagle-Lion in charge of advertising-publicity, yesterday countered reports that he will soon join a major company with the statement that he has made no deal "as of now."

"Frankly," Youngstein said, "I am dissatisfied with curtailed operations with a skeleton staff and unless the situation is rectified within the next month or two I shall be forced to act on the offers which have been made me."

Youngstein indicated that an assured supply of product for the future is E-L's basic need. The company's studio has been closed since November and new production financing has not been obtained to make possible a permanent reopening. Company executives have taken salary cuts and staffs in most departments have been skeletonized, with additional retrenchments scheduled for the end of the week unless new financing is forthcoming.

Drive-Ins Trouble Minnesota Theatres

MINNEAPOLIS, April 27. — Outstate conventional theatre operators in the Minneapolis area are expressing concern over possible inroads on their attendance potential by drive-ins and are looking ahead to meet such competition, according to film company branch managers and salesmen. The year-round operators are also fearful of the outdoor stands raising the ante on film rentals in making a bid for certain type product.

While the drive-ins located in the congested area of the Twin Cities reportedly have so far failed to make a dent in the conventional box-office grosses, outstate exhibitors say the situation is entirely different in the hinterlands. They point out that the big city outdoor stands pull trade from the suburbs because they are located on the outskirts, and in addition they attract the factory worker who can attend drive-ins without changing clothes.

With comparatively few exceptions, the 34 new outstate drive-ins already announced for construction during the coming season in the Minneapolis zone will be operated by conventional theatre owners in the area. This will help keep film rentals down for such dual operations, but competitive year-around stands fear the drive-ins will eventually come around to bid for prior runs for an entire zone.

Williams to Resign As SCTOA Counsel

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Paul Williams, general counsel and presiding executive of the Southern California Theatre Owners Association for the past four years, will resume his private law practice on June 1st either in New York or here. Ten additional films have been reviewed by the National Legion of Decency with four getting a "B" rating. In that category are Film Classic's "C Man"; Distinguished Films' "Confessions of a Rogue"; Warner Brothers' "Flamingo Road"; United Artists' "The Great Dan Patch."

In Class A-I are: United Artists' "Home of the Brave"; Universal-International's "Illegal Entry"; and Republic's "Prince of Thieves." In A-II are Universal-International's "The Lady Gambles"; Eagle-Lion's "Reign of Terror," and Paramount's "Sorrowful Jones."

Eudy Vice-President Of Tri-States TOA

MEMPHIS, April 27.—Charles Eudy, operating theatres at Houston and Ackerman, both in Mississippi, was named vice-president of the Tri-states unit of the Theatre Owners of America, at a board of directors meeting here today. He succeeds Arthur Rush of Houston, who had resigned. Burges Waltman of Columbus, Miss., was named to the board to succeed Eudy.

ATOI Convention Is Set for June 22-23

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27.—Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana will hold its mid-summer convention at French Lick Springs on June 22-23. A board meeting will be held on the evening of June 21.

Business will be confined to one session, on June 22. A top sales executive of one of the major film companies will be a guest at the business session. Marc Wolf is chairman of the convention committee.

Maurer Presides at Astor Anniversary

Maurice Maurer, managing director of City Entertainment Corp., which operates the Astor Theatre, here, officiated yesterday at cake-cutting ceremonies in the theatre's lobby in celebration of the 36th anniversary of film exhibition at that Broadway house. The occasion marked also the world premiere of Columbia's "We Were Strangers." Columbia advertising-publicity vice-president Nate B. Spingold represented the company at the event.

20-Week Depinet Drive Nearly Over

RKO Radio's Denver exchange, J. C. Emerson, manager, holds first place at the end of the 18th week in the 1949 "Ned Depinet Drive." Montreal, M. L. Devaney, manager, leads in Canada. The 19th and 20th, final weeks of the drive, will honor Robert Mochrie, sales vice-president.

Rivoli Books 20th Film

"Portrait of Jennie," current at the New York Rivoli Theatre, will be followed by 20th Century-Fox's "House of Strangers," which, in turn, will be followed by Alexander Korda's "Winslow Boy," distributed by the same company.

25-Cent W.B. Dividend

At a special meeting of the board of directors of Warner Brothers held here, a dividend of 25 cents per share was declared on the common stock, payable on July 5 to stockholders of record on June 3, 1949.

South Africa

sociation vice-president Francis Harman to seek relief for U. S. films. The mission was called off, however, upon receipt of word from South Africa that its government would endeavor to work out a separate ruling for motion picture imports.

No such ruling has been made yet, however, and prospects of one have dimmed somewhat since the latest report of the South African Reserve Bank. It is held, however, that the restrictions order as it now stands is rather vague in its application to film imports, for its specific references are said to be made in terms of commodities. Thus, if a separate order pertaining to films is forthcoming to fill the need for one, it may offer little or no actual relief from the provisions that would be applicable perhaps under the existing order. At least that is said to be the possibility in light of the latest report on South Africa's finances.

On the other hand, assurances that the U. S. companies "have the complete support and cooperation" of influential elements in the South African film industry are a source of hope and optimism. Pending a possible decision here again to make plans for a South African mission, U. S. film companies are looking to South African friends to secure relief there for American films.

Eisenhower Series

Each subject will run 25 minutes and will be telecast on Thursdays from nine to 9:25 P.M., EST, or as close to that time as network facilities and individual station commitments will allow.

The series will be sponsored by Time and Life, which paid in the neighborhood of $400,000 to 20th-Fox for the rights to show the shorts three times in each city over a period of 24 months.

The two-year license provides the sponsors with the opportunity to present the films in cities which do not have video stations in commercial operation at present but will have before the expiration of that period. It is the intention of the news-magazine publishers to blanket the country with the series on video in as far-reaching a fashion as the new medium will permit.

In addition to the $400,000 to 20th-Fox, Time and Life will, of course, pay for the station time slots, which are becoming increasingly expensive. ABC's New York station, WJZ-TV, this week increased its basic evening hour rate to $1,500, effective June 1, on both a network and local basis. Time and Life, however, having ordered its time prior to that date for the Eisenhower films, will pay at the present basic rate of $1,000 per evening hour.

Standard motion picture rights to the Eisenhower book have not been acquired.

Mitchell, British Director

LONDON, April 27.—Oswald Mitchell, 52, British film director and former production manager for Stoll Studios, died suddenly at his home today. Mitchell began his film career as talent scout and stunt publicist for Sir Henry Stoll and turned to directing in 1935. Among his pictures were "Rose of Tralee," "Danny Boy," "Pack Up Your Troubles" and the "Mother Riley" series.

Trade Show Values

recent "Take Me Out to the Ball Game": Costs for advance notices of screenings, $1,921; costs for use of projection rooms or theatres, $517; contract signers or their representatives present in all 31 exchange centers, approximately 221.

The current average of seven actually constitutes an increase, M-G-M records show. In previous years each of the screenings drew an average attendance of only five potential buyers.

The low exhibitor attendance is attributable to a variety of factors. Buyers for the combines, circuits and larger single houses generally prefer to screen the new product at their own screening rooms and at their own convenience. Time considerations and inconvenience of travel deter others And, as pointed out by distribution spokesmen, theatremen generally "have a way of knowing" of the merits of new films. Reviews in trade publications are relied upon, one distributor observed.

No part of this, though, is to indicate that trade screenings are likely to be abandoned by the distributors, for with the practice has come an orderly and uniform system of selling each picture around the country. Unless the company purposely sells a film division by division, such as United Artists did with "Red River" which opened in the Southwest and crossed the country gradually, one exchange is not far ahead or behind the others in contracts. Instead, all are about even, having begun selling at the time of national trade-show dates.

'Beer Guzzling' Ads

this message: "You are running a nice theatre catering to women and children, and you are supposed to show these beer-advertised pictures on your screen—and you get nothing from the national beer companies for advertising this beverage. You should find out about these beer-guzzling pictures. Maybe you should advertise this on your marquee.

"During the last two years numerous pieces of evidence have come to light that leave little doubt that producers have accepted compensation from manufacturing companies for advertising the manufacturer's product for feature pictures," it is stated.

"If relations between exhibition and production are to be improved, the above practice of production surreptitiously appropriating the advertising potential of the exhibitors' screens must be discontinued.

"Or if not discontinued, those features containing advertising, for which the producer received compensation should be plainly labeled as such."

MPAA Theatre Post

Arthur DeBra, present head of community relations, will continue as assistant to Harmon in that division.

According to reports, an ambitious program of expanded activity for MPAA in the fields of community, exhibitor and public relations has been prepared for the new departments under Harmon's direction. Considerable attention will be paid to intra-industry relations in an endeavor to hold exhibitor-distributor friction and public outbursts to a minimum, it is reported, and to bring exhibitor relations closer to the framework of the industry.

president, made the presentation to Fabian.

"I think I would not be far wrong if I were to say that all of us here tonight have benefited from the example Si Fabian has set," Skouras said. "Whenever the call has come to give aid to the afflicted and the oppressed, he has been among the first to respond. Whenever the need has arisen for leadership in a national or communal effort, he has been the one looked to for that leadership. Whenever the call came forth for generous and self-sacrificing devotion in behalf of a worthy cause, it was Si Fabian whose actions set the example of generosity, of self-sacrifice, of devotion."

FTC, CRI Inquiry

Klein, New York district investigator for the Commission.

A CRI spokesman said yesterday that he was aware of the FTC activity, and added that he believed it was a "routine" investigation in conformity with the regular functions of the Commission.

Some of the questions put to the sales executives by Klein were described by one as being "rather pointed." For example, the investigator asked how CRI member companies would undertake to check theatre receipts if CRI operations were discontinued, it was said. Klein reportedly was told in reply that the companies' only recourse would be to set up their own independent checking operations, and that such independent checking would make the procedure considerably more expensive for each company.

Klein was told also that CRI operates in such a fashion as to make impossible the exchange of any significant information among member companies.

Griffith Hearing

ernment attorneys introduced contracts between the defendant circuits and major distributors dating from the 1943-44 season to the present. Wise said the exhibits were an attempt to prove the exercise of monopoly buying power up to the present. He said 1939-40 to 1942-43 contracts will be offered in evidence later.

Testifying today were J. M. Eisenberg, New York Loew's executive, and Walter Penn, Columbia salesman out of Dallas. Penn, at one point, stated that his firm still does not sell to an independent operating in competition with Griffith's Theatre Enterprises, Inc., at Ballinger, Tex., although the same independent, Ford Taylor, buys Columbia product for Big Lake, Tex.

Previously, Penn said buying restrictions in effect against Griffith competitors prior to 1947 had been relaxed. He said that the branch manager, rather than himself, handled sales in towns where Griffith had independent competitors.

Schulberg to Italy

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—B. P. Schulberg, former Paramount production chief, will produce a picture in Italy in partnership with Americo Benefico, an Italian who will finance production, it is understood. The picture will be based on a forthcoming Lion Feuchtwanger novel, "Goya and the Duchess of Alva."

Ticket Tax Cut

George on the issue and voted for reduction, and the persistent, although unconfirmed, rumor on Capitol Hill that House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Doughton has made some commitment to send to the Senate later this year a bill including excise revision or one to which excise revisions could be added.

The excise reduction amendment, sponsored by Colorado Democratic Senator Johnson, will be offered on the Senate floor again when the oleo bill reported by the Finance Committee today, comes up for floor action. Democratic leaders admit that on the basis of the closeness of today's vote, the amendment will be hard to beat.

If the amendment should be put in the bill on the Senate floor, it undoubtedly would receive powerful House support.

Senator George may have to give some pledge of handling excises in another bill this year in order to muster enough support to defeat the Johnson amendment on the Senate floor. He has been exploring the situation with House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Doughton—the Senate cannot originate tax legislation—but as yet, they claim, nothing definite has been decided. If the House does not take up taxes this year, and if the excises are not handled in the oleo bill, there is a possibility that the excises may be considered as an amendment to the Social Security bill now being shaped by the House committee.

Five Democrats—George, Connally, Lucas, Byrd and Hoey, and two Republicans, Taft and Williams—voted against the Johnson amendment. Johnson and McGrath were joined by four Republicans—Millikin, Butler, Brewster and Martin—in support of the amendment.

Senator Butler announced he would offer an amendment on the Senate floor to reduce the tax on photographic apparatus. This was not reached by the committee today.

ment service, Royall has been engaged in law practice since his graduation from Harvard Law School in 1917. He served overseas with the army in World War I. Since 1945 he has been successively Under-Secretary of War, Secretary of War and Secretary of the Army.

Other former top government officials who have been engaged by 20th Century-Fox for special legal work include James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State, and Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War. This week Robert E. Hannegan, former Postmaster General, was nominated for membership on the board.

Extend 'Jennie' Run

This constitutes the largest single investment of its producer. Cost of such a film would be unprofitable on the basis of a two-week run. Inasmuch as the Garrick is not being used for first-rate, first-run film, neither the public nor the plaintiffs will be prejudiced by granting the relief for an indefinite period of time."

Aaron Stein represented the Selznick Organization, while Norman Korfist opposed because of Jackson Park attorney Thomas McConnell's absence.

$173,709,000 4th Quarter Gross for 8

Only Slight Drop Under 3rd Period, Says SEC

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Gross income of eight motion picture companies in the fourth quarter of last year dropped only slightly below the gross of the third quarter, the Securities and Exchange Commission disclosed here today.

Total gross for the fourth quarter was $173,709,000, compared with a third quarter total of $177,938,000. However, it was eight per cent below the $188,570,000 gross of the fourth quarter in 1947.

E-L Expects 12,000 Dates in Krim Week

"President's Week" in the current Jack Schlaifer Eagle-Lion sales testimonial drive will start today, in honor of Eagle-Lion's president, Arthur B. Krim. E-L sales vice-president William J. Heineman yesterday predicted that on the basis of pledges which he has received from E-L exchanges throughout the country, the company should hit a new high mark of 12,000 feature dates during the week.

"President's Week" coincides with the 22nd week of the 26-week Schlaifer drive, which is under the chairmanship of Milton E. Cohen, Eastern sales manager of the company.

Four films will be placed in national release by Eagle-Lion during May, it

Washington, April 28.—Senator Langer, frequent critic of the "Big Five" film companies and monopolies in industry, has introduced a bill to break up vertically-integrated industries.

The bill would prohibit producers and manufacturers from owning retail outlets.

TOA Theatre Video Progress Hampered By Vexing Problems

If the Federal Communications Commission's "freeze" on applications for television channels were removed tomorrow, a remote possibility, Theatre Owners of America would be unprepared to make a bid for channels, notwithstanding the considerable time and effort the organization has put into exploring the theatre television field with a view to entering it. Consequently, decisive action by TOA is still some distance away.

This is viewed as evidence of the difficult problems which have arisen in connection with the organization's expressed determination to establish itself firmly in the theatre video field. The TOA television committee, which

Bourme, Harbach, New Ascap Officials

Saul H. Bourme, head of the music publishing company bearing his name, and Otto A. Harbach, librettist and song writer, were elected vice-presidents of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers at the annual board meeting here yesterday. They succeed Gustave Shirmer and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd.

Fred E. Ahlert, president, was re-elected along with other incumbents, including George W. Meyer, secretary; Louis Bernstein, treasurer; Donald Gray, assistant secretary, and Frank H. Connor, assistant treasurer.

Ascap's membership now embraces some 2,041 in the writer group and 361 in the publisher category.

NCA To Hear 20th's Program on Rentals

Minneapolis, April 28.—Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox vice-president, has accepted the invitation of Ben Berger, North Central Allied president, to outline the company's film rental plans at NCA's annual convention here May 23-24, it was announced by Stan Kane, NCA executive counsel.

Kane said the entire 20th-Fox "film rental entourage" has promised to come to Minneapolis to defend its position in seeking a more equitable share of the box-office dollar.

Most Houses Need Rental Cuts: Cole

ANAMOSA, Ia., April 28.—Twenty per cent of the theatres in the U. S. "are not giving the distributors a just return in film rentals," and if 20th Century-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman and Andy Smith had confined their campaign for increased rentals to that 20 per cent "they could have had the applause of the 80 per cent balance of theatre operators." Col. H. A. Cole of Allied of Texas is so quoted in a bulletin issued here this week by Charles Niles of Allied of Iowa and Nebraska. Cole says this 20 per cent includes practically all distributor-owned and controlled theatres.

Another 20 per cent are paying fair and adequate rental, "and make a legitimate profit," the bulletin says. "Forty per cent are paying somewhat more, but by hard work, manage to

"Home of the Brave"

[Screen Plays - United Artists] — New in Theme, Approach

NEW ground in motion picture themes is broken in "Home of the Brave," an eloquently moving drama that explores the effects of racial prejudice upon a young Negro G. I. Although the picture underlines a social problem, it primarily has been fashioned for entertainment and as such is a first-class job that mounts to moments of raw power and excitement. Like its sturdy predecessor, "Gentleman's Agreement," it is outspoken in dialogue and uncompromising in content.

In large metropolitan theatres the picture very likely will draw outstanding grosses. Its merchandising is sure to be forwarded by special articles in periodicals that are certain to follow the opening of this unusual film. However, the nature of the theme would suggest that exhibitors in certain sections of the country give full consideration to community feelings on the subject.

Stanley Kramer's production has an extremely capable cast, although it is relatively unknown. James Edwards, of the legitimate theatre, holds the focal role of the Negro soldier suffering from shock that leaves his

20th Weighing More 2nd-Run Availabilities

It Likes Phila. Reception Of Plan; May Extend It

That 20th Century-Fox is giving serious thought to increasing second-run availabilities and reducing clearances after first-run in other cities, somewhat adhering to the pattern established in Philadelphia this week, became apparent here yesterday.

While official confirmation was lacking, it was said that the company has in mind an extension of the plan because of the "warm reception" it was given in Philadelphia. Some sources here, however, claimed that while those houses moving up to first-run neighborhood runs in Philadelphia are giving the idea full approval, some of those which had that neighborhood run alone before but are now to share

By RED KANN

THE Internal Revenue Bureau's general admission tax collections on February business make a piece of arresting reading on their own. They make a better story on a comparative basis.

Collections on general admissions that month, with its 28 days, were $34,716,074, and the total admission tax $38,743,621, which marks February business as the biggest of any January, February, March or December since the current tax schedule went into effect with business for April, 1944.

The general admission tax on February also was higher than collections covering receipts in the following five months of 1948: April at $28,309,290; May at $31,639,479; June at $33,054,712; July at $34,141,294 and September at $32,136,111. Thus, business in February was heavier than it was in nine of 12 months last year, having been outrun only by August, October and November. It was $7,808,690 greater than January of this year, when the return was $26,907,384.

All of this, of course, does not reflect only grosses at picture theatres, although this is preponderantly correct. Perhaps the salient point here is the proof that the entertainment dollar continues to be generous and plentiful. The figures demonstrate that the public is spending money on some form of enterment, aside from roof gardens and cabarets, which are tabulated separately.

Counter attractions may be taking away patronage to which the industry may feel it is entitled. But the industry has to remember that the entertainment medium which offers the better attraction is the one which the public will buy.

It is clearly apparent, therefore, that this industry cannot relax in its efforts to make more pictures better than they have been; that there is an ample and constantly present need to keep the selling fires burning so that enthusiasm may be generated internally and then made to explode externally where the public may see it perform.

Pete Wood could not offer better advice to his members in the ITO of Ohio than this, from one of his bulletins:

"There are plenty of reissues on the market. Some of them are doing a whale of a business, others are not. We recommend that you look before you leap and, having decided to play them, let your public know it. If there is anything distasteful in life, it is to be 'taken in', and everyone resents this — even movie patrons.

"When you play a re-release, advertise it as such. In the long run, it will pay. Your patrons will appreciate it."

The motion picture committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in turn reflecting its sub-committees throughout the nation, states "in not a single report was Communism reported as having been noted in any [major] picture."

This is not news to the industry, although it may be to the House Un-American Activities Committee.

What was it that the president of one company is reported to have said to the president of another at a recent Johnston office meeting? Whatever it was, the feelings ran high. Very high.

Urge Improvement Of Trade Relations

BOSTON, April 28.—Improved trade relations are more necessary to the industry now than better public relations, Independent Exhibitors, Inc., declares in its current bulletin to members.

"When the various divisions of the industry become related to one another, each accepting its rightful place with a friendliness and understanding that makes for better business," the bulletin asserts, "the public relations will not be too necessary as our one and only objective will be better pictures for a happier public. With a satisfied public we will have nothing to fear from any other form of competition."

Explains Para. Television

New York Paramount Theatre's system was explained last night to members of the National Television Film Council, meeting at the Brass Rail here. Richard Hodgson, director of television operations for Paramount Pictures, told how the system picks up an image, photographs it from the tube, processes it and projects it on the theatre's screen in one minute.

Coast Leaders Head UJW Fund Drive

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—An all-out drive by Hollywood industry leaders in behalf of the Los Angeles' United Jewish Welfare Fund campaign, has begun with the naming of top studio executives as drive chairmen.

At a luncheon in the Beverly Hills Hotel attended by campaign president Jack L. Warner, the following were named by industry division chairman Henry Ginsberg to head the drive in studios: Columbia, Irving Briskin and S. Sylvan Simon; Goldwyn, George Slaff; independents, Steve Broidy, Joseph I. Breen, Jr., and William Pine; M-G-M, J. J. Cohn, Armand Deutsch and Marvin Schenck; Paramount, Jacob H. Karp; RKO, Leon Goldberg and Sid Rogell; Republic, Hyman J. Glick; 20th Century-Fox, Fred S. Meyer and Lew Schreiber; United Artists, Stanley Kramer; Universal, M. W. Weiner; Warner Brothers, Harry Kurnitz and Jerry Wald.

Goal of the city-wide campaign is $11,000,000, to be allocated to overseas, local and national organizations.

Jack Warner and Ginsberg To Attend Israel Dinner

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—Jack L. Warner, president of the Los Angeles United Jewish Welfare Fund drive, and Henry Ginsberg, industry chairman, will leave here for New York over the weekend to attend a dinner Wednesday in celebration of the first anniversary of the State of Israel. The invitation was extended by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel, through Henry Morgenthau, Jr., UJA chairman.

Reach Settlement in Monroe Trust Suit

CHICAGO, April 28.—Terms of the cash settlement of the Monroe Theatre anti-trust suit, dismissed this week, are said to involve a sum under $75,000, though treble damages of $1,580,000 were sought by the plaintiffs, Lubliner and Trinz, former operators of the Monroe.

Defendants in the suit, which charged a conspiracy to prevent the house from obtaining product from Jan. 1, 1933 to March 4, 1945, were Balaban and Katz, Publix Great States, Warner, Loew's, RKO, 20th-Fox, Paramount, Columbia, Universal and United Artists. Attorneys Seymour Simon and Miles Feeley represented plaintiffs and defendants, respectively.

Wright Leaves Post With D. of J. Today

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Robert Wright, Justice Department attorney in charge of the Paramount and other film anti-trust cases for the last decade, cleaned out his desk today.

Wright will leave government service tomorrow, just short of 11 years with the anti-trust division. He joined in July, 1938. He plans to set up his own law office here "in a couple of months."

Book on Industry Short

A four-page campaign book on "Let's Go to the Movies," first of the industry short subjects, has been prepared by RKO Radio, distributor of the one-reeler.

"Home of the Brave"

legs paralyzed. Under the probings of an Army psychiatrist, the patient's whole agonized past of persecution comes back in dream-like images. Flashback technique has seldom been used more imaginatively than here. It is while on a reconnaissance mission on a Jap-held South Pacific atoll that the patient's deep-rooted sense of persecution becomes aggravated by the severe battle conditions and the bigoted taunts of one of the other soldiers. The breakdown follows.

By the slow therapy of psychoanalysis the doctor lifts the sense of persecution from the patient's mind and finally cures him physically with the dramatic reassurance that he is not different from any other man.

Mark Robson's direction keeps the story on the constant edge of excitement, and Carl Foreman has provided a screenplay in which the characters emerge from their experiences as real human beings. The film, for the most part, is set in the grimy, Jap-held atoll and centers on five soldiers who went on the mission. Frank Lovejoy, prominent radio performer, plays a "Tech" sergeant, always at odds with Steve Brodie who uses the lone Negro soldier as a whipping boy. The two others on the mission are Douglas Dick, the officer in charge, and Lloyd Bridges, who is killed in action.

This Screen Plays production was adapted from the Broadway play by Arthur Laurents, which, instead of Negro prejudice, had anti-Semitism as its central theme. Robert Stillman was associate producer. Plaudits are deserved in every department.

Running time, 88 minutes. Adult audience classification. For June or July release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"Sand"

(20th-Century-Fox)

WILL JAMES' novel of the same title served as the source of this noteworthy film about horses and the West. Fine motion pictures have sprung from other Will James books—"Smokey," for example—but none, we venture, can match Robert Bassler's Technicolor production of "Sand" from the standpoints of scenic and animal beauty, intelligent approach and dramatic flavor.

Sensitively directed by Louis King, from an adult and literate script by Martin Berkeley and Jerome Cady, this wholesome, full-bodied story about a "civilized" prize-winning stallion that is thrown on its own resources in the open wilds of Colorado stands as really delightful entertainment. One of this picture's prime virtues is the fact that it does not rest its appeal in artifices and cliches as have some pictures about horses.

Mark Stevens is given top billing as a wealthy horse fancier whose blue-ribbon champion, Jubilee, escapes from a fire in a railroad horse car and dashes in panic into the Western desert and hill country where the train is forced to stop. Pretty ranch owner Coleen Gray, who sights the beautiful runaway stallion as he seeks to strike up a romantic attachment with one of the mares in her herd, communicates with Stevens, and, together, they set out to hunt Jubilee. The animal, meanwhile, has developed wild instincts which together with its inherent "sand" (slang for courage) leads it to survive in the wilderness, elude recapture, and even acquire a mate.

In their association Stevens and Miss Gray borrow inspiration from Jubilee's progress at romance—with some broad hints by the lady's outspoken grandad, Charley Grapewin, helping to ripen their affection for each other. Finally, they are able to capture Jubilee, but are alarmed to find him wild almost beyond rehabilitation. But before disposing of the horse with a bullet, Stevens makes a desperate attempt at suasion, and thereby succeeds in bringing the animal to its "civilized" senses. Rory Calhoun lends a mild touch of hot-headed villainy to the proceedings. Others in the competent cast include Bob Patten, Mikel Conrad, Tom London, Paul Hogan and Jack Gallagher.

Running time, 77 minutes. General audience classification. For July release.

Canadians Get a Video Coordinator

OTTAWA, April 28. — Canadian Broadcasting Commission has appointed Alphonse Ouimet, engaged in television research for the Commission since 1932, as television coordinator and regional representative in Newfoundland.

Dr. Augustin Frigon, CBC general manager, states Ouimet will be coordinator during the "preliminary stages preceding actual television operations in Canada."

Cougar in 'Cat' Troupe

SALT LAKE CITY, April 28.—A cougar headed the Hollywood troupe that arrived here today for the world premiere of Eagle-Lion's "Big Cat," opening at the Utah and Capitol theatres tomorrow. Mayor Earl J. Glade greeted the visitors, who include Peggy Ann Garner, Lina Romay, Preston Foster, Chill Wills, Lois Butler, Jane Withers and producer Bill Moss.

Says Griffith Buys 'One At a Time'

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 28.—Defense witnesses continued to appear at the Griffith mandate hearing here today, with John Underwood, Columbia Southern division manager testifying that his company now negotiates with the circuit on a one-picture-at-a-time basis.

"We work several hours on one picture where we used to sit down and and agree on 44 films in a day or two," Underwood told Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught. He denied that Columbia had an understanding with Griffith to deny sales to independent competitors. Robert C. Hill, another Columbia salesman from Denver, also took the stand.

Short Subject

"Fraud Fighters"

(This Is America—RKO Pathe)

The ever-vigilant activities of the Food and Drug Administration of the Federal Securities Agency in protecting the public from manufacturers of fake products is spotlighted in the current This Is America subject. It is highly interesting and informative.

The subject for the most part shows how, in one typical case, the FDA tracked down a quack medicine manufacturer. It has many other highlights, including scenes of the huge FDA laboratories in Washington where scientists make extensive tests on medical and other products. Running time, 17 minutes.

Actress Asks Share In Beatty Estate

DETROIT, April 28. — A $350,000 claim by a Chicago actress against the $1,500,000 estate of the late Edward C. Beatty, former head of the Butterfield circuit, is before Probate Judge Thomas C. Murphy here.

Dorothy Van, the claimant, says that for 30 years prior to Beatty's death she was associated with him in his numerous theatrical enterprises and that for her advice and assistance Beatty promised she would receive the Michigan Theatre at Ann Arbor, a Butterfield unit valued at $250,000, and $100,000 cash at the time of his death. Judge Murphy is considering a motion to dismiss the claim.

Enterprise Cancels Film for M-G-M

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—Enterprise will not produce "Third Secret," fourth picture promised to M-G-M for distribution, due to the company's inability to meet the delivery date, David Loew, board chairman, said here today. Loew said that Enterprise is in the process of liquidation.

New 'IA' Buffalo Heads

BUFFALO, April 28.—City Council president Peter J. Crotty last evening installed officers of two IATSE Film Exchange Employes (AFL) locals in the Hotel Markeen. The new officers are: Local No. F-9, President, Gertrude S. Franklin; vice-president, Ruth Martin; business agent, Gerald Stark; recording secretary, Rose Sinatra; financial secretary, Margaret Onions, and sergeant-at-arms, Doris Maes. Local B-9, president, Mary Fiallella; vice-president, William Sheridan; business agent, John A. Brunner; recording secretary, John Wilhelm and financial secretary, Evelyn Garnham.

Trade Charter May Cut Film Barriers

Washington, April 28.—President Truman today submitted for Congressional approval the International Trade Organization Charter.

The charter has several provisions which might mean fewer restrictions on films.

In Philadelphia, 20th-Fox has divided the territory into 18 zones with one house in each to be given neighborhood first-run availability on the basis of competitive sliding-scale bidding. In the past only eight or nine houses had that availability after a downtown first-run.

Al Lichtman, Charles Einfeld and other 20th-Fox executives were in session at the home office yesterday, exchanging notes on the results of their recent tour of exhibitor meetings at which they announced the company's intention of adjusting rentals upwards. is under the chairmanship of Mitchell Wolfson, is slated to attack the problems again at a meeting here on May 4. The following day it will meet again with video specialists of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

While describing as "feasible" the chances of TOA's setting up a television broadcasting station in New York, Gael Sullivan, executive director of the organization, said yesterday that TOA has yet to examine the possible bases of financing such a project. The physical engineering aspects of theatre video, such as the effecting of installations in theatres, Sullivan regards as "no particular problem." TOA's tie-up with SMPE evidently has brought about solutions to whatever engineering difficulties that may have existed originally.

The engineering problems which remain a challenge to TOA appear to be those associated with pending developments in ultra-high frequency telecasting, according to Sullivan. As the medium "grows" so do the problems for TOA increase, he said.

Selznick in Detroit On SIMPP Suit

DETROIT, April 28.—David O. Selznick gave a deposition here today in the $8,750,000 anti-trust suit brought by the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers against United Detroit Theatres and Commonwealth Theatres. Robert J. Rubin, SIMPP counsel, accompanied the producer.

After being questioned about profits and losses of his company, Selznick left immediately for the Coast.

Reviews

"Africa Screams"

(Nassour-United Artists)

HOW do you like your comedy? Broad? No holds barred? Slapstick of the unsubtle, double-take species? "Africa Screams" has it all in abundance, with Abbott and Costello at play with scores of lions and other denizens of African jungles and what goes on, in its broader aspects, might be novelty enough to catch the public's fancy.

Some of the gags, perhaps, should not have been disinterred at all, but for the most part it is not too difficult to expect an audience to behave like so many uninhibited and highly amused youngsters as Bud and Lou romp from one absurdity to another, within claw's reach of an orang-utang, or jumping from the stew-pot when ensnared by cannibals, all in the zaniest fashion.

For exploitation purposes, Abbott and Costello are in good company. Clyde Beatty cracks the whip in a lions' cage in the jungle; Frank Buck is seen on a safari with all of his trappings, while brother behemoths of the ring, Buddy and Max Baer, take part in the fun, however clumsily.

Costello is the animal-fearing buffoon whose boastings of prowess on the hunt lead him and his book-selling partner, Abbott, to an African expedition sponsored by Hillary Brooke. Her aim is diamonds. It is Costello who comes back with the wealth, though, mostly because a jungle ape becomes enamored of him and lends assistance. Joe Besser and Shemp Howard also are in the cast. Earl Baldwin's screenplay was directed by Charles Barton. Edward Nassour produced the film which is listed as a Huntington Hartford production.

Running time, 79 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, May 27.

GENE ARNEEL

"Lone Wolf and His Lady"

(Columbia)

RON RANDELL appears as the "Lone Wolf" in a quick-moving yarn about the mysterious disappearance of a fabulous diamond, in a production which measures up to about average for the series.

June Vincent, as a police reporter, meets the Lone Wolf who promises to give her paper the exclusive story of his past exploits. When there is an exposition of a very large diamond, the city editor has the Lone Wolf report the story. In the middle of the reception, a gas bomb explodes and the diamond is taken from the case. Immediately the police arrest the Lone Wolf but he eludes them and proves that the stone in the exposition was merely glass. The Lone Wolf leads the police to the culprit, the jewel cutter who had hidden the diamond in his case and was about to leave the country. This film was produced by Rudolph Flothow and directed by John Hoffman. Malcom Stuart Boyland wrote the screenplay, from a story by Louis Joseph Vance. Other performers are Alan Mowbray, William Frawley, Collette Lyons, Douglas Dumbrille, James Todd and Steven Geray.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification. For August release.

"'C'-Man"

(Laurel—Film Classics)

CONVENTIONAL cops-and-robbers melodramatics are flavored with the now fashionable documentary technique in "'C'-Man," a frugally-budgeted, fast-moving foray into the exploits of U. S. Customs investigators. This picture's modest production proportions bespeak commensurately modest returns at theatres which do not stress action films, but at "action" situations it should prove financially gratifying.

With most of the exteriors filmed on location in New York City, the picture takes on an occasional tone of authenticity which is dissipated at times by the broad theatrics which the performers introduce into the proceedings under the vigorous direction of Joseph Lerner, who also produced.

Berne Giler's screenplay assigns to Customs Agent Dean Jagger the grim task of tracking down a smuggling ring whose leader (Rene Paul) already has killed Jagger's best friend and co-worker. The agent runs up against the fists of Paul's mad-doggish henchman, luridly portrayed by Harry Landers, as he latches onto the scent of the culprits. Excitement and interest, stimulated by a sometimes distractingly cacophonous musical score, build to an adequate extent before the chases, double-crosses, rough-housing and a touch of romance carry the film to a showdown finale. John Carradine does well in the small part of a dipsomaniac conspirator, heading a supporting cast which includes Lottie Elwen, Walter Vaughan, Adelaide Klein, Edith Atwater, Jean Ellyn and Walter Brooke. Rex Carlton was executive producer for this Laurel Films presentation.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. Release date,

Discina Acquires Six

Acquisition of six films, four of them in a foreign language, from M-G-M International Films Corp. for distribution in the United States and Canada, has been announced here by Discina-International Films Corp. The films are: "Angels of the Streets," "It Happened at the Inn," "Stormy Water," "When Words Fail," "The Last Chance" and "Portrait of Maria." The latter two, though foreign-made, are in English.

Roger Touhy Gains Point

CHICAGO, April 28.—Judge Michael L. Igoe of U. S. District Court has overruled a motion to dismiss a $500,000 damage suit brought by Roger Touhy against Balaban and Katz and 20th-Fox on the grounds that he was libeled by the film, "Roger Touhy, gangster," released by 20th-Fox. The Court rejected a defense argument that Touhy lost his rights to citizenship when he was convicted and sent to prison.

4th Quarter Gross

Republic. United Artists and 20th Century-Fox were the only majors not reported. Also not included were Eagle-Lion and Film Classics.

Company-by-company figures for the fourth quarter of 1948 and a comparison with the third quarter of 1948 and the fourth quarter of 1947, follow:

Columbia: $8,525,000; (third quarter, July 1-Sept. 25, $8,668,000; fourth quarter 1947, Sept. 28-Dec. 31, $7,172,000). Gross income from Columbia's foreign subsidiaries was reported as $3,674,000 for the third quarter of 1948 and $4,077,000 for the fourth quarter of 1947. No figure was given for the final quarter of 1948. These foreign sales figures were not included in the quarterly sales figures.

Loew's and wholly owned subsidiaries consolidated: $34,042,000; (third quarter, $39,446,000; fourth quarter 1947, from Sept. 1-Nov. 20, $33,107,000).

Monogram: $3,157,000; (third quarter, 13 weeks, $2,491,000; fourth quarter 1947, for the 13 weeks ending Dec. 27, $2,313,000).

Paramount: $41,300,000; (third quarter, 13 weeks, $43,320,000; fourth quarter 1947, $49,197,000).

RKO: $27,500,000; (third quarter, 13 weeks, $26,500,000; fourth quarter 1947, from Sept. 28-Dec. 31, $31,552,000). The RKO figures include net amounts of "film earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated, operating in foreign territories" of $2,825,000 in the fourth quarter of 1948, $3,379,000 in the third quarter and $4,575,000 in the fourth quarter of 1947.

Republic: $7,443,000, for 14 weeks; (third quarter, 13 weeks, $6,427,000; fourth quarter 1947, 13 weeks, $7,306,000).

Universal: $15,742,000; (third quarter, $12,086,000; fourth quarter 1947, $17,912,000).

Warner Brothers: $36,000,000; (third quarter, $39,000,000; fourth quarter 1947, $40,011,000). The two 1948 figures are "estimated gross income."

Three theatre companies reported the following figures:

Consolidated Amusement Co., Ltd.: $1,170,000; (third quarter, $1,333,000; fourth quarter 1947, $1,127,000).

Loew's Boston Theatres Co.: $432,000; (third quarter, $424,000; fourth quarter 1947, $405,000).

Penn-Federal Corp.: $290,000; (third quarter, $298,000; fourth quarter 1947, $301,000).

Trans-Lux Corp.: 1948 fourth quarter sales, $434,000, compared with $387,000 in the third quarter and $241,000 in the fourth quarter of 1947.

Eastman Kodak Co.: $138,000,000 in sales for the 16 weeks ending Dec. 26, 1948, compared with $120,000,000 for the comparable 1947 period and $105,000,000 for the 12 weeks ending Sept. 4, 1948.

General Precision Equipment Corp.: 1948 fourth quarter sales of $7,626,000, third quarter sales of $7,162,000 and $7,849,000 for the fourth quarter of 1947.

David O. Selznick has become president of the Selznick Releasing Organization in a new alignment of the film distributing company's officers.

Other officers appointed by Selznick were: Sidney G. Deneau, sales vice-president; Leonard R. Case, vice-president and treasurer; David I. Bursten, secretary; Richard Hungate and Betty Goldsmith, assistant secretaries. Paul MacNamara continues as vice-president in charge of public relations.

Para. Divestiture in Minnesota Underway

MINNEAPOLIS, May 1.—Early identification of theatres which Minnesota Amusement, Paramount affiliate, must part with is expected following recent discussions here of the Paramount trust suit settlement, between Harry French, president of the circuit, and Paramount home office theatre officials. Leonard Goldenson, Paramount theatre head; Walter Gross, attorney and officer of the new Paramount theatre company to be formed, and Robert O'Brien, Paramount secretary, participated in the discussions with French. The former two returned to New York immediately following the discussions, while O'Brien left for Butte, Mont., his home town.

Under terms of the decree, Paramount-Minnesota Amusement must dispose of one theatre in each of the following cities: Fairmont, Austin, Mankato, Minneapolis, St. Cloud and St. Paul, Minn.; Fargo and Minot, N. D.; Aberdeen, Huron and Watertown, S. D., and Eau Claire, Wisc.

The association now numbers over 75 members.

MGM Played 38% Of Music Hall Time

Since October 27, 1938 when the first M-G-M picture played Radio City Music Hall, M-G-M pictures have played a total of 209 weeks or 38.5 per cent out of 543 weeks of available time, according to the company. Some 47 M-G-M pictures have played the Music Hall. The company's "Random Harvest" holds the all-time, long-run record of 11 weeks for the house.

M-G-M's "The Stratton Story" will start a run at the house on May 5, to be followed by the company's "Edward, My Son."

Mexican Industry Faces 50% Pay Hike

MEXICO CITY, May 1. — Labor trouble again looms for the Mexican trade with the announcement by the National Cinematographic Industry Workers Union that in June or July it will demand a 50 per cent pay raise for its members, who are mostly employees of Mexican producers, distributors and exhibitors. This move is apart from a similar one that American and other foreign distributors expect in August.

Producers and studios affected by this move indicate they would not be able to meet the raise. Trade opinion, though, is that they must make a concession, as they did in 1947.

Gov't To Name Mayer Successor Shortly

Arthur Mayer, head of the American Military Government's motion picture division in Germany, returned to New York from Washington at the weekend following conferences there with government officials. He said candidates for his post, which he has expressed a desire to leave, are being interviewed in Washington, and that an appointment probably will be made within two weeks. Mayer expects to continue active in the post for 60 or 90 days longer.

Scheduled to leave New York today for the U. S. Army airport at Westover, Mass., Mayer will fly from there tomorrow for Frankfort where he makes his headquarters.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Approximately 1,500 Variety Club members from the 48 states, Canada and Mexico are expected to attend the 13th annual Variety Clubs' International convention which will open here tomorrow and run through Friday.

The convention's social program is highlighted by a "Variety Movie Ball" at the St. Francis Hotel Tuesday night, the "Humanitarian Award" dinner at the Palace Hotel Wednesday night, a "Variety Round-up" in Hayward Thursday afternoon and a "Variety Frolics" Friday night at the Tivoli theatre.

Chief aim of the convention is to raise $100,000 for blind babies. Rotus Harvey is general convention chairman.

20th Resumes Adjustments In New York

Company's 'Final' Policy Is Now Being Drafted

The experimental nature of 20th Century-Fox's methods in its campaign for upward revisions in film rentals has been manifested in the New York Metropolitan area where exhibitors report that the company has abandoned its recently-established policy of disallowing adjustments and credits.

Although spokesmen for the company declined at the weekend to either confirm or deny the reports that it has reverted to the selling procedures which were terminated here a month ago, it is understood that 20th-Fox vice-president Al Lichtman has been preparing a document which sets

9 Percentage Suits Filed by Majors

Nine new percentage suits have been filed in Ohio and Louisiana.

In Cleveland, four suits were filed in U. S. District Court, in which M. C. Martin and others operating the Dayton Theatres in Akron, were named defendants. Separate suits were brought by RKO, Loew's, Paramount and 20th Century-Fox. Jones, Day, Cockley and Reavis of Cleveland are the attorneys for the plaintiffs with Sargoy and Stein of New York acting as counsel.

In New Orleans, five suits naming

Semenenko Confers With E-L Bidders

Serge Semenenko, vice-president and motion picture financing specialist for the First National Bank of Boston, conferred here on Friday with prospective bidders for control of Eagle-Lion. The Boston bank has been prominently identified with E-L financing.

Separate conferences reportedly are under way on the West Coast. Identity of the prospective bidders could not be confirmed but reports were that all are well known within the industry.

NCA Meeting Today To Map Convention

MINNEAPOLIS, May 1.—North Central Allied's board of directors will meet here tomorrow to map plans for the unit's annual convention, May 23-24, and the National Allied conclave to be held in Minneapolis on October 24-26.

Already set for the NCA convention is the second annual banquet for past chief barkers, slated to close the sessions.

State Building Code Effective Today

Albany, N. Y., May 1.—The new New York State building code for theatres and other places of public assembly will become effective tomorrow. It replaces the code which has been in effect since 1922, and exempts from its provisions only theatres in New York City which has its own building code.

The new code was in preparation four years.

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

THERE is very definite interest on the part of a sizeable group of theatre operators in acquiring or forming a production-distribution company, as the trade press has reported from time to time over the past several years.

It is interesting to note now that there has been no abatement of that interest; in fact, it has probably increased in recent months and has spread to additional exhibitors, thus giving it a national complexion at the present time.

The subject was referred to by Arthur Lockwood, Theatre Owners of America president, in a recent organizational bulletin. The present interest appears to have stemmed from the negotiations for the purchase of United Artists conducted two years ago by Si Fabian and Ted R. Gamble, and was stimulated to greater proportions when the two reentered the United Artists sale picture recently.

As is generally known, the Fabian-Gamble plan provided for the participation of a representative number of theatre operators in the event purchase of United Artists proved feasible. There was widespread exhibitor interest in the plan two years ago, certainly of sufficient proportions to insure its success had Mary Pickford accepted the deal which to all intents and purposes had been agreed upon then.

In the two-year interval between the first and recent Fabian-Gamble negotiations for United Artists, exhibitor interest in such an enterprise had increased considerably. Experience with single picture selling and competitive bidding undoubtedly contributed to the added interest.

Small and large circuit owners missed the assurance of definite supplies of product, decreasing lengths of runs added to the uncertainties and periodic shortages of good first run product in a period of mounting costs induced more and more exhibitors to think in terms of stock or franchise ownership in a producing-distributing company of their own. A product franchise has all the earmarks of a business insurance policy to many circuit operators today.

Numbers of them in every section of the country are more alert today than ever before to an opportunity to invest 50, 100 or several hundred thousand dollars each in a project that will assure them a supply certain of 20 to 30 reasonably good features a year. It is not unlikely that they will reappear in negotiations for one or another existing production-distribution companies nor is it entirely unlikely that, failing in that direction, they may yet establish a production company of their own.

An interesting aspect of the recent two-day meeting in Washington of the Anglo-American Film Advisory Council is that a full week later no report of what occurred had been made to directors of the Motion Picture Association nor to company presidents who were not in attendance at the meeting.

The explanation given is that the three American industry representatives, Eric Johnston, Barney Balaban and Nicholas Schenck, assured their British counterparts, J. Arthur Rank, Sir Alexander Korda and Sir Henry French, that no statements, not even private ones, would be made here until such time as the British council members had returned to London and had an opportunity to report to their associates there.

A nice enough courtesy, to be sure, but puzzling in view of the generally supposed lack of anything momentous to be reported. As a matter of fact, the voluntarily imposed secrecy gave rise to the impression that some understanding or agreement of import may have been arrived at by the conferees. Highly placed men in the industry concede that there could have been agreement or understanding on any number of subjects—none of them urgent or important enough to warrant prompt exposition to MPAA directors.

The most frequently encountered impression is that the meeting provided a convenient forum for frank talk and an exchange of views that should prove helpful to better understandings and improved relationships between the two industries in the future. But the basic trade problems remain where they were before—on the governmental level.

And as for information that is withheld indefinitely, it usually proves to be less interesting to others than to its custodians.

Warner, MacArthur Settlement Fading

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Hope for an out-of-court settlement of the Warner and K-B Co. row over the MacArthur Theatre split faded Friday.

K-B and Warners last week agreed on terms for Warners to get out of the joint venture, but this was contingent on K-B coming to terms with a third party, Kass Realty Corp., to free Warners of all financial responsibility for a second theatre to be built by Kass for K-B. Kass has refused to release Warners from a contractual promise to post a $50,000 bond in such a case, and attorneys for all parties agreed that as of this moment the whole settlement is off.

Minnesota Clearance

by Harold Field and Harold Kaplan of the Minneapolis suburban St. Louis Park, who have proposed a new 35-day "slot" for the Park and its nearest independent competitor, Friedman Brothers' Edina. Field and Kaplan took their 35-day proposal to New York when the Edina made a demand for a 28-day run, the Park owners fearing a competitive bidding war if the Edina demand is granted. They also reasoned the 28-day run would bring in the deluxe Hopkins, in suburban Hopkins, five miles west of the Park, to add to a possible film rental price war.

Requests of the Alhambra, Camden, Hollywood and El Lago, all independent neighborhood runs, for a 28-day run two weeks ago, brought the decision of RKO to study the situation.

Meantime, a bombshell was dropped in the middle of the clearance squabble last week when Minnesota Amusement Co. notified exchange managers that the east side Arion, competitor to the Hollywood, would switch to a 28-day policy. The move, made by Maco's chief film buyer John Branton, came as a surprise, as Branton is said to have stymied 28-day run plans of distributors for a number of St. Paul outskirt stands late last year, and has been regarded as unalterably opposed to advancing clearance schedules in any marked degree.

Defense in 2nd Week At Griffith Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 1.—A continued lengthy hearing appears likely in the Griffith anti-trust case, which moves into the second week of defense testimony tomorrow, with defense witnesses going into considerable detail to answer the charges and allegations by Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico independents on discrimination by distributors.

Friday witnesses include Robert C. Hill, supervisor of the Denver-Salt Lake City area for Columbia; T. D. Tidwell and W. B. Williams of the 20th Century-Fox Dallas' office; and Harold Beecroft, former 20th-Fox branch manager at Dallas.

Essaness Follows B&K's Video Lead

CHICAGO, May 1.—Plans for live television shows at the Essaness Oriental in the Loop are being formulated, president Edwin Silverman said Friday, in a move to keep up with the B & K Chicago, which will shortly premiere its first live television show.

Paramount's tele-transcription system has already been installed at the Chicago, but the inaugural show is being delayed until a local show of star caliber is lined up. According to Silverman, the Oriental will adopt a somewhat different format for television shows than that of the Chicago.

Harmon Appointment All Set with MPAA

Washington, May 1.—Official appointment of Francis Harmon, Motion Picture Association of America vice-president, as head of the expanded exhibitor and community relations departments of the MPAA, is expected to be announced here within the next few days, possibly tomorrow.

Harmon was here from New York yesterday for conferences with Eric Johnston, MPAA president, at which final arrangements reportedly were made. Inasmuch as the new program is entirely departmental, approval of the MPAA board of directors is not required.

Republic 'Collarites' Vote for Union Shop

Republic's home office "white collarites" at the weekend voted two-to-one in favor of a union shop in an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board here, it was reported by Joseph M. Conlon, business agent for AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63. The "IA" local recently won the Republic unit away from CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild.

Conlon said H-63's contract negotiations with Republic officials will "reach a climax" shortly.

SPG, SOPEG Will Hold Joint Strategy Meeting Wednesday

CIO's Screen Publicists and Screen Office and Professional Employes guilds will hold a joint strategy meeting Wednesday evening at the Park Sheraton Hotel here. Both unions have been negotiating with distributors for new contracts, and have encountered unyielding opposition to a number of their demands. Wednesday's meeting reportedly will be for the purpose of deciding whether the two guilds will take so-called "cold strike" action against the companies.

Weeks Required to Complete Para.-Comerford Split-Up

Negotiations for the ending of Paramount's 50 per cent interest in Comerford Theatres of Pennsylvania, comprising some 64 jointly-owned theatres, are progressing but many more weeks of work are still involved in the task, it was stated here officially on Friday.

While details of the negotiations were not disclosed, it is reported that efforts are being made to so apportion the division of properties in accordance with agreed-upon valuations as to require the transfer of a minimum amount of cash by either side.

Percentage Suits

Harold H. Bailey, I. Roy Calamia and Bailey-Calamia Theatrical Co. were filed in Civil District Court for the Parish of Orleans. Separate suits were brought by Universal, 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, RKO and Paramount. The theatre involved is the Gentilly in New Orleans. Chaffe, McCall, Toler and Phillips of New Orleans are the attorneys for the plaintiff distributors.

The complaints in all of these cases are substantially similar to each other and to those in various other actions pending throughout the country.

Annual Variety Meet

Barker, from Dallas, and John Harris, Variety Club founder, of Pittsburgh, will greet the visitors.

In a pre-convention celebration Friday night at the local Press Club, they will be joined by Harvey, Abe Blumenfeld and Chief Barker of Tent No. 32, James O'Neil. Graham Kislingbury, member of both Variety and the Press Club, will be host to the welcome-dinner.

Registration started this afternoon and will continue daily. International canvasmen meet tomorrow, with the first general session Tuesday.

forth the company's final decisions with respect to its campaign. Lichtman and distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., have spent the past six weeks in making first-hand surveys of selling methods in various parts of the country with a view to reshaping the company's merchandising approach.

In addresses before exhibitor gatherings and 20th-Fox sales division meetings, Lichtman has repeatedly admonished that he and Smith, with the assistance of advertising-publicity vice-president Charles Einfeld, were engaged only in investigatory and "educational" activity, and that ultimately the company would put its final decisions on the record.

At the company's New York City exhibitor meeting last April 3, the 20th-Fox executives announced that under a "new selling policy" credits and adjustments were discontinued. The new policy applied to all theatres, including those affiliated with the company, they said. Exhibitors here were uninformed at the weekend as to whether the new policy has been altered in other sections of the country.

During the executives' nationwide tour, Lichtman has at various times expressed himself as being in favor of "modernizing" clearances governing first-run operations, and adoption by the company of the sliding scale method of selling. His final report is expected to state the company's position on these as well as other possibilities which have been examined by him and Smith.

Smith and Lichtman were unavailable for comment on Friday.

F.&M. Sets St. Louis First Run Deal

ST. LOUIS, May 1. — A first run sales agreement between Fanchon and Marco, 20th Century-Fox and Paramount has been reached at a conference here last week attended by Andy W. Smith, Jr., 20th-Fox sales vice-president, M. R. Clark, Paramount division manager, and Edward B. Arthur, Fanchon and Marco general manager. The terms, which cover 10 new films, were not revealed.

Three Paramount films will remain at the small independent World Theatre where they were reassigned after Paramount and Fanchon and Marco failed to reach a rental agreement.

'Paso' Booking Hit By St. Louis Group

ST. LOUIS, May 1.—Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois have passed a resolution hitting Paramount for showing "El Paso," on first run at the World Theatre, a small house in far downtown St. Louis. Paramount switched "El Paso" to the World after a disagreement with Fanchon and Marco over terms for the picture. The exhibitors' association expressed the opinion that a first-run in a big St. Louis theatre is highly desirable before releasing a film in the St. Louis area.

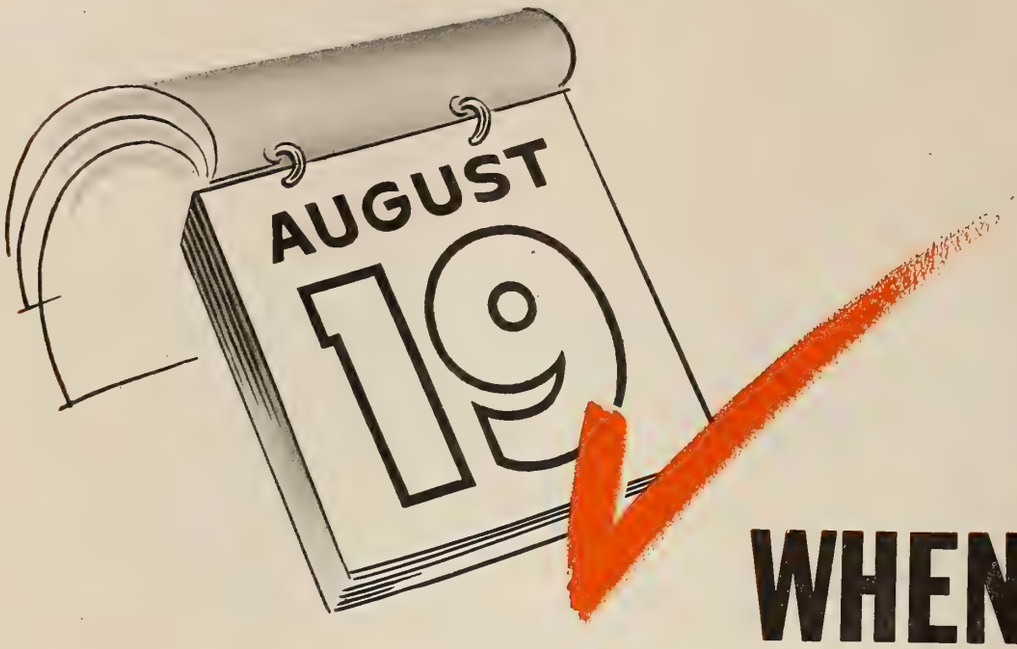
SEATTLE, Wash., May 1. — Frank Barovic, 54, co-owner with his brother, Michael, of theatres in Tacoma, Puyallup, Sumner and Bellingham, died Friday at his home in Puyallup, Wash., after a long illness.



Crosby and Hope on 'Road to Security'

TWO of the film industry's best salesmen, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, team up on "The Road to Security," one of the U. S. Treasury savings bond posters to be displayed in theatres in this year's bond drive. The entertainment world has massed its most important talent to help make this drive the greatest since the end of the war. Others in show business are participating, including Jack Benny and other personalities from his radio show, who have made a 10-minute short which will be shown in theatres and on television programs.

The poster is printed in red, white and blue, and is a standard size one-sheet which will be sent to all theatres by the motion picture industry committee working in cooperation with the Treasury Department.

Supreme Court Turns Down Momand Case

Ends 12-Year-Old Suit Against Major Firms

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The U.S. Supreme Court today refused to review a decision of the Boston Circuit Court of Appeals throwing out a 12-year-old anti-trust suit by A. B. Momand against major film companies.

Defendants in the action were Universal, Loew's, M-G-M Distributing Corp., 20th Century-Fox, Vitagraph, RKO, United Artists and Columbia.

The suit, brought originally in the Boston District Court in June, 1937, alleged damages from a conspiracy against Momand Theatres in Oklaloma. The companies declared that the issues had been fully tried in three earlier suits by Momand, and that the statute of limitations had run out on most of the counts. The lower courts upheld their contention, and the Supreme Court today stood by the lower court rulings.

Another Trust Suit Is Filed in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 2.—An anti-trust suit was filed in U. S. District Court at South Bend, Ind., on behalf of the South Bend Drive-in Theatre Co., operator of the Auto Outdoor Theatre. Suit charges that eight defendant distributors give clearance priority of 30 days to the State, Colfax, Granada and Palace theatres (all Publix Great States) and 14 days clearance to the Niles Drive-in.

Defendants are: Paramount, Warner, Loew's, Columbia, RKO, United Artists, Universal, 20th-Fox, Balaban and Katz and subsidiaries. George N. Beamer, former attorney general of South Bend, represents the plaintiff.

Call 20th - Fox Men In Griffith Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 2.—Defense attorneys in the Griffith anti-trust mandate hearing presented two more witnesses today to deny statements attributed to them by Texas and Oklahoma independents.

U-I Selling Away From RKO in Loop

Chicago, May 2.—Universal-International is gradually selling away some of its first-product to Essaness and Balaban and Katz Loop houses. With "City Across the River" currently playing the Oriental, "Ma and Pa Kettle" is scheduled for the Roosevelt on Wednesday. U-I normally plays first-run product at either the RKO Palace or Grand. Fact that the Grand is emerging into a long run house may partially account for selling away to the two other circuits.

MGM Explores Sliding-Scales

A new type of "sliding-scale" selling directed at aiding exhibitors to strive for higher grosses is being sought by M-G-M. The company's sales organization reportedly is working on an "incentive" formula which would turn the percentage scale downward when a theatre's gross reaches a pivotal figure.

Declining to comment on the progress of the sales department's reported research into new sales techniques, distribution vice-president William F. Rodgers yesterday parried inquiries by stating that "we are always trying to improve our merchandising methods."

New industry interest in "sliding-scale" possibilities has been stimulated

Life's Film Seminar To Hear Producers At Final Session

Third phase of a motion picture research round-table discussion being conducted by Life magazine will open at Lake Arrowhead, Cal., May 13.

The initial session, presided over by Eric Hodgins, former publisher of Fortune, was held here recently with film critics, educators and others expressing their views on motion pictures. A follow-up on that is scheduled for next week here with several industry officials having been invited to participate.

A second phase, held in Chicago, sought the views of exhibitors and also will be supplemented by a follow-up session. Hollywood producers and technicians will be heard during the final phase at Lake Arrowhead.

The motion picture discussions are described by Life as a procedure for briefing and orienting its editors on motion picture subjects, after which staff members will prepare stories and pictures on the sessions for publication by the magazine this summer. Similar sessions were held and reported upon by Life on the subjects of "Pursuit of Happiness," Art and Housing.

ARMIT Claims 20th's Rental Plan Fails

DENVER, May 2.—Rocky Mountain Allied in a current bulletin advises its members that 20th Century-Fox's program for increasing film rentals "has flopped."

"Twentieth Century-Fox distributors in the field already are apologizing for the whole thing," the bulletin states.

Stress Public Relations At Theatre Meets

Gets Big Play in Lieu of Ascap, Taxes, Gripes

Industry public relations and individual theatre showmanship as kindred subjects have soared to among the most prominent positions on the agenda of exhibitor organization meetings around the country, having supplanted in large part such favorite topics in the past as Federal admission taxes, Ascap and general business conditions in terms of receipts.

This is the observation of industry executives who have attended recent meetings in the field and plan to sit in at others in the immediate future. At least nine regional and state organizations will convene within the next two months.

Except such business as may demand immediate attention, like the threat of new local taxation or other legislative action, or consideration of

Assign Studios to 5 Industry Subjects

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—Five short subjects which will complete the first series of the industry's "The Movies and You" films have been assigned to studios for production, Grant Leenhouts, coordinator-producer of the series, announced here today. The assignments are:

"History Brought to Life," to be made at Paramount; "Moments in Music," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "The Costume Designer," RKO Radio, "Screen Directors," Warner; "Screen Writers," 20th Century-Fox. Scripts on all five have been approved by the industry committee in charge, of which Y. Frank Freeman is chairman.

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—Studio employment rose in March to 67.8 from February's 63.9, according to the California Bureau of Labor Statistics, which regards 100 as the base figure, predicated on 1940 records. The March figure is equivalent to approximately 12,700 individuals, principally craft unions and guilds. Average weekly earnings rose from February's $96.36 to $97.50.

Dinner To Start Coast UJW Drive

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—The industry will open its drive for the United Jewish Welfare Fund campaign here at a dinner Thursday at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Jack L. Warner is campaign president. More than 350 leaders of the industry are expected to attend.

Principal speakers will be Darryl F. Zanuck, Quentin Reynolds and Reuven Dafni, Israel Consul. Warner and Henry Ginsberg, industry chairman, will welcome the guests.

Eckstein Joins Para. As Siam Branch Head

Irving M. Eckstein has resigned as head of Motion Picture Export Association's sales control department here to join Paramount-International as branch manager for Siam. Before his association with MPEA early in 1946, Eckstein served with the foreign department of United Artists following four years of Army service in the South Pacific.

MPEA will name a successor to Eckstein shortly.

Shane Slates 'Crosstown'

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—"Crosstown," similar in theme to his "City Across the River," but with a Los Angeles background, will be the next production for Maxwell Shane, it is reported here. Others on his schedule are "The Big Frame," a semi-documentary by Leo Katcher, and "The Salem Frigate," based on an historical novel by John Jennings.

Approve Sunday Films

ROCKMART, Ga., May 2.—At a called session of the Rockmart City Council, Sunday films were approved.

Sullivan to Address Exhibitors in Atlanta

ATLANTA, May 2.—Second annual convention of the Georgia Theatre Owners and Operators at the Henry Grady Hotel, Monday and Tuesday, May 9-10, will feature talks by a group of key speakers. Gael Sullivan, president of the Theatre Owners of America, will head the group of visiting dignitaries. R. B. Wilby, Mike Simons, Leon Bamberger, Francis H. Hare and Herman Levy are among those who will journey to Atlanta to bring messages from various national organizations and distributing companies. Wives will join their husbands at the opening luncheon on Monday. Gov. Talmadge and Mayor Hartsville will be honor guests.

For the first time an M-G-M Records representative will attend a convention of thetare owners. This is understood to be part of a new plan to expand and promote the M-G-M brand with exhibitors. The idea behind the move to send Sol Handwerger of M-G-M Records in New York down here for the two-day session of the Georgia Theatre Owners is to get theatre men interested in M-G-M music and then know the pictures in which that music can be heard so that hit songs can be passed on to the public.

Legion Reviews 8, Rates Three 'B'

Eight additional films have been reviewed by the National Legion of Decency, with three of them receiving a class "B" rating. In that classification are M-G-M's "Edward, My Son"; Distinguished Films' "Her First Affair"; 20th Century-Fox's "Forbidden Street."

In Class A-1 are Republic's "Death Valley Gunfighters"; Variety Films' "The Guinea Pig"; Columbia's "The Lost Tribe"; Monogram's "Mississippi Rhythm"; RKO Radio's "Rustlers."

Pressbooks Out on Savings Bond Drive

Distribution to all theatres of 12-page, two-color pressbooks containing selling slants and promotion angles for the motion picture industry's participation in the U. S. Treasury's "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive" has begun under supervision of Max E. Youngstein, chairman of the industry's advertising-publicity committee for the drive which runs from May 15 through June 30. The pressbooks were prepared by Eagle-Lion.

File Plagiarism Suit

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—Playwright Arthur Rebner has filed suit against Loew's, Joseph Pasternak and Hans Wilhelm for $750,000, plus counsel fees in Federal Court, here, asserting that "On an Island With You" plagiarized his "With You on a Desert Island," a stage play produced in Berlin in 1930 and subsequently submitted to M-G-M for picture uses. The complainant says Pasternak and Wilhelm were in Berlin at the time and became familiar with his play.

Sharin Returns with Five Musical Shorts

Eugene Sharin, president of Ambassador Pictures, is back from Vienna where he produced five musical shorts for theatre and television distribution. The films are: Beethoven's "Turkish March" and Strauss' "Perpetuum Mobile," two of 26 three-minute shorts in the "Program for Tonight" series; "Andalusian Nights," first of 13 in a second series, "Opera Without Makeup"; Tschaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony" and Strauss' "Vienna Blood," two of 13 concerts by the Vienna Philharmonic.

The subjects range from three to 11 minutes in length.

M-G-M Sliding-Scales

by Al Lichtman, new 20th Century-Fox vice-president who left an M-G-M studio vice-presidency to explore new merchandising approaches for 20th-Fox. He recently stated to exhibitors that he would recommend the adoption by 20th-Fox of the "sliding-scale" method, which he introduced in elemental form to the industry in 1936.

It is said that one of the prime virtues of "sliding-scale" with a mutually-satisfactory control figure would be its tendency to encourage second and subsequent-run exhibitors to expend greater efforts in the exploitation and promotion of pictures.

Provincial Censor Rejected 10 in '48

OTTAWA, May 2. — Only 10 motion pictures were rejected by censors in Saskatchewan during 1948, according to D. J. Vaughan, provincial film censor, who said that the decline in recent years reflected the cooperation of producers in removing objectionable scenes and dialogue. Vaughan views all features coming into the province, classifying them as "general" or "adult," and also sees all newsreels and shorts.

"The Great Gatsby"

(Paramount)

F. SCOTT FITZGERALD'S heralded novel of the jazz-mad twenties, when the Charleston was the dance craze and bootleggers made headlines, has been made into a picture that follows pretty closely the story outline of the original. Alan Ladd has been fitted neatly into the title role, with support coming from Betty Field, Barry Sullivan, Macdonald Carey and Ruth Hussey. The picture should bring in reliable returns from the adult audiences for which it is intended. As a cinema voice from the past, it is paced in rather leisurely style, with intermittent flashes into brisk excitement.

The picture has Ladd rise above poverty through bootlegging and he yearns for social "class." He buys a fabulous Long Island estate to impress and be near Miss Field, the girl he was in love with in his earlier years and still desires. Gradually he persuades her to leave her husband, and just when this is about to happen, there is an automobile accident in which a woman is killed. Miss Field had been driving the car, but Ladd decides to assume the blame in order to protect her. After some soul-searchings by several persons about who really should take the blame, the film comes to an unorthodox ending when the victim's crazed husband shoots Ladd in mistaken vengeance.

The social set mingles with the underworld in many of the sequences. Representatives of the latter are Miss Hussey and Carey, both giving sound support. Elliott Nugent's direction catches the mood of the era well. Richard Maibaum produced, from a screenplay by himself and Cyril Hume, based on the Fitzgerald novel and the play by Owen Davis.

Running time, 92 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, August 5.

Robert J. O'Donnell, Variety's International chief barker, has announced that Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder will make the presentation on Wednesday night and is expected to relay a message from President Truman. George Jessel also is slated to speak at the banquet.

Former recipients of the Humanitarian Award include Msgr. Edward J. Flanagan, Sister Kenny, George C. Marshall, George Washington Carver, Alexander Fleming, Cordell Hull, Martha Berry, James F. Byrnes and Evangeline Booth.

Committee To Set Video Film Bureau

A committee has been named to plan a television film clearance bureau for the National Television Film Council, headed by William L. Roach, United Artists legal counsel, of the law firm of O'Brien, Driscoll, Raftery and Lawler.

Loot Buffalo House

BUFFALO, May 2.—Burglars used sledge-hammers to batter open a safe in the Jubilee Theatre here and took between $300 and $400 in cash. Jubilee owner Sidney J. Cohen said thieves also took daily records from the safe, making it difficult to determine the exact amount stolen. This is the second time Jubilee was entered by thieves in a month.

Rank Film to Rivoli

J. Arthur Rank's "One Woman's Story" will have its American premiere at the Rivoli Theatre here on May 17. The film will be the first Rank picture to play at the Rivoli, according to Montague Salmon, managing director of the house. Released by Universal-International, it stars Ann Todd and Claude Rains.

Oklahoma City office. Beiersdorf denied telling Joe Bryant and Preston Smith, Lubbock, Tex., that he couldn't afford to do business with them because Griffith was such a good customer.

He said he did not license film to Smith, cooperator of the Tech at Lubbock, because of the house's double bills, giveaways, low admissions and pass policies. Bryant, operator of the Midway, wasn't sold by 20th-Fox because Lubbock had plenty of runs without adding any, Beiersdorf stated.

McCarthy denied statements by Volney Hamm, independent at Elk City, Frederick and Altus in Western Oklahoma. Hamm testified earlier that McCarthy told him he could have only pictures that Griffith didn't want, and that he wouldn't want them either.

Approve Dewey Veto

ALBANY, N. Y., May 2.—Industry leaders here have expressed satisfaction with Governor Thomas E. Dewey's veto of a bill that would have permitted boxing and wrestling shows in armories in cities of less than 100,000 population. Leonard L. Rosenthal, TOA counsel here, said in opposing the bill that it makes way for "another kind of competition through the use of tax-exempt properties."

Public Relations

the 20th Century-Fox bid for adjustments in rental terms, the showmen are said to be giving a large part of their time to exchanging ideas on promotion, including the effectiveness of certain lobby displays, the industry short subject series and like matters.

These, of course, have taken the form of informal discussions and follow the type of business that requires adoption of resolutions, appointment of committees and other formal action.

Griping about box-office returns is said to have hit a new low; television is a subject of concern in only a few areas; the industry anti-trust suit is given a minimum of attention and theatremen are awaiting a clarification on how music licenses are to be cleared —all these being the items which had in past been foremost in exhibitors' minds. And many are resigned to the belief that the 20 per cent Federal tax is here to stay at least for a substantial length of time.

The schedule of exhibitor meetings for May and June is as follows: Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska, in Des Moines, May 4-5; Georgia Theatre Owners and Operators, Atlanta, May 9-10; Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas, Little Rock, May 18-19; North Central Allied, Minneapolis, May 23-24; Independent Exhibitors of New England, Boston, May 25-26; Allied Theatre Owners of Texas, Dallas, June 1; Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Kansas and Missouri, Kansas City, June 7-8; Rocky Mountain Independent Theatre Owners, Denver, June 8-9; Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, French Lick, June 22-23.

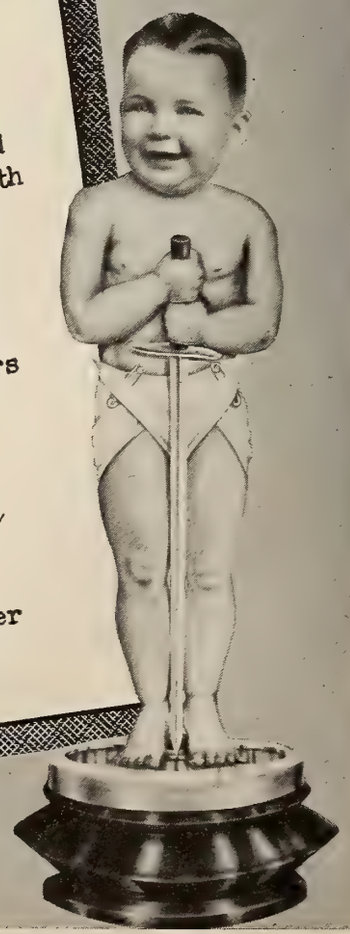
Dear Milt:

I just read a story on the front page of the March 23rd edition of Motion Picture Daily relative to your company's alertness in handling shipments of trailers and accessories during the current express embargo in New York City which brings to mind the many problems you must have incurred during the recent bad weather conditions that existed in this territory this winter.



Too often, we, in this business fail to acknowledge the good things service organizations such as yours do when faced with complex problems. We wish to take this opportunity to compliment National Screen on the remarkable service we have received in the past, especially under adverse conditions. Slow deliveries and misouts are practically a thing of the past and your company is certainly deserving of a "junior Oscar" for always being on your toes to give the exhibitors the best in service at all times.

Sincerely yours.

PCA-Okayed Production Increased 7.7%

Unacceptable Original Scripts Dropped in '48

The Production Code Administration gave certificates of approval to 435 feature films during 1948, an increase of 7.7 per cent over the previous year, when 404 productions were approved, according to an annual report by Joseph I. Breen, PCA director, to Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, released here yesterday.

The report added that 58 scripts, which were found unacceptable in their original form, were revised and subsequently approved. During 1947 the scripts falling in this category amounted to 72. A total of 51 scripts, novels, plays and short stories were turned down by PCA during the last year and

NY 1st-Run Income Spotty; 'Strangers' Strong at $42,000

Business is varied at New York first-runs this week with grosses ranging from mild to impressive levels, and with the overall take a good deal short of the lofty returns registered during the previous two weeks when the Easter holiday period was an important factor.

The Astor has a big one in "We Were Strangers" which is likely to wind up an initial week with an estimated $42,000. "Adventure in Baltimore" with Enric Madriguera's orchestra on stage is slow at the start with only $35,000 apparent for a first week at the Capitol. Third newcomer is "Red Canyon" at the Criterion which looks for $15,000 in a mild single week. "Africa Screams" will follow at the Criterion today.

"Champion" continues strong at the

Oleo Amendment Would Cut Excises

WASHINGTON, May 3. — Senator Wiley, Wisconsin Republican, today formally introduced an amendment to be offered to the oleo bill, when it comes up, to cut the admissions tax and other excises back to the pre-war 10 per cent. Since Senator Johnson, Colorado Democrat, has already said he would offer the same amendment on the Senate floor, and since an amendment will fare better coming from the Democratic side, apparently Wiley's action today is merely a guarantee against any slip-ups. Wiley, who is leading the fight against the oleo bill, has previously introduced a separate bill to cut the excises back.

Loew's-U. A. Theatre Split - Ups Readied

Final auditors' figures are now being awaited as the last step preliminary to the dissolution of the joint operation of nine theatres by Loew's and United Artists Theatres, with both sides apparently agreeable to a numerical split primarily, in addition to whatever cash considerations that might be required.

Operated under the partnership are the Broad and Ohio Theatres, Columbus, O.; Loew's and Louisville, Louisville; Century, Valencia and Parkway, Baltimore, and the Penn and Ritz, Pittsburgh.

'IA' Refrains From Strike in TV Feud

IATSE probably will refrain from striking against the ABC and NBC television networks while the National Labor Relations Board here is taking testimony in that union's jurisdictional dispute with the National Association of Broadcast Engineers & Technicians, it was indicated yesterday as the broadcasters entered the second day of new contract negotiations with NABET.

The NLRB hearings were scheduled to begin again yesterday before Board hearing officer Chester Migden, following a three-week hiatus. NLRB's heavy schedule here has caused another postponement, however, with IATSE and NABET representatives tentatively scheduled to appear again at hearings three weeks hence.

The unions have clashed over which is to be the bargaining representative

British Survey Warns Against Theatre Video

CEA Report Cites Many Obstacles to Use Now

LONDON, May 3.—Britain's exhibitors, and the industry in general here, must realize that the immediate installation of television in large numbers of theatres is an impossiblity, a sub-committee of the London and Home Counties Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association has declared in a report which will be made public here tomorrow.

The CEA investigators have found that large-screen television equipment has very severe limitations at the present stage of development. The installation of three or four theatre television units within six months might be possible, but it is doubtful whether the average exhibitor would consider it worthwhile when he realized the cost, difficulties and limitations involved, the report states.

The committee has been unable to

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Federal Communications Commission today opened the way for widespread use of radio for studio on-location work.

In a sweeping decision, effective July 1, the commission opened up the band over 300 megacycles for non-broadcast radio services. And taking advantage of this new band, the FCC raised on-location radio to the status of an independent, separately recognized service under the general category of industrial radio services.

This means that on-location radio

Washington, May 3. — Remittances to U. S. film companies from Venezuela in 1948 were estimated at about $2,500,000, according to a Commerce Department report. The report stated that last year U. S. films in Venezuela gained in popularity compared to Mexican films.

Industry Backs US Bond Drive 100%

The nationwide public information facilities of the industry have been placed at the disposal of the U. S. Treasury to stimulate public interest in the Opportunity Savings Bond Drive, May 15 through June 30, it is revealed by Maurice A. Bergman of Universal-International, who is chairman of the industry's participation in the drive.

Local industry drive chairmen and sub-chairmen have been appointed in cities and towns in all 31 exchange areas, with their task being to see that every theatre in the country serves as a "public information outlet" for the campaign. Six hundred prints of the drive short, "Spirit of '49," starring Jack Benny and produced with the cooperation of M-G-M's studios, Eastman Kodak and Pathe Laboratories, will be distributed free for showing in all theatres. A special 12-page pressbook has been prepared, outlining official policy and approach, and listing drive promotion and exploitation suggestions.

The Rivoli Theatre here will hold the first of more than 100 planned theatre bond premieres on May 16, when it devotes the opening of U-I's "One Woman's Story" to the campaign fund.

'Brothers' Premiere Linked to Bond Drive

KANSAS CITY, May 3.—Pegged on a local Opportunity Bond Drive in honor of President Truman, Warner Brothers' Great Plains area premiere of "The Younger Brothers" was launched here tonight. The premiere at the Paramount Theatre is the springboard of the entire festivities which take place in four other cities in this area.

Ceremonies today consisted of newsreel and radio coverage at bond booths at five central points in the city. Personal appearances were made by the players, including Alan Hale, Wayne Morris, Bruce Bennett and James Brown. The day's ceremonies reached a climax with the receipt of a message from President Truman.

Ida Lupino Reception

Ark. ITO 30-Year Meet Opens May 17

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 3.—A group of the original founders of the Moving Picture Theatre Owners of Arkansas, parent organization of Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas, will be present for the 30th anniversary meeting to be held here May 17-19 at the Hotel Marion. The convention will honor Eli Whitney Collins, C. A. Lick, Sr., O. C. Hauber, Sidney M. Nutt, Will Mack, John Collins and D. E. Fitton, veteran exhibitors, who in 1919 formed the first exhibitor association in Arkansas.

E. W. Savage, president of ITO, announces that this year's meeting has been set up to deal with the many complex problems that theatres are facing today. Discussions and forums will be held on municipal and county admission taxes; television; film rentals and overhead; the high cost of a declining box office; the screen as a medium to combat taxes and unfair legislation; conciliation and public relations on the local level.

Gael Sullivan and Herman Levy, Theatre Owners of America executive director and counsel, respectively, and Dave Palfreyman of the Motion Picture Association of America, will be among the speakers. Mike Simons of M-G-M, and Leon Bamberger of RKO Radio will attend. Dave P. Callahan and Sam B. Kirby are in charge of the convention.

'Collarites' to Picket Key Loew's Houses

Picketing and leaflet distribution in front of key Loew's houses in New York's five boroughs will begin tonight as the result of action taken at a joint membership meeting held by the Screen Office and Professional Employes and the Screen Publicists guilds, both CIO, at the Park Sheraton last night.

The action, to take place seven nights a week and to be extended in subsequent weeks to other theatres, is an effort to force major film companies to negotiate new pacts with the "white collar" unions, a spokesman said. The membership also empowered the joint strategy committee of the two unions to take a strike vote in the event that negotiations, now deadlocked, do not progress.

Griffith Defense Says Bidding 'Competitive'

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 3.—Marion Osborne, local branch manager for 20th Century-Fox, testified today in the Griffith anti-trust hearing that competitive bidding and negotiation had been general in his district. He said that independents called as government witnesses had misquoted him.

were not resubmitted for consideration.

In the report, Breen stated that 511 short subjects were approved last year against 544 in 1947, a decrease of 6.1 per cent.

A total of 41 foreign films from both member and non-member companies were approved by PCA last year, against 34 in 1947; 28 in 1946; 31 in 1945; 12 in 1944; 20 in 1943; 30 in 1942, and 22 in 1941.

7,071 Since 1935

The number of feature films approved by the PCA from 1935 to 1948 was 7,071, while over the same period 9,276 short subjects, including serials, were okayed. This includes domestic and foreign productions of member and non-member companies.

In a breakdown of literary material, Breen revealed that 244, or 56.1 per cent, of the feature films approved last year were based on original screen stories, compared with 233, or 57.7 per cent, in 1947. In addition, 26 were adapted from stage plays, against 17 in 1947; 76 from novels, compared with 87 in 1947; and 23 from published short stories, against five in 1947.

'48 Total Under '47

The report to Johnston also disclosed that a total of 4,353 original screen stories were approved by the PCA from 1935 to 1948. During the same 14-year period the average percentage of approved original screen stories was 62.6 per cent of all source material used for feature pictures.

The number of books, stage plays, synopses and scripts, including changes, analyzed by the PCA last year totaled 2,639, compared with 3,530 in 1947.

In an analysis of the types and kinds of features approved last year, the report classed 169 as melodrama, 94 Westerns, 81 drama, 12 crime, 48 comedy, and 31 miscellaneous, which includes sports, adventure, cartoon, fantasy and musicals.

Treasury John Snyder on hand to make the presentation and to deliver a message from President Truman.

Yesterday the international canvasmen discussed a proposal to have the international tent arrange and conduct the 1950 convention. Subject to ratification by the delegates, the next annual meet will be held at Boca Raton, Fla., starting April 9. Mid-year conference of the international officers will be held at New York, Oct. 25-27, to coincide with the induction of New York tent officers.

Prior to the New York session, the officers will inspect the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital at Saranac, N. Y., a project of Variety Clubs International. Officers of the hospital fund, set up as a separate corporation, were ratified yesterday, with chief barker O'Donnell as president; John H. Harris, chairman of the board; Chick Lewis, executive vice-president; A. Montague and Ted Gamble, vice-presidents; S. H. Fabian, treasurer and Marc J. Wolf, assistant treasurer.

O'Donnell reported that the Will Rogers Fund has $270,000 cash. In addition, major companies have pledged $75,000 annually for two years, making a total of $420,000 assured for two years' operation and rehabilitation.

Globe where $28,000 is indicated for a fourth week. Roxy is chalking up fairly strong business with "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," plus a stage show headed by Vivian Blaine, the third week's gross being estimated at $85,000.

"Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" with a stage show, probably will give the Music Hall a good fourth week's gross of $125,000; it will stay for at least another week, "The Stratton Story" being booked to follow. "My Dream is Yours," with Lionel Hampton's orchestra on stage, might reach $34,000, which is fair enough, in a third and final week at the Strand; it will be replaced on Friday by "Flamingo Road."

"Undercover Man" with Billy Eckstein and Duke Ellington's orchestra on stage is plenty strong at the Paramount where the second week's gross is estimated at $82,000. Fifth week of "Portrait of Jennie" probably will mean about $15,000 to the Rivoli; this is unimportant business. "Red Shoes" looks good for $14,500 in a 28th week at the Bijou.

At the Mayfair, "Wizard of Oz" should bring a fairly heavy $25,000 in a third week. Continuing a very successful engagement, "Quartet" has $14,200 in view for a fifth week at the Sutton. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" at the State, should gross about $17,000 in a very modest eighth and final week; it will be succeeded today by "Barkleys of Broadway." "Hamlet" is still drawing close to capacity with $15,000 apparent for the 31st week. "Joan of Arc" probably will do about $11,000 in a mild 25th week at the Victoria; it will be replaced by "Home of the Brave" on May 11.

obtain any definite figures of the initial cost of the direct projection equipment, but is led to believe that the first sets would probably cost between £8,000 ($32,000) and £10,000 ($40,000). As soon as quantity production commences, it was said, much lower figures should apply. With regard to the intermediate film system a price of $35,000 has been reported from the U. S.

It is not perhaps generally appreciated, the report says, that as long as the BBC is limited to its present 405-line transmission, theatre television can never give a picture comparable in definition to a film, and, unfortunately, the government has given a commitment to continue the 405-line transmissions until 1956.

Meanwhile, there would appear to be very few items in the present BBC programs suitable for theatre presentation and these would in almost every case involve copyright difficulties or the payment of substantial fees by exhibitors in addition to the capital and running costs of the equipment.

Summing up, the committee feels that its efforts will not have been wasted if the report induces an attitude of caution among exhibitors as to the present position on the equipment side and its potential value.

UK Takes Dim View of Anglo-US Conference

Rank Seeks Date with Wilson Without Result

LONDON, May 4.—If the recent Anglo-U. S. Films Council meeting in Washington projected any understanding involving a reduction of Britain's quota or other film laws, the government's Board of Trade here appears to be singularly disinterested.

J. Arthur Rank, one of the three British members of the Council, who recently returned to London, inquired at the Board of Trade today when Harold Wilson, its president, would be likely to be available for an interview. He apparently received an indefinite reply as B of T officials stated specifically that no appointment has been made yet.

Wilson plans to leave here for Canada next Tuesday for a lengthy stay.

With Wilson evincing no eagerness to meet with Rank and in view of the fact that F. W. Allport, Motion Picture Association of America repre-

Para. Sales Meets Will Start Here

Series of five divisional sales meetings will be launched by Paramount with a three-day confab of Eastern and Southern district and branch managers at the Hotel Pierre here beginning Monday with Hugh Owen, head of that division, presiding.

Although the sessions are the first since the plan for reorganization of the corporation was approved, it is said that no extensive changes in policy are anticipated. Forthcoming product and campaigns are to be dealt with in large part.

Partmar to Supreme Court on Para. Case

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Allowing Partmar Corp. to intervene to protect its interests in the Paramount consent judgment would not in any way delay the effectuation of the judgment, Partmar told the Supreme Court today.

Appealing the New York District court's refusal to allow Partmar to intervene, Partmar attorney Russell Hardy said that the intervention could have been granted and the judgment entered as proposed. "Neither was inconsistent and preclusive of the other," Hardy declared in a 13-page brief.

$1,450,000 to RKO For Its Stock in Butterfield Groups

RKO yesterday sold its interests in the two Michigan Butterfield circuits to the Butterfield estate at a price estimated to be $1,450,000. RKO's holdings comprised 10 per cent in W. S. Butterfield Theatres and 33⅓ per cent in Butterfield Michigan Theatres Corp.

The deal was consummated at the RKO home office here with Montague Gowthorpe and Byron Ballard representing Butterfield, and Thomas O'Connor, assistant treasurer, and William Whitman, assistant secretary, signing for RKO. Gowthorpe is head of Butterfield Theatres.

Paramount also has a minority interest in Butterfield which it must dispose of and is understood to be negotiating sale of its holdings currently.

Hughes' RKO Stock Attracts Trans-Lux

Trans-Lux Theatres Corp., which operates 13 feature houses and one newsreel theatre in the East, has begun discussions with Howard Hughes representatives here on possible purchase of Hughes' controlling stock interests in RKO Theatres.

Principal stockholder of Trans-Lux is Harry Brandt, whose other extensive theatre interests in New York has made Department of Justice approval of such a transaction with Hughes a "must" consideration, according to some sources. Justice attorneys would not comment.

Meanwhile, Malcolm Kingsberg, in a working agreement with Atlas Corp., continues as the most prominent prosective buyer.

Fox Was Prospering At Time of Merger

A statement in the New York Times yesterday describing Fox Film Corp. as "bankrupt" when it merged with 20th Century Pictures in 1935 is in sharp conflict with the records of earnings which show that the company had a net profit of $3,563,000 in that year. The Times traced the history of the present 20th Century-Fox Corp. in concluding a story on Joseph M. Schenck's request to resign from the company. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck headed 20th Century when the merger was effected. The late Sidney R. Kent was president of Fox.

Canadian Video Set Back 2 More Years

TORONTO, May 4.—The hurried dissolution of Parliament to prepare the way for the federal elections in June has given a two-year setback to the introduction of television in Canada because no approval was voted for the $4,000,000 loan to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for the development of video.

It may be early next year before the new Parliament can get to a vote.

As soon as quantity production commences, it was said, much lower figures should apply. With regard to the intermediate film system, a price of $35,000 has been reported from the U. S.

It is not perhaps generally appreciated, the report says, that as long as the BBC is limited to its present 405-line transmission, theatre television can never give a picture comparable in definition to a film, and, unfortunately, the government has given a commitment to continue the 405-line transmissions until 1956.

Meanwhile, there would appear to be very few items in the present BBC programs suitable for theatre presentation and these would in almost every case involve copyright difficulties or the payment of substantial fees by exhibitors in addition to the capital and running costs of the equipment.

Summing up, the committee feels that its efforts will not have been wasted if the report induces an attitude of caution among exhibitors as to the present position on the equipment side and its potential value.

UK Takes Dim View of Anglo-US Conference

Rank Seeks Date with Wilson Without Result

LONDON, May 4.—If the recent Anglo-U. S. Films Council meeting in Washington projected any understanding involving a reduction of Britain's quota or other film laws, the government's Board of Trade here appears to be singularly disinterested.

J. Arthur Rank, one of the three British members of the Council, who recently returned to London, inquired at the Board of Trade today when Harold Wilson, its president, would be likely to be available for an interview. He apparently received an indefinite reply as B of T officials stated specifically that no appointment has been made yet.

Wilson plans to leave here for Canada next Tuesday for a lengthy stay.

With Wilson evincing no eagerness to meet with Rank and in view of the fact that F. W. Allport, Motion Picture Association of America repre-

Para. Sales Meets Will Start Here

Series of five divisional sales meetings will be launched by Paramount with a three-day confab of Eastern and Southern district and branch managers at the Hotel Pierre here beginning Monday with Hugh Owen, head of that division, presiding.

Although the sessions are the first since the plan for reorganization of the corporation was approved, it is said that no extensive changes in policy are anticipated. Forthcoming product and campaigns are to be dealt with in large part.

Partmar to Supreme Court on Para. Case

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Allowing Partmar Corp. to intervene to protect its interests in the Paramount consent judgment would not in any way delay the effectuation of the judgment, Partmar told the Supreme Court today.

Appealing the New York District court's refusal to allow Partmar to intervene, Partmar attorney Russell Hardy said that the intervention could have been granted and the judgment entered as proposed. "Neither was inconsistent and preclusive of the other," Hardy declared in a 13-page brief.

$1,450,000 to RKO For Its Stock in Butterfield Groups

RKO yesterday sold its interests in the two Michigan Butterfield circuits to the Butterfield estate at a price estimated to be $1,450,000. RKO's holdings comprised 10 per cent in W. S. Butterfield Theatres and 33⅓ per cent in Butterfield Michigan Theatres Corp.

The deal was consummated at the RKO home office here with Montague Gowthorpe and Byron Ballard representing Butterfield, and Thomas O'Connor, assistant treasurer, and William Whitman, assistant secretary, signing for RKO. Gowthorpe is head of Butterfield Theatres.

Paramount also has a minority interest in Butterfield which it must dispose of and is understood to be negotiating sale of its holdings currently.

Hughes' RKO Stock Attracts Trans-Lux

Trans-Lux Theatres Corp., which operates 13 feature houses and one newsreel theatre in the East, has begun discussions with Howard Hughes representatives here on possible purchase of Hughes' controlling stock interests in RKO Theatres.

Principal stockholder of Trans-Lux is Harry Brandt, whose other extensive theatre interests in New York has made Department of Justice approval of such a transaction with Hughes a "must" consideration, according to some sources. Justice attorneys would not comment.

Meanwhile, Malcolm Kingsberg, in a working agreement with Atlas Corp., continues as the most prominent prosective buyer.

Fox Was Prospering At Time of Merger

A statement in the New York Times yesterday describing Fox Film Corp. as "bankrupt" when it merged with 20th Century Pictures in 1935 is in sharp conflict with the records of earnings which show that the company had a net profit of $3,563,000 in that year. The Times traced the history of the present 20th Century-Fox Corp. in concluding a story on Joseph M. Schenck's request to resign from the company. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck headed 20th Century when the merger was effected. The late Sidney R. Kent was president of Fox.

Theatre Video Cost Too High Now: TOA

Informed by NBC executive vice-president Charles R. Denny that the estimated cost of instantaneous or direct television projection equipment for individual theatres is $25,000, Theatre Owners of America executive director Gael Sullivan yesterday termed that figure "almost prohibitive" for TOA member theatres and said TOA would recommend today to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers that it examine the possibilities for bringing that cost down to between $5,000 and $7,500.

The figure quoted by Denny is ex-

Canadian Video Set Back 2 More Years

TORONTO, May 4.—The hurried dissolution of Parliament to prepare the way for the federal elections in June has given a two-year setback to the introduction of television in Canada because no approval was voted for the $4,000,000 loan to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for the development of video.

It may be early next year before the new Parliament can get to a vote.

Ia.-Neb. Exhibitors Hit Hayworth, Ingrid

DES MOINES, May 4.—The marital affairs of Ingrid Bergman and Rita Hayworth were under discussion at the Iowa-Nebraska AITO convention which opened here today, with the two stars expected to be the subject of a possible resolution of censure before the parley adjourns Thursday night. One association official, an Iowan, said that the pastors of his town had called on him and asked what he was going to do about "Rita Hayworth pictures," and threatened to urge people not to see Rita Hayworth films.

Speakers were unanimously agreed on the importance of creating good will between theatres and the public. Howard Brookings, Iowa theatre owner and state representative, urged independents to give passes to legislators and advised his fellow exhibitors to run for public office. Other speakers stressed the need for a rebirth of "showmanship" as it used to be in the 1920's, and told of the coming bond drive and its part in building good will.

Canadian Showmen Set Annual Meets

TORONTO, May 4.—The annual meeting of the national committee of Motion Picture Theatres Associations of Canada, of which J. J. Fitzgibbons is national chairman, has been scheduled for June at Niagara Falls, Ont. The all-Canadian conference will deal with censorship, amusement taxation, legislation and other matters of mutual interest to all provincial exhibitor groups.

The Alberta Exhibitors' Association will meet at Banff, in the Rockies, June 5-6, and the Manitoba association will have its annual meeting at Winnipeg June 13, after which the delegates from all Provinces will convene at Niagara Falls. Arch H. Jolley of Toronto, assistant secretary of the committee, is in charge of arrangements.

Army Report Hits German Film Trust

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The German decartelization law has not yet been "implemented" to break up monopoly in the German film industry, and "there has been no deconcentration of any kind in the industry," according to the report of a special committee appointed by former Army Secretary Royall to study decartelization in Germany.

The report admitted that breaking up the German film monopoly was "an enormous job." It praised the basic decartelization policy, but criticized present A.M.G. officials for not carrying out the stated policy.

The report said, "There has been no deconcentration of any kind."

Defense, Gov't Clash At Griffith Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 4.—W. S. Miller, Dallas sales manager for 20th Century-Fox, told Judge Edgar S. Vaught today that a government witness had misrepresented the case in earlier testimony in the Griffith mandate hearing.

Miller's testimony was marked by bitter controversy between C. B. Cochran, attorney for the circuits, and George Wise, Assistant Attorney General, over introduction of several exhibits, which Cochran said were designed to prove that the distributors had distributed films to theatre owners with the best grossing possibilities. After Wise demanded that the tabulations set forth additional information concerning play dates, percentage deals and other facts, Judge Vaught suggested that Cochran withdraw them as being incomplete.

Cochran quizzed Miller regarding the competition in Lubbock, Tex., between Joe Bryant, an independent, and Theatre Enterprises, Inc., successor firm to the Griffith circuits. Miller said Bryant had not sought to buy first run product after taking over the Midway Theatre in Lubbock, but had told him he wanted old pictures which he could exploit at a greater profit. Nevertheless, Miller testified, Bryant obtained two road shows, "Wilson" and "Song of Bernadette" which would have grossed more in the Linday (Griffith) theatres at Lubbock.

Act on K-B, Warner Dispute by June 15

WASHINGTON, May 4.—District Court Judge Matthew McGuire promised to dispose of all motions by June 15 in the legal battle between K-B and Warners over the jointly-owned MacArthur Theatre.

Lawyers for K-B, Warners and the Kass Realty Corp. wrangled for one and one-half hours in District Court today, with McGuire showing obvious irritation with them for not having gone through with a tentative out-of-court agreement reached previously.

Warners and K-B had agreed on terms for Warners getting out of the MacArthur, subject to a K-B agreement with Kass on terms for freeing Warners of all financial liability for a second theatre to be built by Kass for K-B.

K-B counsel advised Judge McGuire that there was no reason he could not rule on K-B's motion to require Warners to sell its interest in the MacArthur to K-B at terms stated in a 1945 contract setting up the joint venture. McGuire said he would study the briefs and rule on this matter as well as the Kass motions by June 15. Warners has countered the K-B motion by asking the court to dissolve the joint venture and sell the assets at public sale.

"It Happens Every Spring"

(20th Century-Fox) Hollywood, May 4

DON'T try to guess this one by looking at it in a projection room or reading a synopsis. It plays like a house afire when submitted, as in the instance here reported, to a mixed audience of all ages that's paid its way into the theatre. The thing is a baseball comedy, with Ray Milland portraying a college professor who pitches St. Louis to a world championship by means as delightfully incredible and amusing as Belvedere's achievements, and raises laugh after laugh with surprise twists and good old-fashioned trick photography. Don't analyze it—just play it straight across the plate and watch the runs come in. (Bill Paul—"Letter to Three Wives"—Douglas, too, who's even better in this than in that.)

Milland, a penurious professor experimenting with a chemical concoction to make wood repellant to animal matter, finds himself accidentally possessed of a liquid which, applied to the cover of a baseball, detours the pellet around the most gifted batsman's hickory. He can't reproduce it, but he's got enough to carry him through a big league season, so he finagles himself a berth on the St. Louis club on a contract entitling him to $1,000 for each game he wins and nothing for each game he loses. So he wins 38 straight games, and then the world series, concealing his identity the while lest he lose his college job and sweetheart for playing professional baseball, and winds up in a hilariously happy ending with his secret and his fortunes intact.

Milland and Douglas, the latter doing a classic job as the catcher who doubles as Milland's baseball guardian, have the proceedings largely to themselves, with Jean Peters, Ted de Corsia, Ed Begley, Ray Collins and other competents going along.

William Perlberg produced and Lloyd Bacon directed from a script by Valentine Davies, the three of them blending their talents with rare effectiveness to make an essentially slight story an immensely amusing picture.

Running time, 87 minutes. General audience classification. Release date not set.

"The Younger Brothers"

(Warner) Hollywood, May 4

EXCITING incidents in the explosive career of the Younger brothers, contemporaries and part-time collaborators of the James boys, are photographed here in Technicolor and with considerable emphasis on gunplay, making up a lively addition to the currently popular list of Old West attractions. A bit light on names, but clearly rooted in historical research, the film figures to give best satisfaction to audiences well versed in the lore of the period, 1876. The Youngers are portrayed by Wayne Morris, James Brown, Bruce Bennett and Robert Hutton, and Janis Paige, Alan Hale, Fred Clark, Monte Blue and Tom Tyler are other principals.

Saul Elkins, who's produced quite a string of black-and-white melodramas for the studio, was given his first opportunity in the color medium here, and assigned the veteran Edwin L. Marin as director. The screenplay by Edna Anhalt is from a story by Morton Grant based on historical research undertaken to ascertain what really went on back there in the era when newspapers never let mere matters of fact spoil a good story about the Youngers and the Jameses.

The picture picks up the Youngers near the end of their parole, when they are awaiting expiration date to return to their native Missouri and a life of farming. Miss Paige, as Kate Shepherd, a bandit leader in her own right but desirous of having the Youngers join up with her, first offers them a partnership deal and then, embittered, attempts to force them to break their parole. Similarly intentioned is Clark, a vengeful former detective still able to raise a posse, and the efforts of both come to focus in a bank robbery for which they attempt to get the Youngers blamed. But the Youngers thwart this scheme, obtain and return the money, and return finally to Missouri and legal freedom. Plenty of complications, riding, shooting and killing, accompany all this.

Running time, 82 minutes. General audience classification. Release date not set.

and said, "In many lands uncounted multitudes of men, women and children will bless Herbert Hoover's name and be grateful to the providence which sustained his labors."

The award was accepted by Dr. Van Arsal Lee of Stanford University, a close personal friend of Hoover.

Earlier in the day, delegates chose New Orleans as the 1950 convention city, with Atlantic City as an alternate. Houston put in a strong advance bid for the 1951 convention.

Steve Broidy, Monogram-Allied Artists president, spoke to the delegates on the handling being given to "Bad Boy" in various tent centers and pointed out that its yield to VCI had been substantial where appropriate efforts had been put behind it. R. J. O'Donnell, international chief barker, spoke glowingly of the results obtained with the picture in Texas and encouraged its vigorous exploitation in spots not yet covered.

San Francisco, May 4.—A proposal by Paul Short, producer of "Bad Boy" and "Variety Girl," to produce another film, tentatively titled "Showman," will be introduced to the delegates tomorrow by R. J. O'Donnell, it was learned here tonight. The proposed film, based on a story by Short to appear in Collier's, would trace the career of a young man who entered exhibition following World War I and would incorporate a full history of Variety Clubs.

O'Donnell paid tribute to Martin Quigley, Charles E. Lewis, of Showmen's Trade Review, and Arthur Ungar, editor of the Hollywood edition of Daily Variety, for their steadfast support of VCI interests and proposed to all chief barkers that trade press representatives be made associate members without fee.

Lewis, who is convention director, presented to the delegates a proposal made by Walter Brooks, Roundtable editor of the Motion Picture Herald, that a petition be made for the mintage of VCI commemorative half-dollars to be used for fund-raising purposes. It was referred to a committee.

Delegates yesterday heard William McCraw report that premieres for Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" have returned $115,000, to be used for Variety Clubs' charitable enterprises, with more premieres scheduled to be held. Approved was the rehabilitation and operation of the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, Saranac, N. Y.

McCraw today disclosed that VCI fund-raising participation in motion picture productions had netted more than $400,000 to date.

Delegates from 19 tents using talent for benefits agreed to enter into the International's blanket agreement with the American Guild of Variety Artists, which calls for contributions to AGVA's insurance fund which covers 34,000 members. The agreement will go into effect August 1. A proposal to increase dues for the International tent from $2 to $3 annually was passed unanimously.

Krim Resigns

til three pictures now on the schedule and ready to go have been completed, unless a successor is named before that time.

Krim, who has been president of E-L since shortly after the company was founded in 1946, released the following text of his telegram of resignation to Purcell:

'Irreconcilable Differences'

"After much deliberation I have decided to resign as president of Eagle Lion and I am herewith tendering my resignation effective as soon as a successor is designated. I have made this decision because of the irreconcilable differences which have arisen between management and ownership.

"I feel that with revenues at their present high point and with substantial backlog, and the studio about to reopen with three pictures set to go, a sound groundwork has been laid for the future of Eagle Lion. I wish the company every success."

Krim's reference to the "irreconcilable differences between management and ownership" was interpreted in the trade as meaning the insistence of Robert R. Young, railroad magnate and principal owner of the company, on dividing authority between E-L management and his direct representatives in the company. According to some sources this has resulted in policy and administrative decisions which have been completely at odds with the views of management.

See Product Shortage

The E-L studios were closed last November and the company is now almost certain to feel a product shortage in the late summer. It has filled in its release schedule with J. Arthur Rank's British pictures and David Selznick's reissues recently.

Reportedly siding with management, against Young, is Sergei Semenenko, vice-president and motion picture adviser of the First National Bank of Boston, which has advanced an estimated $7,500,000 to E-L, largely through its parent, Pathe Industries, in recent years. Semenenko has been endeavoring to interest outstanding industry people in acquiring ownership of E-L. He is here at present and reportedly has conferred with a group said to be headed by Sam Katz, former M-G-M studio vice-president and former head of Paramount Theatres, on bidding for E-L. Conferences with other interested principals are said to be in the offing, both here and in New York.

'President's Week' On

Krim's resignation came at the outset of Eagle Lion's current sales drive in his honor. The drive is known as "President's Week" and is continuing through Saturday. William J. Heineman, E-L vice-president and sales manager, estimated in New York yesterday that the company's business for the week, based on early returns, will be approximately 50 per cent higher than any other week in the company's history.

E-L has made steady progress during its brief career as a national producing-distributing company, with the credit going to Krim, Heineman and Max Youngstein, vice-president in charge of advertising-publicity. In its second year it was well on the way to overcoming early losses and late last year was at the breakeven stage.

Krim is an attorney and partner in the industry law firm of Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin & Krim. He served as treasurer of National Screen Service before joining E-L.

"The Crooked Way"

(Benedict Bogeaus—United Artists)

TWO saleable star names—John Payne and Sonny Tufts—are offered by this Benedict Bogeaus production of a broadly melodramatic screenplay by Richard Landau. It is a picture which lends a new twist to the conventional antagonisms that keep underworld bullets flying. Payne, a war hero, reenters civilian life with his memory of the past completely blank in consequence of head wounds received in combat. He goes back to his home city determined to pick up the threads of the past and thus establish his true identity. In no time the mild young man discovers that before the war he was a flagitious racketeer turned stool-pigeon, and that Tufts, now No. 1 man of the town's underworld, is out to settle a score with him. Payne learns also, to his great surprise, that he was the husband of pretty Ellen Drew, who since has become a hostess in Tufts' gambling joint.

Director Robert Florey has fired these ingredients with some sharp action, but at times the film waxes a bit static in its reliance on dialogue to tell much of the story. There is a bang-up climax, however, which should satisfy audiences with the thrills at which the title hints. In a warehouse surrounded by a police cordon Payne and Tufts engage in a bloody gun duel and fist fight, and the former emerges the victor, with police aid. Payne, too, wins again the love of his wife to whom he was a pretty brutal husband before his permanent amnesia set in. Tufts, hoarse and grim, does well in a role that is a complete departure from his usual assignments. Rhys Williams is daring as a police detective, and Percy Helton contributes a good characterization as one of Tufts' sycophants. John Doucette, Charles Evans, Greta Granstedt and others round out the cast. The script was based on a radio play by Robert Monroe.

Running time, 89 minutes. General audience classification. April release.

"Special Agent"

(Pine-Thomas—Paramount)

PRODUCED by William H. Pine and William C. Thomas, "Special Agent" delves into a field of detective work which has remained virtually untapped by motion pictures: railroad policing. This film emerges, however, as an undistinguished cops-and-robbers affair patterned closely after the general run of the genre. Light on names, "Special Agent" will require vigorous selling efforts by exhibitors if it is to give a better-than-average account of itself on single bills.

William Eythe plays a young railroad agent who is plagued by boredom in a post where nothing seems to happen to test his merit. Suddenly, however, a train hold-up in his sector gives him a chance to pit his wits against two robber brothers who take to banditry to secure funds which would enable them to recoup family losses and prestige. Thomas, directing from a screenplay by Lewis R. Foster and Whitman Chambers, has given much more attention to keeping things moving than to generating suspense. Eythe is relentless in his pursuit of the Devereaux brothers, played by Paul Valentine and George Reeves, and ultimately corners them in a cave hide-out exhausted and bitter. Frank Puglia contributes a compelling performance as the brothers' despairing grandfather, while Laura Elliot is decorative as Eythe's sweetheart. Rounding out the cast are Carole Mathews, Tom Powers, Raymond Bond and Walter Baldwin.

Running time, 71 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, July 22.

GPE's 3-Month Sales Put at $6,273,952

General Precision Equipment and subsidiaries consolidated net sales amounted to $6,273,952 for the three months ended March 31. This compares with $5,575,884 for the corresponding three months of 1948. Net income for the first quarter of 1949 amounted to $124,779, compared with consolidated net income of $109,505 for the similar period of the previous year.

Directors have declared a dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock outstanding, payable June 15 to stockholders of record May 25.

This impression is confirmed by hints from B of T higher-ups who infer that nothing has transpired yet which concerns them. They also emphasize that any change in the quota law prior to 1950 demands legislation, which they regard as most unlikely.

A meeting of the British Film Producers Association is scheduled for next Wednesday at which time anything emanating from the Washington meeting would come up for action.

Paramount Sets Four More for Production

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.—Four features will be put into production by Paramount between May 23 and June 16. They are: "I Married a Dead Man," "Where Men Are Men," "Let's Dance" and "Postal Inspector."

Theatre Video Cost

clusive of the cost of external relay equipment, pickup cameras, or the expense of installation.

Sullivan, who commented yesterday on the costs, engineering and other problems which TOA is weighing preparatory to deciding whether to enter the theatre television field as an organization, said TOA will recommend also to SMPE theatre video specialists today at a scheduled meeting that the latter organization embark on a cooperative study with RCA involving the equipping of theatres in a test city with large-screen television. If such an experiment proved successful it could influence TOA to enter the field, other factors such as cost being acceptable, Sullivan indicated.

The TOA theatre television committee, headed by Mitchell Wolfson, met here yesterday preparatory to conferring today with representatives of SMPE, the two organizations having recently established an agreement to work together on theatre television problems. In addition to Wolfson and Sullivan, the meeting was attended by Dave Wallerstein, S. H. Fabian, Robert W. Coyne, Walter Reade, Jr., Stanley Prenosil, Leo Brecher, John Phillips, Oscar Doob, Nate Halpern and Marcus Cohen.

Theatre Lobby TV Approved by NBC

Doubts which have troubled exhibitors as to the legal propriety of presenting television receptions in theatre lobbies have been dissipated by NBC in a letter to Theatre Owners of America.

Accepting lobby television on so-called "home sets" as contributing to the expansion of the existing television audience, NBC has given the practice tacit approval by describing it as "more akin to normal home television reception than to theatre television." The network assured TOA that no "steps to prevent this type of use" have been taken by NBC. Denny pointed out that theatres do not charge for lobby video receptions.

Following the meeting here yesterday of the TOA television committee, TOA executive director Gael Sullivan and committee chairman Mitchell Wolfson said NBC's expressions of opinion are the first to come from any network on the subject.

Yesterday's meeting, Sullivan reported, gave the video committee a grasp of the extent of the problems that challenge large-screen theatre television. When the committee meets today with theatre video specialists of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, they will be told that TOA regards present theatre video equipment as "adequate," but views as a "big gamble" the factors of cost and continuity of programs.

$2,034,000 to Welfare from Variety Clubs

Expect an Increase of $500,000 in 1949-50

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—During 1948-49 Variety Clubs International will spend $2,034,655 in welfare activities through the 32 tents in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Nathan D. Golden, Washington, D. C., chairman of the Heart Committee, reported at the 13th annual convention, being held here this week. This is an increase of $14,520 over the pledges made last year at the convention in Miami. It is expected that pledges for 1949-50 will go over $2,250,000.

Through their generosity and civic activities, the 8,563 members of Variety International, whose international chief barker is Robert J. O'Donnell of Dallas, aided more than 220,000 people, 90 per cent of whom are children.

Granada Theatres To Scan U. S. Video

LONDON, May 5.—Despite the Exhibitor Association's recent pessimistic report on the practicability of theatre television here, Cecil Bernstein, managing director of Granada Theatres, Ltd., is en route to New York on the Queen Mary to examine the latest American television developments and "to continue negotiations already started by Granada Theatres."

Granada has applied for a television station license to transmit programs to its London theatres. The J. Arthur

Harry Gold Leaves Hughes Productions

Harry Gold, in charge of sales for Howard Hughes Productions, has left the company. His post and the firm's New York office have been dispensed with. Gold had been inactive with the Hughes unit since its office here was closed about seven weeks ago. However, there were contractual commitments until this week, it is understood.

Originally, Gold had supervision over "Vendetta," "The Outlaw" and "Mad Wednesday," which Hughes had slated for release through United Artists. However, when Hughes sub-

TOA May Ask Gov't For Video Channel

Theatre Owners of America yesterday took its theatre television problems to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at a meeting between members of the former's television committee and SMPE video specialists. Along with inquiries relating to costs, techniques, and program continuity, SMPE was asked if a sound and reasonable brief can be presented to the government for the establishment of an exclusive television channel for large-screen use by TOA.

It was indicated following the meeting that SMPE would cooperate to the best of its ability toward "finding the answers" for TOA. The Society is expected to announce today exactly how far it will be able to help the TOA. The exhibitor organization has completed a number of studies of its own to determine the nature of the problems which have delayed widespread use of large-screen television in theatres.

Para. Video Status Under Decree Asked

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Paramount today told the Federal Communications Commission that the reorganization approved by its stockholders did away with any possibility that its subsidiaries should be denied television stations because of anti-trust law violations.

Outlining the reorganization, a brief filed by Duke Patrick of Hogan and Hartson declared that when "this Retirement Rumors Spiked by Zukor; Not Quitting Post

Adolph Zukor will continue on the job until his health gives out and from all appearances that's not likely to be for a long time. The Paramount board chairman, in good spirits and apparently in good health, yesterday put the quietus on rumors that he intends to resign, reporting there is "no basis for them" and branding the reports as "unfair and completely without any authorization at all."

Zukor's post with the new Paramount Pictures Co., upon its formation with the reorganization of the corporation, is uncertain, he said, pointing out that election of officers will be the duty of the new board of

FCC's 'Freeze' on Video Is Extended

COLUMBUS, O., May 5.—Federal Communications Commission Chairman Wayne Coy admitted here today that he had been too optimistic about how soon the FCC could lift the television "freeze," and said that "perhaps" it could be done now in another three or four months.

When the freeze was ordered last September, Coy said it would be lifted in six to nine months. Recently, he pushed the date back to July 1, and now, apparently, it will be August or September at the earliest before the freeze is lifted.

Coy also backed down slightly on

Distributors Seek a Music Fee Formula

Ascap Decision Prompts Copyright Men to Action

The producer-distributors' copyright specialists have launched here an intensive inquiry into possible new methods of paying for music performing rights in light of Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell's recent decision outlawing collection from theatres of a performance fee for Ascap music in films.

Although the copyright men, in company with distribution attorneys, already have held a number of meetings in their attempt to arrive at a new compensation formula, they have yet to come up with a suggestion that can be translated into an agreement. A representative of one of the companies said yesterday that the meetings are still in the "conversation stage."

Next conference will be held within two weeks. Meanwhile, those connected with the meetings are looking into

U. S. May Defer Taxes On Frozen Earnings

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The U. S. Treasury is understood to be considering the deferment of Federal income taxes on frozen foreign earnings of American motion picture and other firms until the income is eventually released for remittance to this country. Film companies are probably affected the most by tax payments on frozen funds and their representatives have repeatedly complained of what they describe as the unfairness of the Treasury's insistency that they pay income taxes here on such funds.

Under present rules—upheld in Federal courts—the Treasury is entitled, in most instances, to demand some income taxes on this frozen foreign paper money, even though the taxpayer

Industry Commended For Its Aid Abroad

Washington, May 5.—"The American motion picture industry, by its attempt to mirror the daily living problems of the American people, has acted as a super salesman for Americanism at home and abroad," stated Rep. Isadore Dollinger (R., N. Y.) today on the floor of Congress in citing Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th-Fox vice-president, and his production of "Pinky" and other 20th-Fox films.

Ia.-Neb. Allied Votes Discipline for Stars

DES MOINES, May 5.—Members of the Iowa-Nebraska Allied Independent Theatre Owners today voted in favor of the "Finneran plan," which calls for disciplinary action against "erring" stars. The resolution, proposed by the directors and adopted unanimously, was an outgrowth of complaints made to members by patrons concerning entanglements of Ingrid Bergman and Rita Hayworth.

The convention, attended by some 200 exhibitors, elected 22 members to the board of directors, which in turn elected the following officers:

Leo F. Wolcott, Eldora, Ia., board chairman; A. C. Myrick, Lake Park, Ia., president; J. P. Lannan, West Point, Neb., vice-president; Elmer Huhnke, Omaha, treasurer for Nebraska; T. J. Evans, Clinton, Ia., treasurer for Iowa; Charles Niles, Anamosa, Ia., national director. All except Huhnke were re-elected; Huhnke's job is new.

Wolcott, in closing the convention, urged theatre owners to put television lounges in their theatres if it threatens as a competitor. He said this would help wear off the novelty of television. The next convention will be held in Omaha during May, 1950.

Peru and Sweden Revise Censorship

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Peru and Sweden are overhauling their censorship set-ups, according to a Commerce Department report by film chief Nathan D. Golden.

The Swedish Minister of Education has appointed a special committee to investigate Swedish censorship and the question of producing Swedish pictures. Among the subjects the committee will study is the possibility of establishing a special reviewing council of parent and teacher groups, to work with the Censorship Board.

In Peru, all previous censorship measures have been abrogated and a new structure established. The new decree prohibits showing of 'immoral" films, pictures which may cause social disturbances, pictures which are contrary to patriotic sentiments, and those which may "injure the dignity of other nations."

The new Peru decree also specifies that minors will not be allowed to attend films which are "harmful to their spiritual formation." The exhibition of trailers or synopses of films which have not yet been cleared by the censors is also banned.

RKO Plans Video Ads in Four Cities

ALBANY, N. Y., May 5.—Television stations in four cities will be used to promote the premiere of RKO's "The Great Joe Young," Terry Turner, RKO exploitation director, told exhibitors attending a luncheon following a preview here today of the picture, which will be released July 13.

Schenectady, Buffalo, Boston and New Haven are the sites of the stations which will be used to present trailers of the picture, Turner said. G. Emerson Markham, manager of the four General Electric video stations, also spoke at the luncheon and observed that no one in the area has yet used TV to stimulate theatre attendance.

Foreign Heads Confer Here on So. America

Conditions in South America, Ecuador particularly, was the principal subject discussed at a meeting here yesterday of the foreign managers at the Motion Picture Association of America. The managers are expected to meet again soon to discuss the earnings restriction situation in South Africa.

Yesterday's meeting was presided over by John McCarthy, managing director of MPAA's international division.

Six for 'Adults Only'

CHICAGO, May 5.—Six films were placed in the "adult only" classification during April by the Chicago police censor board. Lux Imports in 16mm.

All imports of Lux Films will be ultimately reduced to 16mm., with English titles, it was announced by Bernard Jacon, production vice-president, with the Italian pictures, "Eternal City" and "Professor, My Son," the first to be completed.

Reviews

"The Forbidden Street"

(20th Century-Fox)

PRODUCER William Perlberg's celluloid version of the Margery Sharp novel, "Britannia Mews," portrays in somewhat grotesque terms the slum life of late 19th century London. It is a film wherein "atmosphere" dominates, with such drama elements as narrative, action, conflict and pace subordinated to mood and setting. The mood is somber, for the most part, and the major setting is the cobblestoned, unkempt quarter of the city, where horses are stabled and impoverished folk live in intimate squalor. The story is about a young woman of family and breeding who is attracted to this mews by a vague fascination, and eventually goes there to live with a worthless, drunkard artist whom she marries against her parents' wishes. Her efforts to stimulate her husband to work and ambition serve to change to scorn what little love he had for her. He dies in a fall following an argument with her, and the girl continues to live in the mews in the blackmailing grip of a weird old hag, played in robust caricature by Dame Sybil Thorndike.

The principal roles are filled with reasonable conviction by Dana Andrews and Maureen O'Hara, whose marquee draw should mark this interestingly-titled picture for satisfactory returns in nearly all situations, with acceptance likely to be best in metropolitan areas. Jean Negulesco, directing from a script by Ring Lardner, Jr., has made the most of the picture's few touches of mild humor. The film develops a lightened tone toward the end when Miss O'Hara acquires a boarder who closely resembles her late husband, although unlike the former he wears no beard. In fact, Andrews plays both roles. Prevented by circumstances beyond their control from marrying, they occupy separate quarters in the same house in the mews, but are able to marry ultimately. Meanwhile, by their joint efforts they bring themselves to fortune and distinction. The sizeable cast also includes Fay Compton, A. W. Matthews, Diane Hart, Ann Butchart, Wilfred Hyde White, Anthony Tancred and others.

Running time, 91 minutes. Adult audience classification. For June release.

"The Big Cat"

(Moss—Eagle-Lion)

A HUNT for a cougar that has been preying on livestock provides "The Big Cat" with its central appeal. Many dramatic elements make it a reasonably interesting film in a formula groove. It has the benefit of Technicolor and a cast headed by Lon McCallister, Peggy Ann Garner and Preston Foster. Rural communities should react especially to the the picture.

The screenplay, by Morton Grant and Dorothy Yost, is set in the mountain area of the West in the depression year of 1932. When young McCallister arrives in the drought-ridden community following his mother's death, he finds a fierce feud between his mother's brother, Forrest Tucker, and her former sweetheart, Foster. Between this feud and the search for the deadly mountain lion, McCallister is almost too busy to note the affectionate glances of Miss Garner. Because of McCallister's neglect with a rifle, Foster is clawed to death by the lion. There follows McCallister's vengeance on the animal and the resultant happy ending. It was produced by William Moss and directed by Phil Karlson. Others in the cast are Skip Homeier and Sara Haden. The story was by Morton Grant.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. April release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"Rimfire"

(Lippert—Screen Guild)

THE double task of recovering a stolen shipment of United States gold and getting to the bottom of a series of mysterious murders falls to James Millican in "Rimfire." The production has greater plot development than the usual Western, and as such stands up rather well. Others in the cast include Mary Beth Hughes, Reed Hadley, Henry Hull and Fuzzy Knight.

The customary amount of fisticuffs and shooting fill out the picture. Upon his arrival in a little Western community, where the mortality rate is scandalously high, Millican is made a deputy. There follow his attempts to ferret out the evil mastermind, which after several frustrations, lead to the sheriff himself. With the town thus cleansed of its villainy, Millican proceeds to take Miss Hughes as his bride.

As editor of the local paper, Hull snoops about in old journalistic fashion, while Knight, as Millican's aide, provides some patternized laughs. A Lippert production, it was produced by Ron Ormond and directed by B. Reeves Eason. The original screenplay was by Arthur St. Clair and Frank Wisbar.

Running time, 64 minutes. General audience classification.

Griffith Case

fith from exercising its circuit buying power to the detriment of its individual competitors. That is the issue before this Court—what we're going to do as to Griffith, not as to the distributors, and we are going to do the best we can."

Vaught disagreed with government attorney George Wise, who said distributors should use a double standard in dealing with independents and circuits such as the Griffith chain. Wise complained that distributors do not give independents a chance to buy, except product which Griffith does not want. On the other hand, he said, distributors have in some cases stopped doing business with independent customers when Griffith moved in to compete.

"Under your theory, they would have a right to do that, would they not, if they could get a better price?" Vaught asked.

"I think you have to apply a different measure to a monopoly situation than you do to an independent," said Wise.

"They could hardly be expected to hold a primary in every town to determine which one was the best purchaser," Vaught replied.

sequently acquired control of RKO he switched the three films to that company in a deal with UA which is now near consummation.

Negotiations of the UA transaction were begun last September and since that time Hughes Productions has had no product for release. Company's other properties include "Hell's Angels" and "The Front Page."

Alec Moss, who had been advertising-publicity director of Hughes Productions, is now with Motion Picture Sales Corp., where he has charge of sales, bookings and promotion of "Sins of Our Fathers," Canadian-made-hygiene production.

Gold could not be reached for comment on his plans.

Asks FCC to Reconsider

WASHINGTON, May 5.—United Detroit Theatres Corp. has told the Federal Communications Commission that its status as an applicant for a Detroit television station had been changed completely as a result of the Paramount consent decree and reorganization, and that the Commission should reconsider its decision throwing out United's application.

Plan Area Improvements

KANSAS CITY, May 5.—Representatives of the RKO Missouri Theatre, local house now being remodeled, met with property owners and merchants yesterday to discuss plans for improvement of the area in preparation for the opening scheduled for July. Paving and lighting improvements were announced, with other nearby business concerns planning modernization.

Harry Gaffney Expands

KANSAS CITY, May 5.—Harry Gaffney, formerly with Warner Brothers, lately branch manager for Monogram, who bought an interest in Screen Guild of Kansas City last fall, has now acquired the entire ownership from Julian King Enterprises. King Enterprises also operate in Des Moines and Omaha.

Variety Clubs

are varied and unique, ranging from the adoption of young children to the operation of boys' camps, maintenance of hospitals, boys' clubs and the showing of films to shut-ins at institutions.

The "Mother Tent", in Pittsburgh, where Variety Clubs were founded in 1927, continues its support of the Roselia Foundling Home and Camp O'Connell. Cincinnati, too, supports a Variety foundling home. Spastic children are the main interest of the showmen of St. Louis. The Detroit Tent, as well as many others, makes the fight-on-cancer their chief humanitarian effort. A cerebral palsy clinic is Buffalo's "heart" interest, while Albany maintains a Variety Club Boys' Camp for underprivileged children.

Coast to Coast

The Boston Tent which raised more than $300,000 through its "Jimmy" drive to create the Variety Clubs of New England Children's Cancer Research Foundation, and on the other side of the continent the Los Angeles Club erected and opened a $200,000 Variety Boys' Club so that youngsters may enjoy proper environment and guidance.

Toronto is building "Variety Village" at an equipment cost of $400,000. This village will be a vocational training school for crippled children. Mexico City has had a successful year in its contributions to anti-tuberculosis campaigns, its maintenance of orphanage charities and child hospital relief.

Indianapolis sponsors a Boy Scout Troop while in Washington, the club is undertaking to build a wing at Children's Hospital. Miami has peldged itself to operate a 92-bed children's hospital.

Texas Boys' Ranch

At the University of Minnesota, there is now under construction an 80-bed hospital, to be known as the "Variety Club of the Northwest Heart Hospital." A new type of camp is being built by the Philadelphia Tent, the first privately-operated camp for handicapped children and infantile paralysis victims. The chief "Heart" interest of the Dallas Club is the operation of the Variety Club Boys' Ranch at Coppers Cove, that is being built, which when completed, will represent an investment of $600,000.

These same humanitarian efforts in behalf of underprivileged are to be found in the Variety Clubs of San Francisco, Des Moines, Atlanta, Houston, Omaha, New York, Dayton, Baltimore, Buffalo, Memphis, Columbus, Oklahoma City, Chicago, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee, Charlotte, Toledo and New Haven.

Variety Pledges Support of Showmen to U. S. Bond Drive

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—Variety International chief barker Robert O'Donnell of Dallas outrightly pledged the complete support of America's showmen to U. S. Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder in the forthcoming "Opportunity Bond Drive" at the Humanitarian dinner last night at the Palace Hotel. Pledge was made in response to Snyder's address presenting the Humanitarian Award to Herbert Hoover, in the course of which Snyder read a letter of commendation from President Truman.

Presentation by Snyder was followed by speeches by John H. Harris, William McCraw, Edward Arnold and Roy Rogers, with the program opened by an unseen "Voice of Variety," dramatic presentation composed and narrated by Lou Ashe, barker of local Tent No. 32, and which will be distributed in recording form to all members.

Today's business session was devoted to reading "heart" reports by individual tents. The meeting adjourned early to permit delegates to attend a rodeo at the Rowell Ranch. The local tent held open house this evening.

Due to time pressure, presentation of a proposal for the production of another Variety-sponsored feature picture by Paul Short, producer of "Bad Boy," originally scheduled for today, was postponed for consideration tomorrow or at the mid-winter meeting.

Reviews

"Stampede"

(Allied Artists) Hollywood, May 5.

A STURDY story of the Old West filmed in Sepia, "Stampede" has as its principals an exploitable quartette made up of Rod Cameron, Gale Storm, Johnny Mack Brown and Don Castle. Some majestic background scenery further enhances the production. The root of the story is the historic struggle between cattlemen and squatters, and from this root has been developed a tale of strong wills clashing, fists and bullets flying, climaxed by a stampede sequence of extraordinary magnitude and realism. Produced by John C. Champion and Blake Edwards, under personal supervision of Scott R. Dunlap, and directed with skillful timing and precision by Lesley Selander, the picture is richly stocked with ingredients that have become sure-fire box office.

Cameron is cast as the unyielding elder son of a pioneer rancher whose dying instruction was to retain possession of his range land at any cost against all contenders, a policy in which he persists in defiance of laws which have opened his holdings to farmers from Illinois and Indiana arriving by wagon train as the picture opens. Brown is a powerful figure as the sheriff, torn between his friendship for Cameron and his legal obligations of office, and Castle, as Cameron's younger brother, gives a blithe note to the story until he is shot down from ambush by forces intent upon ruining Cameron by stampeding his herds and dynamiting a dam depriving the settlers of water. After that point the story turns grim, with Cameron and his enemies engaging in violent conflict of every description, ending with Cameron's decision to see things the lawful way, which includes the way of Miss Storm, a settler's daughter who has pitted her strength and wits against him and fallen in love with him the while. John Miljan, Jonathan Hale and John Eldredge are capably present in supporting roles. The script is by Champion and Hale, based on a book by Edward Beverly Mann.

Running time, 78 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

"Tucson"

A STANDARD comedy drama, the film derives its title from the home city of the University of Arizona which serves as a setting for some campus capers. Although the film is by no means distinguished, it is rendered palatable mostly by the presence of a supporting pair of humorous youngsters and the scenes of baby Deanna Wayne.

In lieu of plot and pace, the film resorts to a number of forced situations and other contrivances, the most annoying of which is a prolonged serio-comic feud between two students' fathers. Jimmy Lydon, a young man of proven talent in other pictures, is a student who would rather race his ranch horse than study. His regeneration is somewhat ingeniously and unconvincingly accomplished by his buckling down to work in atonement for carelessly blinding a fellow student during a chemistry experiment.

Romantic complications, not much more convincing, are also thrown into the story, with some slight question raised as to whether Lydon may lose Penny Edwards to his arch rival in the intercollegiate rodeo. Several stock shots of bucking steers give a lift to a rodeo sequence, which does not quite reach the cheering stage even in its featured horse race between the Bryants and the Reeves. Sol M. Wurtzel produced and William Claxton directed, from an original screenplay by Arnold Belgard.

Running time, 64 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 28.

directors. In any event, "I'll be here (at his office) as long as I am capable of it," he said.

Quality of production will determine the future of the new picture company, Zukor said, adding that the company's completed films, those in work and the others being prepared, all measure up to high calibre levels. He was especially enthusiastic about Cecil B. DeMille's latest, "Sampson and Delilah," which, he said, is "a perfect production, and efficiently made with every production dollar spent represented on the screen in entertainment value."

It is understood that negative costs for the new DeMille picture amounted to about $2,500,000 which, for DeMille, is said not to be a big budget.

The hunt for a generally acceptable formula is somewhat urgent, since the companies are reluctant to leave themselves open to charges by composers that the rights to music in films have not been paid for. Treasury experts are now said to have worked out a new regulation to give these taxpayers a better break. Top officials have the proposal under study now. If they approve, it would be legal to defer reporting earnings in foreign currencies as taxable income so long as a foreign government's rules make it illegal to convert them into U. S. dollars. Taxes would of course, have to be paid eventually whenever the earnings could be turned into dollars.

program is completed, the nature of Paramount's business and its organization will be completely changed and the disability, if any, which may have existed because of anti-trust proceedings, must of necessity fall."

The FCC has adopted a policy of granting only temporary renewals to the television licenses of Paramount subsidiaries, pending a decision on FCC policy towards firms convicted of violating the anti-trust laws. Paramount, soon after the Consent Decree, urged the Commission to grant permanent renewal of these licenses on the ground that if there ever had been any question about its eligibility, the Consent Decree removed that question. Today's brief was in further support of the request for permanent renewal of the licenses.

Speaking at Ohio State University, the FCC chairman made two other key remarks:

First, that he believed that the West Coast would be linked with the East by television within two years by a combination of microwave and coaxial cable relays; second, that he thought one way of getting around the high cost of television station construction, and incidentally getting television into smaller communities, would be for the little towns to set up secondary, satellite stations, hooked into stations in larger towns.

Fire Safety Record 100% at Exchanges

The 400 film exchanges and shipping depots of member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America completed their third successive year without any loss from fire, according to an annual report to Eric Johnston, MPAA president. These exchanges ship, repair and service to the nation's theatres more than 21,000 miles of film daily.

In his report for 1948, John B. McCullough, director of the Association's conservation department, stated: "It is doubtful that any industry of comparative business volume can match this record."

Pointing out that over the last 23 years there were only 16 film fires in member-operated exchanges in the U. S., an annual average fire loss of only $211, McCullough declared it is "evidence of the value of compliance with the self-regulatory conservation program instituted by the member companies 26 years ago."

Officers Elected by Variety; Up Pledge

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—R. J. O'Donnell was re-elected international chief barker for his seventh term at the closing session Friday of Variety Clubs International annual convention. Delegates also voted to increase their pledge to the Heart committee to a total of $2,800,000.

Annual Charity Award went to the Southern California tent, whose chief project was its Boys' Club.

Other officers elected include: Marc Wolf, Indianapolis, first assistant barker; Jack Beresin, Philadelphia, second assistant barker; Murray Weiss, Boston, property master; and George Eby, Pittsburgh, dough guy.

William McCraw was re-appointed executive director, Nathan Golden, Heart committee chairman, Carter Barron, executive aide to O'Donnell, C. J. Latta, European representative, and Charles Lewis was named to a new post, international press officer.

Portal, UK Probe Head, Dies Suddenly

LONDON, May 8.—Lord Portal of Laverstoke, chairman of the British government's inquiry into motion picture production and distribution, died suddenly on Friday at the age of 64. It is not anticipated that his unexpected death will delay completion of the inquiry, all evidence having been gathered and the committee having already started writing its conclusions. There has been speculation here for some time over whether the committee will recommend industry divorcement.

Lord Portal was reputed to be a millionaire with extensive interests in paper-making and other industries. He was formerly associated in the film business with the late C. M. Woolf and subsequently with J. Arthur Rank, establishing General Film Distributors.

See Griffith Hearing Ended in Fortnight

Oklahoma City, May 8.—Both government and defense attorneys expressed hope that the Griffith anti-trust hearing may be ended within a week or two. The defense has eight or 10 more witnesses, according to C. B. Cochran, Griffith attorney, while the government has not yet determined whether or not to present rebuttal testimony.

Fred M. Jack, United Artists division sales manager from Dallas, testified Friday that Griffith contracts for product on an individual, rather than circuit, basis.

SMPE Will Try to Hasten Theatre TV

With another conference set for June 28, theatre television committees of Theatre Owners of America and the Society of Motion Picture Engineers cleared the way at last week's parley for a thorough examination meanwhile by SMPE of possibilities for speeding up theatre video installations. Equipment, standards and costs factors will be studied by the SMPE at TOA's invitation, the former indicated in a statement issued on Friday.

SMPE reported also that it will assist in future hearings before the Federal Communications Commission on the assignment of exclusive television channels for theatre use. The theatre men stated at the meeting that equipment was available to them now only on an outright purchase basis, but that initial costs are too high and to few programs are now available. To date, SMPE reported, neither organization has learned of any plans for large scale production of equipment, suitable programs, or the rental of necessary theatre equipment.

WB Cancels Bid for Chicago Television

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Warner Brothers has withdrawn its bid for a Chicago television station but has told the Federal Communications Commission that it plans to go ahead in its attempt to get one in Los Angeles.

Industry in Holland Is on the Decline

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, May 2 (By Airmail).—A sharp decline has set in in the motion picture industry in this country. The decline is general with both distributors and exhibitors becoming victims of the government order which obliges municipalities to levy 35 per cent admission taxes; in the past they have amounted to only 20 per cent. Business was good during 1945-1947, but most exhibitors used that money for the restoration of their theatres. Distributors used their earnings for investments in new pictures.

Another complicating factor is the quality of pictures. Only now and then does a picture really prove to be a big hit. Too many pictures are imported to this small country with its 461 theatres. During 1948, Hollywood sent in 290, England 64, France 39, Italy 18, Sweden and Spain four, Russia and Switzerland three, Denmark and Czechoslovakia five, and Mexico, Canada and Argentina one each.

Distributors are having a hard time selling pictures. Trade shows are obligatory and block booking is not allowed. Maximum film rental is 32½ per cent and distributors are forced to sell product to many theatres to even pay expenses. The lot of the independents is even harder. German and Austrian pictures are expected to do big business here eventually.

Crescent Applies for Two Drive-in Permits

NASHVILLE, May 8.—Already granted permission to construct theatres in the Green Hills subdivision near Nashville and at Madisonville, Ky., Crescent Amusement has applied to the U. S. District Court for permission to construct drive-ins near Dyersburg and Columbia.

An application for the construction of a drive-in near Hopkinsville, Ky., previously denied without prejudice to a possible renewal, has been reviewed. The Hopkinsville denial is the only one that the court has made to date.

Profits Rise for 2 Canadian Firms

OTTAWA, May 8.—Two theatre companies here report increased earnings for 1948. Confederation Amusements earnings were up 23 per cent. and Consolidated Theatres reported a 10 per cent gain. Confederation lists net profits of $112,651, compared to 1947's $91,263, and Consolidated reports $145,414 for 1948, against $131,666 for 1947.

Consolidated modernized its Princess Theatre during the year, with costs to be written off over a five-year period, while Confederation redeemed maturing bonds to the extent of $20,000.

"Susanna Pass"

(Republic)

REPUBLIC'S latest in its Roy Rogers series has Trucolor, plenty of outdoor action, and an interesting plot, enlivened by Rogers, Trigger and the usual accompaniment of the Purple Sage Riders, aided in song by Foy Willing.

The background is California but this time the cowboys are forest rangers who spot two escaped convicts starting a fire in the woodlands and ride to the scene. However, the two make their getaway through the underbrush. One of the convicts, a nephew of the town's newspaper publisher, plans to get even with his uncle who framed him. The publisher's brother, owner of a fish hatchery, is murdered. Rogers discovers that the man was killed because his brother wanted to gain possession of the lake where there were valuable oil deposits. Dale Evans, the hatchery owner's assistant, inherits the hatchery. The convicts and the unscrupulous newspaper owner are captured and are brought to justice.

Musical numbers include the title song, "Susanna Pass," "Brush Those Tears from Your Eyes," "A Good, Good Mornin'" and "Two-Gun Rita," which is presented by Estelita Rodriguez.

Edward J. White was the associate producer and William Witney directed. Sloan Nibley and John K. Butler wrote the screenplay. Others in the cast are Martin Garralaga, Robert Emmett Keane, Lucien Littlefield, Douglas Fowley, David Sharpe and Robert Bice.

Running time, 67 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 29.

"Arson, Inc."

(Screen Guild Productions)

Hollywood, May 8

DIFFICULT though it may be to envision arson, pyromaniacs and insurance swindlers as adding up to a pleasing picture, Lippert Productions has turned the trick with this inexpensive venture. Despite the inevitably violent nature of much of its proceedings, "Arson, Inc." is so intelligently handled that it overrides its title.

Credit for the relatively good taste in treatment should probably be shared by producer Williams Stephens, director William Berke and screenwriters Arthur Caesar and Maurice Tombragel. An unobtrusively handled flashback, story-telling technique permits the use of a fire chief as narrator, thus providing a seemingly authentic atmosphere as background for the action.

Robert Lowery is the young fireman assigned to the undercover job of breaking up an arson ring by pretending to join with the leader, Douglas Fowley, and chief arsonist Edward Brophy. Lowery finally succeeds in trapping Brophy while Fowley, along with secretary and girl friend Marcia Mae Jones, go to a fiery grave when their speeding car crashes off a mountain cliff and is engulfed in flames. This retributive inferno is an indication of how "Arson, Inc." neatly effects its moral balance and escapes any real degree of sordidness.

Performances by the principals, including straight feminine lead Anne Gwynne, are universally good, but it is comic character actor Brophy who comes into his own with this film. His portrayal of the firebug, who sets off fires for love or money, proves his ability goes beyond diaphramatic laughter.

Running time, 65 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 28.

"The Mutineers"

(Columbia)

JON HALL and Adele Jergens share the lead in a pirate story which, although devoid of the usual swashbuckling to-do, manages to whip up sufficient action and general interest in the course of its economically-budgeted 67 minutes of footage.

Even more entertaining than the knock-down-and-drag-out brawls between the loyal crew and the hijackers, shooting and all, is the battle of wits between first mate Jon Hall and cut-throat leader Georges Reeves. Hall's ingeniously nautical device of rigging up sails from every scrap of canvas aboard the steamship, after Reeves' gang has taken over the engine room, is especially enjoyable.

While the plot, which doesn't identify the destination of the smugglers' weapons cache, is slightly familiar, "The Mutineers" steers a wide berth of one film cliche. There's really no romance to speak of, unless a mildly recurrent triangle between gang chief Reeves, traveling companion Adele Jergens and a lieutenant of the mob may be so construed. And Miss Jergens' unsubtle overtures towards hero Hall also come to naught, as she's led away by the Lisbon police, with the rest of the gang—without even a farewell kiss.

Several of the scenes in the crew's quarters achieve a quality far beyond the general standards of the film, thanks to some effective dialogue and natural bits by a number of unidentified players, including a baritone of excellent voice. Producer of "The Mutineers" was Sam Katzman. Jean Yarbrough directed.

Running time, 67 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 27.

German Film Needs Outlined in Report

A loosening of credit regulations and increased exports of German films are necessary before the German film industry can really get going again, according to a report reaching here from the Office of the U. S. Military Government for Bavaria.

The report declares that financial difficulties are still hampering the industry, with only one film presently being shot at the Bavaria Filmkunst Studios. The immediate reason, according to the report, is the restriction on long-term credit from German banks. Producers who have released some films can finance new ones partly from the proceeds of the first films, but new production groups are running into stone walls in their attempts to raise money.

As the second reason for the industry's difficulties, the report points out that film showings in the three Western zones of Germany allow only the slightest profit margin for a new film, so that a wider market abroad is necessary.

Prohibit Pay Cuts For Mexican Players

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—The pay of film players must not be cut, according to a mandate of Serra Rojas, president of the industry's own bank, the Banco Nacional Cinematografico, which controls many producers through financing. There had been fear of cuts among players because of the economies which the bank had advised the industry to undertake.

Rojas, in his orders to keep players' pay at least at present levels, said that cutting their wages would not be economy because fair pay makes for discipline and good work.

New Finances Will Aid Radox Growth

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—Financing arrangements for expansion of the use of "Radox," a radio and television audience measuring device, have been announced by Albert E. Sindlinger, president of a company bearing his name, who said that a group of Chicago businessmen will back operations on a national scale.

For the present, use of the device will be concentrated here, where 200 sample homes have installed the instrument which records all dial activity on radio or television receivers. At present 11 per cent of sample homes have video installations. Next city to be covered is New York, Sindlinger said.

FCC Authorizes NBC Video Experiments

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Federal Communications Commission has authorized National Broadcasting to go ahead with experimentations for sending television over ultra-high frequencies into special receivers in a select group of homes. This will be the first actual home reception of television broadcast over the very high frequencies. Until now, it has been on a laboratory experimental basis.

The Commission gave NBC permission to build a special satellite station in Bridgeport, Conn., to carry out the experiment. This station will take programs off WBNT in New York and "pipe" them over an ultra-high channel into the special receivers in the selected homes in the Bridgeport area. The Commission said NBC must notify it if RCA starts selling such receivers widely around Bridgeport.

C.; and Jack Zide, Detroit.

Reviews

"Sky Dragon"

(Monogram)

A BLOW-BY-BLOW account of this latest in the Charlie Chan series would suggest that the plot is somewhat confusing, but it really isn't—anymore so than most pictures trying to keep the audience guessing wrong until the final scene. Roland Winters does a smooth job as Chan; Keye Luke stands out in the familiar role of Lee Chan and Manton Moreland gets the most out of several comedy situations as the Chan chauffeur.

Story centers around a murder and $250,000 robbery aboard a commercial airplane with passengers and crew figuring as suspects. Romantic interest is light but well handled by Noel Neill, a stewardess, and Milburn Stone, the pilot and chief suspect until Chan ferrets out the real villain. As the latter, Paul Maxey, a insurance company detective, ingeniously seems justified in his several opportune shootings until his motives are exposed.

Oliver Drake and Clint Johnson warrant a bow for their tightly knit screenplay, which was effectively brought to the screen by producer James S. Burkett and director Lesley Selander. The stock device of Chan re-enacting the crime, by way of revealing the real killer, is especially well executed in "Sky Dragon."

Running time, 64 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 27.

"Daughter of the West"

(Film Classics)

A STORY of life on an Indian reservation, "Daughter of the West" has some standard elements of melodrama and is enhanced by Cinecolor.

Philip Reed is an educated Indian leader who strives to make his people self-sufficient by irrigating their lands and developing natural resources. Martha Vickers is an orphaned school teacher who goes to the reservation to instruct the Indian children. The girl was brought up at the local Mission, both her parents being Indians. All the principal actors give competent performances.

The happiness and security of the Indians are endangered by an unjust Indian agent, played by Donald Woods. Reed discovers that the agent is planning to gain, unlawfully, title to some of the Indian lands, which contain deposits of copper. The agent tries to have Reed banished from the reservation by making it appear that he murdered an Indian. However, Reed proves his innocence, and the agent and his accomplice are sentenced to death for their crimes of murder and theft by an Army court. Reed is appointed Indian agent and he marries the school teacher. Martin Mooney produced and Harold Daniels directed. Robert E. Callahan was associate producer.

Running time, 77 minutes. General audience classification.

"Courtin' Trouble"

(Monogram)

JIMMY WAKELY heads the cast of this Western which has cattlemen feuding with businessmen. The customary amount of hard riding and fighting transpires before Wakely solves the differences and brings the culprits to book.

Wakely captures a man who is accused of shooting and robbing a cattleman. The leader of the gang hires a young lawyer, played by Virginia Belmont, to defend the gunman. When the witness is found murdered, the killer is freed. The girl overhears the schemes of a saloon owner and his henchmen and is captured by the gang. Wakely and Cannonball Taylor go to her rescue and the murderers are killed or apprehended in a fierce gun fight. Cannonball Taylor is responsible for the comedy and Wakely sings a couple of Western ballads. The film was produced by Ford Beebe and was directed by Louis Gray. Ronald Davidson wrote the screenplay.

Running time, 56 minutes. General audience classification.

"Search for Danger"

(Film Classics)

PRODUCED and directed by Jack Bernhard, this latest of "The Falcon's" unending cinematic adventures has John Calvert in the role of the suave hero, who locates a missing person and discovers two corpses, all within 24 hours. This is a fast-moving story of murders and the eventual capture of the criminals.

The Falcon, of course, is suspected by the police and is also hunted by members of the underworld. He is hired by night club owners to locate a partner who had disappeared, and is successful in finding the man. However, the man is found murdered and $100,000 is missing. The other victim is a man who was engaged to watch the Falcon. There is mystery and exciting situations throughout. Supporting cast includes Myrna Dell as the girl friend of the missing night club partner and Douglas Fowler as the police inspector. The screenplay was by Don Martin, from a story by Jerome Epstein.

Running time, 63 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—Announcement by Seymour Nebenzal that he and other American independent producers will make at least five pictures in English here during the coming year has been greeted with mixed reactions. Part of the trade sees the move as an intrusion, with others inclined to view it as a help to all Mexican production.

The industry's own bank, the Banco Nacional Cinematografico S. A., favors the plan and has announced that it is willing to finance the American production in part. Jorge Negrete, actor and head of the players section of the Picture Production Workers Union, says that the players like the plan and see it as a good chance for employment. The Americans will use the Churubusco studios here.

Germans to Assume Censorship Duties

The U. S. Military Government for Bavaria, in a report which arrived here this week, predicted that the German film industry will sometime this month assume responsibility for film censorship in the three Western Zones of Germany—French, British, and American.

German film producers, distributors and exhibitors of all three Western zones met in Bad Reichenhall and agreed on the structure of a censorship committee and a moral code stating the aims of an industry self-censorship plan. A working committee of the three groups was formed and has been at work ever since, and now seems close to being ready to take over, according to the AMG report.

Para. Profit for '48

solidated results for 1948 the earnings of subsidiaries operating outside of the United States and Canada except to the extent that income was received therefrom. Film revenues from such subsidiaries are included only to the extent of the remittable portion thereof or, with respect to certain countries, only to the extent that dollars were received in New York.

The amount earned per common share for 1948 was $3.63 on 6,715,039 shares outstanding, which compares with $4.43 per share for 1947 on 7,092,839 shares outstanding on January 3, 1948.

Operating revenues for 1948 amounted to $173,528,284, as against $186,301,570 for the previous year.

Dividends paid during the year amounted to $13,788,978, compared with $14,347,778 in 1947, or $2.00 per share for each year.

The consolidated balance sheet shows current assets of $81,628,553 and current liabilities of $13,664,405, leaving a net working capital of $67,964,148. The current assets included cash and government securities of $32,372,460, all located in the United States and Canada, and an inventory of $42,483,137.

Working Capital Decrease

Balaban states in the report: "During 1948 we spent approximately $8,600,000 for net additions to fixed assets and investments of the company and subsidiaries, $3,500,000 for reduction of the company's bank debt, $8,269,000 for acquisition of shares of the company's common stock and $13,788,000 for payment of dividends to stockholders, with the result that the net working capital decreased $10,420,000 during the year.

"Between Nov. 11, 1946, and April 26, 1949, we reduced our common stock outstanding in the hands of the public to 6,588,139 shares by the purchase of 916,133 shares at an aggregate cost of $22,392,000 disregarding dividends which would have been paid if the shares had been outstanding on the several dividend payment dates. Thus, we reduced our outstanding capital stock by 12.21 per cent and we paid approximately $37,000,000 in dividends, or a total cash outlay of approximately $59,000,000 in less than two and one-half years.

Sees Hope in TV

"There is a great deal of speculation about television as a threat to our future prosperity," Balaban continued. "Television may turn out to be our companion rather than our antagonist. Just as radio developed our greatest personalities such as Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, I believe that television will be an unparalleled medium for the development of talent for motion pictures. It will also be an unprecedented advertising facility for the showing of short sections of movies in homes to stimulate the interest of those who are not now patrons of the movies.

"As a motion picture company we have pioneered in the development of television. We have developed here in Paramount a system of large screen television which enables us to photograph the image from a television receiver and project it on a large screen within 40 seconds of the occurrence of the event which is portrayed.

"Motion picture attendance has fallen off in the past on the evenings of broadcasts of some major event, which kept people at home to listen. With our large screen television, people need not stay at home because they will know that they can see the regular program and the special event at their motion picture theatre.

New York with film critics and writers, including Robert E. Sherwood, and with educators, anthropologists and others; one was held in Chicago with exhibitors, and another in Bryan, O., with film patrons. The Coast session will be attended by studio executives and producers whose names Life declined to reveal, "not because they are secret but because all invitations have not been accepted yet." Life spokesmen said those conducting the discussions with Eric Hodgins, moderator and former publisher of Fortune, will "stand off" from the Hollywood meeting, leaving the discussion of the industry to the industry people present.

Exhibitors Met in Chicago

The Chicago session with exhibitors, held at the Ambassador East Hotel, was attended by James Coston and Alex Halperin of Warner Brothers Theatres there; Arthur Schoenstadt, Trueman Rembusch of Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana; Elmer Balaban of the H. and E. Balaban circuit; Weldon Allen of the Grove Theatre, Galesburg, Ill., subject of a recent Fortune article, and Ed Zorn, president of United Theatre Owners of Illinois, Pontiac.

In addition to providing material for an article on motion pictures to appear in Life this summer, the magazine's spokesmen describe the sessions as a means of briefing reporters and editors on motion picture views and operations. The magazine has clamped the lid of secrecy on the discussions, even pledging those participating to refrain from divulging information, on the grounds that the story is for its own use.

See No Antagonism

Life spokesmen have expressed surprise that some industry quarters regard the sessions with suspicion and others view them as unfriendly to motion pictures and the industry. Some industry people who have participated here say there was no indication of antagonism and some of the film critics reported that their own discussions developed many expressions favorable to motion pictures.

On the other hand, exhibitors at the Chicago session reported that leading questions, such as "Why are better films made in Europe?" were asked. In the main, though, that session appeared to seek exhibitor opinions of films and theatre business, public reaction to films and how films could be improved. The theatre owners felt that exhibitors should be consulted on production, criticized Hollywood extravagance, executive salaries and some trade practices, particularly designated play-dates.

Hays Nears Ruling

French remittances are viewed as entering their final stage.

Hays, former president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association, and special adviser to the MPAA, was named last October by MPAA president Eric A. Johnston to arbitrate the companies' dispute over the sharing of $1,572,138, which is part of the sum France has agreed to pay the American industry under the U.S.-French film pact.

At the suggestion of Johnston the presidents of the major companies, having accepted responsibility for resolving the dispute amicably, agreed to be governed by the advice of Hays. Involved are Paramount, United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Warners, Loew's, Columbia, Universal and RKO Radio.

The issue between the eight arises from (1) an alleged agreement in New York on their part to use gross billings in France during the period ending June 30, 1947, as the basis for the division of dollar remittance, and (2) the insistence of the French government that payments be made to the companies in proportion to cash on hand as of June 30, 1947.

any arbitration of a plan which would entail payment for "special licenses" in addition to general licenses.

Ascap offered use of its music, Ahlert said, at the rate of three per cent of revenue which the telecasters derived from advertisers, less 15 per cent to compensate telecasters for advertising agency discounts. Additionally, Ascap asked added fees for "special uses" of its music.

Ahlert said that the telecasters offered rates which would be 58 per cent under the amounts paid by radio on a network basis and 40 per cent under what local radio stations pay.

Negotiations began early this year with the stipulation that any pact would be retroactive to Jan. 1. Ascap's contracts with the video industry have been on a gratis basis.

$8,000,000 in UK Held Under Monetary Pact

3 Millions Remittable To U.S. Firms in June

American film companies will have blocked earnings estimated at $8,000,000 in England upon the conclusion of the first year of operation of the Anglo-U. S. monetary agreement on June 14, according to film company executives here, who are in close touch with foreign markets.

Of this amount, the companies collectively will be permitted to remit next month the dollar equivalent of the earnings of British pictures here in the past year, figured to amount to about $3,000,000. Contributing the lion's share of the British profit here are "Hamlet," which already has surpassed $1,000,000 in distribution gross, and "The Red Shoes," which is not far behind.

Telecasters' licensing of music performance rights directly from the music publishers is in prospect as a result of the weekend collapse of negotiations between Ascap and the National Association of Broadcasters.

Convinced that chances for an agreement with Ascap before June 1 are remote, if not impossible, the video networks and individual stations already are mapping plans for future operations which exclude Ascap entirely. Trade Relations Hit At Life's Seminar

CHICAGO, May 9.—Exhibitors who participated in the Life magazine motion picture symposium held at the Ambassador East Hotel here reported today that considerable displeasure over exhibitor-distributor relations was voiced at the session.

Goodwill between the two branches of the industry often is found lacking, the session was told, and this was attributed to distributor indifference to exhibitor problems and needs. Clearance problems and effects of Federal court decisions in industry cases also were subjects of inquiry at the round-table meeting.

The exhibitors were asked about their attitudes toward stars who receive unfavorable publicity, with responses divided as to whether they felt such personalities should be boycotted by producers and/or exhibitors.

Hearings Start on Admission Taxes For Municipalities

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Congress was told today that if the Federal Government left the admission tax to the states, some states would be helped a lot while others would receive relatively little help.

The statement came from Colorado Governor Knouss, one of the opening witnesses at a joint House-Senate committee hearing on the need for a national commission on inter-governmental relations. All of the witnesses urged approval of legislation for such a commission, citing overlapping and duplicating taxes as the field where such a commission could do the most good.

Knouss told the committee that thickly-populated states with large theatre attendances would be helped considerably if the Federal Government got out of the admission tax field, whereas less populous states as his own might not be helped much at all.

40 Houses to Schenck; He Pays Over $300,000

United Artists Theatre Circuit and National Theatres have agreed to dissolve their jointly-owned California circuit, United West Coast Theatres, on Oct. 1, with the UA company, headed by Joseph M. Schenck, emerging with 40 houses and paying National in excess of $300,000 under terms of the deal, Schenck revealed here yesterday.

The 40 which UA Theatres will take over comprise those houses which it originally had placed into the pool in addition to four others which National originally had owned, these being one each in Palo Alto, San Jose, Fresno and Richmond, all California.

Schenck disclosed that UA is now organizing a new company to operate the houses, which presently are being

3 More Fox Divisions

Three additional sales divisions, in the East, Mideast and Midwest, have been created by 20th Century-Fox, "as the first steps towards reciprocal betterment of buying and selling conditions with its customers." These changes are preliminary to a statement of sales policy which will be made today by Spyros P. Skouras, president.

The company's distribution operations will now consist of eight divisions rather than five. They are: New England, Ed Callahan, division manager, Boston, New Haven, headquarters,

20th Sets Deals With 18 For Philadelphia Runs

Twentieth Century-Fox has completed competitive negotiations with 18 Philadelphia theatres in as many zones for first-run neighborhood availability, after downtown first-run, under the new selling plan which the company is launching in that city, A. W. Smith, Jr., vice-president and general sales manager, announced here yesterday.

The deals were made for "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," which is now set for May 26 in each zone. Under the new plan of flexible availability, the 18 theatres are being granted an opportunity to play the company's product on a 21-day availability after first-run downtown. Previously only eight or nine houses had the neighbor-

Ireland Cuts Rural And Newsreel Taxes

Dublin, May 9.—In his budget speech, Minister for Finance P. McGilligan announced the removal of all import duties on newsreels and also the complete exemption from the entertainment tax for all film shows in rural areas where the population is under 500.

The measure wil take effect on June 1 and will cost the government about $100,000 a year.

Wehrenberg Services

ices for the former president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America are Ted R. Gamble, Herman Levy, Morris Loewenstein, Robert W. Coyne, S. H. Fabian.

Meanwhile, countless expressions of mourning have been received here from various sections of the country. Representative of them is a statement by Arthur H. Lockwood, president of the Theatre Owners of America, of which Wehrenberg was honorary chairman. Said Lockwood: "The motion picture industry has lost a trusted and valued leader. Throughout his career as a showman, he worked untiringly for the progress and welfare of all segments of show business. His labors for the industry were vast, his success outstanding, his prestige and influence well-established."

The head of the 13-theatre Wehrenberg circuit opened a nickelodeon here in 1906, and four years later built the city's first motion picture house. Wehrenberg was a Spanish-American War veteran and vice-president of the Jefferson Gravois Bank here. Rites will be held at Ziegenheim Mortuary, with interment in Sunset Park.

Services for Salomons

Funeral services will be held tonight for Robert Y. Salomons, Sr., 57, cashier of the Warner home office, at St. Johns Lutheran Church, East Williston, Long Island. Salomons, who joined Warners in 1929, died suddenly Friday at his home. He is survived by the widow, Ruth, a son, Robert Y., Jr., a daughter, Joyce Smith, two sisters, two brothers, and four grandchildren. The funeral will be tomorrow, with interment at Nassau Knolls Memorial Park.

Says M-G-M Sold Griffith By Towns

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 9.—William B. Zoellner, formerly M-G-M branch manager here and now national sales manager for short subjects and reprints, testified today at the Griffith mandate hearing that he made it a practice to deal with Griffith town by town at the time when the circuit allegedly exercised illegal buying power.

Zoellner's testimony contradicted that of two complaining witnesses, J. D. Wineland and A. A. Molder, who competed with Griffith at Picher and Sapulpa, Okla., respectively, during the period before the anti-trust action was started in 1939.

Zoellner claimed that he wouldn't negotiate with Wineland because he was not a steady customer.

In reply to a question from Judge Edgar S. Vaught, Zoellner said he wouldn't make a deal with only a part of the Griffith circuit towns, however, even though he was dealing on an individual town basis. Vaught asked the question after Milton Kallis, government attorney, had inquired why M-G-M hadn't sold "Honky Tonk" in 1941 to Griffith in closed towns when that film was sold to independents in all competitive cities.

Zoellner, here since last Wednesday, plans to return to New York tomorrow.

Production Spurts 35 Films in Work

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—The production index took the biggest leap forward this week in many months, with nine new pictures started, for a total of 35. Twelve new pictures went into production, while three were finished.

Shooting began on "Cow Town," Columbia; "Side Street," M-G-M; "Cattle King," Monogram; "Golden Stallion," Republic; "Trouble in Texas" and "Make Mine Laughs," RKO Radio; "12 O'Clock High" and "I Was a Male War Bride," 20th-Fox; "Mrs. Mike" (Bischoff), and "Gun Crazy" (King Brothers), UA; "Francis," U-I; "White Heat," Warners.

Finished were "Prison Warden" (formerly "Beyond These Walls"), Columbia; "Red Danube," M-G-M; "Skyliner," Screen Guild.

Film Advertising to Help U.S. Bond Drive

Major film companies are expected to include in forthcoming trade advertising liberal promotion of the U. S. Treasury's "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive" which will run from May 15 through June 30, Maurice A. Bergman, chairman of the industry's participation in the drive has revealed.

It was announced simultaneously yesterday by Charles Einfeld, 20th Century-Fox advertising - publicity vice-president, that all 20th-Fox trade advertising and New York Roxy Theatre advertising will contain drive promotions.

Additional Talent Tours for Bonds

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—Paul Lukas, Wayne Morris and Cesar Romero have been added by the Hollywood Coordinating Committee to the list of screen stars who will help launch the Treasury's "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive," May 15-June 30. Lukas and Morris will take part in a rally at Kansas City May 16, with Lizbeth Scott. Romero is set for Chicago May 19. Following Kansas City, Lukas will fly to Dallas for a rally on May 18, while Morris will appear at Atlanta and Miss Scott at Detroit on the same date.

The star tours, a part of the industry's cooperation with the Treasury, were planned by the industry's over-all committee, headed by Maurice A. Bergman and Dore Schary, M-G-M studio vice-president.

Penna. TV Stations Fight Censorship

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Five Pennsylvania television stations asked Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick to declare invalid the state regulation passed last Jan. 24 which requires that all TV films bear the approval of the state Board of Censors.

Witnesses appearing in behalf of the appeal were William B. Lodge, CBS-TV engineering vice-president, Emerson York, New York independent video film producer, and Joseph MacDonald, ABC-TV vice-president. They declared that the present regulations destroy the "immediacy" value of television; interfere with the authority of the Federal Communications Commission; place an undue burden on interstate commerce; and, if sustained, would give the TV industry a considerable setback.

Reviews

"The Window"

(RKO Radio)

THE continuous excitement and suspense that arises out of believable situations sets "The Window" apart from the usual run of melodramas. Produced by the late Frederic Ullman, Jr. of This Is America note, the film, which largely was shot on the streets of a tenement section of Manhattan, has settings of marked naturalism.

With Bobby Driscoll playing the focal role, the story concerns a 10-year-old boy who is known in the neighborhood for some of the fancy tales he spinned. One night, however, the boy witnessed a murder from his fire escape perch, and when he tried to convince his elders of what he had seen, they would not believe him. Thus the screenplay, by Mel Dinelli, draws a contemporary parallel of the Aesopian tale of the boy who cried "Wolf" too often.

The cast is a convincing one that also includes Barbara Hale and Arthur Kennedy as the boy's parents; and Paul Stewart and Ruth Roman as a homicidal couple. Once the boy fails to impress his parents or the police with the authenticity of his story, his life becomes endangered by the guilty couple who then become bent on eliminating the one witness to their deed. There follows the boy's lonely, terror-stricken flight from the couple's clutches. It is these scenes which give the picture a curious fascination, even though an occasional melodramatic device is resorted to in order to heighten tension. The ending is one which will satisfy the mass audience. From the top of an abandoned tenement house, where the hectic chase ends, the boy jumps to the safety of a police net while Stewart plunges to his death. Ted Tetzlaff's direction is taut throughout. Dore Schary was in charge of production.

Running time, 73 minutes. General audience classification. For June release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"The Gay Amigo"

(United Artists) Hollywood, May 9

IN view of liberties taken over the years with his softly-accented, indestructible Cisco Kid, the late O. Henry should experience only a restful half-turn over "The Gay Amigo," latest in the perpetual series of the good badman. Perhaps it was more in deference to Mexican-American relations than to the original author that producer Philip Krasne, director Wallace Fox, screenwriter Doris Schroeder and associate producer Duncan Renaldo, who plays Cisco, decided to play down certain uncomfortably familiar aspects of these pictures. (The film is even labeled "An Inter-American Production.")

At any rate, the result—while still hardly gratifying from the objection point of stereotyping racial characters—combines a palatable degree of international goodwill comment and some generally acceptable philosophy, along with the usual amount of hard riding, gunplay and a standout slugging match between Cisco and Joe Sawyer as the tough, slow-thinking Sgt. McNulty of the U. S. Cavalry. (Pains were taken here to cast no slur of defeat upon the uniform by its removal before the battle.)

With the typically philosophical if moot comment, "There's good in most of us and bad in all of us," in answer to a charge that Mexican banditos have been terrorizing the border town, Cisco and his trusty, joking compadre Pancho proceed to prove to the U. S. authorities and one and sundry that the real culprits are the American town's newspaper publisher and its blacksmith with a gang disguised as Mexicans. For a dash of romance, there is cantina girl Armida, whom the gallant Cisco leaves to the Sergeant. Others in the cast are Leo Carrillo, Walter Baldwin and Fred Kohler, Jr.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, May 5.

Video Could Dominate In 5 Years, Says Coy

COLUMBUS, O., May 9.—Removal of four bottlenecks will speed television's growth so that within five years it will be the dominant broadcasting medium, said Wayne Coy, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, before a meeting of the Institute for Education by Radio of Ohio University.

Coy listed these as bottlenecks: FCC's freeze on new station permits, limitation of present 12 video channels, scarcity of new network facilities and the huge cost of station construction and operation. Coy also said that AM broadcasting within five years, although improved and extended, will "be attracting less of the advertisers' dollars and less of the listeners' attention."

Schwalberg ATOI Guest

A. W. Schwalberg, Paramount vice-president in charge of distribution, will be guest speaker at the annual convention of Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, June 21-23.

Two Horizon Films Set for Columbia

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—The next two films to be produced by Horizon Pictures, the John Huston-Sam Spiegel company, will be released by Columbia. The pictures will be a screen adaptation of Frank Harris' "Reminiscences of a Cowboy," which Huston will direct next year and "The Deserters" or "The Third Secret," for which another director will be engaged. Huston is also committed to make "Quo Vadis" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and then a documentary on the need for world unity.

operated by Fox West Coast, National's wholly-owned subsidiary, in the pool. Schenck and Charles Skouras, head of FWC, are both in New York from California, and spent part of yesterday in talks with George Skouras, head of Skouras Theatres here, who appears slated for a prominent part in Schenck's theatre expansion plans.

As previously reported, Schenck has submitted his resignation as 20th Century-Fox studio executive to obtain legal sanction for acquisition of new theatres, but this will not be acted upon until May 17 when the board meets. He said yesterday that his contract with the company has about five more years to run.

If the board accepts his resignation, Schenck said, he will exercise his option to purchase 50 per cent of the stock of Northern California Theatres, which operates 105 houses through its subsidiaries, Golden Gate Theatres and T. and D., Jr., Enterprises. Northern California is headed by Michael Naify.

The magazine group, under Eric Hodgins, moderator, moves on to Lake Arrowhead, Cal., now for a three-day session with producers and studio executives starting Friday. Results will be published in a mid-summer issue of the magazine.

Participants in yesterday's session, like those in previous ones, said they had been pledged to silence by the Life people, but observed that there appeared to be no undercurrent of unfriendliness to the industry in the attitudes of those conducting the questioning or in the questions asked.

Apprised of this, one industryite remarked: "But you can't tell how those people (on Life) will use the information."

hood first-run and on a 28-day availability. Two or three theatres are situated in most zones and all are invited to compete for the run on the basis of competitive negotiations.

In terms of days, the availability under the flexible plan for these subsequent runs will be 21 to 35 days, so that between the 21st and 35th day there will be a period of time when these theatres will have clearance over the next cycle of houses.

For the theatres that will follow the first group of 18, the availability will be 35 to 49 days under the same flexible plan as that used for the first subsequent run. On the 50th day after first-run the picture will be offered to all theatres in their proper playing position.

Implementing a publicity campaign, 20th-Fox is offering bond awards in the amounts of $100, $50 and $25 to the managers of the 18 theatres whose campaigns on behalf of the May 26 openings of "Mr. Belvedere" are deemed best.

Howard Minsky, Mideastern division sales manager, and Sam Diamond, Philadelphia branch manager, handled the negotiations for 20th-Fox.

Theatres involved in the early playdate plan starting May 26 are: Zone 1, Broad; zone 2, Benson; zone 3, Tower; zone 4, Girard; zone 6, Nixon; zone 7, Iris; zone 8, Carman; zone 9, Logan; zone 10, Jeffries; zone 11, Roosevelt; zone 12, Fernrock; zone 13, Ogontz; zone 14, Bandbox; zone 15, Mayfair; zone 16, Oxford; zone 17, Erlen; zone 18, Keswick Theatre, Glenside; Main line, Suburban Theatre, Ardmore. Zone 5 theatres did not come in on the plan.

British Theatres

for reference to the national arbitration tribunal.

This implies that in the event of the Ministry failing to take action within 21 days, NATKE has the right to issue a strike call involving all theatres.

As an additional preliminary step, Tom O'Brien, head of NATKE, warned the union's 7,000 studio members to be prepared to take sympathetic action if necessary, threatening a shutdown of the entire industry.

In a statement to the press O'Brien declared that 80 per cent of the workers receive wages below the subsistence level. He claimed that despite the CEA offer of increases ranging from two and one-half to seven and one-half per cent, average wages would remain less than $9 per week for women and $17 for men.

O'Brien charged that after six months of negotiations the exhibitors made no offer which removes even the elementary injustices complained of.

O'Brien's action is regarded largely as propaganda in a process of jockeying for position. Nevertheless, the CEA, appreciating the potential gravity of the situation, called an emergency meeting of its executive council today. Smaller theatres maintain that any further increase in operating costs would result in putting them into the red and claim that the last wage agreement negotiated with NATKE in September, 1946, represented their maximum concession. They point out that since then attendance has fallen and without some reduction of the heavy entertainment tax it would be impossible to meet NATKE's new demands.

Calgary, Montreal, St. John, Vancouver, Toronto, Winnipeg.

"These changes in the company's operating setup have been accomplished without any elimination of manpower," said 20th-Fox.

Callahan was formerly Boston branch manager; Moskowitz was executive assistant to Andy W. Smith, Jr.; Minsky was assistant Eastern division sales manager; Aaron was Eastern sales supervisor, while Moon was Eastern division sales manager.

Moon replaces J. H. Lorentz as Central divisional sales manager. Lorentz, who is ill, has been transferred at his request to Milwaukee as branch manager succeeding J. R. Neger. The latter becomes branch manager in Kansas City succeeding George W. Fuller, Jr., who is temporarily inactive because of poor health.

Ascap Out of Video

rights through publishers who are willing to license their compositions on an individual basis.

Ascap's present gratis contracts with the telecasters had been extended from January 1 to June 1 on condition that any agreements on non-gratis pacts in the interim would be retroactive to January 1.

Spokesman for both sides say they are "hopeful" a settlement will be reached but admit the feeling is based only on the fact that amicable settlement would be helpful for all concerned, but there are no apparent facts which would indicate an agreement is likely.

Principal issue is Ascap's proposal to license the regular use of its music in a blanket contract but reserving for its members the right to license special uses of music, such as where costumes and scenery are involved. Actually, Ascap members have not authorized the Society to license these special rights.

Robert Myers, NBC counsel and chief negotiator for the video industry, said here yesterday that the telecasters must insist on a contract which would cover all uses of music, and that "special uses" is a term not always definable and could lead to innumerable disputes.

UK Blocked Money

agreement with the British is in effect almost a full year, American companies only now are reaching the full volume of business in that country as a result of the boycott of the British market early last year. When shipment of films to England was resumed on June 14, 1948, American companies found that for the most part the principal money outlets—first-runs and the circuits—were booked for six months in advance with British product and U. S. re-issues.

Also accounting for the unusually low earnings in England for 1948-49 were the new playing time quota of 45 per cent for British pictures, American companies' retaliation policy of refusing to sell a U. S. picture to play on a double bill with a British film, and a drop-off in theatre business. J. Arthur Rank told associates here on his visit last month that exhibition revenue in England is 10 per cent under the 1948 level.

Under terms of the agreement which lifted the boycott, which in turn had stemmed from the short-lived British 75 per cent ad valorem tax, American companies are permitted to remit earnings of $17,000,000 annually in 12 monthly installments. Computation and distribution of the remittable earnings are made by British government-appointed auditors.

Additionally, the equivalent of British earnings here will be determined next month and subsequently will be allocated to the U. S. companies by the Joint Control Committee which supervises operation of the monetary agreement.

It was pointed out here that the figures on blocked money and remittables do not reflect actual profits in England, a market which has yielded in the past up to $70,000,000 a year. It was explained that a substantial amount of blocked money in the past year has been used for production and allied purposes, retirement of debt and numerous other permitted uses.

20th-FOX SETS NEW SALES PLAN

Favors Sliding Scale, Reduced Clearances, Gives Field Autonomy

Completing its two months' study of market conditions with the aim of mutually benefiting exhibition and distribution revenue, 20th Century-Fox yesterday announced its new sales policy.

The detailed program was presented in a statement by Spyros P. Skouras, president. It emphasized the company's desire to reduce clearances, to create multiple first and second runs, to increase the use of sliding scale formulas in selling to virtually all but small town and late subsequent run exhibitors and to give specific aid in improving the merchandising of pictures regionally and in winning increased theatre patronage.

As a corollary of the new policy, 20th-Fox has granted complete autonomy to its field forces to negotiate and approve firm, binding deals with exhibitors.

Skouras Selling Policy Statement:

In recent years, all branches of the motion picture industry—production, distribution and exhibition—have been caught between a rise in costs and some decline in box-office. Unless steps are taken to resolve this pressing problem, film revenue will no longer sustain the continued production or exhibition of high quality motion pictures. I have sought an answer to

Highlights of 20th-Fox Plan

FOLLOWING are highlights of the new 20th Century-Fox sales plan announced by the company yesterday:

Complete autonomy being granted to 20th-Fox men in the field to make and close deals without home office approval.

Favors reduction of clearances, creation of multiple first and subsequent runs in large cities and increase in saturation releases.

Favors the sliding scale sales methods wherever practicable and fair flat rentals where preferred in small towns and late subsequent runs.

Pledges full awareness of and consideration for problems peculiar to individual theatre situations.

Plans, as business builders, increased regional picture premieres with star appearances, increased help with children's matinees and encouragement of better weekend programming.

ANGLO-U. S. AMITY PROGRAM REACHED

Next U K-U S Meeting Here

Next meeting of the Anglo-U. S. Film Advisory Council will be held here about the middle of next month to work out further details in connection with the proposals for settlement of the differences between the two industries and to exchange reports on acceptance of or objections to the proposals by organizations and companies concerned on both sides.

A final Council meeting on the proposals will be held in London in August only in the event the necessary approvals, including that of the British government, are obtained.

The June meeting will be attended by Sir Alexander Korda and Sir Henry French of the British Film Producers Association. J. Arthur Rank, the other British member of the committee, will not be present. If the August meeting is held, Eric Johnston, Nicholas M. Schenck and Barney Balaban, the American Council members, will attend in London.

Tentative Agreement Requires Approval of British Government

The tentative agreement for ending the differences existing between the British and American film industries advanced at the recent Washington meeting of the Anglo-U. S. Film Council provides for the following:

1. Extension of the best efforts of the British Film Producers Association toward (a) the enactment by the British government of a lower film quota as soon as possible and (b) revision of the currency remittance agreement on a basis more favorable to American companies after expiration of the present agreement, June 14, 1950;

2. Guaranteed playing time on the three principal British circuits (J. Arthur Rank's Gaumont-British and Odeon circuits and Associated British Pictures Corp. circuit) of 100 American "A" features annually for a three or five-year period, allocated on the basis of not more than 15 such features annually for any one American company.

The American companies in return would agree to:

1. Eliminate the all-American program booking requirement now in effect for British theatres:

2. Establish a subsidy for British film producers out of unremittable American company earnings in Britain, the amount of which would

Arnall Sees Danger In UK-US Accord

Following a special four-hour meeting on the MPAA disclosure of proposed British relations with the U. S. film industry, Ellis Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, said here late last night that "the proposed agreement appears to be a complete reversal of policy and an abandonment of the principle of no taxation on the American motion picture-going public for the purpose of subsidizing and supporting the British motion picture producing industry. Para. Stock Buys Near Million Shares

Paramount purchased last month on the open market another 26,754 shares of its common stock, bringing to 920,587 shares the total accumulated in its treasury under the stock-purchasing program instituted in November, 1946, by company president Barney Balaban. The company has spent some $22,392,000 to acquire the stock.

On the basis of an approximate average 1949 price of $21.50 per common share, the total purchase price can be estimated at about $20,000,000.

Other recently monthly purchases follow: March, 52,000 shares; February, 25,100; January, 27,500; October, 40,500; September, 32,500; August, 22,200; July, 31,000.

Mild Portal Report On U. K. Trade Seen

LONDON, May 10.—Recommendations concerning Britain's film industry resulting from the Portal committee's study of all phases of operations will be published in the near future and are not expected to include any spectacular emergency measures.

The recommendations were completed by Lord Portal, chairman of the government enquiry, just before his sudden death last week. At one time it had been generally believed that divorcement of production-distribution from exhibition would be suggested by the Portal committee. Now, however, the view is held in political circles that the so-called crisis in the industry has passed its

Academy Awards to Continue: Hersholt

Assurances that the annual awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will continue successfully were given here by Jean Hersholt, retiring president. Hersholt, who is here for a series of radio broadcasts, asserted that he has no plans to see any of the major company presidents in regard to their withdrawal of financial support to the "Oscar" presentations, as previously expected.

Hersholt declared that the Academy could derive money from radio and television sponsorship as well as public admissions charged for the presentation ceremonies. He said, however, that the majors should contribute their support in equitable proportion to the 11 other branches of the industry which comprise the official body of the Academy.

Scores Pay Tribute At Wehrenberg Rites

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—Fred Wehrenberg, a leader of exhibitor associations and a motion picture showman since the days of the nickelodeon, was buried here today at Sunset Burial Park following brief services conducted by Rev. G. O. Martensen, pastor of the St. Lucas Evangelical Church, Sappington, Mo.

Among the industry delegation attending the services for the former president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America were Robert W. Coyne and Miss Helen O'Toole, both from New York, Morris Lowenstein, Oklahoma City, and R. R. Biechele, Kansas City, all representing the executive board of Theatre Owners of America. Another delegation from the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois was headed by Tom Edwards, Farmington, Mo., who succeeded Wehrenberg as president of the association.

Among tributes received were those from Charles, George and Spyros Skouras, who knew Wehrenberg from early motion picture days in St. Louis, A. Montague, Steve Broidy, William F. Rodgers, Rotus Harvey, S. H. Fabian, W. F. Ruffin, M. A. Lightman, many TOA and Allied organizations, and a host of industry people, both distribution and exhibition, from throughout the Midwest.

Bergman, industry chairman of the drive, announced here yesterday.

Others of the committee are: Malcolm Kingsberg, RKO Theatres president; Maurice Maurer, managing director of the Bijou, Astor and Victoria theatres; Charles B. Moss, director of the Criterion Theatre; Eugene Picker, Loew's Theatre executive; Montague Salmon, director of the Rivoli, and Robert Weitman, Paramount Theatre Service vice-president.

New Music Firm, Gillette on Board

Don Carle Gillette, former trade-paper editor and more recently Warner trade press contact, has been made a member of Trans-American Music Corp., new holding company which has acquired an Ascap membership and is said to be the first music publishing firm to make its stock available to the general public. Up to now music houses have been either privately owner or affiliated with film companies.

Organizer of the company is Nathaniel R. Real, former music publisher and now head of N. R. Real and Co., Wall Street securities firm.

Mild Returns At N. Y. Runs

Grosses are unimpressive at New York first-runs this week. With the notable exception of two newcomers, "The Barkleys of Broadway," at Loew's State, and "Flamingo Road," at the Strand, most pictures reacted quite mildly at Broadway box-offices.

"Barkleys" indicated a good $60,000 for an initial week, and "Flamingo," together with Ted Lewis's band on stage, is expected to chalk up a brisk $65,000 for its first stanza.

At the Criterion, "Africa Screams" bowed in weakly with $22,000 seen for the first week. Fifth and final week of "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court" is fairly good with $100,000 at Radio City Music Hall, running with a stage presentation. "The Stratton Story" is scheduled to take over there tomorrow. "We Were Strangers" registered a sharp drop-off in business at the Astor, with $24,000 indicated for its second week, following a good opening week of nearly $40,000.

"Home of the Brave" replaces "Joan of Arc" at the Victoria today after a 26-week run for the latter. Final stanza for "Joan" brought an estimated $11,000, with the 26-week total said to be $700,000. "The Champion" is holding up satisfactorily at the Globe, where a fifth week looks like $20,000. "The Undercover Man," plus a stage show headed by Duke Ellington at the Paramount, will be replaced tomorrow by "Streets of Larado," and a new stage show, after ringing up a pretty good $62,000 gross in a third week. Fourth week of "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," plus a stage show topped by Viviane Blaine, is a mild grosser at the Roxy, with only $60,000 expected. At the Capitol, "Adventure in Baltimore," together with Enric Madriguera's orchestra on stage, is mediocre with $26,000 indicated for a second and final week; "The Sun Comes Up" will bow in tomorrow. Sixth week of "Portrait of Jennie" is mild at the Rivoli, where $13,000 is seen. The reissued "Wizard of Oz" is holding up rather well at the Mayfair, with $18,000 expected.

A trio of British imports are registering gratifying grosses, as follows: "Quartet," Sutton, sixth week, $13,800; "Hamlet," Park Avenue, 32nd week, $15,000; "The Red Shoes," Bijou, 29th week, $14,000.

NCA Rental Plan May Be Proposed

MINNEAPOLIS, May 10.—North Central Allied, it is understood, will have ready for its May 22-23 Minneapolis convention, a suggested plan whereby the producer-distributor share of the box-office dollar would be more on the profit side if certain trade practices were discontinued and other policies inaugurated.

Meanwhile, Al Lichtman and Andy Smith, 20th-Fox executives, are expected to detail their new sales formula aimed at a higher split of the box-office dollar for film rentals when they outline present-day production and distribution problems, and report their findings at the NCA convention.

Says Some Drive-ins Can Skip Royalties

Drive-ins franchised by Park-in Theatres, Inc. (Hollingshead), a New Jersey corporation, and which operate in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine and New Hampshire, under the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Boston, "may fairly safely decide to withhold royalty payments at least until an adverse decision, if any, on appeal" of the E. M. Loew Drive-in—Park-in Theatres case. This is the opinion of Herman M. Levy, general counsel of the Theatre Owners of America, expressed in a bulletin released yesterday from TOA headquarters here.

As to drive-in operators in other states, said Levy, "it would be best for them to consult their attorneys before a conclusion is reached as to whether the payment of royalties should be discontinued."

The Boston Circuit court recently held the Park-in patent invalid.

Witness Says Griffith A Superior Customer

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 10.—Ralph B. The Griffith circuit is superior in both respects, he said, and therefore RKO does business with it.

George Wise, government attorney, drew from Williams a statement that RKO does not offer to sell independents in towns where Griffith is a steady customer, but Williams denied that Griffith deals are made a circuit basis. Bargaining is on a house-by-house basis, he said.

New 20th-Fox Sales Plan

this problem based upon three principles, which always have been uppermost in my mind:

That the stability of this industry and its esteem and influence throughout the world must be constantly fought for and advanced;

That the prosperity of this industry requires a prosperity in all three of its major branches: production, distribution and exhibition;

That progress is safeguarded only by the encouragement of the production and exhibition of quality films.

This challenge confronting our industry today had to be met by alert, intelligent, straightforward action. Therefore, it was only natural that I should turn for assistance to my old friend, Al Lichtman, for whom I have always had the greatest respect as a genuinely constructive thinker in our industry. His career, as head of distribution for a number of major companies, always has impressed me as having been most creative, with a view to the long range betterment and greater prosperity of all branches of our business.

I turned to him for this task. I felt that he was the one man whose recommendations would be aimed solely at having the exhibitor and our company obtain the best possible returns from our pictures in all types of theatres.

Together with Andy W. Smith, Jr., general sales manager, Mr. Lichtman initiated a survey which involved an analysis of the sales operation of all our exchanges, meetings with exhibitors, as well as a careful study of all of our contracts with every theatre. These gentlemen examined the methods of exhibition and exploitation of our films in all types of communities throughout the country.

Charles Einfeld, who heads our advertising, publicity and exploitation, also participated in the survey and was most valuable because of his wide knowledge of general industry affairs.

Now the survey has been completed, the facts analyzed and a number of conclusions have been reached. These conclusions have been thoroughly discussed with every member of our sales organization and with a number of outstanding, representative exhibitors, both large and small.

It is these conclusions which form the basis of the 20th Century-Fox sales policy. They indicate that existing conditions do not call for revolutionary plans. But they have revealed to us that it is now possible and desirable to institute certain improvements in distribution methods which will prove beneficial to those playing our product. It is this policy that I now present:

SALES OPERATION

Our policy provides that each division head, branch manager and salesman will conduct his business in his town territory as if he were the owner of that business. Specifically:

Under this procedure, our representative is developing a sound, cooperative and firm business relationship with each account through fair dealing and honest representation of product so as to avoid unnecessary bickering on the terms of each picture. As a result of his full responsibility to the situation, the 20th Century-Fox representative will offer the exhibitor still higher forms of service, such as exploitation ideas, special promotional angles and material and the latest merchandising concepts. This will represent additional direct assistance in attracting the greatest potential audience to the theatre.

Upon receipt of a print, the division head, branch manager and salesman will screen it, discuss its value and the conclusion they arrive at will determine the general policy under which that picture will be distributed in that territory.

Under the present conditions of buying and selling, our sales representatives must be able to make quick, binding decisions because the exhibitor needs to know as far as in advance as possible the pictures he will play, since his backlog of product is so limited. Therefore, we have given our salesmen the widest latitude so that they will not have to refer their deals to the home office for approval. Where we have given responsibility, we have also given authority.

METHODS OF SALE

This company's approach to sales is based upon two precepts:—(a) There can be no arbitrary method of doing business. We seek to do business in the way the customer prefers, consistent with a fair and square deal. (b) Since pictures are not sold on a basis of cost but on their ability to earn, each film investment represents a major risk to the producer. Therefore, every opportunity must be given a good picture to earn its full potential for both the exhibitor and the distributor.

Our survey reveals that where it is practicable and desirable to do business on a percentage basis, the one method of sale that stands out beyond all others as the fairest, most efficient, most progressive and most mutually beneficial is the sliding scale, which was originally conceived and introduced by Al Lichtman.

1. The sliding scale. This is the incentive method. There is incentive to promote the picture. There is incentive to book it at the best playing time. Under the sliding scale every picture finds its proper level, which encourages the exhibitor to run it as long as profitable. It is this incentive which in turn provides the incentive to the producer to continue in his efforts to make ever finer, stronger, box-office films.

2. Flat Rentals. Many exhibitors throughout the nation, particularly those in small towns and late subsequent runs, prefer to buy their pictures flat rental. That is how we shall sell them. We have devised a system of designating flat rentals for the small exhibitor, who is least able to carry the big load imposed by these times. This method will function for him just as fairly as if the sliding scale were in operation in this theatre.

MODERNIZED DISTRIBUTION TECHNIQUES

We have resolved to initiate the following steps to modernize some of our distribution techniques; this will aid the exhibitor in his efforts to win back and retain the large audience which is not presenting attending the motion picture theatres.

Clearance and Multiple Runs. This a time of fast communications. It has become increasingly necessary that pictures be brought to the public while interest is at its very height. A major point in our policy is to reduce clearances, where necessary. This will shorten the dead time and enable the public to see our pictures most conveniently when and where they want to see them, at the time they most want to see them as a result of the impact of advertising, promotion, reviews and word of mouth. We shall also attempt to create multiple first and subsequent runs in large cities, where it can be arranged for the mutual benefit of all interests involved. Clearances and multiple runs must remain elastic. The form will vary with each locality and will require careful examination by us, together with our exhibitor clients. However, regardless of form, we are convinced that this offers one of the most positive, and really simplest ways of increasing the income of the exhibitor and distributor.

Saturation Releases. In line with the necessity for attracting the greatest number of people to the theatre, we have found through experimentation that the regional, day-and-date distribution of motion pictures is most productive for certain types of films which lend themselves to this purpose. By permitting a concentration of our mutual efforts in advertising and exploitation in a given territory, this method yields the greatest returns from our combined merchandising.

Premieres. We advocate premieres whenever the occasion justifies them to stimulate public interest in motion pictures. We find the time and effort expended on premieres help the exhibitor of the particular area where these events are staged. The customary presence of stars at the event is not only a stimulant to the revenue of the immediate picture, but is also the most positive means of industry public relations. The bringing of Hollywood personalities into the communities of America establishes tremendous, lasting good will for the exhibitor in his own locality.

Children's Matinees. We should do our utmost to help the theatres create children's matinees with suitable programs designed to increase our permanent motion picture audience. They are our customers of tomorrow.

Quality Pictures for Preferred Playing Time in Small Theatres.

In small towns throughout the country, many theatres do the major portion of their business on weekends, since their patrons are usually farmers or workers, who have little leisure time in the middle of the week. In many situations, the exhibitors have a practice of booking their best pictures in the middle of the week when the fewest number of people are able to come to see them. Our records indicate that this unnecessarily restricts the size of the week's gross and the profits of the theatre and the distributor.

We want to give such exhibitors every incentive to play the best picture on the weekend regardless of whether it is percentage or flat rental.

We are confident that if he once tries this, he will win many new and satisfied patrons and will increase his general attendance.

This is the 20th Century-Fox sales policy which we believe will benefit the exhibitor and distributor alike. Every section, every word means precisely what it says and every member of our organization is pledged to its principles.

This great industry of ours was brought from humble beginnings through the great faith and devotion of those pioneers who could see in a then infant medium the power to entertain and influence the thinking of the entire world. Because of their faith, their enthusiasm, their visionary showmanship, motion pictures have fulfilled and even exceeded their bravest hope. I am confident that the motion picture will continue to be the greatest medium of entertainment. So let us close our ranks, and in unity and harmony march forward.

Phila. Waiting Time Cut in Half: 20th Fox

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—Officials of 20th Century-Fox announced today that first-run pictures will soon be released to lower-priced houses in about half of the time formerly waited. Howard Minsky, Eastern division manager, says a new release plan would get films to neighborhood houses three weeks after the premiere showing in the central city theatres, ending a traditional five or six weeks lapse between first and second showings.

Review

"Devil In the Flesh"

(A.F.E. Corp.)

THERE will be many to whom "Devil in the Flesh" will be a source of sincere regret and irritation, for the picture squanders its artistry on a dark and tasteless theme of illicit love during the first World War. This French import, produced by Paul Graetz and directed by Claude Autant Lara, probably will be hailed by some big-city critics who praise anything that is foreign and "daring," but it is likely to produce nothing but gloom and a measure of disgust in the average American who is not used to—and who possibly does not care—seeing the intimate details of a married woman's love affair acted out on the screen, regardless of how well this is done.

There can be no denying that both Gerard Philipe and Micheline Presle turn in very fine performances, but those who hail films of this kind as giving the public a "new" kind of realism may well be doing the industry considerable disservice. "Devil in the Flesh" had considerable censorship difficulties here and roused a storm of protest even in France and other countries. It tells of a highschool boy's love affair with an older woman whose husband is at the front. She becomes pregnant and dies just as the latter returns home. The boy goes free and is made the subject of pity rather than resentment as armistice and funeral bells, ringing in unison, bring the film to a cynical end.

Running time, 112 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, May 9.

Anglo-U. S. Plan

be scaled upward according to the earnings of British pictures in the American market, the base year being the one ending June 30, 1949.

These are the highlights given to a meeting of the executive committee of the Motion Picture Export Association here yesterday at which Eric Johnston presided. The American proposals are being advanced through that agency because of legal considerations.

While the proposals were received enthusiastically by a majority of those attending yesterday's meeting it was apparent soon after that several companies and some independent producers will have serious reservations about some of the proposals which might bar their participation unless revisions or more specific definitions are offered.

The tentative agreement also provides that the British producers may have an option of taking a minimum cash guaranty in lieu of actual earnings of British films here, but presumably must make the choice in advance.

It is also proposed that the British and American industries join in a mutual advertising-promotion campaign for motion pictures generally to increase patronage in Britain and elsewhere around the world. The two industries would cooperate in attempting to solve mutual problems in other world markets.

The American "A" features covered by the booking proposal for the three major British circuits would be determined by accepted American standards for "A" pictures and, in the event of a disagreement over classification, an as yet undefined system of arbitration would be provided.

The British circuits also would agree not to discriminate against the American "A" features in holiday and weekend bookings.

American acceptance of the proposals will have to be determined by individual company decision. British acceptance requires not only approval of the BFPA, which will meet for that purpose today, but also requires the approval of the British government on all matters involving the film quota, the remittance agreement with the American industry and conversion of sterling to dollars.

Rank met briefly with Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, last Friday and outlined the proposals to him without definite result. Wilson is scheduled to arrive in Ottawa today from London by plane for an extended Canadian visit, so no official British government commitment is looked for in the near future. Meanwhile, no effective date has been set for the agreement, should it be approved all around, but legal and physical requirements would prevent it from being put into effect before January, 1950, at the earliest.

Compromise of U. K. Wage Dispute Seen

LONDON, May 10.—A compromise formula for settlement of the national theatre employes wage increase controversy was reached at an emergency meeting of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association last night with officers of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employes.

The compromise is slated to be submitted to the CEA general council tomorrow and, meanwhile, NATKE is endeavoring to suspend action on its application for national arbitration of the dispute under government auspices.

Because of the gravity of the situation which threatened not only a shutdown of theatres but of studios, too, through sympathetic strike action, CEA officers made concessions in arriving at the compromise which exceeded their advance instructions. This, doubtless, will provoke bitter protests from smaller exhibitors who contend that anything more than token increases would put them in the red at this time.

signers representing approximately 4,700 theatres.

In addition to the 64 non-exchange centers, 32 branch screenings were held at which time "The Stratton Story" and "The Secret Garden" were shown. In the aggregate, 96 screenings and meetings were held over a period of two weeks, "and what started out as an idea to bring product closer to the customer for evaluation" developed into a public and exhibitor relations job."

Arnall Sees Danger

to violate this fundamental principle which was insisted upon by the American representatives participating in the Anglo-American film agreement of March 11, 1948, in London, which was negotiated by Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, James A. Mulvey, representing the SIMPP, and Eric A. Johnston, president of the MPAA.

"The secrecy with which the Anglo-American Film Advisory Committee undertook its negotiations and on which it based its actions cast strong suspicion upon its righteousness, its fairness, and its legality."

Without specifically going into details of the proposed accord, Arnall expressed concern with what he called the "long term disadvantages and danger of such an arrangement." He also questioned the legality of such a joint procedure by the American motion picture companies.

Pointing out that he was speaking only for himself, Arnall said that was his intention "to intensively investigate" the ramifications of the accord which, he said, "evidently was entered into by three American individuals who, while acting in an advisory capacity, now apparently voluntarily purport to have represented the entire American film industry."

The SIMPP meeting ended about 10 p. m. last night and was attended by representatives of the majority of American independent producers. Gradwell Sears, United Artists president, was among those present.

Far milder conclusions are expected from the committee, in consequence, although it is believed that considerable reductions will be advocated in distribution charges.

Wilson, Press Cool Toward Anglo-US Plan

French Report on Talks Greeted With Skepticism

By PETER BURNUP

LONDON, May 11.—Sir Henry French held a press conference here today to report on the tentative agreement reached by the Anglo-U.S. Film Council at its recent Washington meeting, but observers were completely unimpressed.

A typical comment was, "Someone's trying to pull (J. Arthur) Rank's and (Sir Alexander) Korda's chestnuts out of the fire."

Others commented on the chilly reply sent by Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, to French in response to the latter's letter which spoke glowingly of a "triumph" achieved at the Washington talks. Wilson's letter was very guard-

8 Named in Trust Suit by NJ Owner

Charging illegal combination in restraint of trade, Hillside Amusement Corp., operators of the Mayfair Theatre, Hillside, N. J., filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday against the eight majors a $300,000 triple-damage anti-trust action.

Plaintiff alleges the Mayfair was forced into a double-bill policy in consequence of the combination charged, and contends that losses in excess of $100,000 were suffered by the theatre because of competition of defendant-owned theatres.

Georgia Exhibitors Reelect Thompson

Atlanta, May 11. — All officers of the Georgia Theatre Owners and Operators were reelected at the closing session of the annual convention here yesterday, as follows: J. H. Thompson, president; W. M. Snelson, chairman; O. C. Lam, Nat Williams and J. S. Tanksley, vice-presidents; John Thompson, secretary; E. D. Martin, treasurer; William H. Karrh, director.

E-L Deal for Small To Head Production Enters Final Stage

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—Propects appear good for consummation within the next few days of negotiations by which Edward Small would take charge of Eagle-Lion production here as a ranking officer of that company.

Negotiations with Small are being conducted by Serge Semenenko, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, which has been financing Eagle-Lion through its parent company, Pathe Industries. Robert Benjamin, counsel for Pathe, and Arthur Krim, former president of Eagle-Lion, are participating in the discussions.

Krim tendered his resignation 10 days ago but agreed to remain with E-L until a successor is named.

Should the negotiations with Small be concluded successfully it is understood that he will be given a block of stock in the company, thus placing his participation on an ownership basis.

20th - Fox Heads to Meet Chicago Owners

Chicago, May 11. — Executives of 20th Century-Fox from the home office will attend an exhibitor luncheon-meeting here on May 23, instigated by Illinois Allied head Jack Kirsch, in an effort to iron out local industry problems.

It will be patterned after other meetings held by 20th-Fox recently in Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia and New York. Kirsch flew to New York today for final details on the meeting and on other matters.

Reactions Delayed Here on 20th Plan

Twentieth Century-Fox's new sales policy, as enunciated by company president Spyros P. Skouras on Tuesday, was studied with interest yesterday by New York area exhibitors. Those who ventured to comment on it, however, did so with reservation, it being felt that actual experience in booking under the provisions of the new policy would serve better to equip individual exhibitors and exhibitor associations to "pass judgment."

Immediate effect of the policy statement appeared to be a reversal of the attitude of many local exhibitors who displayed hostility toward what they had supposed would be hard and fast selling methods when 20th-Fox several weeks ago chose to experiment with new procedures in the New York Metropolitan area. The company dis-

World Market Control Is Threatened: Arnall

SIMPP president Ellis Arnall came out swinging anew last night at the proposed Anglo-American film agreement, stating that he sees in the accord a threat of control of the world market by a "small group of selfish men who have usurped the rights of the majority."

Asked what definite action the Society has in mind, Arnall said that he and his associates are now studying the proposal to determine "how many 'jokers' are in it." In a prepared statement, he said in part:

"The proposed Anglo-American Film Council agreement requires all American motion picture producers to

UA Gets 18 Shorts, Another Feature

United Artists' product program was increased yesterday by 18 short subjects and another feature, UA president Gradwell L. Sears disclosed.

The company has acquired distribution rights to a series of 18 shorts entitled "Songs of America," which will be released within the next year. Produced by W. E. Wilder, the series will feature dramatic and musical presentations of Negro spirituals.

Also, UA will distribute Shirley Temple's "A Kiss for Corliss," to be produced by Colin Miller and Marcus

Reaction Here To Anglo-U .S. Plan Is Mixed

Meeting to Vote on It Experiences Delay

The trade yesterday greeted the Anglo-U. S. Film Advisory Council's program for healing the rift between the two industries with mixed reactions.

Comments from officials of the largest companies either were enthusiastic or only mildly critical. Executives of smaller companies and independent producers and their representatives are unmistakably opposed to the program.

It was learned that Motion Picture Association efforts to schedule a meeting here for tomorrow to get a vote of approval for the program were unsuccessful, ostensibly because a number of those invited pleaded other engagements but actually, at least in some cases, because executives wish to give it more study before committing their companies. Suggestions for holding a meeting early next week were not accepted either and as of last night no definite date had been agreed upon.

Eric Johnston, MPAA president, announced yesterday that the next

Walter Wanger's "Joan of Arc" completed a six months' run at the Victoria Theatre on Broadway last night with a total gross of $600,000, admission taxes excluded. The film was first to play the 1,060-seat house since it was re-built.

Urges Exhibitors to Seek U.S. Tax Repeal

Detroit, May 11. — Sam Carver, vice-president of Independent Theatre Owners of Michigan and president of Detroit Consolidated Theatres, has urged exhibitors to write their Congressmen to have the 20 per cent Federal admission tax lifted.

In a bulletin to exhibitors Carver states, "The government has eased up on many things to help the public, why not do the same to give the working man and his family a chance to go to the movies without being heavily taxed."

Frank Shea Is Named MOT Sales Executive

Frank Shea has been promoted from March of Time office manager here to national director of commercial and television sales under MOT associate producer Arthur B. Tourtellot. Shea's elevation is described as being in line with company plans for expansion in the commercial film and video fields.

The new MOT sales executive joined the organization eight years ago following a long career in the brokerage business in Wall Street, and during most of the time he has been with MOT, Shea has supervised office operations and managed certain facets of the organization's public relations.

E-L, Small Deal

Semenenko is in daily communication with Robert R. Young, principal Pathe stockholder, on the progress of the negotiations and a deal could be consummated without Young coming to Hollywood from New York, where he arrived today from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

In addition, William MacMillan, who arrived late last night, is sitting in on the discussions as a personal representative of Young.

Indications are that Small would not be named president of E-L but that a new top executive for the company would be named who would run the distribution end from New York headquarters. It is reliably learned that closing of the deal with Small would be followed by immediate reopening of the E-L studio, closed since last November, with new financing assured for production purposes.

Negotiations are expected to be completed or abandoned within a few days.

Eagle-Lion Will Let Out 11 Under 'Stagger' Plan

Pending settlement of questions, financial and otherwise, relative to the company's future, Eagle-Lion has decided to dispense with 11 home office publicity and clerical employes under a "stagger system."

The plan calls for the dropping weekly of one or two of the 11, although if definite arrangements for the company's future are made before all have left some may be retained. The 11 have received notices indicating dates on which the termination of their employment is to be effective.

Griffith Manager Says His Houses Better

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 11.—C. E. McSwain, manager of three Griffith houses at Plainview, Tex., told Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today why the circuit is a preferred customer of major distributors, attempting to show through his testimony that each of his houses produces more money than the competing State, operated by Price Holland.

Other witnesses appearing for the defense today were C. A. Gibbs, Columbia exchange manager here; Dudley Tucker, Jr., and James Allen Smith, both Columbia salesmen.

Canada Would Have Own Film Council

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—Motion Picture Industry Council chairman Cecil B. DeMille reports that the Canadian film industry has petitioned him for information and guidance in forming its own council with a similar format and objectives. The Canadian industry group centering in Toronto heads the movement.

Set Palace Stage Show

The New York RKO Palace's first vaudeville show with a feature has been set and will start on Thursday, May 19. There will be eight acts: the feature will be 20th Century-Fox's "Canadian Pacific," in Cinecolor, starring Randolph Scott. The acts will include Mage and Kerr, The Chords, The Marvellos, Cook and Brown, Norman Evans, Jerry Wayne, Lorraine Rognan, and Dolinoff and the Ray Sisters.

Reviews

"The Lady Gambles"

(Universal-International)

A NEW and vigorous motion picture theme is tapped in "The Lady Gambles," a story of the corrupting effects of impulsive gambling on an individual. Barbara Stanwyck, fresh from her melodramatic success in "Sorry, Wrong Number," portrays here the psychically disturbed lady who cannot control her desire to toss dice or play cards. The picture is hard-hitting and effective entertainment. By no means does it attempt to glamorize the gambling addiction, but the nature of its theme makes it adult fare. Others who round out the cast are Robert Preston, as her husband, and Stephen McNally, a gambling casino owner.

While in Las Vegas with her newspaperman husband Miss Stanwyck gets her first taste of gambling. In time she becomes impossibly addicted to it. Gradually, her marriage breaks up and she descends swiftly and steadily. The film unfolds through the flashback technique from a hospital where Miss Stanwyck winds up after receiving a severe beating from some of her sleazy gambling companions. It is here that Preston comes back to help her. The psychiatric nature of Miss Stanwyck's disturbance is explained to her by a doctor and thus the way is paved for her to climb back to health with the aid of her husband.

Others in the film are Edith Barrett, as a sister who exerts an unhealthy influence upon Miss Stanwyck; and John Hoyt, the doctor. Michael Kraike produced and director Michael Gordon handled the explosive material competently. Roy Huggins did the screenplay which was adapted by Halsted Welles from a story by Lewis Meltzer and Oscar Saul.

Running time, 99 minutes. Adult audience classification. For May release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"The Judge Steps Out"

(RKO Radio)

THE title of this Michel Kraike production is somewhat misleading in its suggestion of gaiety. Actually a mild comedy-drama with wistful overtones, "The Judge Steps Out" comes as a pleasant respite from the blood-and-thunder and muscular dramas that have been enlivening the screen lately. Co-starred are Alexander Knox, who shared in the writing of the script, and Ann Sothern whose role is a distinct departure from her "Maisie" characterizations.

The screenplay, co-authored by director Boris Ingster, deals wtih a Massachusetts probate court judge who takes a quite accidental vacation from the cares of the bench and his social-climbing wife and daughter. On the advice of a friendly physician, the jurist (Knox) takes to the highway and ultimately finds a life of longed-for tranquility as a short-order cook in a California roadside restaurant owned by Miss Sothern who is intent on adopting beguiling little Sharyn Moffett, an orphan. Knox and Miss Sothern, both having spent lonely lives, find themselves drawn into a bond of love. Intent on getting a divorce, Knox returns to Boston only to find his wife and now married daughter transformed into surprisingly warm and human people. The final scenes wherein the judge is forced to choose between his former and his new-found life should dampen the eyes of women in the audience. With Miss Sothern helping him to decide he returns to his welcoming family and a new career as a Supreme Court justice.

"The Judge Steps Out" rates good playing time, beginning with top first-runs. But it may require some solid selling to put it across, for it seems to lack those outward qualities that usually carry a picture over the market's initial hurdles. A supporting cast which complements well the appealing performances of the principals includes George Tobias, Florence Bates, Frieda Inescort, Myrna Dell, Ian Wolfe, H. B. Warner, and others.

Running time, 91 minutes. General audience classification. For June release.

Para. Considering Frisco Stage Shows

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Edward L. Hyman, vice-president of Paramount Theatres Service Corp.; Si Siegle, controller, and Selig Seligman, have been here conferring with theatre executives and distributing companies on the future entertainment policy of local Paramount houses, which are headed by Jerry Zigmond. The possibility of a resumption of stage shows is being considered and was discussed at length.

Intermountain Theatres at Salt Lake City is scheduled to be the next stop on their inspection-conference tour.

'Greater Economy'

will open at the New York Victoria Theatre today, blasted the industry's recent "greater economy and better pictures policy."

The big studios' current nervousness, he said, is based on "the Lost Tribe of motion picture customers who, dispensing with the popcorn palladia habit, have disappeared from the scene, leaving panic in their wake. Where they have gone, what they do, at whose wicket they deposit their shekels—these questions pose a substantial problem for the production pharoahs responsible for the hegira."

After breaking down "hypothetical reasons" which Hollywood executives give each other for lost box-office returns, such as television, lack of foreign markets, high salaries ("meaning the other guy's"), censorship, Kramer told his listeners, "they blame everyone and everything but themselves."

continued credits and adjustments here, but resumed those practices after a short period.

Official comment on the policy could not be made by two local theatre associations due to the absence from the city of Theatre Owners of America president Arthur H. Lockwood and executive director Gael Sullivan and Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey president Edward Lachman. New York Independent Theatre Owners Association leaders held a closed meeting to discuss the policy statement. The three organizations recently individually criticized 20th-Fox's announced intention of revising film rentals upward.

The company's statement of policy contained no reference specifically to increased rentals. Some representatives of exhibition interests here said yesterday that they believed increased rentals would remain the goal of the company, but they also expressed satisfaction that the company's statement "appears to leave the door ajar" for negotiating rental terms.

The company issued its policy statement following a two-month study of market conditions by 20th-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and Charles Einfeld. Marked by a number of meetings with exhibitors in various sections of the country, the trio's study had for its aim the benefitting mutually of exhibition and distribution revenue.

ITOA Forum Today On 20th's Policy

An "open forum" discussion of 20th Century-Fox's newly established sales policy will be held here today under the sponsorship of the New York Independent Theatre Owners Association at the organization's regular monthly luncheon-meeting in the Hotel Astor, it was announced late yesterday by Harry Brandt, ITOA president. Brandt said 20th-Fox executives Spyros P. Skouras, Al Lichtman, Andy W. Smith, Jr., Charles Einfeld, Martin Moskowitz and Sam Shain have accepted invitations to attend the luncheon-meeting.

Babb Cuts Rentals On 'Lawton Story'

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—A voluntary reduction of 10 per cent in film rentals for "The Lawton Story" and a refund to exhibitors who have played the film on 50-50 rental terms have been announced here by Kroger Babb, president of Hallmark Productions.

At the same time Babb disclosed a 25 per cent increase for Hallmark agents in the field.

Anglo-US Plan

meeting of the Anglo-U. S. Council will be held here on June 2 and 3. Johnston made the following statement concerning the first Council meeting, held in Washington on April 21 and 22:

"The Washington meeting has had a salutary effect in bringing about a better understanding and appreciation of our mutual problems and in removing many of the misunderstandings which have accumulated over the past two years," said Mr. Johnston.

"We have decided as a continuing policy to talk out our differences around the table instead of fighting them out in the headlines and to use the Council machinery for this purpose.

Marks Milestone

"If nothing more had been accomplished, that in itself would have marked a major and significant milestone on the road to better and more harmonious relationships between the British and American industries.

"In Washington we discussed a wide range of problems of common interest, including the British film quota, the earnings of British motion pictures in the United States, and the playing time of American feature pictures in the three large British theatre circuits.

"We also considered a number of cooperative projects to promote the common good of both industries. Among these were a joint advertising program to stimulate motion picture attendance in the United Kingdom and throughout the world; participation in film festivals with the objective of having one annual film festival as world-wide in scale as the Olympic games; and exchange of technical skills and technical information for the improvement of production techniques in both countries.

"At the June meeting we shall consider the problems in more detail to try to work out agreements that will be mutually beneficial to all in both industries."

Subject to Approval

Any agreements reached by the Council, Johnston emphasized, are subject to approval by members of the British Film Producers Association and the Motion Picture Export Association before becoming effective.

It was pointed out elsewhere that in addition to the approvals cited as necessary by Johnston, that of the British government is also required on the matters affecting changes in the British film quota and remittance laws, included in the agreement.

The British members of the Council stated specifically that they could make no commitment on those matters until they had discussed them with their government.

Those who applauded the program contended that it is the first and best promise of relief for the American companies from the quota and remittance regulations imposed by Britain and is a continuing formula for better relations between the British and American industries for the future. Some of its champions also admitted frankly that they liked it because the provision for dating 100 American "A" features annually on the three major British circuits promised them a better break than they have been getting.

Critics of the program said that the phases promising Anglo-American cooperation in the film markets of the world smacked of cartelization. Others opposed the subsidy of British production by the American industry which proposes to guarantee payments to British film producers out of unremittable sterling in England.

The basis for computing the amount to be paid is the earnings of British films in America during the year ending June 1, 1949, plus one of two alternatives: either 20 per cent more than British gross film earnings in the United States, or 33⅓ per cent more than British net remittables for the same period.

Critics See Retreat

That provision, together with the acceptance of the principle of even milder quota and remittance regulations in Britain, make the program a retreat from American principles of free enterprise and open markets that Johnston and the American industry have been preaching for years to Britain and to the U. S. State Department in opposing the British restrictions, critics asserted.

Many individuals sided with Ellis Arnall, president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, who contends the program carries with it long term disadvantages and dangers.

The subsidy contemplated for British producers, critics said, could amount to $3,600,000 to $4,000,000 the first year, and more or less than that, depending on British film earnings here in later years.

ed in content, with no indication that the government looked with favor on the agreement.

French was clearly on the defensive throughout the press conference and endeavored to maintain that the attendance of the three British representatives, himself, Rank and Korda, was a demonstration of British goodwill, out of which good inevitably develops. He appeared chagrined at the skeptical reaction of the press.

French did not disclose that he and Rank had entertained W. R. Fuller, head of Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, at dinner last night where Fuller was told of the plan to give American films greater playing time on the Rank circuits without Rank achieving equivalent reimbursements in American screenings.

That the American companies would compensate Rank out of unremittable sterling earning demonstrates, in the view of some informed exhibitors, the cynical nature of the proposed agreement.

In reply to a question, French admitted that the American unit booking plan hits the Rank circuits hard and agreed that it might be abandoned if and when the new agreement is signed. He also admitted that there is no definite plan whereby American screenings of British films would be stimulated.

British exhibitors in general have not been informed on details of the agreement, nor are they particularly concerned. Their only preoccupation is to reduce the quota and Fuller has taken steps to demonstrate that the Washington meeting has no effect upon the present quota. The quota, say exhibitors, is doomed to failure through inevitable defaults in the volume of British production. Independent producers and exhibitors commenting on the Washington plan are agreed upon this. They see the Washington talks as designed to aid Rank and Korda in their present financial difficulties.

Officials of the BOT were caustic in their comments on French's claim for a victory at the Washington conference. Their position is that the BOT is entirely unconcerned and undisturbed by the proposed agreement.

give up their freedom of action and their competitive business opportunities. As such agreements following the same pattern are effectuated with other countries, the world market for American motion pictures will be under the complete domination of a small group of selfish men who have usurped the rights of the majority.

"The Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers has always stood firmly for the principle that there must be no discriminatory taxation of American pictures to build up the British industry. When the Society participated in the negotiation which resulted in the 1948 Anglo-American film agreement, it was able to force recognition of this basic principle.

"Now, however, that a few representatives of the major companies have arrogated to themselves the authority to deal in secret for the entire industry, they have bartered away this fundamental principle for immediate dollars for their companies with no consideration of the effect upon American motion pictures as a whole.

"The secrecy and hush-hush attitude which surrounded the meetings of the so-called Anglo-American Film Council are now understandable. It was an attempt to substitute private cartelization for what should be government action."

Withdrawal of Ascap Appeals In N. Y. Looms

U. S. Pact Might Allow Dealing With Producers

Appeals pending in the restraint-of-trade action against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in the New York Circuit Court of Appeals may be withdrawn upon consummation of new consent decree discussions between the Society and the government, which have been in progress for several weeks.

Ascap's apparent aim is the adoption of a revised version of its 1940 decree with the Department of Justice under which it could collect public performance fees for members' music from film producers in a manner which would not contravene the adverse Federal Court opinions in both New York and Minneapolis. Producers in turn would add the charges to film rentals.

Ascap believes it could act merely as a collection agency for its members, with their compositions licensed to the

State, Municipal Governments Have Joint Tax Program

WASHINGTON, May 12. — Representatives of leading associations of state and city officials have worked out a joint tax program to present to the U. S. Treasury, with a key plank calling for the Federal government to withdraw from the admission tax field in favor of states and municipalities.

The program was worked out at a meeting here of representatives of the American Municipal Association, the U. S. Conference of Mayors, Council of State Governments, National Association of County Officials and the National Federation of Tax Administrators. It will be forwarded to Treasury Secretary Snyder probably next week and will be the talking point when representatives of these organizations meet again with Treasury officials late this month or next.

The groups met with Treasury spokesmen at the end of April, but Gradwell L. Sears, president of United Artists, will leave here on Sunday for London where he will consult with Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president, on sale of the company's stock interests in the Odeon circuit, which is controlled by J. Arthur Rank.

Possible deals were taken up by the UA board yesterday at a special meeting here. Following consultations with Kelly, Sears will report back to the directors.

Any transaction apparently would be largely contingent on how UA could derive immediate monetary benefits, that is, either obtaining permission to convert the proceeds of the sale into dollars or else put the British pounds to use.

$10,371,000 1st Quarter Film Company Dividends

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Publicly-reported cash dividends of motion picture companies during the first quarter of 1949 totaled $10,371,000, compared with $13,171,000 during the same 1948 period. In 1947, when film dividends first hit an all-time high, the first quarter figure was $12,752,000. The March, 1949, figure exceeded payments in March, 1948.

Commerce officials recalled that each year their preliminary month-by-month reports do not include a February dividend by Stanley Co., which reports late. This figure is included in the final year-end revision, and since it amounts to about $1,800,000, it

Some 150 persons—mostly exhibitors—attended the meeting which was held at the Hotel Astor here under the sponsorship of the New York Independent Theatre Owners Association. Acting as spokesmen for the organization were ITOA president Harry Brandt and film committee

By RED KANN

THE dove of peace flapped its wings dutifully along about three o'clock yesterday afternoon signalizing the burial of the hatchet between the ITOA of New York and 20th-Fox. Uncomplimentary references of record about hatchetmen were interred at the same time and ostensibly for all time hereafter.

The scene was the Hotel Astor. The occasion was an open forum, arranged by the ITOA to discuss with 20th-Fox's Al Lichtman and Andy Smith their company's new sales policy. With cartoon and invective still fresh in the historical background of this situation, the explosive possibilities were obvious. They never developed, and the cause of sweet reasonableness thereby was well served.

Lichtman covered familiar ground and broke little that was new.

Max A. Cohen, chairman of the ITOA film committee, asked prepared questions and got satisfactory replies chiefly from Smith, with an occasional clarifying assist from Lichtman. Cohen found "signs of clear and intelligent thinking" on 20th-Fox's part, plus indications of a desire to improve relationships with exhibitors.

Harry Brandt, ITOA president, believed the new policy will work provided—and here he placed his emphasis—all that the two distributor officials declared would be observed. He was confident it would since "both are men of high honor."

On the assumption that, since no penetrating questions were advanced from the rank-and-file, Brandt had to assume—and did—that satisfaction with the plan, which was made available in printed form, was general.

But Fred Schwartz, president of Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association, broke his silence sufficiently to have it understood he was reserving the right to reject the policy in whole or in part as he negotiated.

For the ITOA, Brandt assumed the same position.

The forum was interesting because it may be accepted as the pattern set for future face-to-face discussions between 20th-Fox executives and other exhibitor groups.

The attitude reflecting the distributor's position was one of cooperation with the exhibitor. Perhaps a determined kind of cooperation in the interest of a greater return, which is what the shooting has been all about, but cooperation nevertheless.

Moreover, as Smith made clear, the new policy is basic. Because it deals with the broad fundamentals of the course 20th-Fox has set for itself, it cannot answer all problems. Because it cannot answer all problems, certain phases, currently unknown, may prove unworkable. If so, these phases will be changed.

"We don't know," Smith observed.

This is a forthright as well as a reasonable approach. It seems to us that fair-minded exhibitors should mark it well and lend an ear until events or experience indicates otherwise.

No one, least of all 20th-Fox itself, can foretell in unchallengeable accuracy how clearances can be shortened so that dead time between runs may be reduced. Or what will show up in this territory or that on the plan of introducing multiple runs in first and subsequent runs.

These and other major planks in the policy are clearly experimental on a national level. They suggest benefits for some, perhaps for the majority of exhibitors. They also suggest inequities for others. But if there is to be progress in distribution, someone has to brave it.

The impression at this point is that 20th-Fox intends trying. You cannot be ruled off for that.

MPIC Acts on Frozen Funds, Reissues

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—Motion Picture Industry Council last night appointed Y. Frank Freeman, Oliver Garrett, Roy Brewer, Ronald Reagan and Art Arthur as a permanent subcommittee in charge of developing a program designed to aid all-industry efforts toward thawing funds frozen abroad.

Appointment of the committee followed an extensive report by MPIC chairman DeMille on Senate bill 3-1093, known as the "Export Insurance Act, 1949," and on direct negotiations between American and British producer groups seeking to end restrictive trade practices.

MPIC also considered a three-pronged proposal for regulating reissues by limiting reissuing to outstanding productions, curbing misleading advertising, and allocating a portion of reissue revenues to provide benefits for aged and disabled industry workers. First and third phases of this proposal were dismissed on the ground that they border on collective bargaining and therefore do not fall within the MPIC province.

"Misleading advertising" was referred to the MPIC public relations committee for study and report. The reissue matter had been brought up by Brewer, chairman of the Hollywood AFL Film Council, which recently attacked reissues as a contributing cause to unemployment in Hollywood.

Reelect 5, Add 9 to Academy Board

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—Results of the annual Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences election, conducted by mail ballot, revealed five reelections among choices for 14 posts on the board of governors vacated under the constitutional by-law which limits tenure to two years.

Newly elected to the board are Walter Wanger, Dore Schary, Henry Blanke, Fred Metzler, George Murphy, Ralph Sternad, Frank Capra, Johnny Green and Kenneth Lambert. The board meets May 19 to elect a president to succeed Jean Hersholt, who has resigned, and other officers.

Industry Extends Its Aid to Bond Drive

The industry will present 30 Covered Wagons to aid the sale of U. S. Treasury "Opportunity Savings Bonds" in the nationwide drive which runs from Sunday through June 30, it was announced by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and Maurice A. Bergman, Universal-International executive and chairman of the industry's participation in the drive.

Five More Stars to Aid US Bond Drive

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—Five more stars have been set by the Hollywood Coordinating Committee to complete the list of more than a dozen who will launch the U. S. Treasury's "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive" starting Sunday and running through June 30.

Red Skelton is scheduled for a bond rally at Kansas City on May 16, Peter Lawford at Cleveland May 18, Dane Clark, New Orleans May 17, Gene Autry, Indianapolis May 19 and Eddie Bracken, San Francisco May 21.

"Streets of San Francisco"

(Republic)

THE crime-does-not-pay theme is given another workout in an unpretentious but interesting story about a synical boy who refuses to give police the details of a murder and robbery which he witnessed.

Heading the cast are Robert Armstrong and Mae Clark, as the lieutenant of detectives and his wife, who attempt to break down 11-year-old Cary Gray's resistance by showing him some real home life. Despite the boy's initial stubborness he is gradually rehabilitated, becomes one of the family and eventually helps to capture the gang and a stolen fortune.

Although the picture offers nothing above the routine it has its moments of suspense and shows in some detail the grinding research necessary to "crack" a case. Its big flaw is the dialogue which at times overreaches in an attempt to attain dramatic effect resulting only in taxing credulity. J. Farrell MacDonald as the old man who befriends the wayward boy, turns in a creditable performance. The screenplay was written by John K. Butler from a story by Gordon Kahn and Adele Buffington. Sidney Picker was associate producer. George Blair directed. The cast also includes Wally Cassell, Richard Benedict, John Harmon, Charles Meredith and Eve March.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 15.

"Amazon Quest"

(Agay-Film Classics)

THERE is plenty of good exploitation material in Film Classics' "Amazon Quest," an adventure story set largely in the Brazilian jungle, containing such sequences as a boa constrictor winding itself around a man's neck, a school of vicious fish, and two men rowing desperately through a sea of crocodiles. Most of the jungle footage has a documentary-like authenticity, and as such makes good film fare. However, the dramatic narrative that was built around the jungle scenes runs pretty much in conventional style. An Agay production, it features Tom Neal, Carola Matthews and Carole Donne.

Irwin Gielgud wrote the original story, about a man, who, in order to recover his rightful share of a Dutch rubber company, travels to the Amazon country to clear his father's name. On his arrival, he learns about his father's death years before while trying to escape with rubber seeds. At the same time, the hero, played by Neal, meets and falls in love with Miss Matthews. In time, Neal proves his father's rightful interest in the rubber company, and in the happy ending, takes Miss Matthews as his bride. In between there are varied scenes of flight and chase by such diverse adversaries as bandits, jungle beasts and Indians. S. K. Seeley's direction keeps things constantly on the move. Max Alexander produced, from the screenplay by Al Martin. Arene Agay was associate producer.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. For May release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

Goldwyn, Others in Talks on Alliance

Samuel Goldwyn Productions has begun discussions with other independent producers with the view in mind of effecting a working arrangement whereby Goldwyn would provide studio credits, handle financial arrangements and supervise selling for independents.

Goldwyn's object primarily is to encourage outstanding independent productions and at the same time reduce his overhead expenses at his own studio where, according to the present plan, independents would turn out three or four films annually.

Distribution would be through RKO Radio with whom Goldwyn is now negotiating a new releasing pact to supplant the one which, with an option period figured in, will expire on August 1. The independents would be covered under the expected new deal.

Embassy Changes Policy

The Embassy Newsreel Theatre in the Airlines Terminal here will change to a feature policy on May 25, with the New York premiere of the latest J. Arthur Rank release, "All Over The Town." It stars Norman Wooland and Sarah Churchill and is a Prestige Picture released by Universal-International. Under this new policy the theatre will be known as the "Embassy Cinema."

'As You Like It' Set For Roadshows by UA

Sir Laurence Olivier's first Shakesperean film, "As You Like It," with Olivier and Elisabeth Bergner, will be given special roadshow, two-a-day, reserved-seat engagements all over the country, it was announced by Gradwell L. Sears, president of United Artists. UA has acquired rights to the film.

Premiere of the two-a-day policy will take place in Boston at the Beacon Hill Theatre on June 30. Paul Czinner produced and directed.

FCC Dismisses WB's Coast Video Bid

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Federal Communications Commission today, at the request of Warner Brothers, has dismissed without prejudice WB's application for a Los Angeles experimental television station, where work was planned on ultra-high frequency transmission. The Commission may act tomorrow on Warner's request to withdraw its application for a Chicago television station.

'Photoplay' Honors MGM

In tribute to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's 25th anniversary of motion picture production, Photoplay magazine has devoted its June issue, now on newsstands, to the history of M-G-M with nearly two dozen features and pictures made by the studio since 1924.

Mid - Year Variety Meet in New York

Mid-year meeting of Variety Clubs International has been set for New York City, October 25-27. Earlier reports from San Francisco, concerning a mid-year meeting to be held in Mexico City, referred to action of the recent convention in designating the Mexico capital as the location for the mid-year meeting to be held in the fall of 1950.

At the same time the club's decision to hold the annual convention next spring in New Orleans remains tentative, pending clearance of dates sought for the event.

Telecasts Cause NY Cuts in Newsreels

Some Metropolitan New York circuits, among them Walter Reade Theatres and RKO, have dropped newsreels in secondary, double-bill situations as an experiment, holding that telecasts have reduced the news value of the reels.

Walter Reade, Jr., emphasized yesterday that no "A" houses have been affected by the cuts and said that a questionnaire circulated among managers of theatres where newsreels have been dropped failed to reveal a complaint by a single patron. Reade said that out-dated newsreels serve only as a free boost for television.

Sol Schwartz, RKO theatre executive, was inclined yesterday to minimize the action and also stressed that it was put into effect in smaller houses only, but he, too, saw video as a prime factor for the declining interest in newsreels.

Conclude Hearing on Pa. Censor Ruling

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Testimony has been concluded in U. S. District Court in the suit of five Pennsylvania television stations, to declare invalid a ruling by the Board of Censors requiring censor approval of all motion pictures televised in this state prior to telecasts. Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, chairman of the Board, promised to expedite action whenever the Board is asked to approve films for television programs and said there has never been a complaint from the film industry about undue delay.

'Gambles' Press-Preview

Universal-International will hold a press preview of "The Lady Gambles" at Toots Shor's here on Monday afternoon. Following the preview, U-I will be host at a reception. The picture will have its New York premiere at the Criterion Theatre on Friday, May 20.

Screen 'Lonesome Pine'

A screening of Adolph Zukor's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" will be held at Toots Shor's Tuesday morning followed by luncheon for about 40 exhibitors and celebrities who will be Paramount's guests. Zukor and Henry Fonda, star of the film, which was the industry's first Technicolor production, will attend.

Griffith Partner Says Gov't Witnesses Err

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 12.—A Griffith partner, Harry Lowenstein, Ardmore, Okla., testified today that he was present in a Wichita Falls hotel room in 1938 when B. J. McKenna and Volney Hamm, complaining witnesses in the anti-trust hearing against the circuit, conferred. McKenna at the time was a Griffith executive, and Hamm has testified that McKenna warned him not to try to break into the theatre business in Borge, Tex., where Griffith then operated.

Lowenstein said he was present throughout the discussion, and did not hear McKenna make the remarks Hamm attributed to him.

Chester McSwain, Griffith partner at Plainview, Tex., Lynn Stocker, Dallas district manager for Griffith, Louis Higdon, the circuit's Roswell district manager, and C. B. Akers, former circuit executive here, testified earlier today. Akers was on the stand most of the day describing the houses operated by the circuit in 21 competitive towns.

The defense seeks to prove that better theatres and profit potentials gave the defendants a buying advantage, rather than monopoly buying power.

Argue Appeals of $100,000 Verdict

Arguments on appeals of a $100,000 verdict against Paramount and the Warner circuit were heard in the Circuit Court of Appeals here yesterday with the defendants contending that the plaintiff's Palace Theatre at Olean, N. Y., could not have been the victim of the alleged conspiracy since all other major companies have been dismissed as defendants. Defendants' attorneys said that Paramount is the only distributor party to the action and the charge of conspiracy would have to involve more than one company to stand up.

A Federal Court, Buffalo, jury awarded the Bordonaro Co., operating the Palace, damages of $28,000, to be trebled under anti-trust laws, and which, with attorneys' fees, would have amounted to close to $100,000. Warner operates the Haven and State theatres in Olean.

Arguments on the plaintiff's appeal of the RKO dismissal also was heard yesterday. Frank Raichle was attorney for Warner and Paramount; Sidney Pfieffer represented RKO, and William Anderson appeared for the plaintiff.

Schine Asks Dismissal Of Auburn Trust Suit

Answering anti-trust charges filed by the Auburn Capitol Theatre Corp. of Auburn, N. Y., defendant Schine Theatres, et al., moved in U. S. District Court here yesterday for dismissal of the $2,500,000 action on several grounds, including the contention that it is barred by the three- and six-year statutes of limitations. The eight majors were among the defendants named.

Other grounds for dismissal cited were that the complaint failed to state a claim against the defendants, and that all defendants do not reside in the New York district where the case has been ordered for trial.

"Roughshod"

(RKO Radio)

A WESTERN with a decidedly different approach, but which nevertheless embodies all the elements that make good entertainment, is presented in "Roughshod."

It is well acted by Robert Sterling, Gloria Grahame and Claude Jarman, Jr., and in placing direction into the hands of Mark Robson, producer Richard H. Berger assured himself of capable guidance for a film along popular box-office lines.

The photography shows majestic mountain backdrops especially in a final showdown duel between Sterling and John Ireland who overdoes it a bit as the cold-blooded killer out to get even with rancher Sterling. It should be well received by all kinds of audiences and should attract also those who expect a little more from a western than just a whisp of a story filled with shooting and fighting. This picture has both of these, but they are used sparingly and effectively. Geoffrey Homes and Hugo Butler wrote the better-than-average screenplay.

When Ireland escapes from a penitentiary with two friends, Sterling knows that he will be after him. The latter and his brother set out to bring some horses to his ranch. On the way they meet up with four showgirls, headed by Gloria, who have been run out of town. Their wagon has broken down and the two men give them a lift.

Naturally, there are complications. One by one, the girls drop off—one at her home, the other with a gold-prospector—until only Gloria is left. Sterling and she fall in love, but Sterling resents her background. When danger comes in the person of Ireland, Sterling sends her off in the coach. He and Jarman take care of Ireland and his gang and return to town to pick up Gloria and bring the story to a happy ending.

Running time, 88 minutes. General audience classification. For July release.

Mitchell, Evans Head NTFC Committees

John Mitchell, sales manager of United Artists Television Films, and Ed Evans, director of film relations for the N. Y. Daily News television station WPIX, have been named heads of National Television Film Council committees, Melvin L. Gold, NTFC prexy, has announced.

Mitchell is the newly-appointed chairman of the distribution committee, recently headed by Myron Mills, television director of Equity Film Exchanges, who has been transferred to Washington. Evans replaces Gus Ober, former film director of TV station WMAR-TV, Baltimore, who has been transferred to WMAR-FM, the Sun papers' FM station.

Reade in Partnership For Two Drive-ins

Walter Reade Theatres, together with W. W. Smith, Camden drive-in theatre builder and operator, and Melvin Fox of Philadelphia, operator of five theatres in Philadelphia and owner of several in New Jersey, yesterday announced their association in an 850-car drive-in already underway on Brunswick Turnpike north of Trenton. First in the Trenton area, it will be operated by Reade, and is scheduled for completion by July 15.

Options have been obtained for construction of a second drive-in southeast of Trenton.

Fire Destroys Theatre

WAYNESBORO, Miss., May 12.—Fire which started yesterday in the projection room of the Princess Theatre, owned by J. O. Bunch, destroyed the theatre and the Central Hotel above. Sam Gardner, operator, was painfully burned in attempting to extinguish the blaze.

Ohio Theatre Fire

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—The Ohio Theatre at Spencerville was hit by a fire which started in the projection booth. Eight persons in the building escaped without injury. Mackin Bowman is the manager.

Bellfort Named RKO European Manager

Phil Reisman, RKO Radio vice-president in charge of foreign operations, has appointed Joseph Bellfort to the post of European Continental manager, replacing Wladimir Lissim, who resigned a few weeks ago.

Bellfort, 36, was assistant to Lissim for the past two years. He has been with RKO for 19 years, having started as office boy in the home office foreign department in 1930.

Farewell Luncheon Given Lissim; Sails for England

A farewell lunch was given to Wladimir Lissim, who recently retired as European general manager for RKO Radio, at Toots Shors here yesterday, prior to his leaving for London on the S.S. Queen Elizabeth.

Among those attending were Ned E. Depinet, RKO president; R. K. Hawkinson, assistant to foreign vice-president Phil Reisman, foreign distribution chief who is in Paris and representatives of RKO affiliated producers Roy Disney, William Levy and Al Crown; and Irving Lesser and Seymour Poe of the Sol Lesser organization and Producers Representatives, Inc. Others from RKO were William Clark, treasurer; Garrett Van Wagner, comptroller. Walter Derham, assistant treasurer; Bev Lion, European division manager, and Ned Clarke, Bob Maroney, Harry Ehrreich, Jack Kennedy, Mel Danheiser and Don Prince.

Mrs. Rita McGoldrick, A Founder of Legion

Mrs. Rita C. McGoldrick, 59, a founder of the Legion of Decency and long active in the cause of clean motion pictures, died yesterday at St. Peter's Hospital, Brooklyn. Chairman of the motion picture bureau of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, Mrs. McGoldrick had written many newspaper articles to combat films she considered objectionable.

She is survived by her husband, Dr. Thomas A. McGoldrick, three sons and two daughters.

Short Subject

"Sweden Looks Ahead"

(March of Time—20th-Fox)

A unique position of isolation is followed by Sweden today, for that nation refuses to join either the Soviet bloc or the Atlantic Pact nations. The current March of Time subject portrays that country's curious political dilemma and in so doing presents an interesting and illuminating film. Many highlights of Swedish life are shown, including its renowned cooperatives, its glass-making, and other crafts. The subject will enhance any showman's program.

Story of Industry's Shorts to Exhibitors

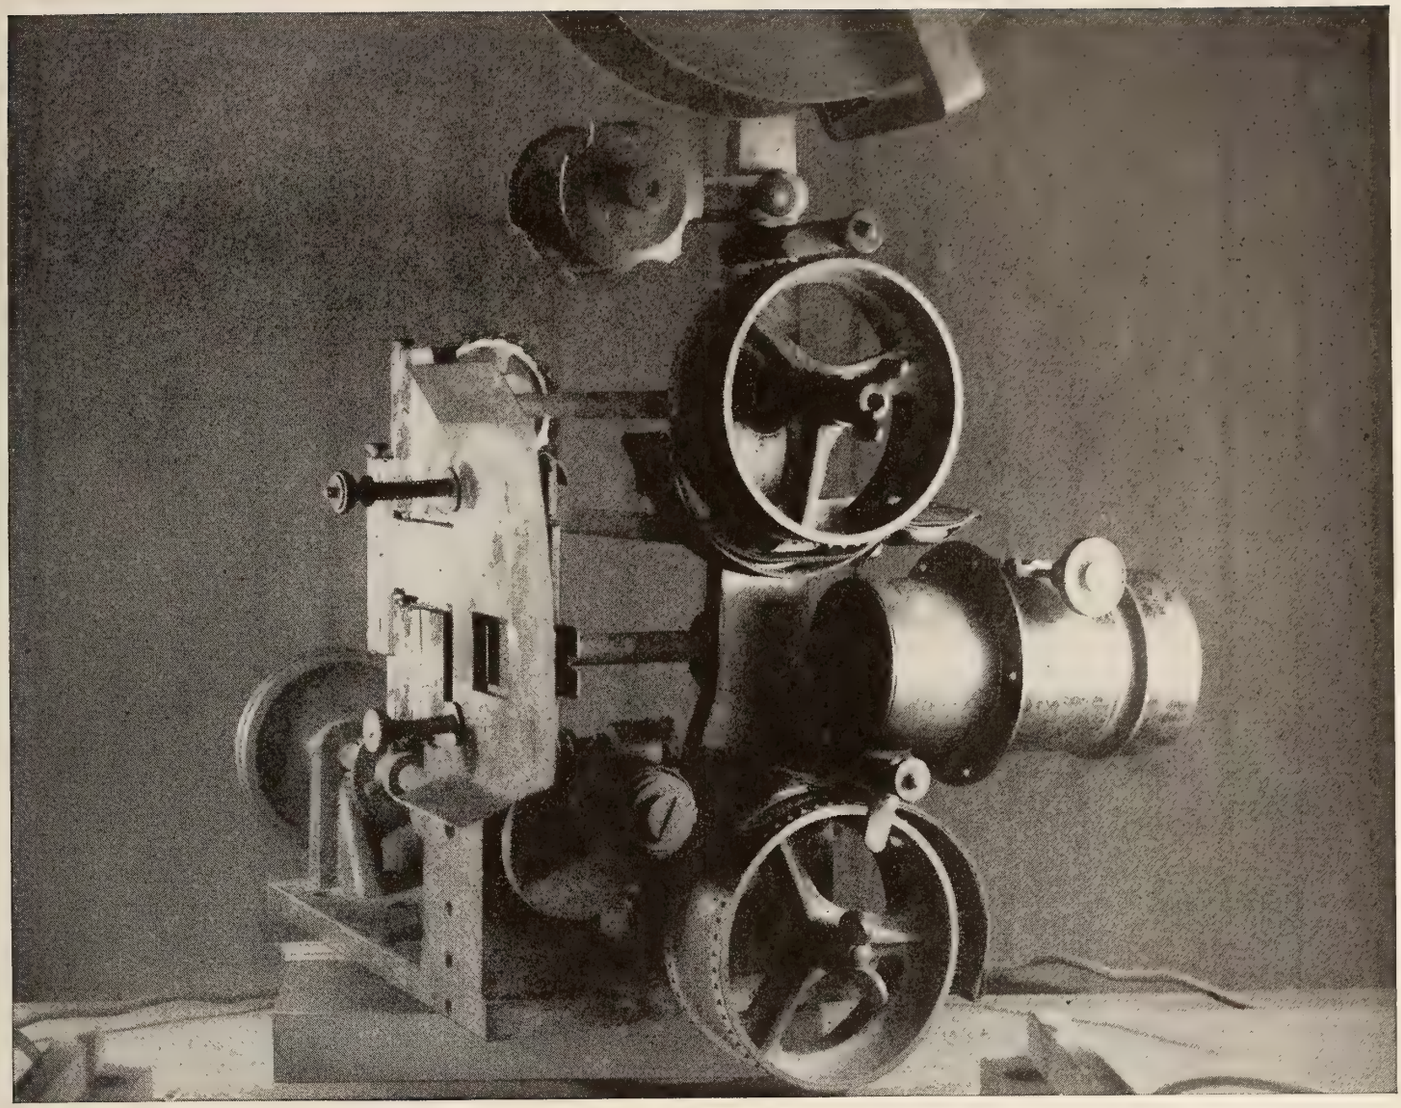
An eight-page prospectus on "The Movies and You," the series of 12 short subjects about the industry, is being sent to exhibitors by the MPAA's Industry Film Project Committee.

The cover explains the purpose of "The Movies and You" series as follows: The industry has united to produce this series of . . . films that will help place our industry in a favorable light in the public mind and combat the unjustified criticism that has been levelled against us.

"This is the film phase of a public relations program planned to give the theatre-going public a first-hand knowledge of our business in the best possible way—on the screen. It is something you—Mr. Exhibitor—have long asked for."

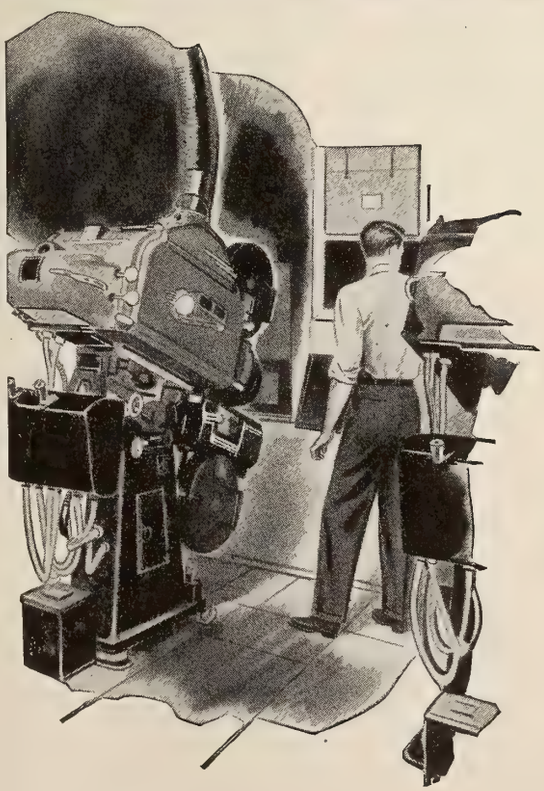
Stanley Shuford and the Paramount ad department did the layout and make-up of the book. Story material came largely from the MPAA's Hollywood, Washington and New York offices. Grant Leenhouts is coordinator-producer of the series.

Services Tomorrow For Mersereau, 78



PIERMONT, N. Y., May 12.—Funeral services will be held here on Saturday for Charles M. Mersereau, 78, at Stevenson's Funeral Parlor. Mersereau, who was formerly with Associated Publications and Jay Emanuel Publications, died at his home here yesterday.

He was the father of Don M. Mersereau, associate publisher and general manager of The Film Daily. Other survivors are the widow, Mrs. Evelyn B. Mersereau, and another son, Jack Mersereau of Mexico City.



Iron Curtain!

Mystery continues to shroud the Eric Johnston-Moscow deal on films. Repeated inquiry to all concerned on this side of the iron Curtain produces no information.

An alleged list of the films to be sent to the Soviets, recently published, lacks confirmation by the Motion Picture Association and Export Association. They say they just don't know.

The Armat Vitascope which projected the first theater movie, April 23, 1896.

With this, the "unseen showman" got his epoch-making start . . .

THE projectionist has come a long, long way . . . since the 1890's when he put on his show with equipment such as this.

And today, as then, much of a motion picture's success depends upon the unseen showman in his booth.

To his sure sense of split-second timing . . . to his alert control of sound . . . to his deft handling of elaborate equipment . . . the film illusion owes much of its dramatic, realistic presentation on the screen.

Helping the projectionist to keep the mechanics of the medium from intruding is the top quality of Eastman motion picture films (both sight and sound) . . . members of a famous family started more than fifty years ago.

ITOA, 20th Plan

chairman Max A. Cohen. Brandt presided.

Twentieth-Fox vice-president Al Lichtman and distribution vice-president Andy W. Smith, Jr., explained the policy and answered questions which had been drafted beforehand at a closed meeting of the ITOA film committee. Lichtman told the gathering that he "would have loved to present to the industry a new fandangled idea" as a result of the recent study of market conditions he conducted for the company. It was not possible, however, for him to "shock the trade" in that manner, he said, adding that he found no need for "revolutionary ideas," but discovered rather that "improved methods" are called for.

Blames Salesmen

Largest share of blame for whatever poor relationships exist between distribution and exhibition belongs to film salesmen, Lichtman declared. He said he found on his recent nationwide tour that there is "a lack of confidence between salesmen and exhibitors." He then called for the placing of dealings between the two "on the highest plane of business statesmanship."

The thought behind 20th-Fox's new sales policy, Lichtman said, "is that public patronage today is too low to be expected to support exhibition, distribution and production, and we all have to do something about it together." The problem, he said, cannot be approached by "cutting one another's throats."

Smith assumed the major burden of answering the questions drafted by the ITOA film committee and read to him by Cohen. The answers brought an explanation of how the company's new sliding-scale plan will work, and the following additional details: (1) the entire policy is now in effect and will continue in effect as long as it proves profitable for all concerned; (2) if a theatre proves that it cannot operate profitably on sliding-scale it will be offered flat rental terms; (3) there is no set flat rental formula; individual theatres will have to negotiate with the company, but any such deal will offer the same benefits which would be available under sliding scale, proportionate to the gross the theatre is able to reach; (4) home office approval of contracts is eliminated under the "local autonomy" given by the company to its field sales forces; (5) there is no arbitrary rule on cutting of clearances, which will vary in different cities; the New York situation will be studied with a view to establishing, with exhibitor cooperation, improved clearance conditions here.

Schwartz Qualifies Silence

Toward the end of the meeting, when a call by Brandt for questions from the floor went virtually unanswered, Fred J. Schwartz, vice-president of Century Circuit, arose to emphasize that silence on his part did not signify unqualified acceptance by him of all that had been said. Brandt echoed Schwartz's sentiment, and indicated later that he believed the plan will work if carried out on the basis of what was expressed by the 20th-Fox executives. Lichtman voiced the company's thanks at the conclusion of the meeting for the Association's "hospitality" and "courteous treatment."

Pointing up his faith in the sliding-scale system, which he introduced to the industry a number of years ago in behalf of Loew's, Lichtman said that the year before the system was adopted by National Theatres, a 20th-Fox subsidiary, that circuit earned only $200,000 from M-G-M pictures, whereas during the year sliding-scale was first tried National paid additional rentals totaling $70,000 to Loew's and increased its own "take" to $1,200,000.

Lichtman told the meeting that he agreed to formulate a new sales policy for 20th-Fox at the request of Skouras, and that his contract with the company is only for one year.

Occupying the meeting dais in addition to Lichtman, Smith, Brandt, Cohen and Schwartz, were: Emanuel Frisch, Harry Goldberg, Julius Joelson, Jack Kirsch, William Gehring, Martin Moskowitz, Charles Einfeld, Joshua Goldberg, Morton Sunshine, Seymour Florin, Sam Shain, William Brandt and Milton Weisman. Seated elsewhere, but introduced by Brandt, were Si H. Fabian and Oscar Doob.

Memphis Looks For Earlier Second Runs

Memphis, May 12.—Exhibitors and distributors are negotiating here for earlier releases of pictures for second runs in neighborhood and drive-in houses. Paramount has offered second run releases in 30 days instead of the present 39 days under certain conditions but so far has found no takers.

The conditions would require the neighborhood house to run the picture seven days with a $740 Guarantee, with the distributor receiving 35 per cent of the take up to $3,500 and a 50-50 split over $3,500.

20th Policy, Kirsch

by Kirsch, who was on the dais at the "open forum" luncheon-meeting which the New York Independent Theatre Owners Association devoted to a discussion of the policy with 20th-Fox vice-presidents Al Lichtman and Andy W. Smith, Jr.

Indicating that he will be in New York until tomorrow when he will fly back to Chicago, Kirsch said he expects to complete a number of arrangements for the May 23 meeting before his return.

Abram Myers Noncommittal on Possibilities of 20th's Plan

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Allied general counsel Abram F. Myers said today that 20th Century-Fox's new sales policy was "too broad and general" for him to be able to comment.

Myers said he had read the statement in the trade papers, and could not "begin to understand" what the new policy is. "Fox will either have to issue a more specific clarifying statement," he said, "or we'll just have to wait and see how it works out in practice. As it is, no one could praise it or criticize it, because we just don't know what it means."

20th Sliding Scale

ures for any individual theatre will be arrived at through negotiation. A theatre's expense figures, if available and if properly certified, will play a necessary part in the negotiations, he added.

'Life' - 'Crisis'

four panel meetings—with critics, scholars, exhibitors and consumers—and gives a digest of the comment at each, adding that it is to be the agenda for a "round-table" to be held at Lake Arrowhead, Cal., this weekend.

The digest begins with the premise that "Everybody loves the movies," but Hodgins immediately adds, for Life, "But what is everybody going to do about them?" According to Hodgins, "Joe," the man in the street, is demanding that something be done. He finds a crisis in the industry—a "crisis of motives, direction, reasons-for-being."

Having posed the question and premised the crisis, Life proposes to find the answers at its round-table. The critics, scholars, exhibitors and consumers quoted in the first article go along, for the most part, with the premises but they have no answers.

The critics—James Agee, Howard Barnes, Iris Barry, John Mason Brown, Eileen Creelman, Bosley Crowther and Herb Golden—find that "Hollywood misjudges its mass audience." They also are "hard against censorship"—especially what they call the "restrictions of the . . . Code" and the "pre-production pressure of the . . . Legion of Decency." They've said that before.

The scholars, including Richard de Rochemont, Joseph H. Hazen and Robert E. Sherwood, thought films should have "some mass and class grading." They objected to "innocuous product" resulting from "allowing everyone to vote."

The exhibitors—Weldon Allen, Elmer Balaban, James Coston, Alex Halperin, Sam Meyers, Trueman Rembusch, Arthur Schoenstadt and Edward G. Zorn—are given short shrift as "being sore at Hollywood" and as being preoccupied with the commercial aspects of the problem.

The consumers, represented by residents of Bryan, Ohio (pop. 5,800), are confused, says Life.

Paramount Profit

approximately $650,000 of capital gains.

Foreign film revenues show a decrease in the first quarter of 1949 as compared with the first quarter of 1948. During the first six months of 1948, 100 per cent of film revenues from English subsidiaries were remittable to New York. In 1949 only a portion of such revenues are remittable under the terms of the industry agreement with the English which was effective June 14, 1948, the balance being frozen in England. Increased restrictions on remittances have also reduced revenues from other foreign countries, the company states.

The $5,675,000 earnings for the quarter represents 86 cents per share on 6,609,739 shares outstanding on April 2, which compares with $1.11 per share for the quarter ended April 3, 1948 on 6,987,039 shares then outstanding.

Joint Tax Program

each organization advocated a different program. They then decided it would be more effective if they worked out a common program, and this has now been done. All of the groups have been on record individually as favoring turning the admission tax field back to state and local levels.

Ascap Appeals

producers on an individual basis and at terms specified by the members, it is said. Collections from theatres are barred by the court rulings, which also called for a revision of Ascap's relationship with its members.

The present plan envisions the Ascap members licensing their music works to the film producers through Ascap, which from all appearances would serve as a clearing house more or less.

The New York case has been repeatedly postponed with the latest being a two-month extension, to mid-July, of the date for filing records of the Federal Court proceedings with the Appeals Court. If the appeals are not dropped a hearing could not be scheduled until the fall at the earliest.

Abandonment of the appeals would of course require an agreement with the plaintiffs, who are still seeking damages of close to $1,000,000. Dropping the appeals here presumably would mean a like procedure in Minneapolis.

Meanwhile, some music publishing companies and film producers are entering deals on use of music with payments to be made if and when the public-performance licensing reverts to the publishers.

Film Dividends

would raise the first 1949 quarter figure considerably.

For instance, the preliminary figure for February, 1948, issued without the Stanley dividend, was $226,000, much the same as the $224,000 reported for February, 1949. The final figure for February, 1948, was $2,025,000.

The Department says that usually, publicly-reported cash dividends account for 60 to 65 per cent of all dividends paid by business firms.

Month-by-month comparisons for the first quarter follow: January, $2,639,000 in 1949, against $3,772,000 in 1948; February, $224,000, against $2,025,000; March, $7,508,000, against $7,374,000.

Commerce officials said that the drop in January was due largely to a cut in Warner Brothers' dividend rate, while the February drop was due to Stanley not reporting a dividend.

In March, a Commerce spokesman pointed out, Paramount and Universal dropped their dividend rates, but several other companies were up small amounts, including Walt Disney Productions.

The board of directors now consists of: Rank, Davis, Benjamin, Lawrence, Peyser and John Woolf of London.

Grosses Rise At 1st-Runs In Key Cities

$14,222 Weekly Average Is Set in the Field

Business at first-runs in key cities has bounced back from the year's low registered in March, while April grosses compared favorably with those of the same month last year, according to reports on some 175 key situations received from MOTION PICTURE DAILY field correspondents.

Average weekly income for April rose to $14,222 from March's $13,633. Weekly average per theatre for April last year was $14,545.

Although the production did not get into national release until the third week of April, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" registered immediately at box offices to an extent that enabled the picture to emerge in top grossing position for the month. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and

MPEA Picking New Films for Soviet

American companies are supplying 16mm. black-and-white prints of most of the 25 films which Soviet officials in Moscow have requested for screenings from the first list of 100 features from which they were permitted to choose under the deal made by Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association president, a year ago.

A second list of 100 features from which the Soviet also may select 20 or 25 for screenings is now in prepara-

M. P. Daily Cited For Aid to Israel

Motion Picture Daily* was cited "for objective news coverage which aided the cause of Israel" at Madison Square Garden Saturday evening where a rally sponsored by the Israel Anniversary Committee in observance of the first anniversary of the formation of the new state was held. Vice-President Alben W. Barkley was the chief speaker.

Red Kann accepted the citation for the publication.

Youngstein Named To Paramount Post

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, on Friday announced the appointment of Max Youngstein as director of national advertising, publicity and exploitation. Youngstein, who has been vice-president in charge of advertising-publicity for Eagle-Lion for the past two and one-half years, will assume his new post at Paramount on Monday, May 23. He succeeds Stanley Shuford, who resigned last week.

Trust Suit Charges Rent Discrimination

Described as probably the first anti-trust suit to be filed by an exhibitor based solely on charges of discrimination in film rentals, the $300,000 action which Hillside Amusement Co., Hillside, N. J., filed in U. S. District Court here embodies the claim that major distributors combined with each other and with exhibitor affiliates to discriminate against the plaintiff in the rentals charged for the same pictures on the same run. This was stated at the weekend by the plaintiff's

Drive, Banquet to Honor Blank at 70

Des Moines, May 15.—Tri-States' 53 theatres in Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois are staging a circuitwide showmanship contest, to run to July 9 in honor of circuit president A. H. Blank, who will reach 70 in July, and plans are under way to climax the drive with an all-industry tribute banquet at Des Moines on July 27, attended by industry executives and Hollywood personnel.

Blank started in show business more than 50 years ago and now operates more than 100 theatres.

E-L Sale Talks Still On; Report Price Set

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.—"Two or three" deals which would transfer ownership of Eagle-Lion to Edward Small were reported under discussion over the weekend, with Small and Serge Semenenko, Boston banker representing Pathe Industries, the parent company, continuing their talks on Friday and Saturday.

A price of $7,000,000 has been placed on E-L, it was reported, but with the major portion of that sum to be liquidated through future revenues and a relative small amount of cash changing hands in the event a deal is consummated.

The weekend conference was largely confined to a survey of the company's assets and potentialities with a final result expected early in the week.

Minneapolis Clearance Becoming More Muddled

MINNEAPOLIS, May 15.—The already muddled clearance situation here may develop seriously if plans being mulled by Engler brothers to demand day-and-date first-run with Minneapolis for their suburban Hopkins materializes. The Hopkins, a deluxe stand, is located about five miles west of the city limits.

It is known that some sales heads favor the move, and believe other outlying theatres, including Minnesota Amusement's neighborhood Uptown, should move into the first-run slot with the Loop. This group feels that all deluxe stands in or near the city should move up to the earliest possible availability, leaving late-run slots for minor stands. One of the main arguments of the group, aside from a faster playoff of "A" pictures, is that the large neighborhood stands by playing so closely ahead of the minors, take the edge off the smaller operations. Aim of the group is apparently to bring all deluxers inside the 42-day clearance and leave the later slots for the stands housing 800 or less.

Meantime, every type of run in both Minneapolis and St. Paul, as well as the neighboring areas, is awaiting some results from the new plan of 20th-Fox for multiple runs and/or saturation releases, as revealed to the trade in New York last week.

Some Doubtful About UK Plan At MPEA Meet

Measure Not Acted Upon; Report Critical Reaction

Motion Picture Export Association at its second meeting here on Friday on the proposed agreement with the British film industry took on the appearance, in part, at least, of uncertainty with several of those present putting queries to the chief proponents of the plan in a manner suggesting adverse feelings toward it.

Eric A. Johnston, MPEA president, expressed the belief that the tentative accord reached by the Anglo-U. S. Film Council could be workable and advantageous to the American companies, it was reported following the meeting. However, when it became clearly apparent that unanimous acceptance was not in prospect at the time, the meeting was adjourned, with no new meeting as yet scheduled.

Johnston was to have left at the weekend on a speaking tour from

British Answer on Quota Is Delayed

WASHINGTON, May 15.—British Embassy officials here admitted that they had received instructions from the Board of Trade in London on what answer to give the State Department on its British film quota protest, but declared that the instructions were "vague" and that the Embassy had cabled back to London for further instructions before calling the Department.

One official admitted he thought he knew what the instructions "amounted to," saying that nothing could be done on the quota at this time, but added that this was exactly the point

Para. Cutting Shorts List From 72 to 50

Paramount has scheduled 18 fewer short subjects for 1949-50 than it is distributing in 1948-49, it was disclosed here at the weekend by Oscar Morgan, general sales manager for short subjects and Paramount News. Scheduled for the new season are 52 subjects, compared to 70 this season. There will in addition, of course, be the usual 104 issues of Paramount News.

The subjects will consist of eight "Popeye" cartoons, 12 "Screen Song" cartoons, 10 "Noveltoon" cartoons, all in color; six Paramount "Champions," six Paramount "Pacemakers," and 10 Grantland Rice "Sportlights."

Three series, "Popular Science," "Unusual Occupations" and "Speaking of Animals," have been dropped.

All short subject and newsreel production will be under the supervision of Russell Holman, Eastern production manager, with Bernard Goodwin as business manager, and A. J. Richard as editor of Paramount News. The cartoons will be produced at Famous Studios, New York, under the management of Sam Buchwald.

100 Greater N. Y. Dates for 'Joan'

RKO Radio Pictures has set a day-and-date opening of Sierra Pictures' "Joan of Arc" for Tuesday, May 24, in the Greater New York area embracing close to 100 theatres, it was announced by Len S. Gruenberg, RKO Metropolitan district manager. It will follow the Brooklyn premiere of this Walter Wanger production at the Albee Theatre tomorrow.

Included in the bookings are the RKO Metropolitan circuit in New York and Brooklyn, and the deluxe houses of the Skouras, Warner, Century, Julius Joelson, Loew's, Rugoff and Becker and Randforce circuits.

Von Nomikos Files Third Chicago Suit

CHICAGO, May 15.—Van A. Nomikos, Chicago exhibitor, has filed his third anti-trust suit in the U. S. District Court here, claiming treble damages of $720,000 for losses suffered by the Ambassador Theatre, now the Rockne, when it was under his operation from 1937 to 1940. Saul Meltzer, current operator of the house, last year filed a suit which was settled.

Defendants in the suit are: Warner, Paramount, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox, Columbia, RKO, Universal-International, United Artists and Balaban and Katz. Seymour Simon is the plaintiff's attorney.

Withdraws 'Guinea Pig'

"The Guinea Pig," British picture produced by Pilgrim Pictures, was withdrawn Friday from the Little Carnegie here after a two-week run. Filippo Del Giudice, head of Pilgrim, said that "non-stereotyped" films must have extended runs to insure proper exhibition and that a fall showing will be more practicable.

35-Day Clearance for Drive-Ins Is Demand

Distribution sales managers here have received from the Greater Cincinnati Independent Exhibitor Organization declarations of opposition to the granting of any runs to drive-in theatres earlier than 35 days after the first suburban run. The organization supplemented its opposition stand with a request for hearings on any applications from drive-ins for earlier runs.

The organization argued in its telegrams to the sales managers that "film revenues from year-round operations of theatres justify the subordination of runs of drive-in theatres. Late suburban runs," it added, "will be seriously affected and your overall revenues will suffer if any run is granted to drive-in theatres earlier than 35 days after the first suburban."

Bateman Is Leaving Screen Guild Post

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.—Francis A. Bateman is leaving Screen Guild Productions as general sales manager on June 1, for what was described by SG president Robert Lippert as an "extended leave of absence." Bateman's three-year contract will expire on that date.

It was said that there is a possibility Bateman will rejoin the company at some later date. Meanwhile, Lippert will supervise sales.

U-I Handles Bond Short

Six hundred prints of "The Spirit of '49," a short starring Jack Benny and made by the industry as part of the U. S. Treasury's "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive," will be available at Universal-International exchanges for free distribution during the week of May 23, William A. Scully, U-I sales vice-president, announces.

Griffith Takes Stand In Own Defense

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 13.—H. J. Griffith testified Friday that reorganization of his circuit properties during the past four or five years was not for the purpose of evading government anti-trust penalties. He was on the stand most of the day in the mandate hearing before Judge Edgar S. Vaught, going into detail concerning stock transfers, theatre sales and reorganizations undertaken since the death of R. E. Griffith in 1943 and the serious illness of L. C. Griffith in 1947.

The three Griffiths were named as personal defendants in the monopoly case brought in 1938 which resulted in a Supreme Court conviction last year and the current hearing to determine what penalty will be assessed.

H. J. Griffith said that the four circuits named in the original case no longer are operating as they were, but Theatre Enterprises, of which he owns 62 per cent of the stock, controls many of the theatres formerly held by the defendant circuits.

Ray Higdon, Theatre Enterprises film buyer at Dallas, testified that the circuits dealt with distributors on a town-by-town basis and did not at any time over-buy as a means of keeping competitors from obtaining product.

Phila. 'IA' Demands 9 Months' Back Pay

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board has certified IATSE Local No. B-100 as collective bargaining agent for cashiers, doormen, ushers, cleaners, porters and matrons in Philadelphia film theatres, "IA" headquarters reported here at the weekend. Action follows a recent election in which the workers chose the "IA" local by a more than two-to-one vote over District No. 50 of the Mine Workers.

Rites at Weekend for Mrs. Rita McGoldrick

Funeral mass was sung Saturday at Queen of All Saints Church, Brooklyn, for Mrs. Rita C. McGoldrick, 59, a founder of the National Legion of Decency, who died on Thursday at St. Peter's Hospital there. Interment followed at Holy Cross Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Long active in behalf of clean motion pictures, books and radio programs, Mrs. McGoldrick was chairman of the motion picture bureau of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae. In 1933, the Gold Cross of the Order of Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice was awarded to her by Pope Pius 11th, in recognition of her work. The Cross is the highest Papal honor bestowable on women, and entitled her to be known as a Papal Lady.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. Thomas A. McGoldrick; three sons, and two daughters.

Correction

Citing at last week's open forum meeting of New York exhibitors and 20th-Fox executives the extent to which sliding-scale rental selling can work to the decided advantage of both distributors and exhibitors, company vice-president Al Lichtman said that when he introduced the system to the industry a number of years ago in behalf of Loew's, one circuit, National Theatres, increased its rental payments to the distributor to $700,000. during the first year of the circuit's use of the system. Due to a typographical error, MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Friday erroneously reported that figure as $70,000.

MPEA - Soviets

tion by the Motion Picture Export Association. The latter endeavors to choose films which cannot be used for propagandistic purposes in the Soviet. After it has fine-combed its list, the pictures proposed for showing in Moscow are further studied by their respective producer-distributors for material or circumstances which might be used for purposes other than those intended, in the main, as straight theatre entertainment.

Ship 16mm. Prints

Under Johnston's deal the Soviets are to pay $50,000 for outright purchase of each feature ultimately chosen. Despatch of the 16mm. prints for Moscow screenings, presumably by Sovkino, the Russian film monopoly, does not mean that the Soviets have agreed to purchose those films. It signifies only that the Soviet film officials are sufficiently interested to wish to see the specified films screened. As a matter of fact, most foreign department officials here would be agreeably surprised if the Russians actually chose and paid for any of the pictures after seeing them. That is why 16mm. prints are being shipped. They are regarded as adequate for screening purposes for the Soviet officials but not suitable for standard theatre showings. In the case of Technicolor features sought for screenings in Moscow, some prints are not available in 16mm. and some companies, accordingly, are omitting them from the Moscow shipments. Some think that Soviet film technicians will be treated to the screneings and "no sale" rung up later.

Films Listed

Prints of the following reportedly are on their way to Moscow: "To the Ends of the Earth," Columbia; "Lassie Come Home," "Thrill of a Romance," "Madame Curie," M-G-M; "Going My Way," "The Paleface," Paramount; "Bring Em Back Alive," "The Farmer's Daughter," RKO Radio; "Anna and the King of Siam," "Black Swan," "State Fair," "13 Rue Madeleine," "Western Union," 20th Century-Fox; "Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves," "Can't Help Singing," "The Egg and I," "Hers to Hold," Universal; "Adventures of Mark Twain," "Cloak and Dagger," "Rhapsody in Blue," "Treasure of Sierra Madre," Warners; "I've Always Loved You," "Specter of the Rose," Republic; "The Dude Goes West," Allied Artists.

Official spokesmen of MPEA and MPAA said they could not find out whether the reported titles above comprise a correct list. Officials of the companies concerned who could be reached said they are.

SPG Mediation Fails; Picketing Stepped Up

Executive board of Screen Publicists Guild (CIO) will meet here this evening to determine whether or not the Guild's representatives should meet again with the film companies before Federal Mediator L. A. Stone to discuss the current controversy over new contracts. Stone held a meeting last Thursday, and the companies are reported agreeable to meet again on May 23. Thursday's mediation meeting was said to be "totally unproductive."

Meanwhile, Len Goldsmith, SPG business agent, reported that the union will intensify its picketing activities in front of Loew's theatres here.

Youngstein Named

publicity manager and Norman Siegel as studio publicity director.

Youngstein, an attorney, entered the industry in 1941, when he joined the Hal Horne Organization as general counsel and business manager. When Horne joined 20th Century-Fox, early in 1942, as director of advertising-publicity, Youngstein was named assistant director of the department. After a year in that capacity Youngstein transferred his activities to 20th Century-Fox's Hollywood studio, where he headed a special service department.

During 1944 and 1945 Youngstein was publicity director and film consultant to the motion picture and special events section of the War Finance Division, United States Treasury. In October, 1946, Youngstein was named director of advertising-publicity of the then new Eagle-Lion. He was elected a vice-president February 8, 1948.

Currently chairman of the advertising and publicity committee of the industry's participation in the 1949 Treasury savings bond drive, Youngstein has been active in the industry's volunteer activities. He served as chairman of the theatre committee of the 1949 Greater New York March of Dimes drive, is a member of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, was elected president of the group for 1948, and was re-elected for 1949, the first to be re-elected to this post.

Youngstein's resignation from E-L becomes effective on May 20.

Connolly Manager of 20th Boston Branch

James V. Connolly, sales manager of the 20th Century-Fox office in Boston, has been elevated to branch manager of the exchange, it was announced here over the weekend by A. W. Smith, Jr., vice-president and general sales manager. Connolly succeeds Ed Callahan, who was promoted to New England division manager last week.

John Feloney, Boston salesman, has been appointed sales manager.

Rent Discrimination

attorney, Arthur L. Abrams of Newark and New York.

Abrams said that the complaint, filed last Wednesday, charges the plaintiff was forced to buy nearly all of the pictures distributed by all of the defendants and could not bargain effectively with any of them. "The defendants, taking advantage of the plaintiff's inability to bargain and inability to license films elsewhere, charged the plaintiff more for the same pictures than they charged comparable theatres operated by companies affiliated with the defendants," Abrams' statement said.

Plaintiff claims that the discrimination is in violation of the Sherman, Clayton and Robinson-Patman acts.

Chaplin Attacked Again

WASHINGTON, May 15.—In a statement to a Senate Judiciary Committee holding hearings on internal security, Senator Cain (Rep., Wash.), again attacked Charles Chaplin and demanded the actor's immediate deportation. Cain repeated charges he made on the Senate floor several weeks ago.

MPEA Meeting

which he will not return before next week, when another meeting will be held.

Following the Friday session the MPEA office here issued a statement reporting that Johnston had appointed a sub-committee, headed by Arthur M. Loew, head of Loew's International, to "study details involved and to report to a subsequent meeting of the MPEA." Curiously, some of those present on Friday said that while naming such a committee had been proposed they were unaware that it had been acted upon.

Some of the critical questioning centered around what was termed "the film industry's own Marshall plan," this in reference to that part of the tentative agreement which would provide for a U. S. subsidization of British production to an extent paralleling the amount of earnings of British films in the U. S., with a bonus provision.

May Be Revised

Some representatives of the MPEA member companies emphasized on Friday that the initial disagreements on certain portions of the overall proposed plan are not to be construed as meaning that the project will be abandoned in its entirety, although they seemed to think that some revisions would result in approval by a greater majority.

The proposed British concession on playing a minimum of 100 "A" American films in the three principal circuits in England also was greeted with some skepticism on Friday. The question of how an "A" production would be determined was asked, it was said following the meeting.

Certain participants were said also to have taken an overall view of the proposition put to them on Friday and then wondered if it all had legal sanction, whether possibly it smacked of cartelization.

Both Barney Balaban, Paramount president, and Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, who, with Johnston, constitute the U. S. side of the Films Council, were present on Friday. Others there were Spyros P. Skouras, Ned E. Depinet, Gradwell L. Sears, Norton V. Ritchey, Sam Schneider, Joseph Hazen, Emanuel and Murray Silverstone, Wolfe Cohen, George Weltner, Al Daff, Theodore Black, Francis Harmon, Joyce O'Hara and John McCarthy.

"Little Three" Listed

Columbia, United Artists and Universal, it appears, are especially doubtful about the proposed U. S.-U. K. program. Universal, which has a contract with J. Arthur Rank, will stand on that rather than the proposed plan.

The MPEA meeting on Friday was followed by a gathering of some members of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers at the offices here of Ellis G. Arnall, president, who is expected to announce a plan of opposition early this week. If the SIMPP's objections are taken to either the U. S. State Department or the Attorney General, on the charge that the MPEA tentative plan violates international law and amounts to a conspiracy domestically, it would come as no surprise.

Anglo-US Plan To Receive Legal Scrutiny

Will See Counsel Before Plan is 'Put in Writing'

WASHINGTON, May 16. — The Motion Picture Export Association has never taken a major step without detailed advice of competent legal counsel, and this policy will hold true of any final Anglo-American film agreement, an MPEA official declared here today.

The official refused to comment directly on the charge of SIMPP president Ellis Arnall that the terms agreed on at the recent Anglo-American film council meeting violated the Webb-Pomerene Act. He did say, however, that he believed that MPEA had never violated the law, and never would.

This MPEA spokesman admitted that MPEA and the film company lawyers had not been consulted about

Mild Business for Most NY 1st-Runs

New York's first-run returns are running ahead of last week's but there is still plenty of room for improvement. Accounting for the increase in the overall average is the appearance of five new shows in place of holdovers. Event of the week on Broadway will be the reopening of the Palace with 20th Century-Fox's "Canadian Pacific," and eight acts of vaudeville.

"Home of the Brave," Stanley Kramer-United Artists, is doing very healthy business at the 1,060-seat Vic-

Higher Costs Shrink Disney Prod. Profits

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Roy O. Disney, president of Walt Disney Productions, today reported to shareholders that operations in the 26 weeks ended April 2, resulted in a net loss of $29,245. For the 27 weeks ended April 3, 1948, the company had a net profit of $68,128, equal after providing for preferred dividend payments, to eight cents a share on 652,840 common shares outstanding.

Paramount-Malco Split Under Study

MEMPHIS, May 16.—Theatres jointly owned by Paramount and Malco Theatres, Inc., in Memphis and elsewhere in this territory, have been inspected by representatives of both concerns preparatory to a dissolution under requirements of the dissolution decree.

No decision has been announced and the settlement of the theatres' ownership is still in the negotiation stage. There is a possibility that the entire three years allowed by the court may be consumed to bring about a final agreement, Malco spokesmen say. On the other hand, they added, there might be an announcement at any time.

Some time ago M. A. Lightman, Sr., head of Malco, announced that M. A. Lightman, Jr., had shown many of the theatres to Robert M. Weitman, Hal Pereira and Sid Markley, of the Paramount home office. They visited theatres in Jonesboro, Camden, Ft. Smith, Hot Springs and Fayetteville, all in Arkansas.

Hearing Friday on Tighter Trust Laws

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A House Judiciary subcommittee will hold hearings Friday on a bill to tighten the anti-trust laws by prohibiting one firm from acquiring the physical assets of another when the result is to lessen competition substantially.

The law now bars only the acquisition of the company's stock.

Speedy approval by the subcommittee and then the full committee is expected. President Truman and the Justice Department support the measure, which was reported by the House

Hollywood, May 16.—Following weekend conferences in Palm Springs and further meetings today between Serge Semenenko and Edward Small on the latter's acquisition of outright ownership or controlling interest in Eagle-Lion, Small issued a statement this afternoon, saying, "Semenenko leaves for New York tomorrow, taking with him several constructive plans worked out during discussions here. He will now arrive at a conclusion in discussions with the banking syndicate he heads and with Pathe Industries, Inc."

New Jersey TOA to Meet, Elect May 25

The New Jersey chapter of the Theatre Owners of America will hold its annual meeting and election in the Ritz Ballroom in Passaic on Wednesday, May 25, to which all exhibitors in the state are invited, it was reported here yesterday by Maurice J. Miller, president of the chapter.

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the TOA, will be the principal speaker at the meeting. In addition to the election of officers, there will be an extended discussion of theatre television, led by Walter Reade, Jr., who is co-chairman of the national television committee of the TOA. Reade will report on recent joint meetings of the theatre television committees of the TOA and the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

80% of Films Rated Tops By Public, Johnston Says

ST. LOUIS, May 16.—In a sharp attack on film censorship and "snobbish" criticism of motion pictures, Motion Picture Association of America president Eric A. Johnston told the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers here this evening that the public rates 75 to 80 per cent of Hollywood's product "good to excellent," with only 20 to 25 per cent rated "fair to poor." Terming this "a handsome batting average," Johnston said "it's around that statistical fact that much of the invalid

SIMPP Goes To the D. of J. On U. K. Plan

Files Formal Complaint; Threatens More Protests

Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers has filed a "formal complaint" with the U. S. Attorney General protesting the "activities and proposed activities" of the Anglo-American Films Council and the Motion Picture Export Association.

Statement by Ellis G. Arnall, SIMPP president, issued here yesterday, was devoid of details but presumably the complaint alleges conspiracy by the majors to the detriment of independent producers, referring, of course, to the proposals for a tentative U. S.-British film agreement.

Besides the Department of Justice, the SIMPP, according to Arnall, also is considering complaints to be filed with the Federal Trade Commission, the U. S. State Department and Congressional committees.

British Hit Old Grable, Wilde Films

LONDON, May 16.—The Kinematograph Renters Society, for distribution, and the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, for exhibition, have authorized a joint statement condemning two pictures recently trade shown here which consist of early film efforts of Betty Grable and Cornel Wilde on the grounds that they are injurious to the present-day stars and misleading to the public which might expect to see them in recently made films.

Youngstein in Post Vacant Since 1948

In reporting the appointment of Max Youngstein as national director of Paramount's advertising, publicity and exploitation yesterday MOTION PICTURE DAILY erroneously stated that he succeeds Stanley Shuford. The latter, who resigned from Paramount last week, had been Eastern advertising manager for Paramount. The company has had no national director of advertising, publicity and exploitation since the resignation of Curtis Mitchell from that post about 18 months ago.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Academy Award voted to 12-year-old Ivan Jandl for the best juvenile performance in M-G-M's "The Search" was presented to Czechoslovakia's Ambassador Vladimir Outrata by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America. Outrata will forward the award to Jandl, now in Prague.

Seven from 20th-Fox For Summer Release

Seven key pictures will be released by 20th Century-Fox during the summer, it was disclosed here yesterday by distribution vice-president A. W. Smith, Jr.

In June the company will release: "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend," starring Betty Grable, in Technicolor, which will have its premiere at the Roxy Theatre here on May 27; "It Happens Every Spring," starring Ray Milland, Jean Peters and Paul Douglas, which will have its world premiere in St. Louis on May 26, and "The Forbidden Street," starring Dana Andrews and Maureen O'Hara, currently playing a pre-release engagement at the Roxy, New York.

In July, the company has scheduled: Will James' "Sand," starring Mark Stevens and Coleen Gray, in Technicolor, which will have a saturation premiere in the West backed by a territorial campaign, and "House of Strangers," starring Edward G. Robinson, Susan Hayward and Richard Conte.

Films scheduled for August are: "Slattery's Hurricane" starring Richard Widmark, Linda Darnell and Veronica Lake, and "You're My Everything," starring Dan Dailey and Anne Baxter, in Technicolor.

Snyder, 4 Governors At K. C. Bond Drive

KANSAS CITY, May 16.—John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury and Governors Earl Warren of California, Forrest Smith of Missouri, Frank Carlson of Kansas and Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts were here today for the opening of the Opportunity Savings Bond Drive. Covered wagons which arrived by airplane took part in a parade at Independence, Mo., this afternoon.

Secretary Snyder, the Governors, Red Skelton, Paul Lukas and Lizabeth Scott were in the parade and will take part in the local bond drive climax at Municipal Auditorium tonight, part of which will be broadcast. Film stars and visiting officials were guests at a dinner for bond drive leaders.

Moss Heads MP Sales Road Show Unit

Motion Picture Sales Corp., headed by Neil Agnew and Charles Casanave, has established a new road show department at its new home office at 730 Fifth Avenue here, and Alec Moss has been placed in charge of it.

Moss was previously in charge of publicity, exploitation and advertising for Howard Hughes Productions. Prior to that, he was exploitation director of Paramount Pictures for 15 years.

Houser Succeeds Rice

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Bill Rice has resigned from the Warner studio publicity department after 11 years, the last four as assistant to Alex Evelove. Mervyn Houser, who joined the department a fortnight ago, will succeed Rice in that post.

Flick Takes Over As Chief N. Y. Censor

Albany, N. Y., May 16.—Dr. Hugh M. Flick today assumed the directorship of the motion picture division (chief censor) of the New York State Education Department, replacing Dr. Ward C. Bower, who had been acting director for the past three years.

Dr. Flick will spend one day a week at offices here and the remainder of his time in New York.

UJA Committee To Meet on Thursday

The advisory committee of the amusements division of the United Jewish Appeal will meet at luncheon on Thursday in the office of Fred J. Schwartz, of Century Circuit here. Schwartz is chairman of the division for the 1949 campaign, succeeding Si Fabian.

The meeting date was changed from Tuesday to Thursday in order to assure greater attendance, Schwartz explained. Considerable work is being done for the 1949 campaign by the committees recently set up, and the top advisory committee meets from time to time to coordinate efforts.

Memphis Censors Ban 'City Across the River'

MEMPHIS, May 16.—"City Across the River," Universal-International, has been banned by the city-county Board of Censors because of its crime theme.

"It's another one of those juvenile delinquency things like the 'Dead End Kids' which we banned here previously," said Lloyd T. Binford, chairman of the censors. "The picture opens with a beautiful talk on juvenile delinquency, but it promptly goes off into an exhibition of it," said Binford. The film was to have opened at Loew's Palace tomorrow.

Reception for 'Lady'

Universal-International held a press screening and reception for "The Lady Gambles" at Toots Shor's here yesterday. Stephen McNally, who stars in the film with Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Preston, was present. Following the preview John Scarne, authority on gambling and author of "Scarne on Cards," entertained. Others present were Henry A. Linet, Philip Gerard, Jerry Sager, Charles Simonelli and Andy Sharick.

Jacoby Heads Council

Starting its fourth year of activity, the New York Film Council has elected Irving Jacoby as chairman for 1949-50, and Albert J. Rosenberg, vice-chairman. Reelected for second terms as secretary and treasurer respectively were Sophie C. Hohne and Theodosia Stratemeyer. Executive board members are: Willard Van Dyke, Thomas J. Brandon, Julien Bryan, Cecile Starr, John Flory, Emily Jones, Florence Anderson, Robert Snyder and Mrs. Mildred Mathews.

Deals for 3 Wilcox Films Pending Here

Back in New York following a two-week visit on the Coast, British producer Herbert Wilcox reported yesterday that he expects to conclude here before he departs for England aboard the S. S. Queen Mary on Friday, U. S. distribution deals for his "Courtneys of Curzon Street," "Spring in Park Lane" and "Maytime in Mayfair." The pictures were screened extensively for Coast executives during the past two weeks, and aroused considerable interest, Wilcox said.

While on the Coast, Wilcox concluded a deal with Warner Brothers for that company's employment of British actor Michael Wilding to star opposite Jane Wyman in a forthcoming Alfred Hitchcock picture. Wilding co-starred with Anna Neagle (Mrs. Wilcox) in "Spring in Park Lane," which was cited recently, following a British audience poll, as the best picture to be shown in England last year. Miss Neagle and Wilding also took top honors in the poll in consequence of their performances in the film.

Allied Hits Para.'s Memphis Sales Plan

MEMPHIS, May 16.—Allied Independent Theatre Owners of the Mid-South, Inc., has characterized Paramount's new availability "offer" to Memphis exhibitors as "vicious," and something "that amounts to bidding." The statement was issued by Bob Bowers, manager.

Paramount has offered pictures to deluxe and drive-in neighborhoods 30 days after first-runs on condition that the pictures be kept seven days and that $750 be guaranteed. Further, Paramount asks 35 per cent up to $3,500 and a 50-50 split over $3,500. Two Memphis theatres have accepted this new offer as an experiment.

Other distributors have denied they planned to follow Paramount's plan and said they are sticking to 39 and 46-day releases after first-runs.

toria, where $32,000 is the apparent first week's gross. This is still short of the revenue anticipated, however.

Here are the four other newcomers with the estimated gross of each for the first week: "The Stratton Story," stage show, Music Hall, fairly good at $120,000; "Forbidden Street," Dick Haymes and ice revue on stage, Roxy, fair at $82,000; "Streets of Laredo," Peter Lorre and Victor Lombardo's orchestra on stage, Paramount, adequate at $64,000; "The Sun Comes Up," Glen Gray's orchestra and Gracie Barrie on stage, Capitol, very low at $24,000.

"Flamingo Road," with Ted Lewis' orchestra on stage, is headed for a good second week's gross of $40,000 at the Strand. Rousing second week's business of $42,000 is figured for "Barkleys of Broadway" at the State. "We Were Strangers" is fair enough at the Astor with $19,000 in view for a third week. Sixth week of "Champion" probably will gross about $20,000 at the Globe, and that is fairly healthy.

Mayfair looks like a $14,000 gross for the fifth week of "Wizard of Oz," which is moderate business. "Hamlet" is still pulling strong with about $15,000 likely for the 33rd week at the Park. "Africa Screams" probably will give the Criterion about $14,000 in a mild second week and will be followed on Friday by "Lady Gambles." "The Red Shoes," continuing at a good clip, should give the Bijou about $12,000 in a 30th week. "One Woman's Story" will open at the Rivoli today, replacing "Portrait of Jennie," which took in about $10,000 in a seventh and final week.

criticism rides a noisy merry-go-round."

The MPAA chief said a type of invalid criticism is "voiced by those who want pictures made only in their own image." That, he added, "is a broad way of saying they want pictures cued to a definitely narrow taste or pictures which in their opinion are suitable for other people to see. . . . The extremist among the conformists is for censorship of motion pictures. . . . I believe in Parent-Teacher and other community groups rating pictures after production as to audience suitability."

Hailing the strides made by motion pictures in behalf of education, Johnston cited these statistics: "In 1936, there were 485 sound projectors in American schools. This year an estimated 50,000 are in use. The number of films acceptable for teaching purposes has climbed from a scanty handful to more than 1,000,000 prints of nearly 7,000 different titles."

Higher Costs

reflects factors previously brought to the attention of stockholders, principally to higher rates of amortization of feature production costs necessitated by shrinking film revenues, both domestic and foreign," according to a company statement.

Disney said that the company is preparing to produce Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," in England this summer, acting jointly with its distributor, RKO Radio. About 90 per cent of the production cost will be paid with sterling.

"The production and its subsequent world-wide distribution by RKO Radio should enable Disney Productions to convert to dollars all of its presently blocked British money, plus substantially all that which may accrue in the United Kingdom during the next year," it was said. "If this result is obtained, it will improve the income account for the current year and for 1950."

In the first half of the current year, total gross income was $2,746,251 compared with $2,543,286 for the corresponding period a year ago.

During the first six months Disney Productions applied $381,560 to debt reduction and to the payment of all remaining dividend arrearages on preferred stock, which dividends amount to $83,610. Notes payable decreased $173,574, the long-term serial loan was reduced by $105,026 and $19,350 principal amount of debentures were purchased for retirement.

UA to Accept Bids for All Chicago Runs

Applies to Downtown And Subsequent Houses

CHICAGO, May 17.—United Artists will sell all of its forthcoming product under the bidding system for downtown and subsequent-run situations. Company had previously experimented with selling under bidding and negotiations. Initiating the plan for the Loop will be "The Crooked Way," while outlying houses will be able to bid for "Impact," "Jigsaw" and "Africa Screams," previously booked into the Loop under the old system.

Reason for the company's resumption of bidding is believed to be due to the strong product backlog, including "Champion" and "Home of the Brave," booked into the Essaness Woods.

CiteProductionCode At IFCA Luncheon

Importance of the industry's voluntary Production Code and its administration was stressed by the Rev. Patrick J. Masterson, executive secretary of the National Legion of Decency, at the annual luncheon of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at the Pierre Hotel here yesterday. Mrs. James F. Looram, chairman of the motion picture department of the IFCA presided. Other speakers were Father Francis X. Tighter Censorship Expected in Ontario

Toronto, May 17. — In becoming the Premier of Ontario through party election, Leslie M. Frost announces that he has retained the portfolio of Provincial Treasurer which means he continues to keep jurisdiction over the censorship and theatre inspection branches of the government. He plans a reorganization of film censorship under the continued direction of O. J. Silverthorne, including an increase in personnel.

Future Prospects Bright, Zukor Tells Exhibitors

The industry's future looks good, Adolph Zukor, Paramount board chairman, declared here yesterday at the launching of the re-release of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" at a screening and luncheon at Toots Shor's. The luncheon was in honor of Zukor, who presented this first Technicolor production in 1936. Some 60 exhibitors attended as well as Paramount executives and press representatives.

Hugh Owen, Paramount Eastern and Southern division sales manager, presided.

Zukor stressed the unity of purpose that now exists between the production, distribution and exhibition ends of the industry. He declared that he has "just as much faith today in the industry as 30 years back." Zukor asserted that "television competition will make us do a better job," and he urged exhibitors "to encourage people who make pictures to make the best possible."

Exhibitors invited were: Harry Royster, Adam Adams, Ben Greifer,

State Solons Hit Film Dollar Freeze

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The California state legislature today called on Congress to urge the U. S. State Department to work for the release of American film company assets frozen abroad.

In a resolution forwarded to members of the Senate and the House, the state legislators pointed out that film companies have been making pictures abroad to use the frozen assets, contributing to unemployment in the domestic film industry.

AFL Drive to Oust SPG at RKO Radio

AFL's Sign Pictorial and Display Union here (Local No. 230 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers) has expanded its campaign to capture territory held by CIO's Screen Publicists Guild. Thwarted in an attempt to win jurisdiction over the artists' segment of the RKO Radio publicity shop here, the AFL union has applied to the National Labor Relations Board here for a full shop election. Spokesmen for Local No. 230 claim that a majority of RKO Radio's publicists and artists seek to sever connections with the SPG which stands at an impasse with

Quigley Urges Fair US Employment Law

WASHINGTON, May 17. — Martin Quigley, as co-chairman of the National Council for a Permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission, today testified before a sub-committee of the House Labor and Education Committee which is conducting hearings on the anti-discrimination bill now before Congress.

Quigley urged favorable action by the sub-committee, declaring that, "The simplest, most basic requirement for the maintenance of human rights and social justice is the right to equality of opportunity in earning a livelihood, without regard to race, color, religion or national origin."

See New Medium For Cutting US Tax

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Rep. Wilbur Mills, key Democratic member of the House Ways and Means Committee today came up with a new proposal on corporate income taxes which may also open the way for an admission tax reduction this year.

Mills introduced a bill to push corporate income tax payments, normally paid over the 12 months of 1950, into the first six months. This plan is designed to raise tax collections in fiscal 1950, without increasing tax rates, as a means of avoiding an otherwise almost certain deficit. The bill has been discussed by top Ways and Means Committee members, Treasury officials and key Senators.

926,842, which after deducting preferred dividends amounted to $1.00 per share on 2,769,024 shares of common then outstanding. Earnings for the fourth quarter of 1948 were $3,389,651.

Officers Reelected

Reelected with Skouras were the following: Michel, executive vice-president; Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production; Silverstone, vice-president; Joseph H. Moskowitz, vice-president; Al Lichtman, vice-president; Andrew W. Smith, Jr., vice-president in charge of domestic distribution; S. Charles Einfeld, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity and exploitation; Henderson, treasurer and secretary; Eadie, comptroller and assistant treasurer; Francis T. Kelly, assistant treasurer; Fred L. Metzler, assistant treasurer; C. Elwood McCarthey, assistant comptroller; J. Harold Lang, assistant secretary; Norman B. Steinberg, assistant secretary; George F. Wasson, Jr., assistant secretary, and William Werner, assistant secretary.

Company's film rentals and theatre receipts rose for the 13 weeks ended March 26 to $43,490,969 from the 1948 corresponding period's $40,316,174. Subsidiary National Theatres' profit for 1948 was reported at $8,600,000, compared with $10,200,000 for the previous year. National's profit for the first quarter of this year was reported at $2,100,000, compared with $2,300,000 for the same period of 1948.

The stockholders' meeting, described by recalcitrant minority stockholder Gilbert Fuller as one of the best ever held in the industry, was marked by lengthy questioning by stockholders of Skouras and company attorney Otto Koegel, with the latter serving as meeting chairman.

Queried on Divestiture

One question concerned the company's progress in connection with divestiture and acquisition of theatre properties under the provisions of recent rulings in the industry anti-trust suit. Koegel reported that dissolution negotiations are progressing between 20th-Fox and theatre partner Golden State (M. J. Naify). Meanwhile, he said, the company has made an arrangement with United Artists Theatres for the acquisition of the latter's two-third interest in Los Angeles' Chinese Theatre for $700,000, which would make 20th-Fox full owner of the house through Fox West Coast. To balance this, 20th-Fox's interest in four other mutually-owned theatres on the Coast will be sold to UA Theatres for $387,000. Koegel told the stockholders also that the United West Coast pool had been dissolved in conformity with court rulings.

Report on Blocked Funds

Reporting on the company's usage of currencies blocked overseas, Skouras said $1,000,000 in Italian lira was used by the company to make the recently-completed "Prince of Foxes" in that country; $1,950,000 in pounds, francs and marks went into the production of "I Was a Male War Bride," in Europe; $2,000,000 in pounds will be used to produce "Black Rose" in England and South Africa, and the company will continue to produce in blocked currency countries until "better means" can be found to make possible the release of frozen funds. Also, Skouras said, the company spent 166,000 pounds sterling (blocked) to increase theatre holdings abroad.

Skouras said he is "optimistic" that U. S. companies will benefit from the results of the recent Anglo-U. S. Film Council talks.

Average cost of the 24 pictures which 20th-Fox will make this year will be $1,783,000, Skouras said, comparing this with $1,870,000 average for the 21 made last year, and $2,300,000 average for the 18 released in 1947. Citing those figures to inform the stockholders of the extent to which the company has gone to effect production economies, Skouras added that in 1948 20th-Fox's over-all economies totalled $5,500,000. No sacrifice was made in quality to effect these economies, Skouras said.

Stating that 20th-Fox is placing much of its hope for the future in theatre television progress, Skouras said he expects that in about 18 months the company will be prepared to install large-screen video in 25 of the company's Fox West Coast theatres. He said a special video channel has been applied for in this connection, and word is being awaited from the Federal Communications Commission.

Although some minority stockholders present challenged the payment of pensions to company officers upon retirement, others took the floor to express support of the pension plan and high salaries on the ground that good management necessarily comes at a high price.

Following the meeting, the stockholders remained in the 20th-Fox home office screening room at Skouras' invitation to view a large-screen television demonstration which featured an outline by Skouras of the company's theatre video plans, and entertainment by Ed Thorgussen, actor Richard Conte and singer Joan Edwards.

The company reported following the directors' meeting that no action was taken by the board on studio executive Joseph M. Schenck's recent resignation application which has been rejected by Skouras.

20th Board Declares Quarterly Dividends on 3 Types of Stock

Board of directors of 20th Century-Fox yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $1.12½ per share (or the equivalent in sterling at the rate of exchange on date of payment to holders of record residing in the United Kingdom) on outstanding prior preferred stock, payable June 15, to stockholders of record on June 1.

A quarterly dividend of 37½ cents per share on outstanding convertible preferred stock of the company has been declared payable June 24, to stockholders of record June 1.

A quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on outstanding common stock has been declared payable on June 24 to stockholders of record on June 1.

Review

"Neptune's Daughter"

(M-G-M)

ADROIT showmanship, the kind that draws dollars, has gone into the making of "Neptune's Daughter." It is about as popular an attraction for hot-weather months as any exhibitor reasonably might expect to find coming his way. O.K. for fall and winter dates, too.

The allegorical daughter is Esther Williams, who graduates into the swim suit business with Keenan Wynn as partner, and gets romantically involved with polo-playing Ricardo Montalban. This straight romance has a parallel in a comedy romance between Betty Garrett, who plays Miss Williams' sister, and Red Skelton, masseur mistaken for Montalban. The complications are obvious, entirely routine, and unravel for the expected finish.

This story base, quickly told and probably as quickly assembled by scenarist Dorothy Kingsley, actually is the excuse for comedy byplay between Miss Garrett and Skelton, the attraction's two brightest performances, and parades —in Technicolor—of symmetrical show girls in swimming togs plus a spectacular water ballet as well as song and dance numbers and assorted what-not.

The combined result is a pleasant and frothy musical which, like all musicals, goes from high spot to low spot in uncertain progression toward a happy closing.

Miss Williams does reasonably well with the dramatics, such as she is called upon to deliver. She is at her best, of course, when poised on the diving board and in graceful motion in the pool. Montalban cuts a nice, romantic dash which ought to register neatly with the distaff side. Wynn bobs in and out of the picture aimlessly and never gets a chance.

"Neptune's Daughter," produced by Jack Cummings and directed by Edward Buzzell, with an unflinching eye on corn, nevertheless is one for the money. Could be big money, too.

Running time, 93 minutes. General audience classification. For June release date, June, 1949.

distributors in new contract negotiations.

SPG reported yesterday that NLRB New York regional director Charles T. Douds rejected an application by Local No. 230 to represent a group of RKO Radio artists who several weeks ago resigned from the Guild. These artists, SPG claims, are part of an industry-wide bargaining unit which is represented by the Guild. Douds, SPG said, ruled against further proceedings in connection with Local 230's bid for the artists on the ground that the artists' unit "is inappropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining."

Meanwhile, SPG, and its sister union, Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, which have stepped up picketing of Loew's theatres here in protest against the breakdown in industrywide contract negotiations, have adopted a no-picketing rule for Loew's theatres showing Eagle-Lion pictures this week. E-L is the only company now signed with the unions.

Ask Decision Be Upheld

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Telefilm, Inc., today asked the U. S. Supreme Court to uphold a Los Angeles Superior Court decision awarding the company $300,000 damages in an unfair competition suit against Harry M. Warner, Nathan Levinson, and six other defendants. Warner and the other defendants had asked the Los Angeles court for a new trial after a jury in December, 1947, had awarded Telefilm $250,000 compensatory and $50,000 exemplary damages.

'IA' Pact Talks Fail; Walsh's Entry Asked

A breakdown in new contract negotiations at Paramount News and DeLuxe Laboratories, has brought a request by IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 that "IA" international president Richard F. Walsh intervene to bring about agreements. It is understood that H-63 has refused to yield in its demands for substantial salary increases. However, before taking "drastic" action against the companies, the local's executives have decided to seek agreements with Walsh's assistance. Walsh is expected to appoint a top "IA" international officer to represent him in future talks involving Paramount News and DeLuxe.

Meanwhile, H-63 has filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board here to be certified as the bargaining representative of the 200 Carl Fischer Music Co. employes in the city, it is reported by Russell Moss, executive vice-president.

Screen Quiz Reel

A press and exhibitor screening of the new quiz reel, "Who? When? and Where?," presented by Santa Claus Quiz Shows, Inc., was held here yesterday at the RCA Johnny Victor Theatre. The film is part of a series of quiz shows offering prizes to theatre-going winners. The idea is to present the reels each week. The series will offer community and state prizes. State winners then will compete for national prizes, which will be worth more than $100,000 to a single filmgoer, according to Ray Jackson, head of the firm.

Father Masterson cited "the fine cooperation" extended to the Legion by the industry. Other speakers paid tribute to the late Mrs. Rita L. McGoldrick, founder and first chairman of film department of IFCA.

Others on the dais were: Nate Spingold, Albert Howson, William Kelly, and Father Thomas Little.

Agenda Is Set for NCA Convention

MINNEAPOLIS, May 17.—Following an open discussion with 20th-Fox sales executives Al Lichtman and Andy W. Smith, Jr., on the company's new sales policy, there will be talks by several other industry leaders and Mayor Hoyer of Minneapolis, at the North Central Allied convention in Minneapolis, May 23-24.

Buying problems, with emphasis on percentages and forced buying, are also high on the agenda of trade practices tagged for debate. Non-members are invited to participate.

Mrs. Gertrude Birnbaum

Mrs. Gertrude Pleshette Birnbaum, 59, mother of Gene Pleshette, manager of the Brooklyn Paramount Theatre, died Sunday at her home in the Bronx. Other survivors are the widower, Jacob, two other sons, Arnold and Manuel Pleshette, and two grandchildren, Michael and Susan. Services will be conducted today at the Park West Memorial Chapel, with Rabbi Elias Solomon officiating.

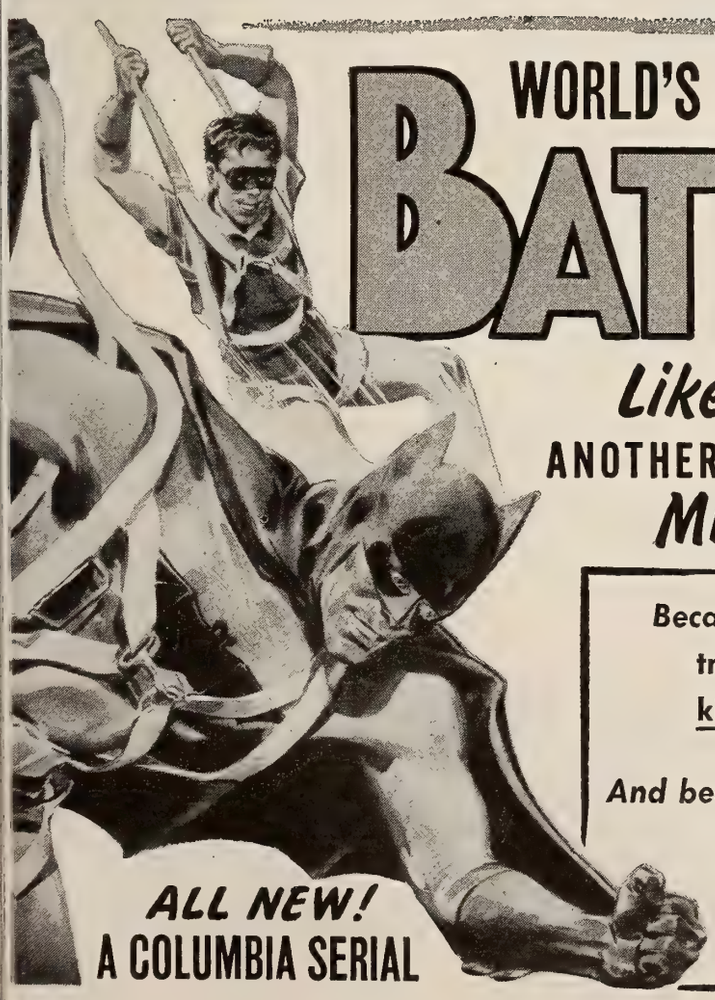
Committeemen who also attended yesterday's meeting included: Theodore Black, Lewis Blumberg, Robert Chambers, Edward T. Cheyfitz, Oscar Doob, Paul Raibourn, John Whitaker and Frank Cahill.

After a discussion of Federal Communications Commission channels for theatre television the committee authorized the secretary, Edward T. Cheyfitz, to engage a paid assistant who would devote his entire time to the committee's television activities.



The committee viewed a film on the subject of "Phonevision" and listened to John R. Holland, assistant to the president of Zenith radio, discuss his company's plans for utilizing telephone wires in connection with television.

give the Mills Bill a green light, excise reductions will almost certainly be tacked on.

The change of the corporate income tax payments is itself of interest to film firms. Companies now can pay corporate income taxes for one year in four quarterly installments during the next year. But under the Mills Bill, corporations working on a calendar year basis will pay all of their 1949 taxes in two equal installments before July 1, 1950. Corporations paying taxes on a fiscal year will have to pay their total taxes within six months.

Western Electric "300" recording system in use aboard Navy Electronics Laboratory vessel at sea. (Official photograph U. S. Navy)

How the Navy uses Western Electric recording equipment

U. S. Navy scientists use Western Electric sound film recording equipment to make on-the-spot records of the operation of sonar, radar, fire control and other naval electronic equipment. These sound motion pictures provide a permanent record for laboratory study whenever and wherever needed.

Of particular value for use at sea—and beneath the sea in submarines—is the "300" recording system shown above. Compact and portable, with the dependability needed for extended cruises, this equipment effectively records the low frequency sound reflections and the high frequency transients encountered in sonar and radar studies.

It is this dependability and fine sound quality which have made Western Electric recording equipment the favorite throughout the world.

TOA Asks for Video Trailers For New Films

Company Heads Urged to Start Experimentations

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Theatre Owners of America, has sent a recommendation to production-distribution company presidents for the experimental use of television trailers to promote feature pictures.

"The television committee of the Theatre Owners of America has been working to determine how television might best be used by the motion picture industry," and "as a result of its studies we feel that at this time television might serve us best through its advertising potential," said Sullivan in a letter to company heads.

TOA officials have been urging television trailers for the promotion of new product for some time; Sullivan's recommendation direct to company presidents is the first formal action to be taken.

"We have advocated strongly the

Name MPEA Committee On Anglo-US Proposals

Special committee of the Motion Picture Export Association assigned to determine the workability and further clarification of the proposals advanced by the Anglo-American Films Council has been appointed here to work with Arthur Loew, head of Loew's International, who had been named by MPEA president Eric A. Johnston earlier to serve as chairman.

The group consists of Emanuel Silverstone, vice-president of 20th Century-Fox International; Norton V. Ritchey, president of Monogram International; Abe Schneider, Columbia vice-president and treasurer, and John G. McCarthy, managing director of the international division of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Appointment of Loew by Johnston was made at an MPEA meeting here last Friday, when some company presidents and foreign department heads made it clear that their acceptance of the proposals, including the subsidization of British production, was not in immediate prospect.

Arnall Presses D. C. Attack on MPEA

WASHINGTON, May 18.—SIMPP president Ellis Arnall followed up his written protests on the Anglo-American Film Council proposals with personal calls here today. The proposals are being considered by the Motion Picture Export Association.

Arnall could not be reached and SIMPP's Washington law firm of Barnes and Hill did not know exactly whom he had seen. But it was established that he had talked with State Department film chief Merrill Gay and other State Department officials, and it was reported—but could not be confirmed—that he had talked to offi-

Ascap, Telecasters Nearing Agreement On Terms for Music

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and top-echelon representatives of the television industry yesterday appeared to have reached a tentative agreement on terms for keeping Ascap music on video beyond June 1, when current contracts expire.

While no conclusions were reached, all indications were that at another meeting, probably today, both sides will narrow down the last remaining issues to the point where specific approval of licensing provisions could be made.

In the absence of official comment there were reports that Ascap and the television executives were agree-

One of the changes that television will bring upon theatrical newsreels will be the presentation of fewer stories but with more extensive background and documentation, according to John Tobin, general manager of The Telenews Digest, newsreel. In an interview here, Tobin pointed out that television can get films on the screen faster than they can be gotten into the theatre. As a result, he said, the trend in theatrical newsreels will be toward longer reports and greater comprehensiveness.

Last month, Telenews switched from one to two theatrical newsreel

Decision Seen On E-L Deal By Weekend

Small Purchase Plans Are Weighed by Young Here

What is likely to be the final round of conferences aiming at the transfer of Eagle-Lion's control to Edward Small got underway here yesterday, when Robert R. Young, principal stockholder of Pathe Industries, and William C. MacMillan, E-L operations vice-president, discussed at length the results of last weekend's conferences on the Coast with Small and Serge Semenenko, Boston banker representing Pathe, E-L parent company. MacMillan acted as Young's personal representative in the Coast talks.

A definite decision as to whether E-L control will be sold to Small is expected to be made by the weekend, it was indicated here yesterday.

TOA Gross Bulletin Delayed to June 1

First of the Theatre Owners of America's gross performance bulletins has been "unavoidably delayed," and is expected now to be distributed to members about June 1.

Originally scheduled to be distributed about May 1, the bulletin will be issued weekly, and will list in percentages the box-office performances of current features in various sections of the country, as reported by 400 TOA members in the field.

David Bines Named Palace Stage Head

David Bines, who has been staging shows for the RKO circuit, out of town, for 14 years, will be the stage director for the vaudeville shows which will open a new split policy, with feature pictures, at the RKO Palace Theatre here today.

A veteran showman, who served many years also with Paramount-Publix staging shows, Bines supervised the installation of a new lighting system, stage equipment and scenery at the Palace, which has not had a regular policy of vaudeville since 1935.

The price scale will be about the same as that charged for the straight picture policy. On Monday through Friday, the scale will be 55 cents until noon, 65 cents to 5 P.M. and 95 cents from 5 P.M. to closing. Saturday's scale will be 55 cents to noon, 65 cents to 1 P.M., 80 cents between 1 and 2 P.M., 95 cents from 2 to 5 P.M. and $1.20 from 5 to closing. On Sundays the price will be 95 cents to noon and $1.20 from noon to closing. Children's admissions will be 50 cents at all times.

Al Lewin Returns To Post at M-G-M

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—Al Lewin has returned to his executive post at M-G-M folowing completion of arrangements for release by M-G-M of his forthcoming independent production, "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman." Before beginning the film, Lewin accepted an assignment from Dore Schary to act as his representative in Italy on the filming of "Quo Vadis," which Arthur Hornblow will produce and John Huston will direct. The three will sail from New York for Italy on June 10. Filming is scheduled to start on July 4.

Hearing Next Week On K-B Controversy

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Further argument in the controversy between K-B Amusement Co. and Warner Brothers over the jointly-owned and operated MacArthur Theatre has been set for next week—probably on Wednesday—in District Court here.

Judge McGuire some weeks ago heard arguments on whether K-B or Warner was obliged to have a second theatre built by Kass Realty Corp., and under what terms. Now he has asked both parties to argue next week on the terms for Warner getting out of the joint venture.

K-B wants to buy Warner's stock at book value, while Warner wants the venture dissolved and its assets sold at public auction. Judge McGuire has promised to dispose of both questions before June 15.

Griffith Buying Now Legal, Says Counsel

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 18.—Griffith buying practices have been set up to conform to court decisions and anti-trust laws since he became legal adviser to the circuits 10 years ago, Henry Griffing told Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today.

Griffing said licensing practices were revised when the Supreme Court found the circuits guilty of monopoly practices two years ago. Principal point of guilt, he said, was the practice of negotiating with distributors for both competitive and non-competitive towns simultaneously.

Kans.-Mo. Exhibitors Plan Annual Meeting

KANSAS CITY, May 18.—Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Kansas-Missouri will hold its annual convention here on June 7-8 at the Muehlebach Hotel. William Ainsworth, president of National Allied, and Truman Rembusch, its treasurer, will be among the guests.

Meanwhile, the board of directors of the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Association has made preliminary plans for that organization's convention, with an October date expected to be set.

Ohio Committee Okays 3 Per Cent Tax

COLUMBUS, O., May 18.—The Ohio House of Representatives' taxation committee has voted 12-0 to recommend passage of House Bill No. 526 which restores to the state the three per cent admission tax, and return monies collected to the source. The bill has the support of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio which campaigned for its approval by the committee. Vote on the bill in the House is expected soon.

Two in Probe Posts

OTTAWA, May 18.—Chairman Vincent Massey announces the appointment of Archibald A. Day of the Department of External Affairs, as secretary and Rene Garneau, formerly with wartime Information Board, as assistant secretary, of the Royal Commission which will probe national developments of the arts, including the National Film Board, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and other government activities.

Reviews

"Colorado Territory"

(Warner Brothers)

A KEEN sense of box-office values was demonstrated by producer Anthony Veiller in the making of "Colorado Territory," a well-knit account of the stormy events leading up to the violent end of a colorful Robin Hood of the old West. Script writers John Twist and Edmund H. North fired their story with just about every one of those reliable elements which, when properly blended, spell out a Western that is rich in satisfaction. In this instance, director Raoul Walsh has seen to proper "blending."

Separating the individual ingredients in "Colorado Territory," we come up with the following: a tight-lipped, fearless, straight-shooting hero (Joel McCrea) against whom conditions and events conspire; a spirited half-breed miss, beautiful and with flaming emotions (Virginia Mayo); a daring train hold-up; villains and conspirators splendidly measured for the hero's bullets and the hangman's rope; fast, robust action, and last but not least, a Western locale whose monumental cliffs and desert expanses should change the mind of the most avid city dweller.

No need to give a detailed recitation of the plot. It is a variation of one of the basic narrative themes from which all Westerns spring. This one is neatly fashioned. McCrea's performance is one of his best, and, with the exception of Miss Mayo, whose role demanded more restraint than was her wont to demonstrate, the others in the cast fit nicely into the proceedings. Supporting performers include Dorothy Malone, Henry Hull, John Archer, James Mitchell, Morris Ankrum and others. Sid Hickox's photography is excellent.

Running time, 94 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, June 11.
